ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr Elvey Thomas; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Dr. Seaton is showing an excellent series of animated photographs here this week. Interspersed in the entertainment are some harmonious handbell selections, prettily played by Mr W. Kingsley; and songs tastefully rendered by Miss Marion Williams; while Professor Calsm is amusing as a ventriloquist.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier-master, Mr R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr J. D. Hunter.—On the Stroke of Twelve is being produced here this week by Messrs Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little's company. It is a play of forgery, love, murder, villainy, and revenge. Messrs Fred Rivers, Fred Guinness, and Creagh Hunt are the principal characters, whose unscrupulous scheming is interesting. The play is occasionally enlivened by some amusing patter, and songs and dances are given by Messrs Bass and Guinness, the eccentric comedian Mr Karl Edwards, and Mr Fred Little, the Negro artiste.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny.—Miss Cissie Heath, an attractive comedienne and dancer, opens a good programme; Mr Ernie Williams, comedian, sings with taste and expression; Miss Annie Laurie, comedienne, obtains a warm reception A novel turn is the blind pianist, M. Slippere, who, assisted by Miss Ramsay, imitates a variety of instruments with realistic effect. Messrs Forman and Fannan (Percy and Harold), comedians, are well received. The illusions of the Gregory Troupe are extremely smart and clever. Mr Ted Sounders, the new mimic, is very amusing. The drawing-room sketch, introduced by Charles and Lily Charlene, is a pleasing success.

HEBBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. A. Jackson; Acting-Manager, Mr Thos. Robson.—The variety programme is this week headed by Adam Tomlinson, a clever and amusing comedian. Next we have Bert Weston, whose songs and patter, as a swell comedian, are always welcomed. Chester and Lee's "Theatre des Fantoches," namely the marionettes, give an excellent entertainment. Francis Daniels and company figure admirably in the domestic sketch, entitled A Father's Vengeance. The Boultons do well as musicians and dancers; Harry Bent gives some smart impersonations of various well-known comedians; Carlotta Lunn, American comedienne; the Schallers, comedy artistes and gymnasts; and Mdlle. Bartenelli, lady bender, also meet with approval.

HORWICH.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Arthur Sandiford.—Under Mr Sandiford's management the above theatre appears to have taken a new lease of life, and both the visiting companies and the audiences seem to highly appreciate his efforts for their comfort. Mr C. Watson Mill and his company in A Wrecker of Men, met with a hearty reception on Monday. The plot, scenery, and mechanical effects, especially the Wreck of the Yacht and the Palace of Pharaoh, are very fine, and the company is a first-class all-round one. The part of Jim Murley alias The Slogger, gives Mr Watson Mill opportunity for displaying his histrionic abilities, of which he takes due advantage. Mr Chas. Yorke is responsible for a careful rendering of the part of Pharosaphus; Mr Alfred Maurice's representation of Guise Strange is excellent; Mr Mac J. Cumming as the Hon. Reggie Verincourt is decidedly good; Mr G. Brooke's rendering of Karnaphus, the mummy, is very realistic; and Mr Alfred Harvey as Bob Birchill, the warder, looks and plays the part to perfection. Miss Rosalid Tate's portrayal of Risca Mallison, the serpent woman, is admirable, her fiendish cruelty and unnatural power being very pronounced; Miss Victoria May plays Doris Melville in a pleasing and sympathetic manner; and Miss Kitty Melville as Vavasole Slopper is decidedly funny.

HOYLAND.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Owner, Arthur Carlton; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Geo. S. King.—Mr Walter Melville's company is appearing here this week in The Worst Woman in London. In the title-rôle Miss Constance Medwyne acts with unflagging energy. Miss Lillian Ross makes a winsome Ruth Milford. The character of Hugh Drayton offers many opportunities to Mr Joe Bracewell, who clearly realises what the rôle demands. Jack Felton finds an able exponent in Mr E. J. Collins; Mr George H. Asquine causes considerable fun as Bob Goldfinch, being ably assisted by Miss H. Rigby as Matilda Parker; Mr Roy Byford gives a meritorious impersonation of James Milford; Mr B. Elton is a good Detective Curzon; and as Vincent Lyle Mr P. B. Lewers is duly callous. The stage management is in the excellent hands of Mr H. Maxwell-Payne.

HARROGATE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager Mr Smith.—Mr Robert Perris's company opened a three nights' engagement here on Monday with the American drama, A Fight for Millions. Mr Perris gave a clever representation of the part of the inventor, Tom Manley, and was supported by a clever company of artistes, including Mr J. Newton Cowling, Mr Horace Booth, Mr L. Clements, and Mr F. Acton, and Miss Eva Purcell, Miss F. Williams, Miss K. Eckart, Miss Winnie Acton, and Miss Gertie Douglas, who sustained their respective rôles in a thoroughly praiseworthy manner.

HARTLEPOOL.

EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; General Manager, Mr Harry Burns.—The marvellous intelligence shown by Capt. Woodward's seals and sea lions is causing nothing short of a sensation. Edgar Forrest and company perform in a sketch which produces much laughter. The dialogue, "Married or Photographed," is as popular as ever as done by F. Warden Reed and company; J. W. Rickaby has a good reception; Gus Balsiger in trick musical comedy makes a hit; the Sisters Volbecque have been seen here on several occasions and successfully introduce new business; Flo D'Orville, versatile artiste; Jack Carliss, comedian; Rose Tilley, vocalist; and Burns's pictures complete the bill.

HUDDERSFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy G. Arthur. — The highly coloured drama, Woman and Wine, is produced here by Mr Milton Bode's company. A weirdly powerful performance is given by Miss Edith Blande as Marcel. Miss Nellie Lauraine as La Colombe shows fine strength in her interpretation. Miss Ernestine Holker, with her quiet, refined bearing, vividly contrasts her part of Mary Andrews against the former two. Mr Frank R. Robertson as Dick Seymour comes successfully through an exacting part. Mr Fred Mace is quietly effective as the elder Seymour. Much hilarity results from the energetic efforts of Mr Percy Dawsone as Charles Sawter and Miss Muriel Vox as Mrs Sawter. Mr Tom Tindall is comical as Prof. Sawter; Mr Walter Thornton gives a well-defined rendering of Beaudet; Mr Herbert Landeck is effectively gruesome as Cruera; Mr Frank Eaglesfield is smart and relentless as Collins; and some vigorous and original acrobatic dancing is contributed by the Edene Troupe.

HULL.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr W. Morton; General Manager, Mr W. F. Morton.—The Moody-Manners company is ever-popular and ever-welcome in this city, and can, at all events in Hull, look to a warm welcome. The répertoire this week is such as to command an extended patronage. On Monday evening La Traviata was performed, and the representation as a whole was highly commendable. The chorus and the orchestration was of the fine order which has made this company so famous. The prima-donna was Madame De Vere de Sapio, and this admirable artist was never seen or heard in Hull to better advantage. As a lyric lover few can excel Joseph O'Mara. Capital, too, was the work of Mr Dever. Herr Eckhold conducted in good style. On Tuesday Mignon was down, and the performance was notable by the charm and grace of Madame Fanny Moody's Mignon. It was noteworthy, and in every sense only such a performance as one could expect from so fine an artist. Fräulein Toni Seiter and Miss Kate Anderson were both conspicuously successful. Wednesday night witnessed the production of La Juive, with a cast including Madame Vere De Sapio, Mr Chas. Manners, Mr Pembroke Wilson. It was as successful as its predecessor. Friday night, Carmen, with the famous Zelie De Lussan.

GRAND THEATRE, OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; Local Manager, Mr Wynn Miller.—H. A. Jones's brilliant comedy, Joseph Entangled, is engaging the attention of the audience this week, and its reception has been hearty and sincere. The plot is decidedly novel, and shows the cleverness of the author in skating over thin ice. The dialogue is exceedingly smart, and the mounting all we could desire. The cast is a strong one. Full of vivacity and life is Mr H. F. Warner's Joseph. Miss Mona K. Oram was a charming Lady Mayne. The apparently injured husband is pleasingly played by Mr Stanley W. Ashworth.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Sole Owner, Mr W. Morton; Manager, Mr Geo. Morton.—The ever-verdant Still Alarm pays its first visit to the Alex this week. Its powers of attraction are in no sense diminished with the engine, horses, and greyhound.

PALACE THEATRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Local Manager, Mr A. Graham.—Mr Albert Chevalier, who is here, is both pathetic and comic, mingling cleverly the two extremes. Lilian Lowe is a charming vocalist, with a fine voice. The Lukushima Troupe are equilibrists of the first order.

SYLVESTER'S EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr Jas. Sylvester Sage.—Marie Collins, an old Hull favourite, has lost none of her popularity; the Rushforths gain much applause in some illustrated songs; Tell and Tell are smart acrobats; and other Empire favourites include Walter Bannell, Jenny Joy, King Leo, and Harry Warne. The Bioscope shows some good pictures.

CIECUS.—Resident Manager, Mr E. Emerson.—Harry H. Hamilton is showing some excellent pictures. In addition there is a good variety company, including Foo Choo, a Chinese conjuror; Hoppitt, Tony, and Terry; the Watson Trio, in a sketch, The Tramp in Trouble; and Urma and Kesanby's troupe of terriers.

HYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Joseph W. Maloney.—In possession here this week are Miss Nettie Ware and company with the sensational drama, When Woman Hates. Miss Ware gives a forcible and well-studied version of the inhuman Cora Daintry, and has an efficient companion in villainy in Mr Oscar Adye, who undertakes the rôle of Godfrey Lawton. Mr J. Petley plays the part of the hero, Lieutenant Frank Rokeby, naturally and with abundance of vigour. Mr Bensley Evans is highly successful as Colonel Hiram R. Vancutson; Mr Will Percy is amusing as Patrick O'Brien; Mr G. Thorn extracts plenty of humour out of the part of Alphonse Picolot; and Mr Eric Campbell submits a good character sketch as Bill Smashem. Miss Jennie Hughes as the heroine, Marie Rokeby, has no difficulty in winning the sympathy of her audience, and Miss Louise Brandon renders yeoman service as Edith Rokeby. Little Kathleen A. Crook gives an intelligent interpretation to her lines as Nelly Rokeby, and the Misses Olive Lanty and Ida Cunard are well placed as Mrs Potts and her daughter, Sally.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. G. Fisk.—Les Cloches de Corneville on Monday evening was presented by a company organised by Mr E. St. Alban. This comic opera—one of the best of the kind—still maintains its old interest. In the part of Gaspard Mr St. Alban is responsible for a fine assumption; the Baillie is well played by Mr George Delaforce; the Gobo of Mr Fowler Thatcher is full of drollery; Mr G. A. Fox sings and acts well as the Marquis; and the same may be said of Mr Walter Cranbourn as Grenichaux. Miss Lucy Fitzroy is a vivacious Serpolette, and Miss K. Farrell a graceful Germaine.

IPSWICH HIPPODROME.—Among the new turns in the week's programme at this attractive place of amusement in the Woodbridge-road are Mdlle. Lonsdale, a refined and powerful vocalist; Myers, an entertaining comedian; the Pereys, a pair of artists who cause much laughter by their drolleries; and Hookinge, who styles himself the "man of mystery."

JARROW.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson.—This week's attraction is Mr H. Swinerd's company, in a musical comedy, entitled Dare Devil Dorothy. Mr H. C. Ward gives an excellent rendering of Captain Edward Dudley; Mr C. W. Parke is a good Captain George Fielding; Mr A. Stretton is well placed as Hawkins; Mr Arthur Verne as Silas Crump proves himself to be a comedian of the first water; Miss M. Cecil is an excellent Dorothy Montrose; Miss K. Garnon is quite at home in the part of Ruth Montrose; and Miss Nellie Harcourt is satisfactory as Judith. Specialities are introduced by the various members of the company.

KEIGHLEY.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Barnes.—His Majesty's Guests company is here on a return visit. Mr William Rokeby's eccentricity as Sergeant Lightning creates much amusement. Mr Charles Howard is very good as Lord Essem, Mr Wellesley Smith is seen to advantage as Mr Miffio, Mr L. Stirling is a capable actor, Mr Chas. Leoville and Mr. E. C. Lilly are seen to advantage, and Miss Madge Fenton ably fills the part of Lady Essem.

KENDAL.

ST. GEORGE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr R. F. Chorley; Manager, Mr J. W. Butler.—Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company was here on the 4th and 5th inst. in Quality Street. Miss Nellie Bowman appears with success as Phœbe Throssell, and Miss Maud Townsend lends capable support as Susan Throssell. Miss Violet Vivion scores as Patty, Mr F. Vernon Travers as Valentine Brown is excellent, Mr Edward Jephson is the Ensign Blades, Mr Egerton Hine plays Lieutenant Spicer, and other parts are well sustained. This week Mr Charles Macdona's company has been here for three nights with A Country Girl.

KIDDERMINSTER.

NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr R. C. Gudgeon, jun.—For the first three nights of this week we had a visit from Mr Frank Wilson's company in The Marriage of Kitty. In the rôle of Sir Reginald Belsize Mr Frank Wilson acts in good style; Mr Sydney Orton as John Travers, the solicitor, is excellent; Mr J. F. Leighton causes much fun as Norbury; Mr Royston Keith, jun., as Hampton is also good; Madame De Semiano is effectively presented by Miss Kate Harwood; and Miss Vera Fordyce as Miss Katherine Silverton is charming and graceful.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Messrs Lester Reekie and Howard Stephens.—Another excellent company here includes the Two Daniels, Gracie Logan, J. C. Sheffron, Sisters Grey, Raynor and Jull, singing contest, and Clara Hastings.

KILMARNOCK.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Hales.—On the first three nights of this week La Poupée was presented by Mr E. Lockwood's No. 1 company. Miss Midge Clarke's Alesia could scarcely be improved upon, and Mr T. A. Shale as the bashful Lancelot is admirable. Mr Arthur Reynolds as Hilarius is as funny and fresh as ever. The acting and singing of all the other members of this first-class company is of a high-class character. Mr Chalmers Mackey and company in The Wearing o' the Green were here on Thursday and Friday.

LEAMINGTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr Harry Esden.—Mr Harold V. Neilson and company in The Tyranny of Tears commenced a three nights' engagement on Monday. Mr Neilson filled the rôle of Parbury in an admirable manner; Mr Edward Sarley gave a convincing impersonation of the cynical Gunning; Miss Amy Sangster was responsible for an excellent conception of the jealous wife; and Miss Yvonne Orchardson made a captivating Miss Woodward. Mr John Detliv as the eccentric Colonel Armitage and Mr Ernest Noble as Evans were well placed. For Thursday The Duke of Killiecrankie was announced.

LEEDS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr Fredk. Vincent.—The new romantic light opera, The Duchess of Dantzic, was awarded a flattering reception on Monday by a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Mr George Edwardes' company includes most of the original cast from the Lyric Theatre. Miss Evie Greene is responsible for a highly successful delineation of the glorified washerwoman, Sans Gêne, not the least popular feature of which is her excellent vocal work; Miss Adrienne Augarde is charming in the rôle of Renée de Saint Mezard; and Miss Billie Burke is successful with a dainty yet effective impersonation of Lisette, a lady's maid. The fine work of Mr Holbrook Blinn as Napoleon is a strong feature; Mr Herbert Clayton upholds the heavy part of François Lefebvre, afterwards Duke of Dantzic, with distinction, his fine singing being specially admired; Mr Leonard Mackay gives a manly and effective portrayal of the dashing Vicomte de Bethune; Mr Courtice Pounds elicits continual hilarity by his humorous work as the Court milliner Papillon. Miss Mabel Lorrell, Miss Elizabeth Firth and Miss Doris La Tour are the ladies of Napoleon's court, whilst Mr Morgan Williams and Mr Cecil Cameron make an excellent chamberlain and page respectively.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston.—The popular melodrama Judy opened here to a full house on Monday, and a strong presentation by Mr Kirk and Miss Neil's company was thoroughly enjoyed. The title-rôle is played with ability by Miss Florrie Groves, a juvenile actress of great promise. Mr George Kirk is in his old part of Grip, the detective, and presents it with the strength and power we are accustomed to. Mr Carlton Wallace represents the villainous Duburg to general satisfaction. Mr William Vane is a capable hero and handles his part with distinction. The adventuress Blake is a clever effort by Miss Muriel Thompson, Miss Mary Neil is prominently successful in a heavy dual rôle; and Mr Will Carey, Mr Fred May and Miss Annie Mitchell are most effective in their respective parts.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Bush.—Miss Julia Neilson and Mr Fred Terry are engaged here in the presentation of their delightful new play Sunday, and throughout the week large demonstrative audiences have voted the piece an immediate success. Miss Neilson's fascinating portrayal of Sunday, a wayward, high-spirited girl of the backwoods, has nightly aroused the greatest enthusiasm. Mr Fred Terry plays Colonel Brinthorpe, an aristocratic Englishman in love with Sunday in his usual finished style. The four backwoodsmen, godfathers of Sunday, are cleverly acted by Messrs J. Carter Edwards, Horace Hodges, Alfred Kendrick, and Rothbury Evans. Mr J. D. Beveridge gives us a most excellent portrait of Tom Oxley, the colonel's fast friend, and Miss Bella Pateman renders capital assistance as Mrs Naresby. Mr Malcolm Cherry and Miss Adelina Bourne do all that is possible with their somewhat restricted opportunities.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr T. Gerald Morton.—The Empire programme this week is headed by Charles Prinz, the daring lion-tamer, with his numerous troupe of lions, giving an interesting exhibition. The Coloured Meisters are big favourites, with well-rendered glees, &c. An original speciality The Gypsies' Romance, is presented by a fine company. Margaret Ashton earns considerable applause for her fine vocal work; the Brothers De Wynne submit an expert athletic and acrobatic show; Swan and Bambart do a deal of clever and amusing business in the same line; Will English, J. H. Milburn, and James Kurry are all entertaining; and Doody and Wright, eccentric comedy artistes, and Mr and Mrs Clifford Bronte, in an amusing sketch, Saucy Maud, are also successful contributors to the programme.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr Thos Barrasford; General Managers, Messrs Chas. Weldon and Edgar O. Waller.—A strong programme is in evidence here, De Biere, the mystery man, giving a wonderful and interesting exhibition; Grand and Grant are responsible for a popular humorous speciality; the Four Merkel Sisters submit an expert and graceful gymnastic act; the Bros. Krags are also gymnasts of no mean order; Terry Lambert score the usual big success with clever comedy business; Whit Cunliffe and Wal Robbins are both popular contributors; clever speciality dancing is done by the Legay Quartet; and Mabel La Blanche, burlesque actress; Geraldo, the clever club juggler; and an interesting exhibition by Duncan's Royal Collies fill up the rest of the programme.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. W. Wood; General Manager, Mr J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Jones.—Marie Kendall, the popular comedienne leads here, and her well-rendered items are thoroughly enjoyed. An expert banjo speciality by Stanley and Greenop is very popular, as also are the eccentricities of Woodhouse and Wells, patter comedians. The Haldyne Duo present a smart comedy act with success. Juno Salmo finds favour with a clever speciality in the acrobatic line. Nellie Farrell is a vocalist of considerable merit, and a local juvenile, Master Harry Butt, is in the programme by reason of his excellent vocal abilities. Steve M'Carthy, a popular Irish comedian, appears, and a remarkably fine series of animated pictures completes the programme.

LEICESTER.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr C. D. Leigh.—Miss Fortescue, who has not visited Leicester for some little time, is making a welcome reappearance here this week in a répertoire of enjoyable plays. Moths was the pièce de résistance on Monday, and as Fuchsia Leach Miss Fortescue was seen to great advantage. Miss Gladys Jesson created a good impression as Vere Herbert and both Miss Miriam Lewes as the Duchess De Sonnaz and Miss Madeline Meredith as Lady Dolly Vanderdecken were excellent. Miss Eugenie Vernie was capital as Princess Nadine; Mr Dalziel Heron was a conspicuous success as Lord Jura; Mr Conway Wingfield played exceedingly well as Prince Zouroff; Mr Cecil Newton was very good as Raphael De Correze; and Mr Francis Burdett as the Duke of Mull and Cantyre is also to be complimented on a portrayal of merit. The beautiful scenery, which was painted by Mr C. D. Leigh, the popular manager of the Royal Opera House, evoked the admiration of the audience. She Stoops to Conquer, The School for Scandal, Ought We to Visit Her, and Comedy and Tragedy are also in the répertoire.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—The Heart of a Hero, presented by Messrs Carson and Granville's company, is the attraction here this week. Miss Cissie St. Elmo as Nell Resdale scores a success, and as Jem Resdale Mr F. W. Goddard is in every way excellent. Mr Charles E. Johnson gives a clever portrayal of the villain, Wilfred Marl; Miss Lily Langley is good as May Ryder; and Miss Beatrice Hudson is well placed as Mrs Ryder.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal.—An exceptionally good programme is submitted here this week, the chief attraction being Seeth's lions, presented by Herr George Thielbar. Tom Costello, one of Leicester's most popular favourites, is again repeating his usual success. Arthur Rigby is another comedian who is always sure of a hearty reception at this hall. Wal Pink and company are creating the greatest merriment with their sketch Uncle's Wife. The Wheelers give a clever and amusing turn as cyclists. The Two Bees return, and give with success their pretty scena "Hiawatha." Albert Athas and Lizzie Collins, popular variety artists, are seen to considerable advantage in a new musical act; Frank Maura, the well known Mexican foot equilibrist, is making a hit; and Jessie Albini, descriptive vocalist, sings exceptionally well.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—The star turn here this week is Sandford and Lyons, comedians and dancers, who are scoring a decided success. The Sisters Morgan, duettists and dancers, get a good reception, and it is needless to say that Nellie Gannon, Harry Wright, and the Two Stars, who are so well and favourably known to Leicester audiences are again received with their usual cordiality. Bert Lytton, swell comique, is good; Ida Gladstone scores as a vocalist; and hearty laughter is created by Sandy and Carl, acrobatic knockabouts.

LINCOLN.

ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr Frank King.—The Ben Greet company presented La Poupée on Monday evening. Mr Algernon Lee was an excellent Launcelot and Miss Cissie Wade a really charming Alesia. Mr Joseph A. Brull is now the Father Maxime, and wins high favour, and as Chanterelle Mr Stanley White was well worthy of his predecessors in the part; Loremois was in the able hands of Mr Harry Bishop. The inventor, Hilarius, was capitally portrayed by Mr Bert Danson, and Madame Hilarius was well favoured as depicted by Miss Margaret Ainsworth. Miss Ena Ellis was a very good Henri. Mr Bolton conducted with care, and the staging left nothing to be desired.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr Sydney Arthur; Assistant-Manager Mr Henry Blake.—Another strong programme is attracting crowded houses this week. Manning's Entertainers create continuous merriment with the Turkish bath sketch, during which some sensational tumbling is given. Roze and Calvert present a lively sketch, song and dance being interspersed with side-splitting burlesque. The Karno Trio give their "Travellers' Rest" act with any amount of life and go, and a smart turn is that of the Bros. Harlem, acrobats, dancers, and batôn manipulators. Lily Black, the St. Johns, the Darrell Trio, George Hyam, and Belle Meredith all score.

LLANELLY.

ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr John Tully.—Mr Norman V. Norman's company in a repertory of plays is appearing here with success this week. The plays include Under the Red Robe, David Garrick, The Lady of Lyons, and Nell Gwyn. Mr Norman V. Norman is supported by that clever actress, Miss Beatrice Wilson, and a very good company, including Messrs Robert Hilton, Iden Payne, Norman Leslie, Richard Havers, Barnett Parker; the Misses Lilian Kevel-Davies, Norah Doyle, Florence Glossop Harris, Kathleen Rind, and Coleman Phillipson.

LONDONDERRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr W. Payne Seddon.—Mr Edward Terry has paid a welcome visit here, though only for two nights. Sweet Lavender was presented on Monday to a densely crowded house. As Dick Phenyl Mr Edward Terry delighted the audience. Clem Hale by Mr A. Hylton Allen was cleverly done, and Horace Bream was in the capable hands of Mr Allan Pollock. Mr George Howard filled the part of Geoffrey Wedderburn finely. Bulger was well played by Mr Fred Knight. Miss Vara Renny enacted Ruth Rolt with great feeling and as Lavender Miss Beatrice Terry was delightful. Miss Olive Wilton was a vivacious Minnie, and as Mrs Gilfillan Miss Beatrice Selwyn was very good. Kerry and The Passport were staged on Tuesday.

LEIGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Dewhurst.—Mr Frederick Melville's company is paying a visit here this week with the drama entitled Between Two Women. Mr Albert Ward gives a telling portrayal of his original part of the Rev. Philip Carton; Mr Sydney Price as the Earl of Millard is capably rendered; Mr Fred Morgan as James Durwood gives a vigorous piece of acting; Miss Morita Valdar as Carmen De Savereaux accomplishes her task in a most praiseworthy manner; while Miss Maria Robson submits a sympathetic and convincing rendering of Violet Thornton. Mr Tubby Eldin as Jack Pringle causes endless amusement whenever he is upon the stage; Miss Sybil Hammersley successfully emphasises the part of Polly Popp; too much praise cannot be bestowed on Miss Alice Bowers for her clever rendering of the Blind Boy; Mr Fredk. Sandy as Dick Burgess and Mr Graham Woods as Major Strangeways are both commendable.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. H. Dunlop.—Mr J. K. Reynolds' company is here this week in the dramatic episode entitled Conscience. Mr Will Saunders, loose-legged comedian, does some good work; Miss Lili Gorman, comedienne and dancer, is well received; Messrs Selby and Myers, comedians and dancers, are very smart; Mr Robert Horrocks, the popular local ventriloquist, is cheered to the echo for his original performance.

LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.—That merry musical comedy The Earl and the Girl made its first appearance in Liverpool this week and crowded houses have greeted it with cordiality. The company, which is a sufficiently strong one to do full justice to the work in regard to the manner of presentation, is one organised by Mr William Greet. Mr Wm. Stephens is a tower of strength as Cheese, and keeps the audience in a state of continuous merriment. Miss Dot Carey plays the part of the dog-trainer's sweetheart with much humour; Mr Percy Carr is an admirable Dick Wargrave; as the American solicitor Mr Will Hindson is a success; and Mr J. C. Graves presents a laughable Mr Talk. The host of Fallowfield Arms is capitally rendered by Mr Tom Redmond; Miss Gladys Fontaine is the strong lady, and Miss Aimée Grey the American heiress.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. M. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Gaffney.—Barrie's charming comedy Quality Street has been here this week, and was much enjoyed by good audiences. The company is that of Messrs Gatti and Frohman, and the accessories are very complete. Mr David Glassford is a capital Valentine Brown, acting with artistic ease; Miss May Whitty gives a pretty presentation of Susan Throssal, and Miss Grace Armytage Noble a sympathetic study of Miss Phœbe, the sister. Miss Mable Wynne submits a well-finished picture of Patty.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. French; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Beltram.—The Lady of Ostend has delighted large audiences here during the week. Given by Mr Lawrence Brough and a capable company, the merry farcical comedy has been thoroughly enjoyed. Mr Brough was the Baron De Longueville, his work alone creating great laughter. Mr Harry Hampson enacted Dick Whortles; Mr Percy Marshall, Joseph Carbury; and Mr Edmund Gurney, the prize-fighter. Included among the ladies were Miss Kate Milford, a charming Dorothy Whortles; Miss Rosamund Rokeby, a vivacious Lady of Ostend; Miss Eleanor Gilbart, an austere mother-in-law; and Miss Dora Vane, a fascinating Millie Grace. On Friday evening The Cruise of the Saucy Sally was staged.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Licensee, Mr J. G. Howard; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Montgomery, jun.—The Grip of Iron is still a powerful attraction, judging by the public appreciation that has been accorded it here throughout the week. The company is that of Mr E. H. Knight and George Denham, and includes Mr Fred Powell, who has played Simmonet, the strangler, over 5,000 times. The drama is presented with completeness, and the large combination of artists is good all round.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—Another good programme is billed this week. George Gilbey tops the bill with some good songs and patter. George D'Albert who foots the bill, is a delightfully versatile comedian. Jack and Evelyn are a decidedly good turn; Rosie Coleman is undoubtedly a finished and artistic sand dancer; J. P. Carroll submits an original tambourine turn; Meier and Mora are good at ball-punching and dancing; Jack Hylton has an amusing song; the Three Prestons in The Lift Man's Rise are laughable; Charles F. Best, as M'Bunker, the mountebank, creates a deal of laughter; Harry Conlin is a good comedian; and Lue Lord is well received.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—Under the Russian Flag has proved a great draw here during the week. Messrs Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company has been responsible for the production, which has been given with much effect, the scenery being particularly good. Mr Walter Howard plays the part of Captain Demetrius with distinction and power; Mr G. Arthur is a successful Michael Romanoff; Miss Ellen Snow, an actress of ability, undertakes the somewhat difficult character of Luka Marischla; and Mr F. W. Freeman is an excellent Ivan Romanoff. The remainder of the rôles are in good hands.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr Fred Granville.—This popular theatre has been well patronised during the week to witness Messrs Carson and Granville's company in A Modern Adventuress, a work that is full of strong dramatic points. Miss Beatrice M. Anderson undertakes very successfully the exacting part of Violet Meredith, an unscrupulous woman, Mr Leonard Aardale is a powerful Pietro Donelli, and Mr George P. Lester a detective of discretion. Mr Charles Stirling and Miss Alice Defoe filled their parts with credit, and the lighter characters are sustained by Mr Evan Roland and Miss Mimi Fisher.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A. Crook.—At the top of the bill here this week is Alec Hurley, who with his company present the humorous sketch The Costa's Friendly Lead which has provoked great laughter. A spectacle of much splendour is shown in Hagedorn's wonderful grotto, in which are fairy fountains and cascades of real water. The sight is an exceptionally pretty one and evokes loud applause. Some clever and daring equilibristic feats are performed by the Parros Brothers; the Smythson's company presents an amusing trifle The Lie Alarm; the great Alexander goes through a number of neatly executed tricks on the bicycle; and others in the programme are Calile and Walker, comedy artistes; Charles Chard, eccentric comedian; Florence Esdaile, ballad vocalist; Phil Herman, character vocalist; the Three Nevaros, equilibrists; George Newburn, mimic and star artiste; Edie King, comedienne and dancer; and Annie Casey, comedienne.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The "great magic kettle" is the principal attraction here this week, and its wonders have been revealed before crowded audiences. Miss Minni Letta's "Sporting Girls," with their walking and running races, provide an admirable entertainment; the Ergotti and King Luis Troupe of Risley acrobats are a good turn; Virginia and her piccaninnies, with their songs and dances, are amusing; Imro Fox proves himself a clever illusionist and conjuror; Sibb and Sibb give a good show on the trapeze; Arthur Slater is an accomplished mimic, with his imitations of favourite songsters; and the programme also includes the names of Madeline May, comedienne; Professor Welsen, with his Swedish bar; Nelson's Newsboys, with songs and dances; and Hetty King, burlesque actress and mimic.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr F. O'Toole.—Foremost here this week are Lee and Arden, with their screamingly funny sketch The Lady and the Watchman; Whallen, an eccentric dancing comedian, is specially engaged; Percy Farrimond, the Lancashire singing collier, possesses a sweet tenor voice, and renders in good style a number of pleasant songs; and others in the bill are Winnie Terry, serio and dancer; Joe Hudo, a favourite coloured comedian and dancer; Mark Anthony, who remains another week; and Ford Williams, Welsh baritone. The cake walk competitions continue to interest.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin W. Smith.—A first-class bill-of-fare is submitted here this week. Principal is Neil Kenyon, a smart Scotch comedian, with many funny sayings and neat burlesque acting; Charles Mildare, with his whistling and imitations, is an acceptable turn; Miss Cissie Carter possesses a charming contralto voice, and renders several good songs; Len Lever is an able comedian, with his coon ditties and dances; Primavesi goes through some clever juggling; Andy Kerr proves a talented comedian and dancer; and the Royal Bioscope provides a number of new and charming pictures.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr James Kiernan.—Billy Ross and Co. are here this week earning much favour for their Irish comedy act, The Hot Member, which includes singing, dancing, burlesque, and scientific boxing. The company includes Miss Hilda Brandon. Sid Herman, Hebrew comedian, gives his latest success, "The Hebrew Alien;" Lidden and Hayward are a couple of exceptionally able artistes, and present their latest musical absurdity, A Quiet Rehearsal; Conan and Doyle provoke laughter with their quaint patter and comic actions; and others who appear are Will Letters, with song and story; Amy Donna, comedienne; and Fred Melton, "the universal sorrow-shifter." The Bioscope and competition snap-shots of people taken in the street continue to prove attractive.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery.—The Three Henriques are principal here this week with their comedy and acrobatic feats—a good entertainment; Oliver Conroy is an eccentric character comedian, and causes much laughter with his "I am only a little tailor, after all;" Vardor, the golfing ventriloquist, with his funny caddie, is very laughable; Charles Woodwood, an able character comedian, is loudly applauded for his latest monologue, "The Last Touch;" and others in the bill are Bertha Collins, comedienne; Fred Horsfall, mimic; Brothers Heyes, comedians; and Ray Ford, comedienne and dancer. On Thursday Mr G. Montgomery, the acting manager, took a benefit.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—There is an all-round good company here this week. In big type is Gus Harris, the delineator of Hebrew characters, with his humorous sketch The Pedlar; the Sisters Russell are a couple of smart exponents of burlesque and low comedy; the Clayton Twins and company present an extremely funny sketch, Pepper and Salt; Tom Dardan and Freda Iris are two clever vocalists and dancers, as are likewise Fred Solo and Agnes Mayo; and others in the bill are May Fallowfield, coon singer; Keith and Merson, acrobatic singing comedian; Woolhafs, pantomimists and dancers; and the Sisters St. John, duettists and coon dancers.

MACCLESFIELD.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Lessees Messrs Bendon and J. Larder.—On Monday the above hall was opened for the first time this season under entirely new management. The principle of two houses nightly is being tried, apparently with great success, for on Monday night both houses were comfortably filled. The programme is very attractive. Fred Ward, eccentric comedian, contributes some lively songs; the Brothers Esdale, comedians, are a smart pair; Mill May is clever in lightning-like changes; Grace Crompton, burlesque actress, is taking as well as ever; Tonini, Continental illusionist, is bewildering everybody; Fred Land, eccentric, gives a good performance; Pearce and Ward, burlesque boxers, are also an enjoyable turn; and Lieut. Chard's dogs go through a clever and entertaining performance.

MAIDENHEAD.

NEW PAVILION.—Sole Proprietor, Mr George Gude; General Manager, Mr Arthur Alston.—A very popular attraction is Miss Cissy Harcourt, a charming ballad singer, who is a great favourite at Maidenhead. She is vociferously applauded especially for "Sammy." Mons. Pei-Ho contributes a good hoop-rolling and acrobatic turn, Arnetti supplies an eccentric musical entertainment, and Bob Gates does well as Negro comedian and speciality dancer. George Scott sings well and scores heavily with a recitation on Hector Macdonald; Rex and Ford are intensely funny as burlesque artists and patterers; Fred Alberto is re-engaged from last week; Miss Katie Le Blanche is well received as vocalist and dancer; and La Belle Sylvia is, as described, a clever child vocalist, dancer, and club performer.

MELTON MOWBRAY.

EXCHANGE HALL.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Company; Lessee, Mr Geo. Andrews.—Mr W. H. Powell's company is here this week in There and Back. The exploits of Henry Lewson and William Waring are admirably presented by Messrs F. Ramsdale and Victor Hill. Miss G. Burnie and Miss Marie Scharning are clever as Mrs Lewson and Mrs Waring respectively, while Miss A. Bronson's embodiment of Marie Antoinette Smith is pleasing. Mr W. H. Powell proves capable as Jack M'Rae, and Mr Wm. Osborne gives valuable support.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson.—The long-expected visit of A Chinese Honeymoon is in course of fulfilment here this week. The tuneful music and sparkling libretto are capitally interpreted by Mr George Dance's capable company. Mr Helier Le Maistre is an exceedingly droll Emperor. Good work is done by Mr Rudolph Kloss as the Lord High Chancellor and by Mr Lennox Barry as the Lord High Admiral. Mr. J. Warren Foster gives a capital impersonation of Tom Hatherton. An exceedingly humorous impersonation of Mr Pineapple is submitted by Mr Gus Wheatman; and Miss Dot Stephens is a bright and winsome Mrs Pineapple. Miss Nellie Wigley sings sweetly and acts delightfully as Soo Soo. Great praise is due to Miss Gwennie Harcourt for a clever impersonation of Fi-Fi; her songs are loudly applauded, and her quaint antics and business keep the house in the best of humours throughout the play. Miss Elsie Carew gives a smart sketch of the mother-in-law.

MEXBOROUGH.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. H. Melton.—Mr Frank M. Thorne's company is this week playing here Napoleon the Great. Mr Henry Montgomery gives a fine embodiment of the title-rôle. Mr C. Halling is highly creditable as Colonel Meuron; the Colonel Lavarennes of Mr Henry Earlesmere is a capable study; Mr J. G. Maine plays excellently the character of Paul Laczinski; Mr F. M. Thorne (Pierre Pomponnet) and Mr C. W. Spencer (Sergeant Choupin) work capitally and provide excellent comedy. Miss Maud Russell imparts pathos and dramatic power to the character of Mdlle. Marbœuf; the Marie Waleswka of Miss Chrissie Dunbar is a careful effort; and Miss M. Harcourt is successful as Marcelle Choupin.

MANCHESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr Edmondstone Shirra.—A first-rate performance of Mr J. M. Barrie's clever and amusing play Little Mary was given here on Monday by Mr John Hare and company to a large and appreciative audience. Mr Hare as the Earl of Carlton played with his usual consummate ease, and amusing character studies of a medical specialist and the family doctor are in the hands of Mr Rudge Harding and Mr Clifford Brookes respectively. Excellent support is rendered by the Misses Helen Rous, Kathleen Gordon-Lee, Beatrice Kelston, and Messrs Carter Plokford, Eric Maturin, and Fred Grove. The honours of the evening, however, were undoubtedly those of Miss Hilda Trevelyan, whose performance of Moira Loney is extremely delightful, and marked with more than ordinary ability. Little Mary is preceded by a capital one-act play entitled 'Op o' My Thumb, in which Miss Hilda Trevelyan scores a decided success and Mr Rudge Harding is seen to advantage. Miss J. Ionas-Ker and Miss Frances Wetherall should also be mentioned. At the close of the performance on Monday Mr Hare, in the course of a short speech, stated that Mr Barrie was present, but on being called for he had vanished.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—Much laughter accompanied the performance here on Monday of The Orchid by Mr George Edwardes's company. A considerable audience was attracted by the good reports gained by the piece on its first visit some time ago, and the brilliance and humour it possessed then seem to have been enhanced by innumerable small improvements. Certainly it is one of the most enjoyable of musical plays, being exceedingly well equipped in respect of amusing characters, of dresses, scenery, songs, dances, and capable chorus. The bulk of the humour is supplied by Mr Lawrence Grossmith as the Hon Guy Scrymgeour and Mr George Gregory as Meakin, the gardenor. Other good parts are in the hands of Miss Coralie Blythe, Miss Luna Love, Miss Irene Verona, Miss Gertrude Gilliam, Mr Donald Hall, Mr Sam Walsh, Mr Sidney Vincent, and Mr Ellis Ogilvie—the latter a striking "make-up" of Mr Chamberlain.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—The attraction here this week is The Village Blacksmith, played successfully last week at the Grand Junction Theatre.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn.—A Message from Mars, played by Mr Mouillot's principal company, made a strong and successful appeal for the favour of a good house here on Monday evening. The most noteworthy feature of the performance is Mr Rawson Buckley's very clever depiction of the selfish Horace Parker, a character sketch which is especially well done in the first act. The other parts which stand out in a long and interesting cast are Miss May Saker's Minnie Templer, the Miss Parker of Miss Florence Hastings, Mr Bruce Lindley's realistic Tramp, and the Messenger from Mars manfully portrayed by Mr William H. Brougham. The somewhat perfunctory rôle of Arthur Dicey, the American rival of Horace Parker, is also sufficiently well played by Mr Frank G. Dunn.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A capital programme is submitted here this week, headed by Clark's Nippers in a club-manipulating and ball-punching act. The Terras Brothers also contribute a novelty in their acrobatic pastimes on the promenade. Mdlle Klcët is seen in a series of beautiful picture poses; the Crown Trio of vocalists sing well; and the Pender Troupe give an entertaining pantomimic sketch with success. Other good turns are the Ten Stilt Walkers; Sisters Neilson, duettists and dancers; Tony Iveson, the musical tramp; James Shingleton, the singing collier; Lydia Dudley, clever burlesque artiste; and Rivington and Gordyn, in comedy duologues.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Good business is being done here this week by Mr Edward Marris's company in a clever and entertaining sensational drama entitled As Midnight Chimes. Mr Frank E. Petley and Miss Gertrude Price have the heroic parts in hand, Mr Melville Bickford being seen to great advantage as Luke Dezzard. Considerable humour runs through the piece, and this is exploited chiefly by Witty Watty Walton as Tat Spavvin, the railway porter. Others who distinguish themselves among an adequate cast are Miss Annie Megson, Miss Minnie Ethel, Miss Iris M. Ward Mr John Mayall, and Mr Henry Beaufort. The staging is very effective.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Berry.—A big attraction this week is Mr Martin Harvey and company in a powerful romantic drama entitled The Breed of the Treshams, by John Rutherford. Nothing but praise can be accorded to the manipulation of the story, which is full of exciting incidents, and to its interpretation by the various members of the cast, chief among whom is, of course, Mr Martin Harvey as Lieutenant Raresby, known as "The Rat." This uncouth gallant fellow is exceedingly well depicted by Mr Harvey, whose superlative efforts are received nightly with unstinted applause. He is very ably assisted by Miss Coleridge as Margaret Hungerford, Miss N. de Silva as Batty, Mr Milton Rosmer as Francis Tresham, Mr Charles Glenney as Colonel Hungerford, Mr Percy Anstey as Colonel Sir Henry Curwen, Mr Albert E. Raynor as Viscount Dorsington, and Mr Gilbert Yorke as Captain Stanhope, all of whom act with remarkable sincerity and power. Even the efforts of the unnamed troopers of the Royalist army are marked by the most convincing energy, the bustle and noise of several of the scenes in which they are conspicuous lending extraordinary realism to the effect. The scenery also is well in keeping with the times.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Auto Atlas heads an excellent bill here this week, his feats of strength being most wonderful, including the lifting, with his teeth, of a motor car weighing 1,500 lbs, and containing three persons. Sam Redfern causes endless amusement with his songs and patter; George Chanti does some remarkably smart and clever national dances; Linton performs acrobatic feats on the tight rope with the greatest ease; the Ettenas are highly finished globe walking artistes; and Tom Bassett makes a hit with his Shylock and Svengali songs. Other good turns are Bliss and Bliss, with their amusing patter songs and dances; the Lavelles, whose acrobatic performance is both clever and funny; Emma Don, with her pleasing juvenile singers; and Curtis Leo and his black piccaninny, in a mysterious speciality, introducing some exceedingly smart conjuring and juggling.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—The "Novel Asra" gives a fine display of juggling here this week, and gains much applause. Well received also are the marvellous rifle-shooting feats of Winona. The veteran stump orator Billy Richardson evokes roars of laughter with his witticisms; Mephisto is an astounding contortionist; Barrett and Knowles are excellent laughter makers; and the performing dogs of Cabaret are extremely clever. Other items are supplied by George Rapley, comedian; Gerald Mount, vocalist and mimic; Arthur Albert, actor-vocalist; George Foyle, comedian; whilst a series of animated pictures complete.

TIVOLI.—Managing Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—Peggy Pryde, the well-known comedienne, provides the star turn here this week, and appears in her latest successes. Lawrence Barclay, one of our best eccentric comedians, is extremely funny, and meets with well deserved applause; Lily Morris is a pleasing comedienne, with good songs; W. P. Dempsey is a capital character comedian; and the Mayvilles (Harry and Elsie) are particularly successful in their clever Lilliputian novelty. Other enjoyable turns are provided by Edna Cragge, burlesque artist; Flo Leonard, soprano vocalist; Carlo Bianchi, equilibrist; and Harry Morgan, coon delineator.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—Sam Mayo, a capital comedian, tops the bill here this week, and meets with a hearty reception. An excellent turn also is that of Annie Dorina, who shows her ability as a quick-change artist in her latest success, How She did It. Lottie Lennox, a comedienne with plenty of go, is decidedly popular; Hayman and Franklin are entertaining speciality artists; and the Hollands are pleasing song illustrators. Very clever are the Five Parroscoppis, up-to-date jugglers; the Lombards, in their gymnastic speciality, introducing some fine hand-balancing; and Mdlle. Orbini, a graceful and daring gymnast. Other good turns are those of Nash and Noel, with amusing patter; J. W. Bray, comedian; George Penn, raconteur and eccentric musician; and Stella Stanley, serio comedienne. An interesting series of animated pictures complete.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—Clark and Hamilton, the well-known American comedy artistes, who appear with decided success in their musical sketch The Great Millionaire; and the enchanting coon, Spot, in his original, startling, and up-to-date scene, "The Cake-walk Craze," are the chief attractions here this week. Leo Tell, exponent of the equine language, is one of the best imitators of sounds before the public, and his turn is both clever and amusing. Arthur Reece, vocal comedian, has a good voice; Horace White is a capital ventriloquist and solo pianist; Amy Sullivan and Madge May are pleasing comediennes; Joe Mac, comedian, sings a song with a most amusing dance added; and considerable laughter is caused by Ganty, "the little lump of fun," and by the Angelos, in their Fun in a Studio sketch. The Palace pictures and "Stradella," excellently rendered by the orchestra, complete an enjoyable performance.

ARDWICK EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Collins.—The chief attractions here this week are Dutch Daly, the raconteur, who is greatly applauded for his beautiful concertina selections, and a stirring military episode Drummed Out, excellently played by A. C. Lilly and capable company. Special mention should be made of the excellent impersonation of Miss Kitty Kirwan as Mrs O'Flanagan. The original Miles-Stavordale Quintet contribute several beautiful selections on the banjo with wonderful voice-like effect; the Four Milons are fine specimens of humanity, who do some remarkably neat acrobatic feats of strength; Goggin and Davis work hard, and earn well-merited applause in their versatile comedy acrobatic act; Hill and Whitaker appear in banjo and song, Miss Whitaker making a big hit with her American success, "Hallelujah;" the charming Mabel Hind sings nicely, and dances most gracefully as a geisha; the Maningos are highly finished acrobats and equilibrists; the American Bioscope shows the story of "A Great Strike," and incidents of the North Sea outrage; and Zarmo contributes some comedy juggling.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Theatres, Limited; Managing-Directors, Messrs George and Charles Imeson.—Mr George Dance's company, with The Girl From Kay's, is drawing big houses As Max Hoggenheimer Mr Johnnie Schofield creates great laughter; he meets with an enthusiastic reception. Harry Gordon is capably embodied by Mr Garnet Wilson, Mr Tom Shelford makes a good impression as Percy Fitzthistle, and Mr Sam Lysons proves successful in the part of Theodore Quench. Miss May Martin as Norah Chalmers is charming, and her fine soprano voice is heard to great advantage. Miss Polly Prim proves a graceful Ellen. Miss Lillie Lingard appears in the title-rôle and scores a big success, and Miss Button Barton is a capital Jane. The company includes a beautifully blended chorus, and the dresses and scenery add greatly to the success of the performance.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Company, Limited; Licensee and Manager, Mr T. Hopcutt.—Are You a Mason? is this week the attraction at the Opera House. The company is under the direction of Messrs George Edwardes and Chas. Frohman. Mr Anthony Fawcett appears as George Fisher, the stockbroker, and is a decided success, and Mr Stephen Wentworth gives a capital impersonation of Frank Perry. Mr Harry Ashford as Amos is excellent, and is afforded full scope for his talents. He keeps the house in continual laughter. Mr Frank Ridley causes much amusement as Hamilton Travers, and Mr Valentine O'Connor gives a capital delineation of Ernest Morrison. Miss Harriet French creditably sustains the part of Caroline Bloodgood; and Miss Lucy Edwin does well as Mrs Perry. The play is preceded each evening by the amusing curtain-raiser Hushed Up.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—A-Ba-Be is a novelty which is enjoyed; Miss Lillian Lea sings with great taste; Walter Munroe, an old and valued favourite on Tees-side, is well received; Payne's Little Vagabonds, Collins and Rice, and Silent Tait all come in for a fair share of applause; and the Bio-pictures are deserving of praise.

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr Wm. Peacock; Manager, Mr Wm. Ainsworth.—At the "'Varsity" Hilarity, as presented by Fred Karno's comedians, goes well. Wee Mona, dancer; Miss Madge Grey, comedienne; the Sisters Lytton, duettists; James Stewart, pianist; Matt Wilkinson, sketch artist; George Adams, vocalist; Young Codge, whistler; and the Bio-pictures complete the programme.

MOTHERWELL.

NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr W. Gillespy.—Mr William Greet's company is paying a visit this week with The Sign of the Cross. Mr F. B. Woulfe is a capital Marcus, his fine portrayal meeting with hearty applause. Miss Evelyn D'Alroy is very well suited to the part of Mercia, in which she captivates the audience. Mr Charles Aldred displays sound ability as Tigellinus, and Mr J. Wetherall is well placed as Lucinius. Nero has good treatment at the hands of Mr A. Turner, and Glabrio is ably presented by Mr Frank Wood. Mr L. Winning as Viturius, Mr Robert Hare as Favius, and Mr E. J. Carlin as Titus are all worthy of recognition. Miss Ivy Millais gives an artistic reading of Stephanus, Miss Alma Bolton acquits herself well as Berenice, and Miss Cissie Carlton as Dacia is clever. Miiss Ethel Hand acts effectively as Poppæa, and the Ancaria of Miss May Fairclough leaves little to be desired.

NORTHWICH.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs S. Golden; Manager, Mr Percy Webb.—Miss Cissie Moxon's company, in A Trip to Rum-Fum, is the attraction this week. Larry O'Hooligan is well presented by Mr W. Garvey. Biddy O'Hooligan is cleverly handled by Mr W. S. Hutchinson. Abe Van Swanck is a good impersonation by Mr Dick Turpine. Cecil Toft is humorously delineated by Mr Charles Russell. and Thady Clancy is chic and vivacious in the hands of Miss Kathleen Kemp. Angelina Toft is nicely depicted by Miss Lilly Mayfield, and Flossie Kixie is well suited to the abilities of Miss Cissie Moxon. Miss Kitty Jones, graced with a fascinating presence and the possessor of a rich soprano voice, is to be congratulated on her delineation of Peggy O'Hooligan.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Pleasurable emotions are freely exercised here by the performance of Mr George Edwardes's company in San Toy, which remains as attractive as ever. Mr E. Statham Staples as Li develops the humours of the part to the entire satisfaction of the audience. As the harassed mandarin with the plethora of wives Mr John Humphries gives a very enjoyable performance, and Mr Colin Coop submits a funny sketch of the amatorily inclined Emperor. Mr Reginald Kenneth sings well as Bobby Preston. Old favourites in Mr Stratton Mills as Sir Bingo Preston and Mr Henry Claff as Fo Hop repeat previous successes, and Mr Arthur Soames is a capable Harvey Tucker. Miss Fanny Dango is happily placed as San Toy, acting and singing with animation, and dancing very cleverly. A smart and attractive representative of Dudley is found in Miss Maud Darling. Poppy is charmingly embodied by Miss May Francis, and Miss Louie Collier's singing as Chen San calls for praise. Miss Alice Lethbridge contributes one of her always graceful dances. The musical director is Mr George M Saker.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham.—Mr and Mrs Kendal are affording us the welcome opportunity of again seeing them in some of their popular pieces, and, needless to say, the chance has been eagerly seized by their many local admirers, while on Thursday we were promised a performance of their latest successful production Dick Hope. On Monday that pleasantly interesting comedy A Scrap of Paper occupied the attention of the combination, and here Mrs Kendal as Susan Hartley displayed the manifold excellences of her admirable art to the best advantage, while Mr Kendal as Colonel Blake was genial and gentlemanly, characteristics which none better than he knows how to portray. Very charmingly did Miss Elise Clarens enact the part of the agitated Lady Ingram, and Miss Mary Jerrold was bright and unaffected as the girlish Lucy Franklin. Sir John Ingram had a capital representative in Mr Bassett Roe, and Mr Ernest Hendrie gave another of his clever character sketches as Dr. Penguin, while his assertive wife, Mrs Penguin, was safely entrusted to Mrs A. B. Tapping. The youthful traits of Archie Hamilton were effectively depicted by R. V. Sheldrick. The Elder Miss Blossom was performed on Tuesday, and on Wednesday the attraction consisted of Still Waters Run Deep.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—Melodramas, with ladies of doubtful morality as their central figure, have been much in vogue lately, and another such piece, under the title of A Disgrace to Her Sex, is being performed here by Mr Walter Melville's company. Hilda Valley, the "disgraceful" member of society, is ably portrayed by Miss Grace Heywood, who makes full use of her many opportunities. Mr Augustine Knight cleverly brings out the foreign characteristics of the sinister Jules Delarnet. Some broad comedy acting by Mr Arthur Byron as Barnaby Mugg, and Miss M. Yates as his better-half causes much laughter. Miss Winnie Tempest as Mabel Valley, Miss N. Lucas as Mildred Carrington, Mr Phil Harper as Jack Dawes, Mr David G. Noble as Arnold Travers, and Mr E. Santley as David Carrington are all worthy of mention.

ELSWICK THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr Chas. M. Daly.—When a Man Hates is being staged here, and performed by a company under the joint direction of Miss Olga Audre, Messrs Travis Green and Arthur Hinton. The two last-named play parts, appearing as Paul and Pietro Danelli respectively, and supply some fine acting, while Mr Tom Taylor as Pepo Pimple and Miss Marie E. Robertson as Dolly Dimple give amusing performances. Miss Lelia Zillwood graphically portrays the part of Olga Gwynne, a woman with a past.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—Johnny Dwyer opens the performance here, and he is succeeded by a troupe of vocalists and dancers known as the Eight of Hearts. Some amusing knockabout business is then contributed by Abel and Welsh. Lily Burnand has two capital songs, to which she does full justice. Tom Leamore appears and embellishes his vocal comedy efforts with eccentricities of a laughable description, his contribution concerning the broken down swell being particularly good. An entertainment is given by Frank Hilbert, who frees himself from handcuffs, and then shows to the audience how the trick is done, concluding by giving a practical demonstration of how the trunk mystery is worked. Lieut. Travis in his ventriloquial business is as good as ever. Minnie Cunningham is well received as usual, giving her songs with a dainty charm of manner all her own. A sporting act in which ponies and hounds appear is then presented by Tschernoff, and a turn rejoicing in the name of Schutzenlieserl'n Quartette, prove excellent vocalists. M'Phee and Hill on the triple horizontal bars give an exceptionally skilful performance, and Marbaand Verity, humourists and acrobatic dancers, successfully bring the programme to a conclusion.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—The programme at this hall is one of much attractiveness. It is headed by Andos and his Happy Little Japs, who give one of those attractive acrobatic and juggling turns with which we are so familiar. The performance is smart and pleasing. Signor and Madame Prosper Benn give a good sketch entitled From Pavement to Stage, in which their musical skill is much applauded. Another clever turn, and one much above the average, is that of Barney Stuart in his act "Impersonalia." Rhoda Paul, the pocket Vesta Tilley, is a capital artiste; Mike Gray and his dog are clever; and Miss Vera Mayne is a burlesque actress of considerable ability. Other turns are Mansell Fane, a smart actor-vocalist; Charles Pastor, a laughing comedian; and Ethel Rexford and Gerald Hunt in a comedy act.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Thornton and Bacon; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company is appearing here in the Oriental drama A Traitor Prince. Mr A. Mortimer makes a spirited Frank Derrick; the Prince has an excellent exponent in Mr Harry Lonsdale; and Mr E. Carter Livesey does much good work as Billy Bright.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will H. Boardman.—The first appearance in this city of the magic kettle is proving a very great attraction at the Pavilion, and the demonstrations given and explained in an entertaining manner by Mr Frederic Andrews prove to the liking of the audiences. A smart little sketch entitled The Last Pitch is played by Mr and Mrs Blake Adams. Mr Adams gives a clever study of a street minstrel and displays much ability. A Bachelor's Dream, another sketch included in the programme, is cleverly enacted by May Edouin and Fred Edwards; Leo Dryden is very successful in the song, "For Freedom and Japan," and in the David Garrick episode, "An Actor and a Man." The last named is beautifully staged. Miss Clothilde exhibits some performing cockatoos and parrots, who give an interesting performance; John Lloyd, stated to be the original singing collier, possesses a good voice, and earns recalls; and Belrose and De Velin, in operatic selections, exhibit vocalism of a high order; Mons. D'Musto, eccentric contortionist, performs some original tricks with barrels; and the Akimotos, Japanese troupe; the Brooklands, comediennes and dancers; and Kate Gourlay, buck dancer, are also included in the programme.

NEWPORT.

LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—Mr Tom B. Davies's company is producing Florodora here this week. On Monday, through the indisposition of Mr Daley Cooper, Anthony Tweedlepunch was represented by Mr Evelyn Davies, the understudy, who is to be warmly congratulated upon his success. Miss Leonora Grieve was a most attractive Dolores, and to charm of face and figure were added grace of movement, beauty of voice, and clever acting. Miss Daisy Byford was a sweet Angela Gilfain, and Miss Rene Steadman was bright and clever as Lady Holyrood; she also danced prettily. Mr Charles J. Barber displayed plenty of dash as Cyrus Gilfain; Mr Dick Knowles was distinctly amusing as Captain Arthur Donegal; while Mr Cyril Dance sang well and acted in a convincing manner the part of Frank Abercoed.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll.—The star turn here is Burt Shepard, a clever American comedian, who is exceedingly popular and amusing in his parody on "Bill Bailey." Walter King's patter and songs are appreciated; and Horace Wheatley, who sings a capital Irish song, takes well with his audience. The Rayfords introduce a laughable little sketch, a "take off" on the quack doctor; Alice Ormonde is successful with her pretty songs; and Amy Russell gives a fine rendering of the old favourite "Blue Bells." Very eccentric is Fred Earle, who sings a tricky song "Seaweed;" the Kremo Family, a clever dozen of acrobats, perform some startling and original feats; and a funny sketch, Artful Jim, by Walter Groves and company, completes a bill that is most attractive.

NORTHAMPTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton.—Mr Milton Bode's company is here this week in Tommy Atkins. Mr Frederick Ross is the beau ideal of a dramatic hero as Harold Wilson; Miss Lola Patey as the heroine Ruth Raymond deserves the applause she gains for her finished and artistic acting; Private Mason finds a clever representative in Mr Chas. A. Wenman; Mr George C. Doughty plays with consistent effect as Captain Richard Maitland; Mr John Nolan as Sergeant Paddy Molloy, Mr Billy Harman as Ebenezer Skindle, and Miss Ethel Tinsley as Kate Perkins provide plenty of fun.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr Robert Barton; Musical Director, Mr Walter Ashton.—A most attractive programme here is headed by the world renowned burlesque actress and vocalist, Miss Harriett Vernon, whose new song, "Karama," a Japanese love story, is most daintily and artistically rendered. Miss Ada Martine, comedienne and dancer, and Miss Amy Bellwood, chic comedienne and dancer, are both charming turns; Cullen and Carthy are a couple of clever comedians; the Electrones are comical cyclists; Arthur Bright, vocal comedian and Milanese piper, is interesting; Lord, Murray, and Lord are smart in a ball punching, boxing, and club swinging performance; and the Belmont Troupe of cyclists give a sensational show on the smallest and steepest track in the world.

NORTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—In a Woman's Grip is being played here this week with great success by Mr Douglas Bruce's company. Miss Beatrice May appears as Mary Langley and infuses plenty of life into the character. As Frank Haydon Mr Herbert Pearson has plenty of scope to display his abilities. Mr Bernard Copping creates a good impression as Maurice Stanton; and Mr Edwin Clarke makes an acceptable Sir Edmond Morton. Mr Robert Soane is well received as Major Edwards; Mr Fred Summers makes the most of Mr Fairley; and Mr J. W. Manning scores as Ralph Sharkey. Miss Marguerite Trevosper is successful in the part of Lillian Fairley. Miss Daisy Maynard is pleasing as Molly Smithers, and the remaining characters are satisfactorily filled.

BORO' VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson.—The New York Comedy Four are proving a great attraction here. V. T. Kioto, Japanese equilibrist, presents a clever act, and Master Archie Glen, boy comedian, has made quite a hit. The Itrams, gymnasts, perform some daring feats; Miss Flo Atkins, concertinist and mandoline expert, is smart; and Mr Louis Kerno, vocalist and dancer; Sisters Charnley, duettists; Mr Arthur Richards, vocal comedian; Miss Renee Walon, comedienne; and Messrs Blarney and Kennard, eccentric comedians, also appear successfully. The Hebburn Colliery Band appeared as an extra attraction on Thursday evening.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Wm. Mould.—The bill here is topped by the Two Zabros, in their eccentric gymnastic act, which causes hearty laughter; Baby Lloyd, coon song and dance artiste, is a great favourite. Mr Dan Maxford, raconteur and vocalist, is loudly applauded; and Shavo, in his juggling act, does well. The Sisters Grosvenor, operatic vocalists, have been well received; and Miss Nellie Vann, serio-comedienne; Messrs Sterling and Cashen, speciality artistes; and the Bio Photoscope all meet with favour.

NORWICH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—Mr George Dance's company, in A Chinese Honeymoon, is here this week, and a good reception is accorded it. Mr Frank A. Wood as Hang Chow, the Emperor, is most amusing; Mr P. Allerton Turner as Chippie Chop is very successful; and Mr Leonard May is responsible for Hi Lung. Mr Percy Yorke deserves praise as Tom Hatherton, and Mr Harry Brayne is good as Pineapple. Miss Jose Collins is a favourite, whilst Miss Marie Adair both acts and sings well as Soo-Soo. Miss M. Sadie is a sprightly Fi Fi, and her numbers are well received. Miss Annie Crisp as Mi Mi and Miss Alice Drummond as Mrs Brown ably fill their respective parts.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt.—An excellent programme is provided here this week, Ginnett's Remounts being the chief attraction, and causing great laughter. The Dandys are appreciated, Leonsen is a clever equilibrist, and Mdlle. Louise assists him in his sensational performance upon sticks and ladders. Mabel Kimpton sings very pleasingly; Henry Kaiser does some astonishing juggling tricks; Morny Cash is a good comedian; the Three Sisters Anderson, feet equilibrists, are well received; Minnie Moran is a choice comedian and dancer; Coram is an excellent ventriloquist; and the British Quartet, consisting of John Bull (Frank Bolger, baritone), Sandy (Donald Keir, bass), Pat (J. Russon, alto), and Taffy (Dave Owen, tenor), are very good. Captain Selby and his band materially adds to the evening's amusement.

NUNEATON.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company, on a return visit, is presenting In Old Kentucky. Miss Amy F. Herman, as on former occasions, is enthusiastically received as Madge Brierley. Mr G. F. Steele successfully carries out the part of Frank Harley. Others deserving mention are Mr Alfred S. Bankes, Colonel Pebbley Beauchamp; Mr Gerald Kennedy, Jasper Grafton; Miss B. Shirley, Barbara Grafton; Miss Edith Halford, Alethea Harley; Miss Edith Harmer, Mrs Van Aster; Miss Alice Harmer, Minnie; with Mr H. Leander, Neb (Harley's old servant); Mr J. Shaw, Sam Goaney; Master Peter Francis, Sam Shoefly; Mr J. Stacey, Jim Jones; Mr Pete Rintoul, Tom Tinman; Mr F. R. Cooney, Ephraim; Mr Ralph Gibbs, Pete; and Mr George Harris, Rastus. Some enjoyable items are given by Miss Edith Harmer and Messrs Jimmy James and Harry Leander.

NOTTINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—A welcome return visit is being paid this week by Florodora, the ever-popular musical comedy. Miss Lena Maitland is admirable in the part of Dolores; Miss Hilda Dugdale looks charming as Angela Gilfain; Mr Frank Grans in the part of Captain Donegal is excellent; Mr Leonard Russell is well suited to the part of Abercoed, his singing earning generous and spontaneous applause; and Mr Edward Lewis is thoroughly at home as Tweedlepunch, the opportunities offered by the part being utilised by him in a highly humorous manner. Mr Fred Winn makes a capital Gilfain, and Mr William Roussell does well as Leandro. Miss Isabelle Dillon plays Lady Holyrood with excellent taste and judgment. The piece is excellently staged, and the orchestra is ably led by Mr Ashley Richards.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Chas. P. Cooke.—For the first time in Nottingham A Great Sensation is being presented by Miss Beatrice Isaacson's company. Mr Sydney N. Hallows is seen to advantage in the rôle of Jack Damer; Mr Alexander L. Isaacson is well suited to the part of the millionaire, Bunko Bates; and Mr Frank G. Kent makes the most of his opportunities as Wiley Jones. The heroine, Eva Dale, is admirably impersonated by Miss Beatrice Isaacson, whose grace and charm are highly appreciated. The acting of Miss Edith Wallis as Sidonie and Miss Marion Mayne as Ria is highly commendable, and Miss Maud Hetherington and Miss Ruby Carlton give adequate performances of their parts. Mr Frank V. Fenn makes a capital study of Robin Dale, and Mr Tom Robertson deserves commendation for his Henry Encombe. The play is well mounted.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr A. W. Bull.—Fiends of London, presented by Mr Herbert Fuller's company, drew a large house on Monday. Mr Harold H. Hastings capably represents Sir Horace Bream, and Mr Herbert Fuller earns enthusiastic calls for his portrayal of the popular jockey, Bob Archer. The rascality of Captain Crawley is shown with great fidelity by Mr Francis Everard, and Mr H. Evan Gibbons, who plays Peter Shark, is an able "tool." Miss Agnes Collier gives an excellent rendering of the heroine, Laurie Christie; Mr Hugh Carmichael is to be congratulated on his assumption of Mad Joe; and a large amount of fun is created by Miss Emily Lewis (Flossie), Mr Archie Seddon (Clarence Fitzherbert), and Mr James M'Allister (Sandy Macduff). The Sorrows of Satan was given on Friday.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—Tina Clementa supplies ample evidence of what may be done by patience and kindness in the training of animals. The dexterous feats of Hardeen, the handcuff manipulator, are arousing the greatest interest; Binns and Binns are clever musicians; the juggling tricks of Radford and Valentine are expert; and Alcide Capitaine presents an attractive gymnastic entertainment. The Scottish Meisters intersperse their melodious vocalism with drollery; an acrobatic sketch by the Baldwin Brothers calls for special notice; and the whistling of Arthur Melrose forms an agreeable feature. Lizzie Valrose sings very pleasantly, and the humorous element is further helped by Bert Berne, comique, and Walter Stanley, comedian.

OLDHAM.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—Mr G. Dance's principal company opened here on Monday, in the musical comedy A Country Girl, with Miss Maud Boyd in the title-rôle. Mr Robert Micheals as juvenile lead was excellently suited, and his duets with Marjory were well received. Mr Charles R. Walenn as Barry was the soul of humour; Mr Joe Nightingale as Sir Joseph Verity was a great success; Mr St. John Hammond as the Rajah was amusing. Miss Ethel Negretti as the Princess and Miss Maud Prenton as Sophie were captivating; Miss Daisy Le Hay was charming as Nan.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr George Knowles.—This week "Les François Pot-pourri Acrobatique et Sauters" occupy the premier position; their performance is unequalled for smartness and gracefulness. The Sisters Phillips and Brothers Lorenzi are amusing in their sketch entitled The Cook's Birthday; Cliff Ryland is very funny as a comedian and storyteller; the Twin Andersons are successful as skipping-rope dancers; the Carlyles, Spanish and whirlwind dancers, are well received; Brown and Robinson, as bricklayer and labourer, contribute in excellent style; Ella Delare, American comedienne, is well received; the Three Sisters Chester, instrumentalists, and Fred Lincoln, eccentric comedian, complete the programme.

GAIETY.—Proprietors, Oldham Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr E. J. Dexter.—The Mystic Kettle, presented by Mr F. Carlton, is a great attraction here. The Three Victorias, burlesque artistes and dancers, are well received; the Four Arizonas give a good performance of acrobatic tumbling; Rosie Morn is a charming vocalist; Will Percival, eccentric comedian, and pedestal clog-dancer, is successful; E. J. Wilkes, comedian, with his dog "Woof," is greatly appreciated; Schack Seebold, Swiss instrumentalist, meets with a cordial reception; Charles Vincent, comedian, scores; and Raymond's Bioscope is as popular as ever.

OXFORD.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr C. C. Dorrill.—On Monday Mr C. Frohman and Mr A. Chudleigh's company commenced a three nights' engagement here with The Duke of Killicrankie. Mr Langhorne Burton in the part of the Duke achieved a big success, enlisting the sympathy of his audience all through the play; Mr Arthur Grenville gave a genuinely humorous and highly effective rendering of Mr Pitt-Welby; and Mr Guy Newall did well in the small part of the reporter, Hicks. Miss Ellen Standing was a capital Countess of Pangbourne; Lady Henrietta was a fascinating and interesting personage as played by Miss Doris Templeton; and Miss Aida Jenoure gave an arch and engaging performance of Mrs Mulholland.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. G. P. Wells.—Mr Fred J. Kirke's company is here with The Naval Detective. Mr Arthur Hickman is the life and soul of the piece in the triple rôle of Lieut. J. Beresford, Rev. F. Nipper, and Pat Macguiness, and sings in good style. Mr Walter Langford gives a spirited interpretation of Hon. Bertie Fairlex, and also contributes a pretty banjo solo Mr Will Brereton is full of life as Captain Hustle; Mr Albert Evremond is good as Hans Winklepump; and Mr Robert Gilbert is a success as Dr. Schreiner. Miss Lily Seymour is effective as Rebecca Gentle; Miss Iris Banfield makes a powerful Lulu Kaufmann; and Miss E. Claris is intensely humorous as Susan Scrubbs. Miss Louie Fountaine gives a good rendering of the triple rôle of Phyllis Leslie, Mam'zelle Lucette, and Bill Mainway. Miss Mamie Walsh as Pearl and Miss Elsie Paul as Ruby contribute some pretty dances.

PETERBOROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. Darville Vernon.—Mr Charles Marsh's company opened here on Monday with The Priest of the Temple. Mr Charles Marsh gives a dignified impersonation of Valerius; Mr Ronald Bayne displays much ability as Decus Fronto; the App

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Yet another first production at the Newcastle Royal, and one, moreover, which may confidently be expected to reap a rich harvest of success, if the prolific promise held forth on its initial performance is any criterion.

Dorothy Vernon is a maiden with a will of her own, and a strong one at that. This phase of her character is quickly revealed in the first scene at Haddon Hall, where her matrimonial prospects are being considered. The choice of her parents is Sir Malcolm Vernon, while she is also claimed for Sir John Manners, son of the Earl of Rutland, who is the sworn enemy of her father, Sir George Vernon. Both these suitors are unknown to Dorothy, but the virtues of the first-named have been flung at her head with such persistency that she is inclined to rebel and favour the suit of Manners, who shortly presents himself at the hall, and is mistaken by Dorothy and her parents for Sir Malcolm Vernon, who is an expected visitor. So gay and handsome a cavalier is Manners that Dorothy falls in love with him at first sight, and he is similarly affected by her charms. With the arrival of the real Sir Malcolm difficulties arise. Manners reveals his identity to Dorothy, who is momentarily indignant at the deception which has been maintained. The appearance, however, of the real Sir Malcolm is not prepossessing, and her love for Manners asserts itself. There is a nice hullabalioo raised by the wrathful parents to find out who the successful lover is, but, thanks to Dorothy, he has escaped from the hall. She is angrily questioned, but refuses to make them any the wiser, and flings off her body dress to receive on her shoulders the strokes from the butcher's whip with which she is threatened.

In the second act we find Dorothy in her room, reduced to a bread and water diet, but still defiant. She is tempted with an elaborate feast to divulge the name of her lover, but, her temper aroused, she flings the various dishes through the window with such force that their flight is only arrested by a "cloth" representing a distant country scene. Manners visits Dorothy in her room, and is discovered by Sir George Vernon, who strikes him down, rendering him unconscious. In the midst of the turmoil, Queen Elizabeth with her courtiers enters the apartment. Manners, it appears, has been secretly escorting Mary, Queen of Scots, to the coast, and Elizabeth offers to pardon him if Dorothy can get him to make known Mary's hiding place. Dorothy has no alternative, and on Manners regaining his senses she questions him, and learns that Queen Mary is secluded in his father's home. Immediately an armed force is despatched to Rutland Castle, and Dorothy, intent if possible on repairing the mischief by warning Queen Mary, exchanges clothes with her maid, and hastens there also. She arrives in time, and again exchanges costumes, on this occasion with Queen Mary. In her queenly apparel she encounters Sir Malcolm, who has been playing the game of "hares" with Queen Elizabeth and "hounds" with Queen Mary, and acting as a traitor to both. Dorothy threatens to expose his treacherous designs, and his despicable nature is further disclosed when he draws his sword, and compels her to do likewise. A fight with swords between the ill-matched pair ensues, and although Dorothy defends herself gallantly, she is being hard pressed, when Manners bursts into the room, and at the same moment, Queen Elizabeth's soldiers arrive. Manners is taken prisoner, as also is Queen Mary. The latter is led away by her captors, but through Dorothy's special pleading with Queen Elizabeth, Manners' punishment is the comparitively lenient one of a year's banishment to Wales, and, with Dorothy electing to accompany him in his exile, the lovers are united in more or less happy circumstances.

It will be seen from the foregoing description that there is little in common between the love affairs of Dorothy Vernon and Sir John Manners as handed down to us by tradition and the manner in which these episodes are dealt with in the play under notice. It was, nevertheless, a happy idea to select the subject for dramatic treatment, and with Haddon Hall and its associations for a background, the authors have dexterously evolved an exceedingly interesting and exciting romantic play embodied in dialogue of a terse and telling description. Excellent in every way are the first two acts, full of life and movement and charming love passages.

It the third act the promise of the earlier scenes is scarcely maintained, while the last act of all, that everlasting stumbling-block to playwrights, in somewhat disappointing, and the reason is not far to seek, because here the characters of Dorothy Vernon and John Manners, in whom of course the audience are mainly interested, are subordinated to those of the rival queens. How would it answer to adjust the play in such a manner as to permit of the historic elopement being effected here?

Miss Julia Neilson is admirably suited as Dorothy Vernon, and she treated us to one of her best impersonations. From first to last she was seldom off the stage, and she carried through the burden of the part with indomitable spirit and unfailing resource, every changing aspect of the character being indicated with an unerring appreciation of what is exactly required. A valuable contribution to the success of the performance was that of Mr Alfred Kendrick's, who must be warmly congratulated on his sterling piece of acting as Sir John Manners. An ardent lover and a picturesque hero, he presented the character with fine spirit and manliness, and in a manner wholly agreeable. Miss Bella Pateman gave full force and prominence to the rôle of England's Queen, declaiming her lines admirably. In contrast, the more subdued, sympathetic spirit of Mary, Queen of Scots, was presented with much cleverness by Miss Adeline Bourne. Perkin, a hunchback jester who is the faithful attendant on the lovers in their various escapades, offered Mr Horace Hodges a fine opportunity, and he gave a remarkably neat, well-conceived impersonation of the devoted follower. Mr J. Carter Edwards submitted a forceful and successful embodiment of the wrathful parent, Sir George Vernon, who seeks in vain to bend the will of his daughter to his wishes; while Lady Vernon had a capital exponent in Miss Georgie Trewman. Mr Walter Edwin brought out with good effect the despicable qualities of Sir Malcolm Vernon, while Mr Malcolm Cherry as the Earl of Rutland and Mr Rothbury Evans as Lord Burleigh satisfactorily portrayed these characters. Jenny Faxton, the maid, had a pleasing representative in Miss Mary Mackenzie. The play, which has been produced by Mr Fred Terry, had a most enthusiastic reception from a crowded house, and both Miss Neilson and Mr Terry, in response to clamorous appeals, had to speak a few words of thanks.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS MIRIAM LEWES.

MISS MIRIAM LEWES was born in Starie Russ, a village about forty miles south of St. Petersburg, in County Novgorod, and was brought to England when quite a child. She began as a singer and dancer, singing a little and dancing a lot. But Miss Lewes had no desire to remain a dancer; she wanted to act, so she obtained her first engagement in the well-known drama called Driven from Home. Then after further experience in melodrama she was engaged for a stock season at Rivière's Opera House. Llandudno, where she played a range of parts of such diverse character as Nora Fitzgerald, in Harvest; Dora Jedbury, in Jedbury, Junior; Lucy, in The Silver Shield; down to eccentric company. From there she went to play the juvenile part in Messrs Shirley and Landeck's King of Crime, and then followed an engagement in pantomime. She had a delightful experience as a member of Mr Lancelot Loader's Old English Comedy Company, playing Kate Hardcastle, in She Stoops to Conquer, Kittie Clive, in Peg Woffington, understudying Peg; Lady Sneerwell, in The School for Scandal, understudying Lady Teazle; and often playing Pauline, in The Lady of Lyons. Later she played Mrs Fleeter, in My Sweetheart; then the leading part in The Heart of a Hero, Mr Lingford Carson's company. It was through seeing her play this character, that the late Mr Frank Connor and her present manager, Mr Beaudyn, engaged her to play the Beautiful Fiend. M. Van Biene's manager happened to visit the theatre one night, and he offered her the part of the Duchesse De Vervierr, in The Broken Melody, in which rôle she continued to play for eight and a half months, also appearing as Violet, in M. Van Biene's new play which was produced without a title. Miss Lewes was then engaged by Mr J. M. East for the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, where she remained a season playing the wicked ladies in With Flying Colours, Cheer, Boys, Cheer, Martha, in Little Em'ly; Lina Nelson, in Harbour Lights; the Duchess of Portsmouth, in Nell Gwynne; and numerous "betrayed" and "wronged" ladies, about whom there was quite a monotonous sameness. She was then engaged by Messrs Egerton Hubbard and Cyril Harcourt for Donna Clotilda, in their tour of Captain Kettle, on which performance, by the way, she was especially complimented by Mr Cutcliffe Hyne. At the conclusion of this tour Miss Lewes went back to Hammersmith to play Loo Hexam, in the production of Mr Geo. R. Sims's Woman from Cool, and other parts. Mr Walter Melville then offered her the part of Barbara Waok, "the female Coupeau," in The Girl's Cross Roads, which proved quite an interesting engagement. She has also played the Duchesse, in Moths, Miss Fortescue's company, and quite recently Michelle De Crény, in Mr Charles Steuart's one act play, Citizen Morot. Miss Lewes has had only six years' experience as an actress, but she has evidently managed to get a good deal of work into the time. Of course, there are many parts the young actress is ambitious to play, and she hopes one day to have the opportunity of satisfying her desire.

MISS NELLIE CLARENCE.

MISS NELLIE CLARENCE.

MISS NELLIE CLARENCE is a descendant of one of the oldest families in France, her mother being the grand-daughter of a French nobleman. For many years she was a well-known amateur actress and vocalist, and it was not till the death of her father that she determined to use her talents as a means of gaining her independence. For three years she sang on the concert platform, and so great was her success as a vocalist that she received an offer from the late Sir Arthur Sullivan to appear in one of his operas, when a very severe illness, which resulted in partial loss of voice, compelled her to retire from public life, and she became a teacher of singing and elocution; but the stage still held its attractions, so she determined to see if she could make her name as a dramatic artiste. Her first professional engagement was at Chatham, as Gretchen, in Rip Van Winkle, and Marie Beaumont, in Robert Macaire. After a short time in stock, she went on tour as Susan Hartley, in A Scrap of Paper. This was quickly followed by tours with The Black Flag, Harbour Lights, The Idler, Path of Life, and Greed of Gold. A severe accident again compelled her to rest for nine months, after which she went on tour with The Arabian Nights and Trilby, playing Mrs Gillibrand in the former and Gecko in the latter. So great was her success as Gecko that she began studying juvenile men's parts and is now considered one of the best male impersonators on the stage. After The Arabian Nights, came tours with Known to the Police, The Slave Girl, Uncles and Aunts, and Mr Thomas Thorne in répertoire. Then Mr Oswald Brand engaged her to appear in all his "Dickens Dramas," and this was followed by a twelve months' engagement with Mr Thomas's répertoire company, playing during that time in Our Boys, The Silver Shield, Stolen Kisses, The Prude's Progress, Liberty Hall, Wheels Within Wheels, The Tree of Knowledge, The Case of Rebellious Susan, and Mrs Dane's Defence. Miss Nellie Clarence is considered one of the most versatile actresses now before the public, as she plays with equal success heavy lead, aristocratic old lady, character heavy, aristocratic and character comedy, and juvenile male parts.

MISS ANNIE HYLTON.

MISS ANNIE HYLTON made her first appearance at Greenock in East Lynne, under the management of Mr Pitney Weston, in 1891, playing small parts for about six months. Her next engagement was with Mr E. Dottridge, in Devotion for Life, with whom she remained for three years, playing Mary, also the heavy part, and eventually playing the lead. Her next engagement was a successful stock season at Warrington, followed by an eight months' tour with The Lion's Heart. Then came an engagement as juvenile lead with Mr Sydney Vereker in The Jack o' Hearts, which lasted about six months. She next joined Mr Kennedy Miller, of the Queen's Theatre, Dublin, and played Nora O'Neal, in The Irishman; Nelly O'Neal, in Shoulder to Shoulder; Arte O'Neal, in The Shaughraun; Madame de Sillery, in Lord Edward; or, 98, and Mrs Cregan, in The Colleen Bawn. This engagement last for four years. Then followed a short tour with Mr Dane Clark with The Hand of Justice, in which she played the lead. She was re-engaged by Mr Kennedy Miller for the same parts, the tour lasting about twelve months.

MR. H. H. BARRINGTON.

Next came a stock season at the Metropole, Glasgow, under the management of Mr Mouillot, in which she shared the leading parts. After playing six weeks in Glasgow, Mr Mouillot took the company on tour for three months, visiting the best theatres, and finishing a most successful tour at the Royal, Dublin. Miss Hylton was immediately re-engaged by Mr Kennedy Miller for the third time, but on this occasion for the entire lead, the tour lasting another twelve months. After an engagement as Nellie and Annie Standish, in The Shadows of a Great City, she played lead for a nine weeks' summer tour with Mr F. Brooke Warren in How Money's Made. She was then engaged by Mr Arthur Milton for juvenile lead in Fair Play, autumn tour, at the termination of which the star heavy part being vacant Mr Milton engaged her for the next tour, but kindly released her so as to enable her to rejoin Mr Kennedy Miller for entire lead for the fourth time. Then came three special weeks with Mr W. Broadhead in Manchester, taking the heavy lead in A Call to Arms company, a special week with Mr J. A. Campbell, in A Bid for Fortune company, resulting in a tour of eight months as Barbara Templemere, the lead, followed by a tour of six months with Mr Frank Bateman as juvenile lead in At War With Women company. Miss Hylton was next engaged by Mr F. Brooke Warren for the second time to play lead, in An Evil Life company, the tour lasting eight months. She was then specially engaged at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, by Mr Kennedy Miller to play Mrs Cregan, in The Colleen Bawn, after which the same gentleman engaged her for the fifth time to play entire lead in his répertoire.

MR. H. H. BARRINGTON.

MR H. H. BARRINGTON commenced his professional career at the early age of four as Little Willie Carlyle. His school days were happy ones at Southsea. During the day he studied hard and the evenings found him acting at the old Prince's Theatre, Portsmouth, in, sometimes, three plays a night. By the time he had reached the age of twenty he had been programme boy, call-boy, prompter, and stage-manager, and had also played 150 parts, finishing his mushroom days with the present J. W. Boughton at his first New Royal Theatre, Portsmouth. His varied experience has served him well. Anxious to start on tour he accepted an engagement with the first American company, Muldoon's Picnic, and remained until he had played every male part in the piece and also Mrs Muldoon. He then joined Miss Le Tellie's Sweetheart company, playing Dr. Oliver, and stayed with her until her répertoire was founded, being allotted such parts as Alfred Evelyn, Bob Brierly, Tony Faust, Brian Fitzgerald, &c. He was afterwards engaged by Mr W. H. Sharpe for the Doctor, in Saved from the Streets, two pantomime engagements with Mr J. F. Elliston followed, his baritone voice doing him good service as the Demon King. Joining Mr Fred Gould he made a big success in London, as in the provinces, as the Priest, in The Father's Oath. He also played Owen Glyndon for a lengthy period in The Black Flag. During a vacation he was engaged by the late Mr Andrew Melville for pantomime playing Wolf and Clown, in Red Riding Hood. A stock season followed when he played such parts as Father Tom, Bob Millit, Arkwright, and Cattermole. When Mr Gould took over the theatre at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and stock seasons were such a decided success, he was the stage-manager, and among the parts he played were Toby Twinkle, Blueskin, Nick Chaddox, David Deans, Uncle Tom, Wahnotee, Mathew Shore, Sampson Blackthorne, Beamish, Bloodgood, Nathan, Leah. His last season was thirty-nine weeks, during which time he played forty-three principal character parts. Nor is this all, for he found time to coach the Newcastle juvenile amateurs in their several operettas, and also lectured on Sunday evenings with living pictures on The Sign of the Cross. On leaving Newcastle his complimentary benefit given by his manager is still remembered, and "Old Jack Salt" (his sobriquet there) was greeted with a packed and admiring audience. After a five days' rest he then joined Miss Emma Rainbow for Joe Prentice, in Proved True. An engagement followed with Miss Gertrude Irving in Parma Violets, Mr Barrington playing lead and acting-management. A tour with Jane followed, he appearing as Kershaw with great success. On coming to London again he was immediately engaged by Mr St. John Denton for the part of Cleary, the Yorkshire bookmaker, in Sporting Life, produced at the Shaftesbury Theatre. So great was his success that he was engaged by Mr Leonard Boyne for three tours as stage-manager, and at short notice played the heavy part of De Carterette for forty performances. On another occasion three of the principal members of the company were taken ill, and to play the piece seemed almost an impossibility, but Mr Barrington was equal to the emergency, for so well were the understudies rehearsed that, in spite of nine changes in the cast an excellent performance was given to the delight of the local manager. On leaving Sporting Life he was engaged for a short time by Mr Brien M'Culloch in sketches on the halls. A tour with The Rose of Rathboy followed, in which he was specially engaged by Mr Sheldon to create the part of the Priest. He then joined Mr Kennedy Miller, playing the O'Grady and various parts in that gentleman's numerous dramas. Miss Marie Dagmar then engaged him to play Orloff, the serf, in A Life's Revenge. Mr Walter Melville's engagement was one of four years' duration, playing Milford, Worst Woman in London, for three-and-a-half years. A stock season at the Standard followed, at which theatre he is very popular, playing Raybrook, in Driven from Home, and other parts, terminating the engagement as Captain Norman, Second Time on Earth. His next engagement was that of the heavy part in Messrs Bailey and Cooper's musical comedy-drama The Girl of To-day. It will be seen from the above record that he is not only one of our most experienced but one of our most versatile actors.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT).

Miss Rose Portman's new venture is an old story redressed and retold in an interesting manner and made particularly amusing. It was produced provincially as a preliminary to its appearance in London in a few weeks' time. When Colonel Trevannion, an old Anglo-Indian, was in India, it was a settled thing between him and his brother-officer, Major Cavanagh, that Muriel Cavanagh should be the wife of Gerald, Trevannion's eldest son. Cavanagh died after the Colonel came to England, and Muriel was temporarily lost sight of, but the prospective alliance was often discussed. The family solicitor, John Meredith, is staying with the Trevannions at Elmsleigh, near St. Peter's Port, Guernsey, where the first scene opens. He brings up the subject of his client, Muriel Cavanagh, who has a rent-roll of £100,000, and he reminds the Colonel of the old friendly agreement. Mrs Trevannion, with visions of what such abundant wealth would enable them to do, thinks the "dear girl," who has just come to England, ought to be invited to come and stay with them, and the match fixed up between Muriel and Gerald. They tell Gerald of Muriel's wealth, but he is tired of the name which has been dinned into his ears for years, and he absolutely declines to entertain the notion of saddling himself with a "wretched parched-up Indian curry." The suggestion that he shall go to London with Mr Meredith to be introduced to Muriel is unavailingly enforced by the peppery old Colonel, and then the inevitable happens, and the trend of the plot is disclosed. Mrs Trevannion has engaged as a holiday help a "Miss Priscilla Kemp," who, needless to say, is Muriel, who adopts this plan of seeing what her future husband is like. Of course, she is, on arrival, instantly recognised by her solicitor, who enters into the plot; whilst Mrs Trevannion is much disappointed to find that the help is so good-looking, and has fears that not only her son but her much too flighty husband may become enamoured of her charms. In the house she is heard singing delightfully. Gerald is struck by the voice, and, unfortunately in her hearing, declares his intention of ignoring the "Indian fright" and of flirting desperately with the fascinating "Miss Kemp," to whom he is the next moment introduced by Meredith.

Four days have elapsed since the introduction of "Miss Kemp" into the family, and, in the second act, it is seen that the fascinating holiday help has made a strong impression on the susceptible Colonel, his son, who is wooing in deadly earnest, and an amorous cleric. She is the idol of the children, but she is the cause of much perturbation to poor Mrs Trevannion. She is scandalised at a servant wearing better dresses than her own, putting on costly jewellery, and appearing in low-neck dresses at dinner. She fears that a man is never old enough to keep out of danger when a frivolous woman is about. But with all her manœuvring Gerald manages to find opportunities to snatch a few quiet moments with Muriel, and each time his passion increases; but she is paying him back in his own coin, and treats all his protestations as the vainglorious vapourings of a practised flirt. Gerald is in despair at the way in which he is treated. He urges his suit with greater eloquence than ever, but still to further test him she advises him to seek the dried-up mummy with the money-bags, and in a moment of pique he declares that he will.

In the next act everybody seems to have had a bad night, and all are about early. As Gerald is going to London Mrs Trevannion makes that an excuse of getting rid of Muriel. The men all realise that Mrs Trevannion is jealous of her lady help. There is a parting scene between Gerald and Muriel, which terminates in a complete understanding between the two, and he introduces his fiancee to his mother, who calls her a bad, designing hussy, until she, too, learns that the fascinating "Miss Kemp" is none other than Muriel Cavanagh. Here the story ends with the vision of a speedy marriage.

Miss Rose Portman played the fascinating Miss Kemp excellently. Mr Hugh Ardale was capital as Gerald, and Mr Charles Garry was particularly good as the peppery old Colonel. The part of John Meredith gave some fine opportunities, which Mr Drelincourt Odlum made the most of, and Mr S. Sebastian Smith was amusing as the Rev. Mathew Hind. Miss Dora Heritage as Mrs Trevannion was seen to great advantage, and as Lionel and Elsie Mr Harold Wadely and Miss Celestine Bertram were the most provoking of mischief-making young imps. Miss Beatrice Bell rendered good service as the maid, Kate; and the small part of Wells, a porter, was satisfactorily filled by Mr C. W. Halle.

The comedy was very well received, and the members of the company were accorded a warm ovation at the end of each act, the approval of the audience being marked with loud applause.

"DOMUS ET PLACENS UXOR"
("THE HOUSE AND PLEASING WIFE").

Produced for the First Time at the Grand Theatre, Margate, on Monday, Nov. 7.

Reginald Chalmers ..... Mr HENRI GERALD
Bruce Derringcourt .... Mr S. SEBASTIAN SMITH
Culver Pierce ..... Mr CHARLES GARRY
Wright ..... Miss BEATRICE BELL
Olive Chalmers..... Miss CELESTINE BERTRAM

This little one-act play, by Gordon Holmes, made a capital curtain-raiser, and was received most favourably. Chalmers invites to his house Pierce, who is a thorough-paced scoundrel, a sharper, and a debaucher of women. He deliberately sets himself to try and compromise his host's wife, and boasts that she shall come to him before long. She treats this as an idle boast, but Pierce is deep in his cunning, and his rascality is soon made apparent. Cards are played, the stakes are high. Chalmers stands the loser of £10,000, for which Pierce holds his I O.U.'s. In a mad fit of desperation, and stung into action by the threats of his opponent, he stakes his wife against the debt. The cards are cut three times, and Pierce wins. When Olive is told what has taken place, her scorn and indignation is intense. She, however, says that as she has been sold for £10,000 she will pay the debt. Pierce had bought her body for that sum, but her soul should never be his, and she shoots herself.

The little piece was well played. Mr Charles Garry played with grim earnestness the cynical, scheming scoundrel, Culver Pierce. The weak, vacillating Reginald Chalmers was excellently portrayed by Mr Henri Gerald, and Mr S. Sebastian Smith enacted the rôle of the friend with quiet and unobtrusive but firm dignity. Miss Celestine Bertram played the injured wife with excellent effect, and finely depicted the scorn and loathing of the position in which she found herself.

"RICHELIEU."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Will you grant me space in which to correct a slight error in Mr Percival Craig's article of Oct. 29 regarding the cast of Richelieu at the Lyceum Theatre, Sunderland, Sept. 18, 1856. It was Edward Dean Davis who played Richelieu, whilst my late husband, Alfred Davis, was the De Beringham and stage-manager.

Yours faithfully, JANET DAVIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Most enthusiastic was the reception of the first performance of Peggy Machree, a new musical play, produced at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Grimsby, on Monday last. When the curtain fell on the last act there was an extraordinary demonstration on the part of the audience, who did not desist from cheering until the principals had repeatedly bowed their acknowledgments.

Peggy Machree is quite distinct from the usual variety of modern musical production. The aim of the author has been to produce a play in which music shall be a prominent feature, and in which the plot shall be on a more pretentious scale than is usually attempted in such cases. The result has been highly pleasing. The story, which is of a most romantic character, possesses great dramatic interest, and would still form a presentable play were the musical portions cut out altogether.

The scene of the play is placed in Ireland, the period being the middle of the eighteenth century. This, briefly, is the story. Lady Margaret O'Driscoll, a madcap young aristocrat, conceives the mischievous idea of posing as a peasant girl, and in this guise visiting Donnkilty Fair. The remonstrances of her major-domo—a raw-boned, more than usually canny Scot, by name Alexander M'Dougall, who assumes somewhat of the attitude of a watchdog towards his young mistress—are laughingly ignored. Lady Margaret persuades her foster-mother, Moira, to lend her the necessary costume, which she promptly dons. Enter Barry Trevor, an Irish gentleman, and his English friend, Sir Lawrence Borthwick. They are both captivated by the charming manners and singing of the little lady, whom they, of course, suppose to be a village colleen. Incidentally it may be remarked that M'Dougall and Moira, after a ten years' engagement, are to be married, and this is the wedding day. Moira has taken the precaution to have a priest at hand, who lies asleep in the cottage; but, to her unspeakable chagrin, the procrastinating Scotchman repents, and demands a postponement of the ceremony. Great preparations have been made to celebrate the wedding, and to avoid disappointing the guests Barry and Lady Margaret, who is known as Peggy Machree, agree, as a joke, to go through a mock marriage. Sir Lawrence is to borrow the sleeping father's cloak and impersonate the priest. After the wedding party leave for the chapel, however, Sir Lawrence becomes afraid, and decides to have nothing to do with the business. In the meantime the real priest has awakened, and fate decrees he shall come out of the house just as the messenger, who has been sent to summon the bogus priest, arrives. The consequence is the real priest proceeds to the chapel and performs the ceremony, and it is not until afterwards that the discovery is made that the couple are actually man and wife. Consternation then prevails, and ultimately Barry, to show his penitence for his folly, enlists in the King's army.

Between acts one and two ten years are supposed to have elapsed. Barry, after having fought in the wars, finds himself almost penniless, and becomes a strolling fiddler. He visits the castle of the O'Driscolls, and saves Lady Margaret's life, besides frustrating a plot against her, hatched by her scheming cousin. Barry, however, is totally unaware that she is the girl he married years before, nor is Lady Margaret aware of it at first. She ultimately recognises him, but allows him to remain in ignorance of her identity. Barry is also recognised by his old friend Sir Lawrence, and in act three he is found installed as the honoured guest of the O'Driscolls. Still he does not know who Lady Margaret is, but she tells him that she knows the story of his chance marriage, and has brought the girl to the castle to see him. Meanwhile, Barry has grown to love Lady Margaret, and is not at all pleased to find his wife is still alive. Lady Margaret leaves him for a while, and then returns in her old dress as Peggy. Barry then realises that the supposed peasant girl to whom he was so strangely married and the lady who has won his heart are one and the same, and everything ends happily.

The character of Lady Margaret (Peggy) was charmingly played by Miss Marie Dainton, who bids fair to repeat the success she established in A Chinese Honeymoon. Her songs, "The Idle Colleen," "Peggy Machree," "Honeymoon Hall," and "The Old Oak Tree," were very prettily rendered, and encores were frequent. Chief vocal honours, however, went to Mr Denis O'Sullivan, whose representation of Barry Trevor gave unbounded satisfaction. His splendid baritone voice was heard to especial advantage in the beautiful Irish melodies which were expressly worked into the score. Amongst his best numbers were "The Irish Welcome," "I'm not myself at all," "The Widow Malone," and "Elen." The company, which was under the direction of Mr C. E. Hamilton, was in every respect a thoroughly qualified one. Mr Graeme Campbell's dry humour found ample scope in the droll character of the Scotsman, Alexander M'Dougall, and Mr Shiel Barry pleased everyone as the blind piper, Michael. Excellent work was also accomplished by Miss Millicent M'Laughlin as Madame De La Cour, Miss Ethel Weyburn as the Hon. Emily Pryor, Miss Freda Bramleigh as Moira, Mr Marc M'Dermott as Sir Lawrence, and Mr Stanley Pringle as Captain De La Cour.

Peggy Machree will proceed for a short provincial tour, touching Newcastle and Liverpool, and finishing in Edinburgh. It will then, early in January, be produced at a London West-end theatre.

THE usual weekly meeting of the council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last. The secretary referred to a letter he had received from a well-known manager containing the following paragraph:—"I am very much obliged to you for all the trouble you have taken, and I shall be glad to use the Association again at some future time, if I may." R. Nitch-Smith, Esq., M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P. (an authority on obesity), 10, New Bond-street, W.; James Smith, Esq., L.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., &c., Schawfield, Falkirk; and Stephen Smith, Esq., M.R.C.S. (an authority on the cure of myopia, astigmatism, &c., without glasses), were elected hon. medical officers to the A.A. The secretary reported the receipt of certain particulars in connection with a case of alleged bogus management. The hon. solicitors, having reported they had advised several members, were requested to take the steps necessary to enforce payment of member's claim for damages for breach of contract. A member of the council referred to the fact that one of the hon. medical officers had offered a suggestion that it was desirable that a convalescent home should be provided for the use of members of the A.A.

DRURY-LANE A CENTURY AGO.

The trustees of Yale College, Connecticut, in the autumn of 1804, appropriated a sum of money for the enlargement of their library and philosophical and chemical apparatus; and they determined on sending an agent to Europe for the purpose of making the contemplated collections. Mr Benjamin Silliman, who was connected with the college as a teacher of chemistry, was commissioned to execute this trust, and sailed from New York on April 4, 1805. The name of the vessel was "the Ontario;" and Mr Silliman and his fellow passengers landed at Liverpool on May 3. At the request of a brother who lived at Newport, Rhode Island, the representative of Yale College commenced a journal which was continued from the first, without a single day's omission, till his return. Some years afterwards the author was induced to publish this account of his experiences, with certain additions, omissons, and alterations, in two volumes, under the title of "A Journal of Travels in England, Holland, and Scotland." There is much interesting reading in these pages, the author narrating in a plain, unvarnished style his visits to well-known places, while his observations concerning the England of a hundred years ago certainly repay perusal. It is evident from the tone of many of his remarks that Mr Benjamin Silliman was somewhat of a Puritan, but on his arrival at Liverpool, where he attended a circus, he thus writes:—"I shall occasionally attend the theatres, for public amusements furnish the most decisive criterion of national taste, and no contemptible one of the state of public morals, and of the dignity or degradation of the public mind; for when men go to be amused they will demand such things as they really delight in."

One of the theatres he visited was Drury-lane on an occasion when the house was honoured by the presence of King George III. and Queen Charlotte. He gives the following account of his visit:—

"At 5·0 o'clock this evening, I went to Drury-lane Theatre, with the double view of seeing this celebrated house, and their Majesties who were expected to attend that evening. It is known when the King and Queen are to be at the play by the style of the bill for the evening, which, in such case always begins thus:—

"By command, their majesties' servants will perform, this evening, such a play.

"This title always excites great interest, and it becomes necessary to go to the house at a very early hour, if one would obtain a seat, for there seems to be as much curiosity in the people of this country to see the King and Queen and Royal Family, as if they were newly arrived, and were the first of their kind ever exhibited. This curiosity was evinced, this evening, by a very full house, and by a great crowd collected around the door, waiting the mement when it should open. When this took place, the torrent of people poured in like a flood; the passage was narrow and such was the strife and violence, that with the screaming and fainting of females, it was somewhat of a serious affair.

"I took my seat in the pit, that I might be certain of seeing the King, for this curiosity was surely pardonable in one who had never before seen any sovereign but the people. Everything remained quiet, for a time, while they were waiting the arrival of the King and Queen. During this interval, I had leisure to survey this spacious and magnificent theatre, of which I shall not however attempt a description, for mere descriptions of fine edifices without drawings are of all attempts the least successful.

"At length His Majesty arrived, and, in an instant, the house rang with huzza! huzza! with loud clapping of hands and waving of hats; the applause was reiterated and reiterated, till they seemed as if they would never have done. The King bowed to the different parts of the house and took his seat. He is a noble-looking old man, fleshy yet not oppressively corpulent, and his countenance is so highly coloured that on the whole I think he appears younger than almost any man of his age whom I have ever seen. The outline of his countenance is very correctly delineated on the English guinea, and in many of the prints. He was dressed in a blue uniform, faced with red, with gold lace, epaulets, &c.

"The royal box is directly over the left side of the stage, as one sits facing it, and is adorned with scarlet velvet, embellished with gold; over it is a canopy supporting a crown, and two yeomen of the guards stand below on the stage supporting spears. Next came the Queen at a short distance from the King; again the theatre rung with applauses and Her Majesty having graciously acknowledged them by the usual civility, was seated at the King's left hand. She is an old lady of a pleasant countenance, but bears the marks of age in a much greater degree than the King. Immediately behind the King and Queen stood the lords and ladies in waiting. They do not sit in presence of their Majesties, and, whatever might be the honour, I did not envy them the pleasure of standing five hours in that situation, for honour will not keep limbs from aching. Next came the princesses, Augusta, Elizabeth, Mary, Sophia, and Amelia. They were received with applauses, but less ardent than those bestowed on their Majesties. They returned the compliment very graciously, and took their seats, the lords and ladies in waiting taking their stations behind them as behind the King and Queen.

"Their box is at the right hand of the royal box, and is richly ornamented with blue silk and silver lace. In a box immediately at the right of that a number of female attendants were seated—I believe they were maids of honour; they wore those formidable hoop petticoats which I mentioned on the birth-day. Above the maids of honour were other royal attendants, lords, gentlemen, &c.

"The princesses are not beautiful women; they are however, with one exception, ladies of fine stature and commanding presence, and have much dignity in their appearance. Last of all, appeared one of the King's sons, the Duke of Cumberland, but he came into the box below the princesses, on purpose, I presume, to avoid applause, for it was not given until sometime in the evening, when he rose from behind a screen and showed himself. He is a handsome man of about thirty-three or thirty-four years of age, as I should suppose from his countenance. Having finished the arduous business of introducing and seating their Majesties and the Royal Family, we will proceed to the play.

"First of all, the curtain rose, and discovered a throng of actors and actresses, on the stage, who sang 'God save great George our King.' The whole assembly, not excepting the princesses themselves, joined in singing the chorus, with a degree of zeal and animation which could hardly be surpassed. The play, which was The School for Scandal, was performed in a very admirable manner. Mrs Jordan and Miss Pope among the women, and Elliston, among the men, particularly excelled.

"The School for Scandal abounds in point, wit, and humour, for which the King seemed to have a hearty relish, for he laughed frequently and heartily. After the play 'Rule, Britannia,' was sung by the whole house with great enthusiasm, and the princesses joined in this chorus also.

"There was a poetical prologue to the interlude, all the lines of which ended in ation, and Bonaparte, under the nickname of Bony, by which appellation he is contemptuously and jocosely called in England, was severely satirised, as well as his long-threatened invasion. The King seemed more delighted with this than with anything; he laughed almost continually, and the Queen even exceeded him. The after-piece was Youth, Love, and Folly, three personages which, it must be allowed, are usually found in company."

"HER FIRST FALSE STEP" is the name of a new four-act drama by Myles Wallerton and Francis Gilbert, which will be toured shortly in the suburbs and provinces.

FAMOUS SCENIC ARTISTS.

MR. WALTER HANN.

Mr Walter Hann is the chairman and treasurer of the Scenic Artists' Association. In 1853 he was placed under Mr J. W. Calcott at the Surrey Theatre, where he was employed for two years in drawing. Mr Tom Thompson, of Astley's, whom Mr Hann occasionally assisted, advised him to apply to Mr Charles Marshall at Her Majesty's Opera, and the experience he gained there gave him a fair start as a scenic artist. Between the seasons he went into the provinces. Mr George Gordon persuaded Mr Hann to paint and exhibit a picture at the Suffolk-street Gallery. Mr Frederick Lloyd having seen this picture obtained Mr Hann the appointment of assistant to himself at St. James's Theatre, then under the management of Mr G. Alfred Wigan. Mr George Vining about 1863 took the Princess's, and Mr Hann and Mr Lloyds were the scene painters there for over ten years, and during this period Mr Hann met the late Mr Dion

MR. WALTER HANN.

Boucicault. When Mr Hann left the Princess's he, in a fortnight, working from 8 0 a.m. to 12 0 p.m., painted an act-drop for the Lyceum, and this brought him orders from the Prince's, Manchester, where Sir (then Mr) Henry Irving saw it and ordered a duplicate of the design. For the late Mr John Hollingshead Mr Hann painted the Smithy, in Uncle Dick's Darling. Mr Hann was with Miss Marie Litton during her management of the Court. It was at the Olympic that Mr Hann first met the late Mr Charles Reade, an acquaintance which led to a life-long friendship. In 1872 Mr Hann took part of his present premises in Muchby-street, Oadby, and there painted nine scenes for Babil and Bijou, the scenes for Mr Charles Calvert's celebrated productions in Manchester of Shakespearian plays, and of his pantomimes. For the late Mr Wilson Barrett Mr Hann painted the Balcony scene for Romeo and Juliet at the Court, and for many of his productions later at the Princess's, including the earthquake scene in Claudian. Mr Hann has painted for many years scenes for Mr Tree at the Haymarket, including Hypatia, where he met Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema, and worked with him in the Forum scene, Julius Cæsar. Mr Hann modestly ascribes his success as an artist to the encouragement given him by the above mentioned managers, and by Sir Squire Bancroft, Messrs Harrison and Maude, Comyns Carr, and George Alexander, for each of whom he has painted. During the last thirty years Mr Hann has, with assistants, painted over 1,200 scenes.

MR. WILLIAM THOMPSON HEMSLEY.

Mr William Thompson Hemsley, who has his studios in Felix-street, Westminster-bridge-road, was born in Newcastle in 1850, and is a grand-nephew of John Graham Lough, the eminent sculptor. At an early age Mr Hemsley went to Swindon to work at engineering, and there spent his leisure time at the local School of Art. When only sixteen years of age he obtained a teacher's certificate and also the Society of Arts' First-class Certificate. Mr Hemsley became acquainted with the late Rev. J. M. Bellew, father of Mr Kyrle Bellew, and by him was introduced to Mr Augustus Harris, senior, at Covent-garden Theatre, and to Mr J. O'Connor of the Haymarket Theatre, obtaining through the latter an engagement with the late Mr Beverley at Drury-lane. While Mr Hemsley was studying at the Lambeth School of Art Mr Tom Taylor, the celebrated dramatist, frequently selected for him subjects and criticised his sketches, and notably highly commended his composition of "The Lady of the Lake." In 1874 Mr Hemsley returned to Swindon, and there his artistic ability was recognised by Charles Mathews, who gave him an introduction to Miss Sarah Thorne at Worcester, and for some years he remained under her management at Margate as resident scenic artist. On the conclusion of the ninth successful pantomime Mr Hemsley was presented with a valuable gold watch, engraved with a testimonial. This was in 1885, and it was while painting scenery at Margate Mr Hemsley filled up his time by drawing caricatures for the Margate Free Press, and then went on tour to do lightning caricatures. While resident artist at Sadler's Wells Theatre Mr Hemsley painted the scenery for Kyrle Bellew's production of The Corsican Brothers, and for Miss De Grey's Shakespearian productions. Mr Hemsley then went to the Grand Theatre, Islington, and a little later, entering into partnership with the late Mr Charles Wilmot, he opened a scene factory in the Belvedere-road, and there painted the scenery for Mr F. R. Benson's fine production of The Midsummer Night's Dream at the Globe Theatre. In 1892 the partnership was dissolved, and Mr Hemsley opened on his own account his present large studios in Felix-street. Mr Hemsley's special forte is the skilful combination of mechanical ingenuities allied to scenic effects. Mr Hemsley has painted for all the leading London theatres, including Quo Vadis With Flying Colours, and The Prayer of the Sword for the Adelphi Theatre; Monte Carlo, The New Barmaid, and The Master of Kingsgift for the Avenue Theatre; The Bauble Shop for the Criterion Theatre; The Queen's Double for the Garrick Theatre; The Midsummer Night's Dream, The Taming of the Shrew, Merry Wives of Windsor, Hamlet, and Othello, for Mr Benson's season at the Globe and other productions at the same theatre, including Bootles' Baby, The Black Rover, and Romeo and Juliet; The Degenerates and The Tempter, for the Haymarket Theatre; The Eternal City and Resurrection (reproductions), The Man that Was, The Gordian Knot, Flodden Field, Richard II., and the entire original production of The Darling of the Gods (and the reproductions of the same for the tour) for His Majesty's Theatre; The Bric-a-Brac Will, Mice and Men, Othello, and The Light that Failed for the Lyric Theatre; La Basoche for the English Opera House (now the Palace); La Poupée and The White Silk Dress for the Prince of Wales's Theatre; and La Rosiere for the Shaftesbury Theatre, and Wapping Old Stairs at the Vaudeville. Mr Hemsley has also been concerned with Mr Hugh Moss, in some sixty productions and has painted for several years for the Cambridge University, and for Mr Henry Dundas all the reproductions of the Drury-lane successes.

For the principal London music halls Mr Hemsley painted Nelson for the Oxford, The Last Stand for the Tivoli, Wellington for the Canterbury, and The Charge of the Light Brigade for the Pavilion. In recent years, Mr Hemsley has painted upwards of fifty act-drops for the new provincial theatres. He takes a very active interest in the new Scenic Artists' Association, and is one of the original members of the council of management.

COLONEL MAPLESON.

One of the most prominent figures in the musical world of America and Europe is the celebrated impresario Colonel Mapleson, celebrated not only for the success and fortune he has brought to artistes now famous, but also as an amateur of sport, a writer and critic of distinction, a soldier, and a man of the world. Colonel Mapleson came naturally by his chosen career, for, as everyone knows, his father was also a great impresario. It was Mapleson père who took the public's breath away by paying Adelina Patti 700,000f. for thirty concerts in America. But Colonel Mapleson has just broken even this hitherto unbeaten record. On behalf of an American syndicate, he has just offered Jean De Reszke 1,100 000 for forty concerts in the principal cities of the United States. Owing to the Presidential Election this tour has been postponed until next year, and Colonel Mapleson is meanwhile arranging for the appearance in London during the coming winter of a French comedy company, to include in turn all the favourite Parisian artists. On the occasion of King Edward's visit to Paris Colonel Mapleson was entrusted with the management of the famous "Soirée Musicale," given by his Majesty at the British Embassy in honour of the President of the Republic. In speaking of this brilliant and historical event, M. Périvier, editor of Gil Blas, devoted a special editorial to Colonel Mapleson, from which we give the following extract:—

"The person of Colonel Mapleson is well known by all Parisians who are interested in theatrical and artistic events. In many ways the Colonel is an interesting figure. By turn impresario, journalist, globe-trotter, hunter, and soldier, his life has been an original and indefatigable one. Colonel Mapleson has won by his charm of manner, his brilliant wit, and savoir faire, the right of a naturalised Parisian, and his untiring labours have done much to promote the entente cordiale. In addition to his many accomplishments, the Colonel is a refined and experienced critic, he excels in all outdoor sports, and as a referee his decisions have invariably given general satisfaction. In private life he is a general favourite owing to his warm-hearted and generous disposition, and his popularity is fully shared by his lovely and accomplished young wife, the daughter of Señor Antonio de Roig, the rich Cuban planter. Such is the man who by Royal command organised the artistic soirée of which the success was so pronounced that King Edward sent for Colonel Mapleson and warmly thanked him in the presence of President Loubet, who also expressed his great satisfaction."—American Register.

MR. TERRY HURST.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I am very grieved indeed to find I made a mistake in my "career" by referring to the above-named gentleman as "the late Terry Hurst." I most earnestly hope Mr Hurst will accept my very sincere apology.

Yours faithfully, CHARLES CARTE.

AT the Theatre Royal, Hanley, Mr Laurence Irving is appearing in that cleverly-written play Richard Lovelace, which is presented by a highly capable company. Miss Mabel Hackney and Mr Irving appear in the leading parts. Mr Irving in the title-part is exceptionally fine, and his clever impersonation is much appreciated He acts with ease and grace. Mr William E. Ashcroft as Colonel Martin Hawley is well cast, and is decidedly successful. The rôle of Alderman Sacheverell has a capital exponent in Mr Henry Crocker; Mr Porter is well depicted by Mr Michael Sherbrooke; Mr Chris Walker is a good Adjutant; and Mistress Porter is in the capable hands of Mrs Campbell Bradley. The piece is preceded by Daisy's Escape, which is cleverly acted and capitally staged.

MESSRS C. W. FAULKNER AND CO., of Golden-lane, E.C., have issued a supplementary illustrated price list of their new publications in photogravure, gravure, carbon, and silver, together with novelties in framed pictures and overmantels. This book contains many charming specimens of high-class artistic work. The gendre subjects are well chosen, and there are a number of pretty landscapes, after the original pictures by D. Sherrin, Alfred D. Breanski, Douglas Cameron, Ernest Walbourne, Sidney Pike, Harold Laws, and others. The figure and animal pictures are also very good, while the coloured miniature illustrations of studies cannot fail to attract attention. In the autotype reproductions both the old and new masters are represented, and specimens from the Wallace and other notable collections are also included. Messrs Faulkner and Co. are already well-known for the excellence of their reproductive work, and their new series of pictures is certainly calculated to extend their widespread reputation.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice last week of my clever collaborator, Mr Arthur Applin, you stated The Passion Flower, a one-act play, which we wrote together, was by Mr Charles Thurston and Mr Applin. Yours faithfully, CHARLES THURSBY. Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, Nov. 9.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, NOV. 10.—Flachsmann als Erzieher, Otto Ernst's satirical comedy, has taken a new lease of life, and at the Royal Schauspel-Haus this time. The intendantur has promised to produce the play, but, with the dilatoriness which is one of the most marked characteristics of our Royal theatres, the première was so often postponed that the author got tired of waiting, and took his comedy to the Lessing, where it had a long run. The revival with the Schauspiel-Haus company was very successful.

THE French tragedian M. De Max has been giving a short series of representations at the Theatre des Westens, with Mdlle. Ventura and his French company. The opening performance was that of Hamlet. Unfortunately, the house was not so well filled as it might have been, nor as M. De Max deserved it should be, but the audience made up in cordiality what it lacked in numbers, and the talented actor achieved a triumph. His Hamlet is a very interesting study; he does not take his audience by storm, but gradually gains their sympathy, and although his conception of the character is a softer and more delicate one than that of most actors, it does not lose by that. M. de Max's voice is particularly pleasing, and his face and figure are prepossessing. Mdlle. Ventura was a delightful Ophelia, but most of the other rôles were inadequately sustained. On Wednesday Racine's Britannicus was put in the bill. The star gave a splendid rendering of the part of Nero, and was again excellently supported by Mdlle. Ventura. On Saturday, the closing night, Hamlet was repeated.

SUPPE'S pretty little comic opera Donna Juanita was produced at the National Theatre on Sunday, and met with a very cordial reception. It is not so good, perhaps, as Boccaccio or Fatinitza, but it is very bright and characteristic, and certainly far above the operettas with which we have been surfeited during the last few years. The charming music was capitally executed by the orchestra under Kapellmeister Reich, and the soloists on the whole were satisfactory, although several sang rather too seriously for the light nature of their rôles. Fräulein Alma Saccur gave the title-rôle in first-rate style.

SCARCELY had Madame Bernhardt left our midst, after a series of triumphs, than her great rival—or perhaps sister-artiste would be a better term—Signora Duse, arrived to give a season at the new National Theatre. The great actress commenced with Maeterlinck's Monna Vanna, a play which has run here in German for a most unusual length. The large building was crowded in every part; the house was "sold out," as the Germans say, and an enthusiastic welcome was accorded to the guest. Signora Duse's conception of Giovanna is wonderful, casting new and beautiful lights upon the well-known character. She is by turns tender and loving, dignified and passionate, always sympathetic and convincing, while in the final act she was magnificent, the byplay with Prinzivalli being one of the finest pieces of acting I have ever witnessed. Signora Duse carried away her audience completely, and, to make use of an expressive phrase, the house rose at her. The rôle of Prinzivalli was well played by Signor Rosaspina, of whom we entertain pleasant recollections from last season. On Thursday Magda was given by the company.

THE Central has made a hit with Der Generalkonsul, operetta, in three acts, by MM. Landesberg and Stein, music by Heinrich Reinhardt. It is filling the bill exclusively, and drawing good houses. The plot is not particularly original, but there is plenty of fun, while the music is melodious and in good taste. Up-to-date patter-songs are always appreciated, and there is no lack of these. The interpretation is satisfactory, and the management has done its best in the way of effective mounting.

"FREI IST DER BURSCH" is the title of a new play by Paul Grabeins, recently given at Cologne with complete success. The theme is the much-discussed one of the duel, and the scene is laid in the university town of Jena. A student, otherwise brave enough in his "corps" duels, has had the misfortune to offend an officer during a drinking bout. The student had been drinking, nota bene, to drown his love troubles, the fair one having proved unkind, and the matter in a less warlike country would have ended with an apology. The student is challenged, and is ready to give the satisfaction demanded, but his father implores him not to fight, and finally gains his word to that effect. All sorts of dire consequences result; the student is dubbed a coward, turned out of his "corps," and looked upon askance by all his friends. He is just about to take his doctor's degree, and the adverse circumstances appear to damn his whole career, when suddenly the girl of his heart softens—of course, she has loved him in secret all the time—and the sun is once more in the poor lad's heaven. He holds up his head again and gladly faces all obstacles, and the end is all rose-hued. It is a well-written, interesting play—particularly interesting, naturally, to Germans, and with good acting, as was the case at Cologne—is very effective.

AN excellent performance of Die Hugenotten was given at the Theatre des Westens on Sunday. This company improves from week to week; the performances are so good and the repertory so varied that the taste of everybody is satisfied in turn, and many people living in the west do not trouble to go all the way to the Royal Opera, but declare, justly enough, that they have everything they want in the way of good and well-executed music at the Theatre des Westens, close at home. Soloists, chorus, and orchestra (under Kapellmeister Pfitzner) were alike admirable, especial commendation being due to Fräulein Stoeller in the rôle of the Queen, to Fräulein King and Herr Haxthausen as Valentine and Raoul, and to Herren Stammer and Geissler. The mounting of the opera, thanks to the skill and foresight of Herr Grevenberg, th head stage-manager, was all that could be desired.

HERR HANS SOMMER'S new opera, Rubezahl, is announced for production before long at the Royal Opera. Leoncavallo's Roland Von Berlin is still held in reserve, despite repeated announcements as to its appearance. We are growing sceptical about Roland. Another "théâtre paré" takes place this week by the Emperor's commands, meaning that their Majesties, the Princes, and the Court will be present. The time-worn opera, Die Weisse Dame, by Boieldieu, has been selected for performance by the Kaiser. Strict injunctions have again been issued to the box-openers to admit nobody to the stalls or first tier who is not in full evening dress.

MR. ROBSON PAIGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I find an error has crept into my biography which appeared in your issue of Oct. 29, 1904 Mr Fred Grove kindly points out to me that prior to my appearance in the late Mr Robert Buchanan's play A Wanderer from Venus, it had been done at Croydon on June 8, 1896, a fact of which I was unaware; therefore, Mr John Beauchamp was the original Rev. Dr. Dullamore, and not,

Yours faithfully, ROBSON PAIGE.

PANTOMIME CLEANING.—To the Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Co., 6, Argyll-street, W. Dear Mr Harris,—I have just finished unpacking the "Cinderella" pantomime you recently cleaned for us. I must say that I have never seen goods returned from any cleaning firm cleaned and packed in such first-class condition. It was delightful to open them. Either our stuff was exceptionally good, or you have excelled yourself. Best wishes. Hoping I shall have to worry you a lot this coming year, Yours faithfully, S. MAY (for Lewis Benjamin), 93, Middlesex-street, Bishopsgate street, E.C. Telephone, No. 6,290, Avenue. Nov. 9, 1904.—[ADVT.]

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE ROYALTY.

On Monday, Nov. 7, Revival of Congreve's Comedy,
"THE WAY OF THE WORLD"

Fainall	Mr FRANK LASCELLES
Mirabell	Mr KING FORDHAM
Witwoud	Mr NIGEL PLAYFAIR
Petulant	Mr DENNIS W. CLEUGH
Sir Wilful Witwoud	Mr WILLIAM HENRY KEMBLE
Waitwell	Mr J. HENRY TWYFORD
Coachman	Mr BROWN
Lady Wishfort	Mrs THEODORE WRIGHT
Mrs Marwood	Miss ADA POTTER
Mrs Fainall	Miss DORA HOLE
Foible	Miss META PELHAM
Mincing	Miss ALMA ELLERSLIE
Betty	Miss PEARLA GARDNER
Peg	Miss MAY MARTYN
Mrs Millamant	Miss ETHEL IRVING

When the Mermaid Society revived The Way of the World at the Court Theatre on April 17 last, the merits and demerits of the piece were thoroughly discussed; but Congreve's work gains a new interest from the recent discussion about the "smart" set in Society. The difference between Congreve's attitude and Mr Sutro's is chiefly one of audiences. In 1700, the playgoers were what was then called the "town." Even the pit was patronised by persons of high official position like Pepys; and it would have been impossible, even had Congreve wished to do so, to sermonise the smart set of his day to their faces. The point of view of the dramatist, who was decidedly a child of the town, was that of his associates. He did not fulminate against Vice; he simply laughed at it. It is a significant fact, however, and one showing how superficial and ignorant the good society of the day was, with all its veneering, that The Way of the World was a failure. It was, indeed, not quite coarse enough for Congreve's "smart" contemporaries In the course of two hundred years a good deal of water has run under the bridges; and The Way of the World is nearer to us than any other of Congreve's works. The scene between Millamant and Mirabell in the second act almost startles us — when we come upon it in the midst of the bronze-like satire of the rest of the piece—by its flavour of modernity. There is a touch of humanity and playfulness about it which are absent elsewhere in the piece, which is as "hard as nails." It is possible that Miss Ethel Irving's performance as Millamant has something to do with this feeling. Miss Irving's re-creation of the rôle is a marvel. Such delicious affectations, such bewitching airs and graces! Such divine supercilliousness; and such a style! And behind it all, just peeping out in the instantaneous darting of a roguish glance, the momentary flicker of a sly smile, is the indication that Millamant quite appreciates the "fun of the thing;" that her caprices and her conceit are "all put on." It is rare, indeed, to find so young and so pretty an actress with such an instinctive insight into comedy character as Miss Irving has. Mrs Theodore Wright repeats her excellent impersonation of Lady Wishfort, making every point with the greatest care and conscientiousness. Mr Nigel Playfair gives a sound and effective impersonation of Witwoud; and Mr Dennis W. Cleugh is commendable as Petulant. Mr King Fordham deserves praise for his performance as Mirabell; and Mr Frank Lascelles' Fainall is an extremely creditable rendering. A broad and bold depiction of Sir Wilful Witwoud is supplied by Mr William Henry Kemble, and Miss Ada Potter as Mrs Marwood and Miss Dora Hole as Mrs Fainall are more than satisfactory. The maids, Foible and Mincing, have efficient representatives in Miss Meta Pelham and Miss Alma Ellerslie, Mr J. Henry Twyford being equal to the demands of the character of Waitwell. The scenery and dresses are adequate to the occasion; and the piece, produced under the direction of Mr Phillip Carr, goes with great smoothness. These revivals of old comedies will serve a valuable purpose if they succeed in informing us of the existence of hitherto hidden genius. Miss Ethel Irving, we believe, only requires an opportunity in modern comedy to make a very deep impression on the public. We trust that such an opportunity may be found; and that her remarkable natural gifts may not be confined to the audience "fit though few" which saw The Way of the World at the Royalty Theatre on Monday.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, Nov. 7,
Revival of Edmund Falconer's Drama, entitled
"PEEP O' DAY."

Edmund Falconer's drama, Peep o' Day; or, Savourneen Dheelish, was produced at the Lyceum Theatre on Nov. 11, 1861. In the cast then were Mr Hermann Vezin, who appeared as the unjustly accused Kavanagh; Mr Walter Lacy, who played Captain Howard; and the author, who represented Barney O'Toole. The plot was taken from one of John Banim's "Tales by the O'Hara Family," which were published in 1831. Falconer's drama was overladen with didactic dialogue, and the construction was somewhat loose and unworkmanlike. Mr Oswald Brand, in preparing the piece for revival at the Grand Theatre, Islington, this week, has done much to modify these defects; but the piece is inherently old fashioned. We use the word not altogether in a depreciatory sense, for if Peep o' Day has not the theatrical effectiveness of a modern melodrama it possesses an agreeable flavour of simplicity and sincerity, and is quite devoid of "clap-trap" and sensationalism. The principal part of Harry Kavanagh gives Mr Ernest Leicester opportunity for a display of excellent acting; and his deep, mellow tones and fine, manly personality are employed to advantage in the depiction of the hero. Mr Hal Collier gives a thoroughly sound and effective embodiment of Barney O'Toole, and he also supplies a very creditable piece of character-acting. Mr Joynsen Powell's Stephen Purcell is a meritorious performance, being clearly defined and cleverly conceived, and Mr C. Fenton is duly dignified and authoritative as Father O'Cleary. Mr Henry Holden is brisk and conscientious as Patrick Grace, and Mr Frank Stone makes a military and manly Captain Howard, the part of Lieutenant Graham having a commendable exponent in Mr Frank Dudley. Miss Helen Bancroft is a most tender and sympathetic Kathleen Kavanagh, and her sweet and expressive performance does much to assist the success of the revival. Miss Kate Brand gives a pleasing and praiseworthy embodiment of Mary Grace, and the unfortunate old Widow Kavanagh is well depicted by Miss Winifred Leeson Mrs Stanislaus Calhaem's Molshee is an example of the good old school of acting, such as is seldom seen nowadays. It is the work of a practised artist, who knows how to make each line tell by gesture, movement, and attitude. Miss Calhaem enters entirely into the spirit of the part, and her realistic and humorous rendering is entirely admirable. As she sits in the second act smoking a short pipe with every sign of enjoyment, she is the old Irish peasant-woman to the life, and in manner, style, and method she does credit to her long and valuable training. The revival is worthy of Mr Brand's reputation as a producer, being smooth, thorough, and complete. Peep o' Day is preceded by an entertainment which includes items by Mr William Wilson, who does some remarkable jumping; Mr Tom Payne, a quaint comedian; and a curiously absurd antediluvian extravaganza, entitled Ancient Lights. The orchestra at the Grand, under Mr N. T. Gliddon's bâton, deserves very favourable mention.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Successful Drama, in Four Acts, by Ben Landeck and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"WOMAN AND WINE."

Good business is being done at the Pavilion this week with the revival of Messrs Landeck and Shirley's powerful drama Woman and Wine, which, with its stirring situations, brisk action, and well-marked contrasts of character, rivets the attention and interest of the audience throughout the course of its four exciting acts. The play as presented by the admirable stock company is capitally received, and is carefully produced and mounted, the really elaborate and artistic sets, notably Café D'Afrique, Le Bal Japonais, and The Flower Market calling forth great applause. Mr Ashley Page as the spendthrift Dick Seymour finds ample scope for his earnest and effective playing which is marked by great power; and Mr Frank Harding scores as Hugh Seymour. The ripe experience of Mr J. C. Aubrey stands him in good stead in his excellent rendition of Alphonse Beaudet, and Mr Ernest Stern ably acquits himself as Phineas Collins, while Mr Harry Bristow personates the money-lender, Mark Parkins, with the necessary subtlety. Mr Sydney T. Pease has proved himself to be a sound and accomplished actor by his intense performance of the malignant cripple, Pierre Cruceu, known as Caliban. Mr Pease has evidently well studied this character, as the fiendish delight and morbid joy at the thought of bloodshed are depicted with artistic effect, and at the same time with a due appreciation of the humorous side. It is an able and clever impersonation, and Mr Pease is to be congratulated on his success. Mr Harry Barford provokes much laughter as Charles Sawter; Mr Wilfred E. Shine appears as Professor Sawter; Mr Roberts is satisfactory as Duc D'Arnac; and a capital portraiture of Bob Tipton is given by Mr Fred Boustead. Miss Valerie Crespin appears for the first time as the demi-mondaine Marcel Rigadout, which she plays with a strength and vividness that is exceedingly telling, while her attractive presence lends important aid to the effect she is able to produce. As Mary Andrews Miss Daisy Soudamore (although suffering from domestic bereavement) plays with remarkable sweetness and gives a fine display of emotional acting, and a convincing presentment of La Colombe is given by Mrs E. Bennett, who is especially good in the duel scene. Miss Kate Leslie sustains Janet Marlow with great credit, and Miss Tina Mavro is a suitable exponent of the good-hearted Madame Perinet. Capable support is given by Mr C. Ferry as President of the Court, Mr Charles Wright as Carlo, Mr L. Merton as Foreman of the Jury, Mr Adams as Joseph, Mr R. Riley as an Advocate, and Mr E. Godfrey as a Waiter. Praise must be awarded to Paul Valentine's troupe of dancers, who perform with much skill in the Ballroom scene, and Miss Dolly M'Calla, who contributes with great success a song and dance in the second act. The costumes are of a high order of excellence and the stage-management admirable.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Nov. 7,
"THE PROFESSOR'S LOVE STORY."

Mr J. M. Barrie has the ability to treat an ordinary hackneyed, even prosaic theme in a bright, fresh, and original manner, squeezing humour out of the very driest material, and dramatically "sizing up" a situation. In The Professor's Love Story are shown these same qualities of humorous observation, fantasy, and dramatic instinct. What could appear to be a less promising motif than the love affairs of an absent-minded, scientific old fogey and his lady secretary? Yet out of this slender material Mr Barrie has woven a delightful little romance. As the dear old Professor Goodwille, the bookworm and scientific enthusiast, who wakens in his old age to the calls of Cupid without being able to disguise his own ailment, so ingenuous and unpractised in affairs of the heart is he, Mr E. S. Willard is entirely charming. Few would recognise in this gentle old fellow the Willard of more strenuous and exigent rôles. In the first scene of the dawn of love he presents a perfect gem of comedy, and depicts the mental aberration of the old professor, rendered doubly acute by his growing fondness for his secretary, with consummate skill and humour. Miss Maud Hoffman takes just the right view in her reading of the part of Lucy White, the Professor's secretary, and, while indicating the purity and goodness of the girl, shows the little spark of deviltry which enables her not only to win the Professor's love but to successfully combat all opposition. She contributes a very pretty and winsome performance, and shows how the gentleness and goodness of the old man won her heart. Miss Russ Whytal is excellent as the methodical managing household treasure, Effie Proctor, and both in the scene when she looks after and tends the Professor and in her bold bid for a husband she gives a genuinely comic and realistic character sketch. The parts of Pete and Henders, the two farm labourers who are rivals for Effie's hand—"a weary pair," as she fittingly terms them as they "let I dare not wait upon I will"—are presented by Messrs Walter Edmunds and William Sauter with ludicrous accuracy and incisiveness. Mr H. Cane acts with ease and affability as the commonsensical physician, Dr. Cosens. He also undertakes the duties of stage-manager. Mr A. S. Homewood as the "interesting idiot," Sir George Gilding, M.P. for Tullochmains, gives a diverting sketch of this type of invertebrate nobility. Miss Eileen Warren enters thoroughly into the part of designing, hypocritical minx, the Dowager Lady Gilding, who is "hoist with her own petard" in her matrimonial schemes; and Miss Mabel Dubois does all that is necessary as Lady Gilding. Miss Edith H. Tombs looks very handsome as Agnes Goodwille, but she hardly indicates the change from severity to sweetness wrought by the recovery of the letter from her old sweetheart. Mr J. Jefferson Farjeon acts the part of the self-sufficient ass, Dr. Yellowlees, with appropriate inanity. Mr Arthur Hardy helps the genial Mr Edward Lytton to look after the front of the house.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Drama, entitled
"THE TWO ORPHANS."

A return is made to melodrama here this week, and Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company is appearing in that favourite old drama, The Two Orphans. That excellent actor Mr Henry Neville is engaged for his original part of Pierre, which he plays with all his accustomed skill. Though it is many years since he first appeared in the character at the Olympic he has lost none of his grip or power. As the two orphans, Louise and Henriette, the Misses Evelyn Weeden and May Congdon were especially good. Miss Evelyn Weeden enacts the blind girl, Louise, in a most pathetic manner, and Miss Congdon's Henrietta is a well-considered piece of work, marking her out as an actress of considerable ability. The meeting of the two sisters in the last act was very pathetic, and these two actresses deserve the highest praise for their work. Another clever piece of acting is the Madame Frochard of Miss Emma Victor, who presents a clever character study, almost gruesome in its reality. Mr William Devereux makes a good Armand; Jacques is well played by Mr Cory Thomas; and Mr William Dexter makes an acceptable Count De Linière. The Picard of Mr F. G. Thurstans is most amusing; the Doctor is played in a dignified manner by Mr W. Mallalieu; Miss Barbara Gott appears as Marianna with success; and Miss Cahill plays the Countess De Linière with distinction. The play is well mounted and the dresses are picturesque.

THE KING'S, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Comic Opera, by Barton White and Gaston Serpette, entitled
"AMORELLE."

Encouraged by the successful visit of Mr C. P. Levilly's company in La Poupée a few weeks ago, Mr Mulholland engaged the same organisation to appear in the new comic opera, Amorelle. The opera has a light and interesting story, the musical numbers are dainty and tuneful, and the interpretation given by the members of Mr Levilly's company is extremely praiseworthy. The character of Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crow enables Mr Eric Thorne to display his comical resources to the utmost, with the result that the audience is kept in roars of laughter during the whole time he is on the stage. An excellent rendering of Old Dotard is given by Mr Fred Seymour, whose song "Says I" and his constant interrogation "What for?" prove very amusing. Mr John Doran is a pleasant and entertaining Jules, and Mr Newton Ide as his supposititious brother, Francois, deserves the success gained by him. Lupin is satisfactorily played by Mr Gerald Clifford, and Bolssey finds a competent performer in Mr Arthur Dennis. Alphonse, a painter, and the Count of Cideaux are creditably impersonated by Mr Maurice Carlton and Mr Robert Fairbanks. A delightful "little bit of wreckage" is Miss Stella Gastelle, whose Amorelle is a most pleasing piece of work. Her singing and vivacious acting are high-class indeed. Miss Kitty Cavendish makes a charming picture as Lesbia. Irresistibly amusing is the Marina of Miss Madge Avery, and as Jeannette Miss May Bradbury deserves and wins much favour. The chorus is an excellent one, and Mr Harry Rushworth ably conducts the large orchestra. The scenery by Mr Ernest Howard was greatly admired.

THE BRITANNIA.

On Monday, Nov. 7,
the Drama, by the late Charles Reade, entitled
"IT'S NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND."

With the revival of drama at the Britannia one is reminded of the good old days when the late Mrs Sara Lane held sway at the big Hoxton house. Happily, too, business has greatly revived under the new regime, and with the able and experienced management of Mr J. M. East there seems every prospect of a renewal of prosperity at a house which possesses quite a unique history of its own. Some of the old company have returned, too, and their reappearance has been hailed with delight. The late Charles Reade's drama wears well. It was produced at the Princess's Theatre nearly forty years ago, resulting in a stormy first night, long remembered. A leading critic of the day rose in the stalls and protested against the cruel flogging of the boy Josephs in the Model Prison scene. There was a great clamour for and against George Vining, who defied the cabal; the critics wrote down the play, but it ran 148 nights, and the profits amounted to £8,000. Many things have happened since the production of It's Never Too Late to Mend. We have heard the groans of the racked man in La Tosca and the agonising cries of the tortured boy in The Sign of the Cross, in comparison with which blood-curdling episode in the flogging scene sinks into insignificance. At the Hoxton theatre Mr Charles A. East gives a robust, forcible rendering of Tom Robinson, and he does not miss any of the opportunities which the part offers. Mr H. Hamilton Stewart proves to be an excellent exponent of the rôle of the manly young farmer George Fielding. Mr W. S. Hartford, a former member of the Britannia stock company, is well placed as the Rev. Francis Eden, the humane prison chaplain. Mr Brian Daly does good work as the rascally lawyer Peter Crawley. Mr George Traverner carefully portrays Mr Hawes, governor of the model prison. Mr Chas. Grover, jun., scores as Jacky. Mr Charles Langley as the Jew, Isaac Levy, merits commendation; and Mr H. H. Carrington is successful as Mr Meadows. Miss Rose Ralph is attractive and pleasing as Susan Merton, George Fielding's sweetheart; and Miss Marie Wright plays Josephs in such a manner as to win the full sympathy of the audience. Mr Fred Groves as William Fielding, and Mr J. Harrison, and Mr T. Adams as the turnkeys, and Miss Daisy Marshall as Mary are also praiseworthy, other parts being in the hands of Messrs C. Clarke, C. Enever, C. M. Thompson, and H. Smith. The varieties include Major Newell, in his roller-skating speciality; the Rubens, entertainers and singers; Charles Ashdown, comedian and legmania artist; and a new series of animated pictures, concluding with the laughable farce entitled Shocking Events. In this Mr J. B. Howe as Griffinhorf and Miss Julia Summers as Kitty, receive a right hearty welcome, and excellent support comes from Mr Brian Daly as Mr Pugge, Mr Chas. Groves as Capt. Spoff, and Miss D. Marshall as Dorothy. Mr Ernest Abbott has been appointed the acting manager at this house, and his experience in a similar capacity at other places of amusement will qualify him for the position.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Melodrama, in Four Acts, by John Denton, entitled
"A MODERN JUDAS."

After their last week's enjoyment of successful musical comedy the West Londoners turned up in large numbers at Mr Bailey's cosy theatre to resume their acquaintanceship with the drama proper, which they love so well. Mr John Denton has gathered round him, to support him in A Modern Judas, a company of singular excellency and versatility, with the result that the play runs with smoothness from start to finish. As Jack Vavasour Mr Frank Beresford acts with great force and power, speaking his lines in clear and decisive fashion, and thereby receiving a large measure of applause at every curtain. The villainies of Captain Melbourne, are portrayed by Mr Percy Rhodes in striking style, his effort being a particularly fine one. The Tom Hopkins of Mr Willie Scott stands out as one of the best pieces of comedy acting seen by the Maryleboners for many a day. Mr John Denton as Elkanah Pearce acts in a robust and vigorous way, his various whimsicalities causing much hearty laughter. An excellent foil to Mr Denton is Miss Ada Palmer as the somewhat attenuated Agatha Pearce. As Bennett Mr Trueman Towers gives a careful study of a part not over-burdened with possibilities; Mr Fred Bell does all that is necessary as Moucher, and Mr Harry Browne is effective as James Rivers. Miss Violet King sustains the rôle of Clare Rivers with much grace and charm, her elocution calling for loud praise. As Elise Miss Walbran gives a capital study, her make-up being exceptionally good and her methods admirable. Miss Dolly Harcourt as Polly Hopkins is most lively and energetic. The play is well mounted and staged.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 7,
the Comedy, in Four Acts, by J. M. Barrie, entitled
"QUALITY STREET."

A little more than two years have elapsed since Mr Barrie's comedy was produced at the Vaudeville Theatre. It was originally staged at Toledo, in the United States, on Oct. 11, 1901. The play invariably secures the favourable verdict of an audience by reason of the life-like sketches of character and the vein of genuine humour which runs through it. Very delightful is the picture presented of the period when the eighteenth century was young and the great topic of the day was the doings of Napoleon Bonaparte. The members of Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company play the comedy in quite the right spirit, and their performance meets with the success it deserves. The part of Valentine Brown, originally played by Mr Seymour Hicks, has a thoroughly capable exponent in Mr George A. Brandram. In the portrayal of a character of this type easy and natural acting is of the highest importance, and Mr Brandram is happily well able to fulfil these requirements. Ensign Blades, a dandy of a century ago, is capitally embodied by Mr Arthur C. F. Lysons, the mirth-compelling peculiarities of the young gentleman being cleverly depicted. From Mr Herbert Chown comes a neatly sketched portrait of Lieutenant Spicer, quite in keeping with one's idea of a smart young officer of the period. The Recruiting Sergeant is not a very prominent personage, but Mr Dan Dyer makes the very best use of his opportunities, and his impersonation is quite a success. So too is the schoolboy of Master Ernest Holiom, whose portrayal of Arthur Wellesley Thomson has many merits and meets with the full approval of the audience. Mr Arthur Curtis scores as the Waterloo veteran. Miss Florence Jackson plays with rare charm of manner the part of Phœbe Throssel. The various moods and methods of the lady of the ringlets she presents in a manner that is greatly appreciated. The scenes with Valentine Brown are played with much delicacy, and the effect is delightful. Miss Grace Edwin scores in the rôle of Susan Throssel, and much merriment accompanies the performance of the schoolroom scenes. The prying Misses Willoughby have good representatives in Miss Isabel Merson and Miss Marie Dennett. Miss Gwynneth Galton acts well as the maid Patty; and useful work is done by Miss Frances Leslie and Miss Lillian Rogers as Henrietta Turnbull and Charlotte Parratt. The scenery and general mounting of the piece give satisfaction.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Play, entitled
"THE BROKEN MELODY."

The prolonged success of the charming play The Broken Melody continues unabated, and on the evening of our visit to the Elephant and Castle Theatre an excellent house showered unstinted praise upon the clever artistes engaged in the piece. The masterly 'cello playing by Mr Van Biene is undoubtedly a great attraction, and the gifted player's solos are received with a warmth that must be exceedingly gratifying to the executant. As an actor, too, Mr Van Biene displays an artistic depth of feeling that enables him to portray the character of Paul Borinski in a manner both refined and natural, and his efforts meet with high appreciation from the audience, who on Monday were enthusiastic in calling the talented actor-musician before the curtain after each act. Miss Lena Burnleigh acts the part of Madame Borinski in a charming and sympathetic fashion, and deserves every commendation. A natural piece of acting is that given by Mr Arthur Bawtree, who makes a typical General Ivanoff, a Russian police spy. Mr T. P. Haynes, in the part of Dudley Mortimer, is amusing, and Mr Ernest Laceby is excellent as Dixon. A French impresario receives able treatment at the hands of Mr John Cummings, and Mr Henry Ludlow makes a polished Hon. Richard Spinnaker. Mr E. Edwards shines as Dr. Magrath. Miss Ida Chapman plays well as the Duchess De Verviers, and Miss Morton as the Hon. Mrs Spinnaker acts convincingly. Miss Avis Graham gives prominence to the part of Mrs Dixon.

NEW EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Comedy, in Three Acts, by Hubert Henry Davies, entitled
"COUSIN KATE."

Lovable Cousin Kate received a warm welcome on her reappearance at Ealing on Monday last. With two such principals as Miss Lilias Earle and Mr Yorke Stephens in the cast, this excellent play was bound to be interpreted in an efficient manner, and a full house showed hearty appreciation of the successful efforts of the whole company. Miss Earle made a charming Cousin Kate, and scored an emphatic success. Mr Yorke Stephens presented a capital rendering of the genial and witty Irishman, Heath Desmond. Mr Walter Ringham was excellent as the Rev. James Bartlett, and the same remark applies to Master Thomas as Bobby Spencer, "the only man in the family." Miss Hilda Hones played the part of Amy Spencer in a dainty and refined manner, and Miss Helen Leyton did well as the much-tried mother, Mrs Spencer. As a curtain-raiser A Case for Eviction was staged, and well received, Miss Betty Castle, Miss Hilda Honess, and Mr Walter Ringham being responsible for the excellent work performed therein.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Tuesday, Nov. 7, Gounod's
"FAUST."

Among the many excellent bookings that Mr F. W. Purcell provides for the patrons of his Stoke Newington house, none prove more popular than do the periodical visits of the Carl Rosa opera company, who are appearing here this week in a répertoire comprising Lohengrin, Faust, Don Giovanni, Tannhäuser, Carmen, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and Rigoletto. Amongst the old favourites who have appeared during the week are Misses Lizzie Burgess, Augusta Renard, and Una Bruckshaw, and Messrs E. C. Hedmondt, Julius Walther, and Edward Davies. Lohengrin was given on the opening night of the engagement, with Mr E. C. Hedmondt in the title-rôle and Madame Sobrino as Elsa. On Tuesday Gounod's Faust, which always proves one of the most attractive features of the visit, was presented. Mr Julius Walther scored an emphatic success in Faust, and his efforts received hearty recognition from his audience. Miss Lizzie Burgess again appeared as Marguerite and her splendid singing of the part found as much favour as ever, her magnificent rendering of the jewel song being rewarded with most enthusiastic applause. Mr Arthur Winckworth not only sang but acted the part of Mephistopheles in a manner that left little to be desired, and Valentine was perfectly safe in the hands of Mr Lewys James. As Siebel and Martha Misses Anna Hope and Douglas were fully equal to all demands made upon them, and the spirited work of the chorus demands due recognition. The duties of conductorship are shared by Messrs Walter Van Noorden and Eugene Goossens.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Musical Play,
"THREE LITTLE MAIDS."

Notwithstanding the many previous visits of plays of this description to Mr Purcell's theatre, the reception accorded Mr Charles Macdona's company in The Three Little Maids on Monday and subsequent evenings during the week has been as cordial and appreciative as ever. The company is highly capable in every respect, the chorus being especially worthy of praise. The Marlborough orchestra is, as usual, most efficient, and is, during this week, under the able direction of Mr Julian Rutt, who deserves a word of compliment for his capable handling of the bâton. The play is capitally staged, the scenery being an important feature. The handsome dresses are quite in harmony with the scenery and accessories, and altogether the presentation reflects great credit on all concerned, a special word of praise being due to Mr Stage-Manager Chas. Leverton. A hearty greeting was accorded the Misses Janet Reeve, Gertrude Melville, and Norah Tuy, who are very captivating as the Three Little Maids, Ada, Hilda, and Edna Branscombe, winning the hearts of the audience by their sparkling vivacity. Their songs and dances are ably done, and in consequence are all encored, the favourite numbers being "My gal Sal," "You men," "The girl you love" and "The miller's daughter." A clever performance is the Lady St. Mallory of Miss Kate Forster, who merits much praise, and her three protégés are played in good style by Miss Jennie Edgar as Lady Beaulieu, Miss Ethel May as Venetia Grafton, and Miss Ella Daincourt as Lady Marjory Crichton. The untiring energy and bright personality of Miss Laura Wright in her characteristic study of Gretchen, the Dutch girl, win for her the warmest recognition, and, together with Mr Gus Oxley as Cupid, provide endless mirth. Their duet, "Something sweet about me," was one of the decided hits of the performance, and for which they are encored five or six times nightly. Mr Oxley is also successful with his song, "Girls, girls, girls," whilst his agility at dancing is also well recognised. The grotesque Lord Cheyne of Mr Arthur Longley is very commendable. The part suits him in every way and he manages to keep the house convulsed whenever he appears. One would never dream he had had "such a fearful past." He scores heavily with his "Algebra" song, and his highly amusing performance will be long remembered by local playgoers. Mr Haddon Cave gives a manly and earnest portrayal of Brian Molyneux and sings his numbers in commendable style. Mr Alec Chentrens achieves success in the rôle of Mons. De L'Orme, and his rendering of "I'll dream of you" and "Could you be true?" was very effective. Miss Mabel Sarl ably sustains the part of Miss Price, manageress of the tea-shop, and Mr Chas. Leverton lends valuable aid as the Rev. Mr Branscombe. His efficient stage-managership is evidenced by the smoothness of the whole production.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts,
by James T. Tanner, Adrian Ross, and Lionel Monckton, entitled
"A COUNTRY GIRL."

As usual with Mr George Dance's companies, this production reaches the high-water mark of efficiency. Everyone is well chosen for his or her part, and the chorus is sprightly and keeps up to its work. Mr Harry Buss is all that can be wished as Barry, and receives the heartiest of welcomes from his audiences. Mr Fred W. Pattrick as the Rajah of Bong gains many encores for his songs, and Mr Francis Ludlow makes a dashing Geoffrey Chaloner. Mr H. C. Morton is very good as Sir Joseph Verity, as is also Mr Willie Hartill as Douglas Verity. Mr Arthur Hayter brings out the humour of Granfer Mummery admirably. Mr Ernest Cresfan adds his quota to the success as Lord Anchester, and Messrs Harry Glyn, Connely, Somers, and H. J. Edwards are all that can be desired in other parts. Miss Rosie Begarnie as Madame Sophie captivates her audiences, and proves herself a remarkably capable singer and dancer; Miss Kathryn Comber as Marjory Joy has a fine voice which she uses to advantage; Miss Ernestine Desborough as Princess Melaneh has a graceful figure, and is a beautiful singer, winning much applause; Miss Nellie Cozens plays Nan with plenty of dash and go, and deserves warm praise; Miss Rosa Robey as Mrs St. Quinton and Miss Beatrice Glyn as Lady Anchester are very effective; and the Misses Desterre, Marshall, Collier, Gosling, and Maxse render able assistance.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday Nov. 7, the Comedy Opera
"MY LADY MOLLY."

The pranks and vagaries of that headstrong young damsel "My Lady Molly" have been delighting us here this week, and with reason, for it would be hard to find a more enjoyable evening's entertainment than the excellent performance by the good all-round company appearing in this bright and witty comic opera. Miss De Dreux made a great hit in the title-rôle, acting cleverly and looking particularly charming in the man's dress which is her attire during most of the evening; the mixture of dignity, impudence, and absolute fright with which Lady Molly carries off this disguise was most amusingly portrayed. Miss De Dreux is also the fortunate possessor of a full, rich voice which was heard to advantage in several numbers Miss Zoe Gilfillan played Alice Coverdale in the highest of high spirits, and with a mirthful appreciation of the ludicrous nature of some of the situations which was most contagious; her rendering of several songs and her graceful dancing were also much enjoyed. Miss Mabel Carr was a delightful Hester, acting with aplomb and a demure roguishness which was most fascinating. As Mdlle. Maribeau Miss Ebba Dancier acted well and sang with expression. Mr Leicester Tunks was well suited as Captain Romney, his determined manner being well in keeping with the character, and his strong, well-trained voice, which he had under perfect control, being heard to the greatest effect in several fine songs. Mr Stephen Fitzgerald played Micky O'Dowd in just the right key, keeping as far as possible from the usual stage Irishman; his impersonation thus gained largely in humour, and he got his laughs rather by legitimate means as an accomplished comedian than by the presentment of a conventional caricature. As Lionel Bland Mr Stuart Alexander made a manly and handsome lover, acting in a spirited manner and singing with force and earnestness. Mr H. Goodwin Hunt contributed a clever sketch of Sir Miles Coverdale. His make-up was admirable, and his rendering of the songs entrusted to him excellent. The principals were supported by a tuneful intelligent, and well-trained chorus, and all worked heartily together to secure the success which was undoubtedly gained. A special word of praise must be given to Miss Minnie Blanchard, whose artistic and graceful dancing was one of the features of the performance. Her Irish jig, in conjunction with Mr Stephen Fitzgerald, was in its way a revelation, and secured a hearty encore.

DALSTON THEATRE.

Seymour Hicks and George Edwardes, entitled
"ONE OF THE BEST."

Judging by the reception accorded here this week to the military drama, One of the Best, the well-known piece has lost none of its popularity. The present representation is certainly vigorous, and the acting all round is good. Mr Stanley Bedwell is the Dudley Keppel (Lieutenant of the 2nd Highlanders), and he plays the part of the dashing young soldier to perfection. Mr E. Bellenden Clarke is Philip Elsworth, and he sustains the character with care. Mr Charles Medwin is Jason Jupp, and Mr Herbert Darnley Private Jupp, of the 2nd Highlanders, and both lend effective aid in those characters. Lieutenant-General Coventry finds a dignified representative in Mr H. F. Maltby, and the same may be said of Mr Wilfred Beckworth as the Rev. Dr. Penrose. Miss Helen Haye as the daughter of Lieutenant-General Coventry acts with grace, and Miss Janette Le Gros is decidedly popular as Mary Penrose. Others in the cast include Miss Nellie Gilmore and Miss L. Norden, and Messrs Geo. Hart, W. Templar Powell, W. M'Allum, J. Patterson, F. Patmore, H. W. Plunkett, C. Phillips, C. Evans, F. Seaton, and B. Randall.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH-END.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Musical Play, in Two Acts, by Henry Hamilton and Paul Potter, entitled
"THE SCHOOL GIRL."

Mr George Dance's company is appearing here in this successful piece, and the appreciative audience gathered on the opening night displayed considerable interest in the presentation. In the cast, which was a judiciously chosen one, each particular rôle was well sustained; and the dresses and general mounting call for favourable comment. Miss Mildred King as the Mother Superior and Miss Elena Sevesi as the French bonne Marianne did good service in their respective parts. Miss Grace Wixon was seen to advantage in her impersonation of Mrs Marchmont, and Cicely was charmingly enacted by Miss Gracie Sinclaire. The School girl, Lilian Leigh, by Miss Ethel Beech, was a delightfully vivacious interpretation. Mr Lister Morrah as Edgar Verney not only displayed capital acting but also excellent vocalisation, the song, "An English Girl," calling for special commendation. Mr Charles Adeson was smart and humorous as General Marchmont; Mr Alfred Leslie made a consistent and diverting Tubby Bedford; Mr Cameron Carr showed experience as the stockbroker, Peter Overend; Comer was played by Mr Frank Sutton with verve and go; Sir Ormesby St. Leger was a characterisation of considerable merit by Mr Leslie Holland, his quaintness and spirited handling largely aiding the success. The increased orchestra and chorus under the direction of Mr Edward H. Whitehall did extremely well.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Japanese Play, entitled
"THE DARLING OF THE GODS"

The Darling of the Gods is meeting with an enthusiastic reception here this week, and Messrs Belasco and Long's remarkable play is most ably interpreted by Mr Beerbohm Tree's clever company. Miss Lilian Stafford is an admirable Yo-San, the darling of the gods, and in conjunction with Mr Gerald E. K. Souper (whose Kara is powerful and impressive) sustains the interest of the performance until the final fall of the curtain. Mr G. W. Anson presents a most able and artistic piece of work as Zakkuri; Mr Ernest Stallard is a very good Kato, a fisher of carp; Mr Cecil Tresilian acts well as Yo-San's dumb servant, Inu; and Mr A. P. Kaye is excellent as Prince Saigon. Miss Augusta Haviland is good as Rosy Sky; Miss May Seaton does all that is possible with Kaede; Miss Sybil Glynn gives a clever rendering of the character of Madame Arani; and the remaining rôles in the long cast are all in capable hands.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Musical Comedy, entitled "THE TOREADOR."

Mr George Edwardes's company in The Toreador is providing a strong attraction at the Borough Theatre this week. The dressing and mounting of the piece are quite up to the high standard usually associated with the name of this experienced entrepreneur, and the excellent singing and spirited acting of the chorus is a prominent feature in the attractions of the production. Mr Lionel Victor is always brimming with humour as Sammy Gigg, and works indefatigably with the happiest results. Mr W. H. Powell scores heavily as Pettifer, and his agile and sprightly dancing is vociferously applauded. Mr T. W. Volt hits off exactly the idiosyncrasies of the immaculate and vacuous Sir Archibald Slackett, and Augustus Trail has a buoyant exponent in Mr Fred Allandale. Mr John Donald makes a fine, upstanding figure of Carajolo; dry humour is contributed by Mr Fred Fowler as the Governor of Villaya; Rinaldo is excellently played by Mr E. Nainby, and Mr A. W. Ashdowne does exceedingly well as Moreno. Miss Daisy Wallace is a pretty and graceful Dora Selby, and sings charmingly. Miss Nancy Langtyre acts and sings with delightful effect as Nancy Staunton, and Miss Daisy Stratton's Susan is a captivating performance. Miss Nellie Bouverie plays Mrs Malton Hoppings on broad comedy lines with the utmost success; and Miss Alice Oppitz plays with striking effect as Donna Teresa, her rendering of the "Toreador" song winning loud applause. Minor parts are all creditably played.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Drama, in Four Acts, by E. Hill-Mitchelson, entitled "THE TRAITOR."

In the ranks of travelling productions The Traitor should hold a foremost place. With its brilliant uniforms, its splendid dresses and lavish mounting, the thorough regard for detail everywhere apparent, and its well-contrived and lucid story of Russian intrigue, duplicity, and Nihilism—a subject so dearly beloved of popular audiences—it has all the ingredients which make for success, and its representation at the hands of Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson's well-balanced company is all that could be desired. A popular character is that of Prince Rudolph, a Russian noble, who, for the sake of the woman he loves, even goes to the extent of espousing Nihilism. The part suits Mr Wellesley Draper immeasurably, his fine appearance, virility, and easy diction gaining numberless encomiums. Another notable performance is that of Mr Stephen E. Scanlan as the crafty Chief of Police, and a man who is a traitor to the cause of Nihilism. Mr Scanlan acts in forcible and intense style, and with a realism which evokes many execrations from the more susceptible among the audience. Mr James E. Abbott as the fiery and amorous General Hertz is always amusing, and Mr Edward Jenner as the stolid, deliberating Captain Ross plays with ability. Mr Frank Sutherland proves himself a capital comedian as Jack Boult, and Mr Edward Lowrie makes the most of his opportunities as Zox. Miss Conyers Radcliffe looks very handsome as Zula, and acts in entire sympathy; Miss Lily Roselle plays with power and restraint as the scheming Countess Zicka; Miss Hettie Senior cleverly realises the part of the French lady detective, Elise Dupré; Cen-Cen is played with considerable charm by Miss Anena Walton; and as the young lieutenant Nicholas Miss Isabel Hunt plays most commendably, and renders the character a prime favourite with the audience. Other parts are all in capable hands.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Farce, in Three Acts, by H. M. Paull, entitled "THE NEW CLOWN."

It is not often that such genuine side-splitting laughter rings out within the four walls of the Kingston Theatre as that heard during this week, when this most amusing production was presented. Mr James Welch appears in his original part of Lord Cyril Garston, and his antics as a clown in disguise keep the house in continual good humour. He received most valuable assistance from Mr G. H. Snazelle, who plays Mr Dixon, the circus proprietor; whilst Mr Harry J. Crane acquitted himself admirably as the clown, Thomas Baker. Miss Audrey Ford made a host of friends in all parts of the house by a charming portrayal of the part of the equestrienne, Rosie Platt. Not the least amusing part of the farce is the performances of the donkey Ping Pong. Other rôles in the play are ably filled.

PRINCE OF WALES'S, RICHMOND.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Play, entitled "ZAZA."

Mrs Lewis Waller, with her own company, has been appearing here on the first three nights of the week in Zaza. The part of Zaza suits Mrs Waller like a glove, and she throws her entire energies into the character, giving an extremely realistic representation. Very good is Mrs Waller's great scene in the fourth act, when she discovers her betrayer's duplicity and finally leaves him. Mr Eric Mayne as Bernard Dufresne gives Mrs Waller valuable support and is an ideal representative of the careless faithless, man-of-the-world who obtains a hold on good-hearted girls such as Zaza. Miss Kate Kearney as Rosa Bonne (Zaza's aunt) created the greatest amusement by her diverting rendering of the part and whose idea of curing her "heart trouble" consisted in irresistibly funny consumption of everything that even looked like a liquid. Miss Ethel Warwick was extremely bewitching as Madame Dufresne and made the most of the rather limited opportunity given her by the part. Miss Minnie Rayner was very good as Nathalie (Zaza's maid), and Miss Alice Langley did well as Alice Morel. The Duc De Brisac found a capable representative in Mr J. Spurling, and Mr Edmund Lea played capitally as Cascart, Zaza's partner in business. The minor characters were, without exception, in good hands, and long experience of their duties enabled the players to give a performance that went without a hitch from start to finish. Zaza's dresses were by Madame Lucile, which is equivalent to saying they were what the ladies call "dreams."

THE ELIZABETHAN STAGE SOCIETY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—As several letters have appeared in the Press about the reserving of part of the pit at this theatre last Saturday for the Elizabethan Stage Society performances (through which many people were unable to gain admission after waiting at the doors), I shall be very much obliged if you will kindly allow me to state in your columns that the management of the Court had nothing to do with the arrangements of these performances, beyond letting the house to the society.

Yours faithfully J. E. VEDRENNE.
Court Theatre, Nov. 4, 1904.

A NOVEL and attractive entertainment has taken the place, for this week, of the usual dramatic fare at the Greenwich Theatre. It consists of a series of very beautiful pictures of interesting events in the lives of our soldiers and sailors, most ably explained by the lecturer as each picture is shown. The entire entertainment is most enjoyable, and is called "Our Army and Our Navy."

MR. TREE'S A.B.F. MATINEE.

On Tuesday Afternoon, Nov. 8, at His Majesty's Theatre, Revival of the Play, in Four Acts, by Paul M. Potter, Dramatised by permission from George Du Maurier's Novel, entitled "TRILBY."

Svengali	Mr TREE
Talbot Wynne	Mr EDMUND MAURICE
Alexander M'Alister	Mr LIONEL BROUGH
William Bagot	Mr HENRY AINLEY
Gecko	Mr C. M. HALLARD
Zouzou	Mr HERBERT ROSS
Dodor	Mr GERALD DU MAURIER
Oliver	Mr S. A. COOKSON
Lorimer	Mr GAYER MACKAY
Reverend Thomas Bagot	Mr CHARLES ALLAN
Manager Kaw	Mr HOLMAN CLARK
Trilby O'Ferrall	Miss VIOLA TREE
Mrs Bagot	Miss FRANCES IVOR
Madame Vinard	Miss ROSINA FILLIPI
Angele	Miss ISABEL COLLIER
Mimi	Miss MADGE TITHERADGE
Honorine	Miss DOROTHY THOMAS
Musette	Miss CARDOZO

Mr Beerbohm Tree could hardly have made a better choice for his Actors' Benevolent Fund matinée at His Majesty's Theatre than Trilby. The piece is just becoming ripe for revival; and those who filled His Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday afternoon had the double delight of feeling that they were benefiting an excellent institution, and at the same time taking advantage of a very choice opportunity. To see Trilby played with so many members of the original cast taking part in the performance is a privilege which is eagerly to be captured and greatly to be enjoyed; and, in addition, there was the novelty of Miss Viola Tree's appearance as Trilby O'Ferrall. Miss Tree strikes a charming note of naturalness and gaiety, and emphasises most effectively the artlessness and affection of the heroine of the play. There is nothing affected or artificial about her reading of the rôle; and her bright spontaneousness, her free and sprightly gaiety, and the truth and sincerity of her emotional expression make her Trilby O'Ferrall entirely delightful and undeniably successful. Mr Tree's Svengali has lost none of its marvellous picturesqueness and weird vitality, and is as wonderfully enthralling and interesting a performance as ever. Mr Edmund Maurice is again unimpeachable as Talbot Wynne; and Mr Lionel Brough's Alexander M'Alister is the same admirable impersonation as of old. Mr Henry Ainley is, in face and temperament, a most poetical and artistic William Bagot, and acts with remarkable delicacy and intensity. Mr C. M. Hallard does a neat bit of acting as Gecko; and Mr Herbert Ross and Mr Gerald Du Maurier are capital as Zouzou and Dodor. Mr Charles Allan is the Reverend Thomas Bagot to the very life; and Miss Frances Ivor gives a tender and affecting embodiment of Mrs Bagot. Miss Rosina Fillipi's Madame Vinard has lost none of its completeness and truth since the initial production of the play; and Mr Holman Clark does useful work as Manager Kaw. The Trilby revival on Tuesday was witnessed by a large audience, who let no point pass unnoticed, and who rewarded the efforts of the artistes with enthusiastic applause.

THEATRICAL GOLF.

Mr George Edwardes on the 4th inst. headed a team of actors against a side of county cricketers in a golf tournament at Northwood. Mr G. L. Jessop was the leader of the cricketing combination, which included Mr H. H. Hilton, the open and amateur champion; Dr. W. G. Grace, Mr B. J. T. Bosanquet, Mr G. W. Beldam, Mr G. Brann, Mr C. O. H. Sewell, Mr "Morny" Cannon, and Mr L. Mackay. This side led at the end of the singles by 5½ points to 3½, each individual match counting a point, and the bye a quarter of a point. In the foursomes, however, the actors rose to the occasion, and accomplished all that was demanded of them in excellent style. They scored 4½ points to 1½, thus totalling, on the day's play, 7¾ to 6¾, and winning the contest by one point. Mr Rutland Barrington showed good form in both his rounds. Mr Jessop, crouching for his shots very much as he does at cricket, hit some remarkably long drives, and won both the match and the bye from Mr Courtice Pounds. "W. G." played a capital game, and defeated Mr George Edwardes; but, in the foursome, the latter showed the better form, he and Mr A. Hart beating Mr Hilton and "W. G." by 2 and 1. The following were the scores:—

MASTER STANTON'S CONCERT.

At Brinsmead's convenient concert-room, Wigmore-street, a concert was recently given under the direction of Mr Lansdowne Cottell. Master Lionel Stanton has had the advantage of Mr Cottell's excellent training as a pianist, and his abilities are decidedly promising. He played "La Sympathie," by Comettant, a Rondo of Beethoven, the Spring Melody of Zimmerman, and a Fantasia on Maritana, by Vincent Wallace. He also took part in a duet with Mr Carl Webb. Miss Amy Henderson sang "Orpheus and His Lute" with much grace. Mr Clay Thomas, a baritone with a good voice and a good style who has been taught extremely well by Mr Cottell, sang "Go to sea" and "King of the Elves." Miss Cecil Hay, a lady baritone, who, we understand, intends to make pantomime her chief study, sang "Mary of Argyle" quite like a masculine vocalist. "Beloved, it is morn" was somewhat beyond the capabilities of Mr Lightfoot. "Partatele d'Amor," from Faust, was sung by Madame Gianelli. "Under the Deodar" was given by Miss Evelyn Armistead gracefully. It was her first appearance. "Life's Heroes," by Mr Louis Cottell, and accompanied by Mr Lansdowne Cottell, was sung by Miss Minnie Stevens. Madame Gianelli succeeded best in a coon song, "The Sunny Susquehannah," which afforded much satisfaction to the audience. Mr Cottell and Mr Carl Webb accompanied the vocalists with considerable skill, and notwithstanding a most unfavourable night Brinsmead's pretty rooms were completely filled.

PRINCESS LOUISE AUGUSTA OF SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN and suite were present at the performance of Bohème at the Royal Opera, Covent-garden, on the 4th inst.; and on the same evening the Princess of Wales and suite witnessed the performance of Véronique at the Apollo Theatre.—Prince Francis of Teck and Count and Countess Bernstorff witnessed the performance of Die Grosstadtluft at the Great Queen-street Theatre last Monday evening.

DEATH OF MR. F. A. SCUDAMORE.

We regret to record the sudden death of Mr Fortunatus Augustin Scudamore, known in the profession as Frank A. Scudamore, the well-known dramatist and actor. The deceased was found dead at his residence, Castelnau-mansions, Barnes, on Sunday morning, having expired suddenly from failure of the heart's action. He was fifty-eight years of age.

Mr Scudamore was originally intended for the church, but abandoned his studies and entered the theatrical profession at the early age of seventeen. He was a leading member of the stock companies in Liverpool, Oldham, Newcastle, Edinburgh, Aberdeen, and Bristol. He toured with Barry Sullivan, Daniel Bandmann, Miss Marriott, and Miss Sarah Thorne, and was specially engaged by George Rignold for the production of Henry V. at Drury-lane. He has during his stage career held engagements for most lines of business, including juvenile lead and first low comedy; he was one of the first young actors to adopt the line of first old men and character business. At the age of twenty-four he was the first old man and character actor at the New Theatre, now the Prince's, Bristol, where he played the whole round of the business, and made a distinct hit as Caliban, in Mr Chute's production of The Tempest. In the early numbers of The Era Almanack Mr Scudamore advertised as Mr G. H. Scudamore, character actor and Scotch comedian, and was engaged by Mr Edward Price to play at the Theatre Royal, Aberdeen. Although a Gloucestershire man, he appeared there with success in the leading Scotch comedy parts, including Baillie Nicol Jarvie, Jock Howieson, Peter Peebles, &c. He also made a great success as Sir Pertinax Macsycophant, in The Man of the World. Mr Scudamore made it a rule never to remain more than three years in one engagement, and during that period he usually became an established favourite. When Mr Scudamore left Aberdeen some of the leading patrons of the theatre invited him to a farewell banquet, and presented him with a testimonial, an unusual compliment to a stock actor. Mr Scudamore's favourite rôles were Sir Peter Teazle, Dogberry, Polonius, and Touchstone, parts which he played with most of the leading stars and on tour with the late Barry Sullivan, who was Mr Scudamore's last manager, he leaving the great tragedian to become author, actor, and manager on his own account. Mr Scudamore had been for years working hard to secure an opening as an author. During his three years' engagement at Bristol he published a blank verse play entitled Liberta and a poem called "Among the Stars."

He wrote several plays and sent them the round of managers, but they were all returned "Declined with thanks." He therefore decided to produce them himself. His first venture was Fighting Fortune at Bolton. Shortly after he produced Nature's Nobleman, a romantic play, and Presence of Mind, a farce, also at Bolton; Dad, a comedy, at Belfast; and Rags and Bones at the Theatre

THE LATE MR. F. A. SCUDAMORE.

Royal, Cardiff. Mrs Alfred Mellon appeared in this play, and made a great hit in the part of Kitty. Rags and Bones made a great success in America under the title of The Inside Track. His next production was First-class, followed by Is Life Worth Living? Dangers of London, Ups and Downs of Life, Setting Day, Against the Tide, and The Destroying Angel. In Dangerous Women, produced at the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow, Mr Scudamore appeared with success in the part of the hero. Other plays from his pen include Thou Shall Not Kill, produced at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, July 31, 1899, Might and Right, the Surrey play, A Fight for Life (originally produced in the country under the name of Our El Dorado), True as Steel, The Mystery of the Seven Sisters, The Beautiful Avenger, The World of Women, and The Biggest Scamp on Earth. In a comparatively recent production called Because I Love You the principal character is endowed by a freak of nature with the talons of a vulture, and the play caused considerable sensation. In another of his dramas he made a sensational use of a steam roller, and in The Dangers of London the phonograph was introduced for the first time as a stage factor. His last play, which he had just completed, is entitled Her Face was Her Fortune.

Mr Scudamore was a constant advertiser in The Era. He was most particular about the insertion of his advertisements, and always sent them up each week himself. Last week, for the first time for many years past, his usual advertisement did not reach the office, and, as will be seen by the sad circumstances surrounding his sudden death, the explanation is a tragic one. The funeral took place at Barnes Cemetery on Friday afternoon.

At Mortlake Coroner's Court, on Tuesday, Dr. Michael Taylor held an inquest on the body of the deceased.

Miss Daisy Bertha Scudamore, an actress, identified the body as that of her uncle, whom she had lately been in the habit of visiting every Sunday. Mr Scudamore was living quite alone, his wife being away on tour, and there was no servant. He was a most cheerful man. He had written some twenty-two well-known plays, all of which had been successful, and she believed he was negotiating with a lady for the production of a new play. Deceased went out every Thursday to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, at which he took the chair. Witness last saw him on Sunday, Oct. 30. When witness arrived at the flat last Sunday, at 1·30 p.m., she noticed the blinds down, and she was unable to get an answer to her knock. She got a key from the caretaker and entered, but, seeing the gas still alight, felt frightened, and called a neighbour.

Walter Daniels, stockbroker, who was called by the last witness, stated that he found Mr Scudamore stretched on his back in the kitchen quite dead. He looked as though he had fallen heavily.

A boy who delivered milk at Castlenau-mansions stated that he saw deceased on Tuesday, the 1st inst., but when he knocked at the door on Wednesday he got no reply.

Dr. Joseph James explained that there were no marks of violence or of a fall on the body. Death was due to syncope caused by fatty degeneration of the heart.

The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence.

"OTHELLO" AT THE COURT.

Mr Charles Fry's representations of Shakespeare, governed as they are by artistic care and reverence, command a public of their own—a studious public not wanting a pageant, and content with the beauty of the text without the aid of scenic art. In the past he has won a high reputation for sound and conscientious work, both as an actor and elocutionist, and he has the faculty of instilling his own enthusiasm into those associated with him. At any rate, to the artistic single-mindedness of his company we may set down the success on Saturday afternoon of the performance of Othello at the Court Theatre. The tragedy was given in a condensed form on a curtained stage, and though no attempt was made at illusion yet the text was followed with close attention by a highly intelligent and critical audience. The cutting had been done with care, and nothing of real importance to the understanding of the play was left out. It has been well said that the temperament of an actor is at once his weakness and his strength, and the truth of this aphorism is never more apparent than in Shakespearian impersonations. Mr F. H. Macey, the Othello of the afternoon, endeavoured to overcome his Anglo-Saxon coolness and to simulate the southern warmth of nature that belongs by right to the Moor, but the passion was never quite convincing and the fury attempted was sound signifying little. In depicting the affection of Othello, however, Mr Macey was more successful, and we were very carefully informed both by gesture play and intonation of the rapid progress of jealousy in the distracted warrior's mind. We liked Mr Macey best in the scene where Othello battles with doubt. If we never had the tempest of passion presented to us, still there was much to commend in the reading. Miss Olive Kennett's emotional tenderness went a long way towards her ingratiation with Saturday afternoon's audience. She at once charmed the house by her gentle appeal before the Senate, and a note of penetrative pathos ever accompanied the distress of Desdemona at her lord's displeasure. Mr Charles Fry was bold, unflinching, and cool as Iago, and had none of the apparent benevolence with which the rôle has been endowed by some actors. There was but little that was courtierlike or catlike in his rendering, the deceit practised on Othello being all the more effective, perhaps, because of this Iago's blunt outspokenness. Nevertheless in the scenes of suggestion there was some subtlety in the acting of "the ancient," and after the scene of violence with Othello, Mr Fry struck the right note of injured dignity. Miss Frances Sykes's excellent voice and purity of enunciation were advantageously employed in the part of Emilia; and to the powerful scene with Othello and Iago at the close of the play, she gave considerable power and passion. Miss Sykes is wanting in grace of movement, but her intelligence and sensibility were conspicuous. Mr Patrick Munro made a manly Cassio, and his drunken scene was very creditably managed. The dignity and stateliness of the Duke were well suggested by Mr Ernest Beharold, Mr Arthur Broughton was a capable Brabantio, Mr Stanley Leverton a satisfactory Lodovico, and Mr W. J. R. Cane an acceptable Roderigo. The music to the "Willow Song," sung by Desdemona, was specially composed by Arthur Fox, and the selections between the divisions of the play were played by members of the London Academy of Music orchestra, under the direction of Mr Ernest C. Lawrence. The costumes were designed by Mdlle. Lemle.

"THE LADY BURGLAR."

A New Comedy, in One Act, by Charles H. E. Brookfield, Produced for the First Time in the London District at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, on Monday, Nov. 7.

Darcy Fitzherbert, K.C. ... Mr JAMES WELCH
Honora Macfarland, B.A. ... Miss AUDREY FORD

Mr Charles Brookfield's comedy, which was produced at the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, last week, was presented to a Kingston audience at the Royal County Theatre on Monday night, and again on Wednesday evening. It is a welcome addition to the host of curtain-raisers that have been given to the world and have survived the test of scrutiny. It is novel in conception, and the story, a pretty and amusing one, is told in language that is often graceful and polished.

The lady burglar is, however, a fancy that, as the author presents her, happily does not exist. We are familiar with the lower class female who takes to Bill Sykes' trade as a profession, but have not yet come across a refined and educated young miss, and one who has taken her B.A. at Cambridge, who prefers the thorny paths of the cracksman for that of the many honourable callings now open to her sex. But Miss Honora Macfarland is no ordinary woman. She has ideas of her own, and though they are not uncommon to both sexes, few, if any, of her sex have yet applied them in the same way. At Cambridge she studied political economy, and came to the conclusion that no one had any private ownership in property over a certain sum. This led her to think that she had as much right as anybody else to whatever property anyone possessed over that sum, and that she had a right to take it, even if the taking of it necessitated the forcing of locks, bolts, and bars. And so, when at a ball one night she danced with a young barrister named Darcy Fitzherbert, she learnt that he was not going to return to his rooms until one o'clock in the morning, she determined to take advantage of his absence to burgle his premises. She is therefore, discovered breaking into the rooms, lantern in hand, but attired in evening dress. She is not a very experienced worker, however, for she searches the most unlikely places, leaving the most likely alone, from a sense of fear and modesty will not enter a bedroom, and when she comes across an interesting book sits down to carefully read it. Of course, the barrister unexpectedly returns, and, finding her thus engaged, fondly imagines that the visit, though a little indiscreet, was due to the huge impression he had made upon her at the dance; but the lady quickly disabuses him of the idea, and, after some hesitation, naïvely declares to him the real object of her presence. There is a great deal of good-humoured banter on the part of both, but the cautious barrister takes the precaution to handcuff his fair visitor whilst he searches the house to see how much spoil is missing. He quickly discovers, however, that his charming companion is more of a burglar in theory than in practice, and so he decides to let her go, but before she leaves there is a mutual understanding that they will meet again, and that the friendship begun at the dance will ripen into a more tender association.

Mr Welch made an admirable Darcy Fitzherbert, his dry mannerism adding much to the humour of the production, and Miss Ford gave a charming interpretation of the lady burglar.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice of Miss Mischief, produced last week, you mention my name as playing Graf Von Ahrensheimen as Miss Reichenberg. It should have been, yours faithfully, ROZA REICHENBERG. 20, Caroline-place, Bayswater, Nov. 8, 1904.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT-GARDEN.

On Tuesday night an opera was produced at Covent-garden which may be said faithfully to represent the modern music of Italy, and the composer, although not yet forty years of age, is recognised as one of the rising lights of Italian musical art. He was a student in the Naples Conservatoire, and is a professor in the Florence Royal Academy, and, besides the opera produced on Tuesday, he has written three other operas, Adriana Lecouvreur being first heard at Milan in 1902. It has since been given in several Continental and American theatres, and with considerable success. It remains to be seen whether the composer, Signor Cilèa, will be accepted in this country with Leoncavallo, Puccini, and Mascagni, but one thing is certain, Signor Cilèa is a musician of distinct merit, and his work has been presented at the Royal Opera in such a manner as to do the composer justice. It had been announced on Saturday last, but the need of further rehearsal caused its postponement until Tuesday, when the representation proved entirely satisfactory. Scribe and Legouve's play, Adrienne Lecouvreur, is a striking and powerful drama, but it must be confessed Signor Colautti has had all his work to do in transforming the subject into an operatic libretto. One of the few composers who have been fortunate in obtaining a good libretto out of a popular play was the late Sir Julius Benedict, whose Lily of Killarney is certainly an effective setting of The Colleen Bawn. But Adrienne Lecouvreur is too full of side issues, has too much dialogue, and is altogether too complicated for musical setting. We take it for granted that the play is generally known, otherwise we fear the operatic audience would have but a vague idea of the story and the motives influencing the various characters. A brief allusion to the incidents of the play may serve the purpose of marking the principal points in the music. The work opens in the green room of the Comédie-Française in 1730. The time is just before a performance, and Michonnet is bustling about among the actors and actresses helping them to get ready for the rise of the curtain. The composer has treated this scene with much brilliancy, and the music has an agreeable sparkle in keeping with the situation. Presently two important guests appear—the Prince De Bouillon and the Abbé De Chazeuil—who are very friendly to the performers. Adrienne is much flattered, but responds in a melody, "The humble handmaid of glorious art am I." It is evidently a special night, and the famous Duclos is to appear. Adrienne is writing a letter which the Prince, her lover, is anxious to obtain, as he fancies he may find in it an excuse for breaking off with her. Adrienne has been confessing to Michonnet her affection for a young officer, in reality Maurice of Saxony, and Adrienne requests that influence may be exercised for the supposed officer at the Court of Saxony. The second act takes place at Prince De Bouillon's villa, where we see the Princess, his wife, disturbed by jealousy. She sings "Oh! the bitterness of joy!" and the second phrase is "Ah! will he come?" This is one of the most pleasing airs in the opera. The lady is anticipating a visit from Maurice, who eventually comes, but, to the lady's chagrin, admits that he loves another, and as the Prince and the Abbé are returning she conceals herself. The Prince has invited the company of the Comédie-Française, and, of course, Adrienne is present and learns for the first time that Maurice is the Count of Saxony. The third act opens with a reception by the Princess and the performance of a ballet entitled "The Judgment of Paris." Here the composer has imitated with considerable success the music of the old-fashioned French ballets. Adrienne, being asked to recite, chooses a passage from Phèdre, in which the lines occur—

> I am not as these bold-faced women here
> Who calmly revel in their deep disgrace,
> Without a blush upon their brazen cheeks.

She delivers the lines looking straight at the Princess. Meanwhile, the Princess has procured some poison from her husband's laboratory, and by her looks it seems clear that she intends to use it. The fourth act is introduced by an intermezzo so pleasing that it was enthusiastically encored. Michonnet tries to comfort Adrienne, who receives presents from the company on the occasion of her birthday. She learns that Michonnet has sent for Maurice, who, when he arrives, sings a love duet with Adrienne, but a poisoned flower presented to the heroine leads to her delirium and death. This duet has great beauty, and may be regarded as the gem of the opera. Signor Cilèa throughout proves himself no ordinary musician. His harmonies are pure and unforced, and his melodies, if not always original, are never wanting in grace and fluency, and frequently they are broad, flowing, and effective. Some of the concerted music is also very excellent, and the writing for the orchestra is full of ingenious passages. The chorus has not very much share in the opera, but it is always bright, animated, and appropriate. Madame Giachetti was most successful as the heroine. Her vocal skill was complete in all the music of the character of Adrienne, and her acting displayed great refinement and delicacy. Madame Giachetti possessed expression and pathos. Madame De Cisneros proved an adequate Princess De Bouillon, and was full of intelligence. As Maurice Signor Anselmi made the most of the graceful and pathetic music. In the last act Signor Anselmi and Madame Giachetti especially distinguished themselves, Signor Fornari, Signor Paroli, and Signor Sammarco were efficient, and Signor Campanini conducted with great care and zeal. An old favourite at Covent-garden, Signor Ancona, was announced in Faust on Thursday, and La Tosca on Monday next as the Baron Scarpia.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The concert of Friday, Nov. 4, opened with the Tragic Overture of Brahm, a work full of dramatic suggestions. Conducted with great spirit by Sir Charles Stanford and played with excellent effect by the students the result was in every way satisfactory. Mr Greeves Johnson sang "Hiawatha's Vision," by S. Coleridge-Taylor, in an agreeable manner. Mr Greeves Johnson was greatly applauded. The performance of Dr. Joachim's Variations for Violin in E minor by Miss Vera Warwick Evans was one of those striking displays of talent that only occur at rare intervals, and then only when the soloist is possessed of exceptional gifts. Knowing the extreme difficulty of the variations written in Dr. Joachim's most elaborate style we can fully appreciate the extraordinary skill of Miss Evans, whose pure tone, correct intonation, brilliant executior, and refined style marked her as one of the most promising students of the Royal College. Miss Evans had an overwhelming reception, and it was not more decided than it was merited. Some quartets for voices and orchestra, by F. C. S. Carey, seem to have been inspired by Brahms. They were sung by Miss Beatrice Dunn, Miss Phyllis Lett, and Messrs Ben Ivor Davies and Greeves Johnson. There is some freshness and melodic grace in the composition, but a more direct purpose and a broader style are requisite in such music. In the "Liebes Leider Waltzes" there is never any doubt as to the composer's intention, and the young musician who follows so great a master had better come to a decision at once as to the passages most desirable to take as a model. There is no harm in having an ideal. All the great composers have followed in other footsteps until they have found a path of their own. Let F. C. S. Carey persevere, and that path will probably be found. The concert concluded with the noble Symphony in C Major, by Schubert, a work that approaches nearer to Beethoven than any other modern musician has succeeded in doing. The symphony is truly a great work, and the Royal College orchestra did it justice.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

"Four Plays" by Laurence Alma-Tadema, is a delightful book that has appeared this month, published by "the Green Sheaf" firm, the edition being limited to 500 copies, of which 100 are reserved for private circulation. The authoress is a daughter of Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema, R.A., and is better known as a poetess than a playwright. Madame Liza Lehmann made use of some of her charming verses in the popular song cycle called "The Daisy Chain." One of Miss Alma Tadema's one-act plays, The Unseen Helmsman, was produced by the Stage Society some time ago, with Miss Edyth Olive in the chief part.

Mr Willard's American season will commence at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, on Monday, Jan. 30, with a production of the late Wilson Barrett's Lucky Durham. Mr Willard will also take with him Mr Louis N. Parker's version of M. Capus's La Chatelaine, entitled The Optimist, which, although successfully played elsewhere by Mr Willard in America has not yet been seen in New York or Boston, and also a dramatisation by Leon M. Lion of Tom Gallon's Dicky Monteith.

Mr C. I. Coltson, the energetic secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, in his annual report, pays a high tribute to those theatre managers who have levied a small tax in aid of the funds on the ever increasing number of "dead-heads" who beseige every theatre. At Mr Robert Arthur's Kennington theatre his enegertic manager, Mr Harold Entwistle is keen on demanding this toll; and in proof of how much good can be done by only asking the small sum of 2d. from each applicant Mr Harold Entwistle has sent to the Actors' Benevolent Fund within the last six months the substantial amount of £26. This, at 2d. per head, shows that over 3 000 "dead-heads" have obtained free admission at Kennington alone.

The Queen has taken ten guinea tickets for the reception which is being held by Mrs George Alexander, Mrs Kendal, Mrs Beerbohm Tree, Mrs Cyril Maude, and Miss Alice Nielsen at the St. James's Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 22, in aid of the Samaritan Hospital for Women.

Mr W. Jacobs and Mr Louis N. Parker, the collaborators in the New Theatre play, Beauty and the Barge, were the principal guests at a dinner given by the Authors' Club, at the club in Whitehall-court on Monday night. Mr Parker, in responding to the toast of his health, said that collaboration, like poverty, with which it had much in common, made strange bedfellows. It had been his privilege to collaborate at different times with men of varied talents, not always with that financial success which the combination seemed to promise, but always with pleasure to himself and the acquisition of friendships. Most of the failures were, in his opinion, quite unjustified by the quality of the plays. His own failures were more than compensated for by such an evening as that. Mr Jacobs, in the course of a humorous reply, said that the only materials necessary for the production of a successful play were pen, ink, and paper and Mr Parker.

Miss Fanny Wentworth introduced a new song on "bridge" into her musical sketch at Wyndham's Theatre this week. Well known as she is as a drawing-room entertainer, Miss Wentworth won her first applause from an audience as a professional pianiste, having made her début when a very young girl at the Promenade Concerts in the days of Sir Julius Benedict — who was her master — and Rivière. She went on the stage a little later, and played in Sir then Mr) Charles Wyndham's company, her first part being Rebecca in Pink Dominos. Miss Wentworth enjoys the reflected glory of having spoken her first lines as an actress on the stage where Sir Henry Irving made his first appearance, at Sunderland, and her birthday happens to fall on the same day as Sir Henry's—Feb. 6—the year, it is needless to say, being considerably later. After an extensive tour with Sir Charles Wyndham, Miss Wentworth left him to make another "first appearance," this time as the prima donna of comic opera. Her performance of Serpolette in Les Cloches de Corneville was followed by a visit to America, where she toured and played a stock season in Montreal, ten leading parts in ten weeks. She returned to England for The Old Guard, Pepita and other comic operas.

Miss Fanny Wentworth's first appearance at the Palace Theatre, in her present style of work, was in the summer of 1894, her trial turn being followed by a fortnight's engagement, and the fortnight extending to a run of eight months. She writes many of her own songs, a mock-serious ditty, called "The Hippopotamus and the Flea" being perhaps the best. She is an enthusiastic lover of music, and possesses many interesting souvenirs of her long tours in all parts of the world. Miss Wentworth's latest acquisition is a large collie. His name is Norval, and he arrived at Euston Station—presumably from the Grampian Hills—on a very wet morning last week. His new mistress intended to take him to his new home in a cab, but Norval did not approve of the plan, and as the combined efforts of three porters failed to get him into a four-wheeler, she determined to walk, although the rain was pouring in torrents. It was not an easy undertaking, for Norval was inclined to resist, but by the time they reached Miss Wentworth's house he evidently made up his mind that she was worthy of trust. He showed his affection by suddenly placing his great paws on her shoulders and covering her with mud.

Miss Cecilia Loftus cables to us as follows:—"Kindly publish emphatic denial of my engagement to Mr William Courtenay. The statement is absolutely without foundation."

Mr Edward Terry concluded his successful visit to Belfast on Saturday last, when You Never Know was presented, Mr Terry sustaining the part of Willoughby Croom with great success. At the conclusion, in response to demands for a speech, Mr Terry appeared and said:—"My dear friends, you will allow me to perform a very pleasing function, and to thank you from the bottom of my heart for the kindly way in which you have always received my efforts to amuse you in dear old Belfast, and when I say dear old Belfast' it is because it was my home, and therefore very dear to me. I thank you very much, more than I can express at this hour of the evening, for the very kindly way in which you have received me and always do receive me. It appears to me that when I come to Belfast I can always go somewhere else, and I am going to make a short trip across to the United States. Hitherto I have gone further afield—to India and Australia and as near as I can get to the North Pole, but this time I am going to see our American cousins, and I am sure I shall have a very successful trip there accompanied with your good wishes. I am sure you are hoping, as I am, that we will meet again next year still in health, and that I shall be able to give you as much gratification then as I think I have for some years past. When one arrives at nearly the prime of life, as I have, people become disgracefully reminiscent. In every part of the world I am always meeting people who will tell me how many years ago they saw me. It is very gratifying more than sympathetic—that is, if the fair sex are not present. We always wish to pass as youngsters, but unfortunately we cannot do that always. I can only say—I express myself very imperfectly owing to throat trouble—but I thank you very, very heartily, very, very deeply. I shall always look forward, as I have done for many years, to my visit to Belfast, and I am sure I shall always be received with the same kindly, affectionate greeting.

Mr Arthur Bourchier has settled that when Christmas comes The Walls of Jericho will be played as usual every night; but the matinées will be suspended for a few weeks until the children's holidays are over to make room for the entertainment for them, which this year will consist of a one-act play, written by Tom Gallon, which will probably be called Jane's Christmas Party, and an adaptation by Rutland Barrington of the two favourite "Dumpy Books" entitled Little Black Sambo and Little White Barbara, with music by Wilfred Bendall and Frederick Rosse, and additional numbers by Rutland Barrington and Milton Wellings. Miss Nellie Bowman will appear in both plays as the heroine of one and the hero of the other. Miss Madge Titheradge will be the principal girl in the musical piece; Miss Iris Hawkins will represent Little White Barbara; and Mr Bourchier has also engaged Mr Frank Lawton.

Mr Stead in the November number of the Review of Reviews is very severe in his criticism of Mr Pinero's play A Wife Without a Smile. "To be made to laugh at such a spectacle as that which Mr Pinero presents at Wyndham's Theatre is," says Mr Stead, "humiliating to one's self-respect. You feel you have been made an accomplice to an insufferable affront to your higher nature. Such a play explains and goes far to justify the attitude of the Puritan to stage plays. If all plays were like Mr Pinero's plays, then the Puritans were right. It is as inhuman a performance as was the old practice of turning out some poor natural to display his witless inanity and naked obscenity for the amusement of carousers after dinner. At first I was inclined to regard it as a mere Punch and Judy show of extravagant and farcical nonsense. It is called a comedy in disguise. It would be better described as a tragedy disguised as a roaring farce."

Mr Stead then describes the feature of the play, including the "erotometer," or doll jerked by a piece of string, remarking: "The smart set may be rotten; but surely it cannot be quite so inane, quite so imbecile as these mimes and buffoons who change wives as they change gloves, and have as much sense of morals as the small, gilded flies which hover over a stagnant pool. And if so be that true manhood and pure womanhood have so utterly gone by the board as these creatures appear to testify, then surely it is a tragedy too deep for tears, not a farce for mortal men to laugh and snigger over. That were worthier fiends." Assuming that the sniggerers were right, Mr Stead says the "erotometer" ought to have been suppressed by the police as an outrage on public decency. He concludes: "Mr Pinero may be a very clever man, but his new play would only get its deserts if it were burned by the common hangman."

Miss May Irwin, the wealthy United States actress, has announced her intention of bequeathing $100,000 as the nucleus of a fund for starting an American national theatre of dramatic art. It is stated, however, that the legacy will be encumbered by so many provisos that much difficulty is anticipated in carrying out the testatrix's intentions.

Mrs Brown-Potter will play the part of Julie, in A Man's Shadow, when that drama is performed at Windsor Castle on Thursday, Nov. 17. The cast will also include, besides Mr Tree, Mr James Fernandez, Mr Lionel Brough, Mr E. M. Robson, Mr Gerald Du Maurier, Mr Charles G. Allan, Mr Gayer Mackay, Mr F. Percival Stevens, Mr Robb Harwood, Mrs Tree, Miss Geraldine Wilson, and Miss Kate Cutler.

Mr E. Harcourt Williams, who is to play Romeo to Miss Margaret Halstan's Juliet in Mr Arthur Flanagan's Shakespearian revival at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, concludes a two years' engagement with Miss Ellen Terry on Dec. 6. His latest part is Eric, in Eriksson's Wife, Mr Christopher St. John's fine little one-act play, produced by Miss Terry at Wolverhampton a few days ago. He has also appeared as Antonio and Gratiano in The Merchant of Venice, Wolf in Miss Clo Graves's comedy, The Mistress of the Robes, Barend in The Good Hope, and Alexander in Nance Oldfield. The last-named is a part that Miss Terry declares has always brought luck to its portrayer. Mr Harcourt Williams has been very successful as a producer of pastoral plays, and he was responsible some few years ago for a clever attempt to stage an adaptation of Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice" With youth, a melodious voice, and a particularly earnest and convincing manner to aid him, the advent of the new Romeo is full of promise.

Mr Hayden Coffin is about to leave his position in The Cingalee at Daly's Theatre, where he now has been appearing for seven years. He will take up Mr Lawrence Rea's part in Veronique at the Apollo, and will be a very valuable addition to the cast of that dainty "opera comique."

We are glad to find that such an intellectual writer as Mr Arthur Symons shares our scepticism as to the establishment of an endowed theatre. He writes:—"I could not help thinking that the talk which has lately been heard of a State-endowed theatre and the general support and encouragement of the drama was, after all, a little beside the question. It is useless to support a drama which no one will come to see. Is it possible that the public which buys plays when they are printed—and no play is more than half alive in print—has no curiosity to see these very plays in the form in which they were first created, and to which they must always be longing to return Well, if not, let there be no more talk of supporting a drama which is not wanted."

The play Marriage, by Brandon Thomas and Henry Keeling, will be performed in aid of "Maurice Hostel," Hoxton, on the 23rd and 24th inst. The cast will include the Hon. George Goschen. The stage-manager will be Lieutenant-Colonel V. Mellor.

Mr Percival Craig, who responded to the toast of "The Drama," and took an active part at the Sunderland reception to Sir Henry Irving recently, has received from him a handsome case containing Sir Henry's photograph, which is inscribed "Percival Craig from Henry Irving; with every good wish, 1904."

Mr. R. Vernon Harcourt, who is attached to the Foreign Office, and who is a son of the late Sir William Harcourt, has written a play which he calls An Angel Unawares. The rights have been secured by Miss Fanny Brough, who will produce it in London when she returns from America. The "Angel Unawares" is a woman from New York, who reconciles two young lovers.

Mr Henry Neville's pleasant association with Mr Percy and Miss Emma Hutchison, extending over six years, with The Liars, Mrs Dane's Defence, Mrs Gorringe's Necklace, Two Orphans, and Ticket-of-Leave Man, will be broken after Christmas, as Mr Neville is engaged by Mr Beerbohm Tree for his forthcoming grand production of Much Ado About Nothing. Mr Neville's return to the London boards will be warmly welcomed by the many admirers of this ripe and experienced actor.

Mr Charles Manners, the world's provider of English opera, will be gratified to learn that Messrs Wheeler report from South Africa that the Moody-Manners opera company has opened at Durban, scoring a great success, and are doing big business. The Gaiety company in South Africa are playing their farewell week in Africa, where they finish on Saturday, Nov. 12, and sail for England on the 16th, due about Dec. 3.

Mrs Alfred Lyttelton, the wife of the Colonial Secretary, has collaborated with Lady Betty Balfour in a new comedy satirising the present craze for physical culture. Lady Betty Balfour is the wife of Mr Gerald Balfour, and the sister-in-law of the Premier. She is the daughter of the first Earl of Lytton, who was the only son of Bulwer Lytton, the famous novelist.

Mr G. S. Titheradge, who plays "her family solicitor," in The Freedom of Suzanne, to be produced on Tuesday at the Criterion, was one of the most popular actors in Australia before he came to London. He is a member of the Royal Horticultural Society, and takes a keen interest in flower growing, daffodils being his special delight. It will be remembered that Mr Titheradge made a great success as Grierson, in Mr H. V. Esmond's piece Grierson's Way. He was the original Messenger of A Message from Mars.

Mr Frederic Topham, who has had charge of the Ben Greet Academy of Acting during Mr Greet's absence in America, is to play George W. Larcombe, the hero of The Coming Race, at St. George's Hall. Larcombe is a typical American of modern times, the love interest of the play being founded on the affection he inspires in the Princess Zee of the coming race. Mr Topham's engagement with Mr Maskelyne will not affect his position at the Acting Academy in Bedford-street.

Mr Haddon Chambers's play, The Tyranny of Tears, has made an excellent impression, in the form of an adaptation into German, upon the Berlin critics and public, and is being given three or four times a week. It came in the light of a novelty, and the audience, says our correspondent, would have evidently liked to call the author and applaud him had it been possible.

Mrs Hayden Coffin is arranging an afternoon recital, at the Empress Rooms, Royal Palace Hotel, Kensington, on the 24th inst., to raise funds for starting a "Horse Ambulance" in Kensington. Amongst those who have promised their assistance are Miss Isabel Jay, Mr Sydney Valentine, Miss Ada and Miss Lilian Davies, Mr George Giddens, Miss Janet Duff, Mr Maurice Farkoa, Mr Hugo Heinz, Miss Toms, Mr J. Blackley, and Mr Hayden Coffin.

Mr J. T. Grein will deliver an address to the O.P. Club at the Criterion, on Sunday, on "Some things in general and something in particular." The president, Mr Algernon L. Collins, will take the chair.

Mr G. M. Montanini, the manager of A Traitor Prince company, who was injured by the sudden explosion of a pistol last week, has hopes that his injured hand will soon be well again, as the improvement made was satisfactory.

Mr Fred Brown, the courteous and attentive acting-manager of the Pavilion Theatre, Mile-end, is to be accorded, by permission of the directors, a well-deserved benefit on Thursday next. As Mr Brown's association with the Pavilion extends over a period of thirty years, it is needless to say that he has a rare fund of experience to draw from, and his reminiscences after such a long connection are a source of unfailing interest. That Mr Brown is popular is evidenced by the fact that the élite of the music hall profession have offered their services on this occasion, which bids fair to be a great night at the "Drury-lane of the East."

In consequence of the indisposition of Miss Marion Denvil, on Saturday last, Miss Kate Leslie at a very short notice, undertook the part of Ethel Kingston in The English Rose at the Pavilion Theatre, and gave a very excellent performance. Miss Denvil being still unwell this week, the part of Mary Andrews in Woman and Wine is being played by Miss Daisy Soudamore and Janet Marlow by Miss Kate Leslie.—Miss Dorothy Green, who has been playing leads with Mr F. R. Benson's North company for the past year, has now been engaged by him for his West Indian tour to play Juliet, Rosalind, Ophelia, Lady Teazle, and Queen Elizabeth.—Miss Violet Harley, who joined the Hutchison companies nearly five years ago for the part of Pamela Beechinor, the enfant terrible in The Manœuvres of Jane, is now playing the rôle of Angela Muir (Miss Annie Hughes' original part), in A Country Mouse.

Miss Leah Marlborough returned from South Africa by r.s. Quelph, after a most successful season. She is engaged for an important tour, starting in January next.

Mr William Mollison's production of the American adaptation of Ian M'Laren's novel, "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush," will take place at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, on April 3, with Mr Mollison in the leading character.

The case of "Holz v. Storey" was before his Honour, Judge Woodfall, in the Westminster County-court on the 4th inst., and was an application by Mr Fred Storey, the actor, to set aside a judgment on the ground that he was never served with the summons. After hearing the evidence of the applicant, his Honour said the judgment must be set aside and a new trial given.

Mr Norman V. Norman has just concluded a tour in Ireland, having visited every principal city there with great success. On Monday, Oct. 31, Mr Norman gave a performance at Clonmel of David Garrick by request, the audience including Her Grace the Duchess of St. Albans, the Marquis of Ormonde, Lord and Lady Desart, and Lady Constance Butler.

We are glad to announce that the Henry Crisp Fund is increasing each week. Nearly every actor of eminence has contributed to the good round sum which will be handed over to the unfortunate blind actor. If the managers of the touring companies will kindly send in any amounts they have collected from the members of their companies, we shall be glad to announce the subscriptions in our next issue.

Miss Stella Gastelle, who is scoring a success as Amorelle on tour, is a Sunderland girl, educated abroad, and studied singing in France and Germany, one of her teachers being Madame Marchesi, who often paid her the compliment of asking her to sing before other pupils, for the famous teacher considered her "a most talented artiste." Miss Gastelle made her début at the Prince of Wales Theatre. She sang her first song on an eventful morning when all the members of the company were gathered upon the stage for a rehearsal. It was a great ordeal for the young beginner, but she is proud of the fact that her first English applause—she had already sung on the Continent—should come from an audience of her fellow artists.

Miss Gastelle has appeared several times as the hero or heroine of pantomime Newcastle being the first place where she made a hit in a Christmas annual. At Liverpool, a couple of years later, she was awarded a pantomime cake of noble proportions as the most popular performer in Liverpool pantomimes, heading the poll by a majority of over a thousand votes. Miss Gastelle is an enthusiastic golfer, she is fond of riding, and can drive her own motor.

The incidental music for the forthcoming performances of Aglavaine and Selysette at the Court has been composed by Mr Donald Tovey. The orchestra which will consist of string instruments only, will be under the direction of Mr Theodore Stier. The cast of the play will include Miss Edyth Olive, Miss Thyrza Norman, Miss Marion Parr, Miss Florence Farr, and Mr Walter Hampden.

A complimentary matinée for the benefit of Mrs Edmund Phelps will take place at His Majesty's Theatre on Friday, the 25th inst. Mr H. Beerbohm Tree has very kindly lent the house, and will appear in The Man That Was Mr Cyril Maude, Mr Sydney Valentine, Mr Wilfred Fraser, and Miss Mary Rorke will revive The Monkey's Paw, by W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker; Mr Arthur Bourchier will appear with Miss Jessie Bateman and company in A Lesson in Harmony; and Mr George Alexander will contribute to the entertainment, which will include a scene from The Orchid. Mr Maurice Farkoa will sing, and Mr Arthur Williams, Mr Huntley Wright, Miss Isabel Jay, Miss Eva Moore, and Miss Constance Collier have kindly consented to assist.

Mr George Alexander will revive at the St. James's Theatre on Saturday evening next Lady Windermere's Fan, with a cast including Mr Ben Webster, Mr C. Aubrey Smith (by arrangement with Mr Charles Frohman), Mr Sydney Brough, Mr A. Vane Tempest, Mr Leslie Faber, Mr Selwyn Seymour, Mr Murray Carrington, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Fanny Coleman, Miss Pauline French, Miss Eileen Lewis, Miss Elinor Aickin, Miss Corisande Hamilton, Miss Maud Harcourt, and Miss Marion Terry.

Miss Marie Tempest's reappearance at the Criterion Theatre on Tuesday, after more than a year's absence, will be warmly welcomed by her many admirers. In the cast of Mr Cosmo Gordon Lennox's new play, The Freedom of Suzanne, are, besides Miss Tempest, Mr Allan Aynesworth, Mr Charles Sugden, Mr G. S. Titheradge, Mr E. Holman Clark, Mr C. M. Hallard, Mr A. E. Matthews, Mr Horton Cooper, Miss Ada Ferrar, Miss Alice Beet, Miss Beatrice Beckley, Miss Florence Sinclair, Miss Alice Mansfield, Mr Leonard Calvert, Mr Edward Y. Rae, and Mr E. Keith-Williams.

The Playgoers' Club has arranged a concert for Sunday, Dec. 4, at His Majesty's Theatre, by kind permission of Mr Beerbohm Tree, in aid of the Playgoers' Club Pantomime Fund for Poor Children. The club is making arrangements to take from fifteen to twenty thousand children to the pantomime in the coming season, and each child will be well fed before the performance.

Herr Hans Andresen, who is cast for the principal part in Finsame Menschen, to be produced at the Great Queen-street Theatre on Monday, was a prominent member of the German company that appeared at St. George's Hall about four years ago. He is the son of a well-known sculptor, and the husband of Fräulein Elsa Gardemann, who completely won the hearts of her English brother and sister players at a professional matinée given by the German company at the Lyceum, by her performance of the usually unimportant character of Madle, in Magda. She was equally good in bigger parts, but has not appeared upon the stage for a considerable time.

An important alteration in the ending of a play after it has been produced is not often made; but Mr James Bernard Fagan, the clever author of the powerful play, The Prayer of the Sword, now running at the Adelphi, has been induced to bring his drama to a conclusion upon the happy note in place of the tragic one. No doubt this is in accord with the desire of the majority of playgoers who find it decidedly depressing to witness a play that ends sadly. Those who saw The Prayer of the Sword in its original form will remember that the Princess, interposing to save her lover from his enemy Scorla, received a scratch from a poisoned dagger and so died, the warrior-priest, who was to have married her, returning to his monastery. Now, however, all this is changed. Scorla makes his attempt on Andrea, Ilaria checks the stroke, and the dagger is buried in the breast of the would-be assassin. He dies, as in the original version, but at the last he produces a letter from the Papal Envoy recalling the excommunication, and bidding Andrea accompany him to Rome, where, it is implied, the Pope will acknowledge the "miracle" which drew the young monk from his cloister. The acting of Miss Lily Brayton, Mr Oscar Asche, and their companions continues to reach a high level of excellence, and it is a performance that should certainly not be missed.

Mr Charles Fry's Shakespearian company, which opened its eleventh season at the Court Theatre on Saturday, will give a matinée to-day of Love's Labours Lost, and one on Saturday next of King Henry VIII. The performance will be given in costume, and on a draped stage.

Mr Frederick Melville's new play, The Ugliest Woman on Earth, which will be produced at the Terriss Theatre on Monday, is in four acts and ten scenes. The first and last scenes are laid in Naples, and one of the acts occurs aboard a steamer in Tilbury Docks. The title-rôle will be created by Miss Henrietta Watson, and the company will include Misses Beatrix De Burgh, Margaret Watson, and Nellie Jackson, Messrs Newman Maurice, Stanley Bedwell, Henry St. Leger, Fred De Vere, and Leyton Cancellor. The scenery has been specially designed and painted by Messrs George Tweedell, F. B. Muller, and Richard Douglas.

"Peggy Machree," the new musical play in three acts, which was successfully produced at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Great Grimsby, on Monday, will proceed for a short provincial tour, touching Newcastle and Liverpool, and finishing at Edinburgh. It will then, early in January, be produced at a West-end theatre. Mr Denis O'Sullivan, the well-known Irish baritone, has an excellent part in that of the hero, Barry Trevor, and Miss Marie Dainton is reaping additional laurels by her refined and graceful impersonation of Lady Margaret O'Driscoll, who poses as the peasant girl, Peggy Machree.

Miss Lillian Herries, who starred for a long time as leading lady with the late Mr Osmond Tearle, and won much praise for her portrayal of the sweet and gentle Desdemona, will not be able to play Desdemona at Mr Nettlefold's matinée of Othello at the Court Theatre on Wednesday next, in consequence of her present engagement being unexpectedly prolonged.

Robert Henry Cummings, a man of good education, who was sent to prison for six months last week for fraud, and was on Thursday charged at Clerkenwell Sessions with further offences, asked the detective who had exposed him to tell the Judge that whilst in prison he had written plays and had had them typed. The copies were handed to his Lordship, who said he could not assist the prisoner to get them printed. They showed, however, that he had done something to earn an honest living.

In the cast of Messrs Eustace Ponsonby and Frank Lambert's new comic opera Ladyland, which will be produced at the Avenue Theatre next month, will appear Miss Aline May, a vocalist who is now appearing at Covent-garden, and that old favourite, Miss Geraldine Ulmar. Mr E. Dagnall will be the stage-manager, and Mr François Celler the conductor.

An actor named James Percival Miller, aged forty, went to his lodgings in Birkdale, Southport, late on Saturday night last, and was soon afterwards found dead in a pool of blood in his bedroom, having inflicted a severe wound on the inside of his left elbow with a razor, severing the main artery. A verdict of suicide during temporary insanity was returned at the inquest on Monday.

"THE ACTORS' BENEVOLENT FUND."

"HOW TO HELP IT."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Your article with the above heading induces me once more to urge the general adoption of the one night's salary tax as the best, and indeed the only, way to secure a regular income to the Fund.

I am this week collecting as usual from my company the salary due to them on Thursday (the first Thursday in November), and am myself, also as usual, contributing my earnings for that evening; and if this plan were generally adopted, there would surely be no need for dinners, benefits, or other uncertain methods of obtaining funds.

It is a perfectly simple matter to introduce into such contract a clause giving the manager the right to deduct the salary due on one specified night of the year, and such a clause would from custom cease to be arbitrary in the same way that the clause "Salaries are not paid on Christmas Day &c.," is now taken for granted.

Unless some such system is adopted it seems to me that the Actors' Benevolent Fund will soon be a thing of the past, and the old stage door subscription will be upon us again with all its annoyances and its degradations. Already it is beginning to make itself felt.

It has been objected by some that "compulsory charity" is a thing to be avoided; but I would ask if the payment of the Poor Rate is in any sense of the word a "voluntary" payment, and if it is found as it undoubtedly has been found, that the prosperous members of our profession—and by "prosperous" I mean all those who are in engagements—are either indifferent or neglectful of their duty to the truly unfortunate people whom the Actors' Benevolent Fund is designed to assist, they ought to be reminded of it in the practical way adopted by the Government tax collector.

To those who are in receipt of small salaries would suggest that the contribution each year of a seventh part of two or three pounds is by no means a bad investment, as it enables one in time of trouble to ask for a gift or a loan from the Fund on the strength of being a "subscriber." In such a case the request is almost invariably granted if the funds permit, without further recommendation.

I was for some years a member of the committee of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, and can testify to the admirable work done by it. It is a fund to which all actors should subscribe. One never knows when one may want to borrow a few pounds from someone who will neither refuse nor charge interest for the loan; and such a tax as I suggest should, I think, be welcomed, because it gives one the right to ask for such a loan, apart from the fact that it should be the pride of all actors to maintain their benevolent institutions out of their own pockets, instead of continually begging the general public to assist them. Yours faithfully,

EDWARD S. WILLARD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—For many years I have advocated a system of giving one performance throughout the entire country on one particular night in aid of the Actors Benevolent Fund.

I have spoken to many provincial theatre managers in the country, and every one I have approached has expressed himself perfectly willing to agree to the idea—that a performance be given simultaneously throughout the entire three kingdoms, and every artiste, every manager, every author, every stageman, every bandsman, and every attendant should on this night give his services free.

By this means a huge sum would be collected each year, and the public would become interested, and instead of a subscription they would obtain value for their money.

It is easy to see how this scheme would work—the artist getting £20 per week would be giving £3 6s. 8d., the artist getting 30s. per week would be giving 5s.; the artist who was out of engagement would give nothing, so it would not be a hardship on anybody. Then there would be no necessity for dinners and appeals to the public.

It is a simple idea, and it would be compulsory on every actor and actress to subscribe.

The present Fund is subscribed to by managers and the public who are interested in the theatrical profession. Artists do not subscribe as fully as they should.

Yours faithfully, FREDK. MOUILLOT.
4, Broad-court-chambers, W.C., Nov. 9.

At the Great Queen-street Theatre on Monday Gerhart Hauptmann's drama Finsame Menschen will be played for the first time in London in its original form, with Mr Hans Andresen in the principal rôle. On Thursday Sein Prinzesschen will be given, preceded by a new one-act comedy Der Herrscher, written by Annie Neumann Hofer.

Messrs W. H. Glen and Co., the leading firm of music sellers and theatrical ticket agency in Melbourne, have suggested in a letter to the local papers, a shilling subscription to place a memorial over the grave of the late Mel B. Spurr. They are confident that his many Australian admirers will like to join in such a tribute. Mr Herbert Flemming, the business-manager of the late popular monologue entertainer, has received an immense number of letters and telegrams of condolence.

Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstei will be present, accompanied by Princess Victoria at the matinée of The Shah's New Suit at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 29, in aid of the Incorporated Soldiers' and Sailors' Help Society.

The Bandmann-Dallas opera company arrived in Jamaica on Oct. 19, after a record trip on the Elder Dempster new steamer Port Kingston. The voyage closed with a very pleasing little event. On the farewell dinner night each lady of the company was presented by Sir Alfred Jones with a handsome solid silver serviette ring engraved as follows:—"Souvenir of maiden voyage of Imperial Direct West India Mail Service R.M.S. Port Kingston, 1904."

Mr R. H. Douglass will read a paper entitled "Audiences From the Artists' Point of View," in the Victoria Hall of the Hotel Cecil, to the members of the Playgoers' Club on Sunday, the 20th inst. Mdlle. Adeline Genée will take the chair.

A meeting of the Exhibition Sub-Committee was held at the offices of the Scenic Artists' Association, 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, W.C., on Tuesday evening last, the 8th inst., when were present Mr J. Walter Hann (chairman), Sir Philip Burne-Jones, Bart., Messrs Edmund G. Banks, William Harford W. T. Hemsley, and W. B. Spong. It was resolved to hold the Scenic Artists' exhibition the week of Feb. 20, 1905, and to carry out this project it was arranged to call at an early date in December a general meeting of the members of the association to approve the scheme and to subscribe a guarantee fund. Sir Philip Burne-Jones, Bart., Mr J. Walter Hann, Mr W. T. Hemsley, and Mr William Harford intimated their intention to subscribe five guineas each to the guarantee fund. The next meeting of the Exhibition Committee will be held at the offices, at 7·30 on Monday next, to receive the report of negotiations pending for hire of a suitable hall.

Little Amy Manfree, who has made such a success in the part of Cissy Denver, in The Silver King company (South), has been re-engaged by Messrs Polini and Melford for Christmas and spring tours. Her mother, Miss Amy Wood, is also re-engaged for Tabitha Durden, in the same company.

SIR HENRY IRVING:
AN APPRECIATION.

BY BRAM STOKER.

To-day Sir Henry Irving will be presented with an address by the citizens of Sunderland, to which place he has returned to play an engagement after an interval of nearly half a century. Forty-eight years ago, when a youth of eighteen, Henry Irving made his first appearance as an actor on the boards of the old Sunderland theatre. His second and last visit is made this week, and his coming is treated as a civic event. Not merely as a player does he come, but as one who has won distinction not only for himself, but for his chosen art, and, in its own way, for his nation.

In his time of choice the stage was a very different matter from what it is now, and "going on" it was not unaccompanied by grave rigours. Macready, the towering stage figure of the immediate past—he had retired but a few years before—brought up his own children without having seen the interior of a playhouse. Nay, more; but a little longer than a generation, as the actuaries count it, had elapsed since the name of "player" had been omitted, rather than erased from the vagrancy statute. There were few of the inducements or rewards which are now offered to stage aspirants. Salaries were small, and all the usual discomforts of life followed an almost inadequate living wage. Social life as the young actor of to-day knows it was unknown.

If ever an actor was born to the stage Henry Irving was an instance. The stage was then, as it has ever been and is now, his world. Not only did he become a distinguished actor, but he founded a new school of acting. He it was who did away with the stilted styles of the setting forth of character and incident then in vogue, who threw the light of nature into the darkest corners of both tragedy and comedy, and in doing so increased the mordant powers of each. Those only who remember the storm of opinions that waged round his characterisation of Macbeth and Hamlet can understand to the full the extraordinary change he wrought. He believed that the highest phase of the art of acting was impersonation, and to this end he used all his powers. He went back to fact and history, and followed the author's meaning from his survey of the natural materials whence he drew his characters. The long gallery of the portraits which he set forth in an actor's medium are more than six hundred. Many of these were, of course, small parts played in his early days, but some are sufficiently great to mark not only an enormous energy but a seemingly endless resource. Quarrel how we will with Irving's work, find what fault we may with conception or representation—and for my own part I do not admit such cause of quarrel—we shall always find his characters interesting, self-centred, and consistent. And if opportunity be granted to us we shall find that he has thought over more deeply than we have every point which allows of discussion, and can defend his views.

HIS WORK AS MANAGER.

So long as he was an individual player he could not show whole plays as he thought they should be shown—with all parts complete and in harmony and proportion each with and to the other. It was for this reason, rather than from ambition or desire of gain, that he took over the cares of management. No one who is without the circle of the playhouse can have any conception of what the proper management of a theatre entails. The ceaseless labour, the multitude of petty cares and worries, the never-ending struggle after completeness. It is not sufficient to do the day's work, no matter what its bulk may be. To-morrow has to be thought of, and the day after, and the year after. And if the work undertaken is on grave lines, then difficulties are multiplied many times over. Periods of history have to be studied; at times literature and the records of art ransacked for guiding hints. Experts must be found who can undertake various branches of the work. Painters and musicians, costumiers, peruquiers, armourers, and the producers of that comprehensive list of items, otherwise unclassified, called "properties"—all these people have to be found and arranged with. Add to these troubles the cares of the exchequer and it can be imagined how great is the strain on one man. For over twenty years Irving did at the Lyceum Theatre what in many other countries is done by the nation, the municipality, or the Court. And his single-handed venture made his theatre as well as himself illustrious and known all over the civilised world. To the services of the stage he first sought for and gained the aid of great artists in the production of his plays. A quarter of a century since such men as now are glad and even proud to join in stage collaboration did not have such views. The opportunities which he gave and to which he invited them, the experience in a certain phase of their own craft, the bringing home of their ideas to a new circle of admirers—always grateful to artists—and even the substantial rewards which followed their labours have assured the continuance of such effort. Up to the "eighties" the artists who devoted themselves to the stage could alone be counted on by ambitious managements. But then came, at Irving's call, men who had already won great fame. Such men as Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, Sir Edward Burne-Jones, Seymour Lucas, Keeley Halswelle, and Charles Cattermole were willing to give their art, their lore, their experience, and their imagination to aid in great stage work.

In the matter of stage lighting every scenic artist of his time and of the future owed, and still owes, a debt of gratitude to Henry Irving. He first taught them how to produce soft effects with various-coloured lights thrown one through the other; to use together gaslight and limelight, both "open" and concentrated lights; to produce silhouette effect by turning down or up certain portions of the footlights, and so leaving the edges of the stage in comparatively dimmer light. All these things are nowadays matters of such general knowledge and general use that one is apt to lose sight of their beginning. But in the survey of an artistic lifetime it is but just to call to remembrance to whom they are due. Such musicians as Sir Arthur Sullivan, Sir Charles Villiers Stanford, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, Sir Julius Benedict, and Edward German were willing to subordinate their own art to assist in the completion of magnificent stage ideals. It is not too much to say that for twenty years the "productions"—to use the name applied to the ensemble plays—at the Lyceum were everywhere, in other countries as well as our own, regarded as exemplars of artistic excellence completeness, and taste. Certainly the public showed their appreciation of it. The records of Sir Henry Irving's management show a result of public patronage which has no parallel. The money test may be a low one, but at least it is found to be accurate, and it is thus valuable. Since 1878, when Henry Irving commenced management on his own account, the public of Great Britain and America had paid more than two and an eighth million pounds sterling to see him play. I can vouch for the figures, for the money has passed through my own hands.

Other instances of public appreciation of what he has done are not lacking. In many ways has come the recognition of the great position which he made and won for himself. Queen Victoria conferred on him the honour of knighthood. This was the first time that such an honour had been conferred on an actor—the first time that, in any country, State honour had been given to a player as such. When the French Government gave M. Got the Legion of Honour it was expressly stated that it was conferred on him as a professor. It remained for Britain to lead the way. Three great Universities, representing England, Scotland, and Ireland, have given him degrees—Dublin and Cambridge as Doctor of Literature, Glasgow as Doctor of Laws. He has received addresses from cities and universities, caskets and scrolls without number. He has been asked to give, and has given, lectures at the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge (where he gave the Reid Lecture), Dublin, Manchester, Columbia (New York), Harvard, Chicago, and Princeton, at the Royal Institution, and at many less celebrated places. He was the first actor asked to speak at the Royal Academy banquet. On the occasion of his knighthood he was presented with a golden box containing an address signed by every member of the profession to which he belongs, and to which he has brought so much honour—an event unique in the history of the stage. He originated, organised, and mainly supported in its earlier years the Actors' Benevolent Fund, which has been of inestimable benefit to so many poor players.

Even his social life, he who is so personally retiring, has had an important place in the life of London. For over twenty years there had hardly been an illustrious visitor who was not his guest at the Old Beefsteak-room of the Lyceum Theatre. "First nights" at the Lyceum were more occasions of prime social importance, and the informal supper parties on the stage which followed these performances were really gatherings representing all that was best in the life of the nation. At the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria, and again at the time arranged for the Coronation of the King, it was Sir Henry Irving's privilege to entertain, by Royal sanction, the nation's guests. On both those occasions the Indian Princes and colonial notabilities attended in state, and the theatre, prepared for the reception after the nightly performance by a sort of Aladdin's lamp process, was a scene of magnificent splendour. The last was indeed the final glory of the old Lyceum. For within a month its doors were closed for ever.

This is the bare outline of the record of the young actor who began his artistic life in Sunderland and whose return thither is celebrated to-day. The detail can be filled in by any whose lives and memories are long enough—of good work, great work, done: in his art as an actor, in his productions as a manager, in his charity, in his helpfulness to others, in his loyalty to King and country, and in his noble example of self-suppression and righteous dealing as a man. Alone and unaided from first to last by State or private help he made his theatre a veritable temple of art and an example to all the world of how a theatre should be and can be conducted. In the doing of it he won the admiration and respect of all the world. And beyond even this he has been given what no man can of set purpose win—a personal devotion unparalleled in artistic history from countless numbers of persons whom he has never seen except in cheering masses. And he has so blessed the lives of a multitude of others less fortunate than himself, so strewn his way with good deeds of which I perhaps, as his almoner for more than a quarter of a century, alone know, that, if gratitude and love and justified hopes and good wishes can effect it, the closing nights of his artistic life which are yet to come will be starred with new successes and new honours.

Let us hope that many long years of well-earned rest to follow them will be crowned with happiness.—Manchester Guardian, Oct. 28, 1904.

"THE CINGALEE" AT DALYS.

Mr George Edwardes is never satisfied with a musical play as long as it can be improved; and the long runs that are enjoyed by his productions may be attributed in great measure to the fact that his pieces are undergoing a constant process of embellishment. During the six months or so that The Cingalee has been running at Daly's Theatre additions and alterations have been freely made, and the result was submitted to the audience there on Thursday evening, when the 250th performance of the amusing entertainment took place. When we say that no less than ten new numbers have been added to the score, it will be seen that the work of amelioration has been fully and energetically performed. Mr Huntley Wright has worked up his part liberally, and his Baboo English has been made more extravagantly absurd and amusing than ever. The character from the first had that basis of reality which gives flavour and meaning to the most eccentric creations, and Mr Wright has developed it very artistically. None of his jokes are "out of the character," and he maintains, with great skill, the general idea of the rôle. It is astonishing to what an extent he has improved it from the "germ" supplied to him in the beginning. It must be remembered, however, that the "germ" in question was genuinely funny; but a less artistic comedian might have been tempted to introduce what may be called "extraneous matter" in the shape of impossible "gags." This Mr Wright never does. In his wildest moments he is always within the legitimate limits of the rôle, and for this we should be grateful to him in the extreme. As for the effect of his performance, it is shown in the peals of laughter which are evoked by his many whimsicalities. Mr Wright has one new number "all to himself," a song entitled "Something devilish wrong," from which he extracts every possible point. He shares with Miss Gracie Leigh two fresh duets, "Pretty Poll," and "Won't you make a fuss of me?" which are quite up to the standard of the musical play ditty, and are well suited to the tastes of the lovers of the style of entertainment, whose name is legion. Miss Leigh, whose archness and vivacity are unimpaired by repetition of her part, has been given a capital song, "She's all right," which she sings with all imaginable expressiveness and acuteness, winning warm applause by her delightfully bright and dainty rendering. Miss Leigh is one of the liveliest and smartest of our musical play artists, and her success in The Cingalee is immense. Mr Hayden Coffin has an interpolated ballad, "The Planter's Life," in which his fine voice and excellent musical method are displayed to much advantage; and Mr Howard Talbot and Mr W. H. Risque have collaborated in writing and composing a very "taking" quintet for Mr Louis Bradfield and the Tea Girls, called "Mixed Marriage." This goes exceedingly well, owing greatly to the unsparing and judicious exertions of Mr Bradfield and the charming ladies who assist him. He is personally responsible for a song, "The Little Ladies," to which he devotes very quaint and clever treatment. Mr Rutland Barrington has not been forgotten in the distribution of novelties; and to his lot falls a number entitled "Nothing much more to say." Miss Topsy Sinden, whose accomplished dancing is such an attraction to all patrons of Daly's, has been provided with a new dance, in which she brings down the house by her grace, activity, and finished style; and the parts of Lady Patricia Vereker and Mr Bobby Warren have been enlarged by the addition of several amusing scenes, so that their exponents, Miss Isabel Jay and Mr Bradfield, have now increased opportunities of distinction. Miss Sybil Arundale's character of the Cingalee girl was so complete that it has not been found needful to embellish it to any important extent, and it is still the same irresistibly naïve and picturesque creation. Mr Lionel Monckton, the gifted composer of the score of The Cingalee, and Mr Tanner, the author of the libretto, must be delighted with the success of their work, a result which is greatly due to the liberal and enterprising management of Mr George Edwardes, who is never beguiled by success into relaxing his endeavours for the pleasure and amusement of his patrons. They reward his efforts with warm appreciation.

MISS NELLIE MORTINE who was with Mr Edward Terry throughout his South African tour in 1902-3 has been engaged by that gentleman to support him on his forthcoming American tour.

A BLIND ACTOR.
APPEAL FOR MR. HENRY CRISP.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—An exceedingly sad case of distress in our profession has been brought to my notice by my old friend and brother actor, Mr E. M. Robson. It is that of Mr Henry Crisp, who, being fifty-one years of age, and having been an actor for thirty years, is now totally blind, and has been so from the end of October, 1903. He acted up to the last, and played for two years with the vision of one eye quite gone, while that of the other was gradually going. Out of his thirty years' experience he has held engagements as follows:—With Mrs Scott Siddons, three consecutive engagements; with Miss Jennie Lee, five consecutive years; with Mrs Langtry, four consecutive years; with Mr Penley, twelve consecutive years; with Mr Willard, three tours; and as stage-manager with Mr Tree (Captain Swift, Company 1). This makes very nearly thirty years, and shows that he must have been reliable and steady to have secured so many re-engagements. His salaries have always been small—£3 to £4 per week—once only reaching £8, so it is not surprising that he has no savings to fall back upon. He has a slender private income derived from the rents of three small houses. The property is mortgaged, and is in the hands of the mortgagees, who work it and allow him 15s. per week. His rent for a top room in the Kennington-road is 8s. per week, and the 7s. left has to find all the necessaries for himself and his wife, and he is not in arrears with his rent. Two years ago he was six months idle on account of illness, chiefly connected with his affliction. The expenses incurred by this, added to fees paid to various doctors in the different towns he visited on tours, reduced his income and savings considerably. He has been an inmate of the Westminster and Ophthalmic Hospitals, but with no benefit, though he speaks gratefully of the kindness shown him by a certain well-known doctor, who treated him gratuitously and secured his admission into the hospitals. There is no hope of his ever seeing again. One eye is quite gone, and is replaced by an artificial one, and the other is past being operated upon. His debts are very few and small; I have a list of them. His address is 145, Kennington-road, S.E.

I have spoken about his case to Mr Beerbohm Tree, Mr Pinero, Captain Marshall, Mr Alexander, Mr Bourchier, and Sir Squire Bancroft, all of whom are deeply interested in the case, and express their willingness to help him. I have every hope eventually of organising a concert for his benefit at the Queen's Hall. In the meantime may I ask for the kind consideration which you have always shown for cases of distress in our profession, and beg you to open a subscription list on his behalf, kindly putting me down for £5?

Yours faithfully, CYRIL MAUDE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—The case of Mr Henry Crisp is too sad for words. I enclose cheque for £10 10s. (from Mr and Mrs Kendal) with only too much pleasure to so deserving a fund.

Yours faithfully, W. H. KENDAL.
North-Western Hotel, Liverpool, Oct. 18, 1904.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Mr Crisp's case is certainly a very sad one, and I am very glad to enclose my mite towards his assistance.

Yours faithfully, CHARLES WYNDHAM.
Midland Hotel, Manchester, Oct. 11, 1904.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Please accept the enclosed amount (£1 17s.) as a small donation to Mr Henry Crisp's Benefit Fund in token of the great sympathy which every member of this company bears for Mr Crisp in his terrible misfortune.—Yours faithfully,

NORMAN V. NORMAN.
Theatre Royal, Limerick.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Will you add the enclosed cheque to the fund you have opened for Mr H. Crisp? His case is, indeed, terribly sad.

Yours faithfully, SABA RALEIGH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Sir Henry Irving asks me to send you the enclosed cheque for £5 as his donation to the Henry Crisp Fund. He sends all good wishes for its success. Yours faithfully, BRAM STOKER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, NOV. 10.—Chiffon is the name given to Rosette, a sweet young creature, married to the Marquis D'Estérel, considerably older than herself. Yet this disparity of age does not prevent them from thoroughly loving one another, when suddenly all this happiness is marred by one of those pests called "ladies' men," who look upon every woman as their personal property. A creature of that type, by name Dupont du Mail, when he is alone with Rosette kisses her on the lips at the moment the Marquis enters the room. The Marquis, convinced of his wife's guilt, will not listen to any explanations, and he resolves to return that very night to Mrs Hogson, his mistress before he married Rosette. In the ensuing act there is an explanation between husband and wife, wherein the former, convinced of his wife's innocence, is anxious to effect a reconciliation. Unfortunately, a reconciliation has become impossible, for, on the night the Marquis left Rosette, she has watched him entering Mrs Hogson's house, and, mad with rage and jealousy, she has avenged herself by giving herself to her husband's secretary, and these two people, although loving one another deeply, will be separated for ever. An unpleasant ending to a rather unpleasant play. The acting was fairly good. Mdlle. Duluc certainly distinguished herself in the rôle of Rosette, and made it singularly attractive. M. Levesque, too, scored a genuine success as the Secretary whom Rosette had chosen as the instrument of her revenge. M. Deval, however, did not feel quite at his ease in the rôle of the Marquis, and the remainder of the cast do not call for special comment.

PAISLEY.

Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile.—Mr Frank Bertram and company are presenting The Convict's Daughter here. Mr Bertram is seen to the greatest advantage as Michael Graham, the impressive force of his embodiment being wholly admirable. Mr J. K. Walton displays considerable ability as Frederick Neville; Mr G. Moreton-Williams enacts the conventional villain, Jasper Thorn, in thoroughly characteristic style; as Harold Trevelyan Mr T. W. Hurst contributes a capital portrayal; and Mr Alfred Terris fills the rôle of Patrick O'Laragan in an amusingly eccentric manner. Miss Edith M. Savery submits a capable and intelligent presentation of Edith; Marion Thorn is creditably enacted by Miss Maud Osmond; and Miss Julie Alexander makes a pert Betty Hyne.

Empire.—Lessee, Mr J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr Delno Fritz.—A company of exceptional merit is engaged here this week, and includes the Great Cinizelli, in a quaint eccentric acrobatic speciality; Darring, handcuff expert; Cissie Arris, serio and dancer; Charles Rae, Scottish comedian and dancer; and Baker and Rose, in a capital sketch. The Empire Cinématograph submits a new series of pictures.

PLYMOUTH.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—Miss Olga Nethersole and company are giving a fine representation of Sapho here this week. Miss Nethersole's acting as the heroine is guided by intelligence and feeling, and in the part of Fanny Miss Cecil Cromwell is bright and versatile. Jean has a clever exponent in Mr Arthur Royston. Uncle Cesaire is played by Mr Harry Dodd in clever fashion, and credit is due to Mr Arthur Poole, Mr Frank Melrose, Miss Isabel Derrie, Miss Gertrude Wynter, and Miss Jessie Melville for their share in the representation.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Assistant-Manager, Mr Percy Williams.—Under the management of Mr and Mrs William Giffard The World's Desire, an attractive melodrama, is being staged here this week. It is a stirring play, many of the situations being novel and highly realistic. Mr and Mrs Giffard sustain important parts with consummate ability, and their efforts are ably seconded by experienced and capable artists, notably Mr George Childs as Nathaniel Mutley.

Palace of Varieties.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Manager, Mr J. Field.—An excellent show this week is attracting big houses. Retained from last week Fred Karno's comedians are responsible for much fun in Mumming Birds. Enthusiasm is evoked by the juggling feats of the Avrignys, and the up-to-date songs of Harry Freeman are well liked. A very amusing turn is that provided by Spry and Austen, and the realistic impersonations of famous artists by Miss Florence deserve warm commendation. A burlesque act by Howard and St. Clair proves very entertaining, and the ventriloquial sketch submitted by Thornbury is as enjoyable as his quick painting. Daring gymnastic evolutions by Maretti and Alice are well worth seeing.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. Carlton.—The military drama Dishonoured is the attraction here this week. The play, a very interesting one, is well staged. Mr Percy Ballard portrays the hero with ability, and in the double rôle of Azeemah and Leslie Maynard Miss Florence Creagh acquits herself well. Others who merit notice are Mr Fred Lloyd, Mr F. Fuller, Mr S. Palfrey, Mr H. Buckley, Mr C. Morand, and Miss V. Cranford.

PONTYPRIDD.

Royal Clarence Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr Rex Dooley.—Miss Winifred Chalmers's strong company is here this week in A Woman's Revenge. Great interest is centred in the able rendition of Frank Drummond by Mr Henry L. Osmond; Mr W. Carridon admirably portrays the villainous Robert Overstone; Mr Elmore Frith displays great ability as Jephtha Grimwade; Mr Herbert Woodin causes roars of laughter as Dick Chilton; Miss Winifred Chalmers's Mary Lonsdale stirs the hearts of her audience; Miss Madge Palmer is a great favourite as Lottie Bromley; Miss Maude Yorke's assumption of the adventuress is excellent; Miss Lilian Sellman deserves praise as Maggie Westwood; and Little Doris Cooke as Little Mary does credit to her excellent tuition.

PORTH.

Poole's Opera House.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—Mr Fred Bulmer and his company presented on Monday the melodrama entitled Sentenced for Life. Mr E. D. Allen does remarkably well as Sir Wallace Stillwell; Mr Ernest Vaughan gives an excellent account of the villain, Captain Paul Derrick, his rendering being very powerful; Mr Harry Lloyd displays much ability as the hero, Lieut. Roy Stillwell; Mr Charles Whitlock capitally portrays the Rev. Martin Orris; Lady Stillwell has a very good representative in Miss Mary Dalby; Mr Dan Agar as Percy M'Gentle and Miss Madge Douglas as Kate Rennel are enthusiastically received; Miss Georgina V. France ably fills the part of Adele Gray; and Mr A. Marchant as Bill Sharkey and Mr Edward Finley as Toby keep the house in good humour as the two convicts.

PORTSMOUTH.

Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—Little Mary is paying us a visit this week, and a hearty welcome is being given to Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's capable company. The play is delightfully mounted, and the presentation is most thorough. Miss Christine Silver gives a charming rendering of Moira Loney, quite captivating the audience by her artless manner; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is convincing as the Countess of Plumleigh; Lady Milly is cleverly portrayed by Miss Evelyn Neillda; and Eleanor Gray is ably acted by Miss Gwendolen Richmond. The Earl of Carlton of Mr Arthur Holmes Gore is a very finished performance; Mr Arthur Kightley as Lord Rolfe is decidedly good; Mr A. W. Baskcomb in the dual-part of Terence Reilly and the Earl of Plumleigh is a success; and Mr George Mudie is a very capital representative of Sir Jennings Pyke. The curtain-raiser is The Bugle Call.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—Mr E. Hill Mitchelson's company is appearing here this week in the Russian drama The Assassin. Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson enacts the part of Prince Demetri in a vigorous and capable manner; Mr John C. Carlyle as Ivan Spanoff is well suited to his part; Mr Theo. Balfour makes the most of Duke Karl; and the General Nicholai of Mr Athur M'Culloch is excellent. Miss Ruth Sheppard as the Countess Wanda (the Assassin) is admirable; Miss Grace Aimers plays sympathetically as Nita; and Miss Katherine Vere as Katrina, Mr Paul Beckett as Evangie, and Mr Fred Yarnold as Peter are responsible for the comic relief.

Empire Palace.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—The principal item at this house for the week is the Caledonian Boys' orchestra, a pleasing and entertaining turn. Bennett and Martell create merriment in their crazy comedy act; Barney Vox, singing ventriloquist, is another very good turn; Ryder Slone, vocal comedian, sings some capital songs; the M'Connell Trio, in A Musical Mistake, are well received; Paynes's Photo-Bioscope has some new pictures; and Eily Adair, soubrette and danseuse; Bella Harcourt, refined comedienne; James Dubois, monkey impersonator; and Arthur Stacey, eccentric comedian and dancer, also entertain.

PERTH.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile; Assistant-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—Mr Frank Curzon's company in Glittering Gloria is drawing full houses here this week. Mr John Campbell in the rôle of Jack James, of the Stock Exchange, and Mr Stanley Arthur as Archie Toodleby are highly entertaining. Mr Haughton Macaulay creates considerable amusement as Zebedee Posket; Mr J. Worldley Hulse is an ideal impersonation of the gallant Colonel Pasquali Gallegher from El Paso; and Mr Gerald Clark as Algernon Entwistle elicits unrestrained merriment. Messrs F. Bentley and Percy Dinzar are commendable as Samuel Slapton and Robert Shreve, the Bond-street Jewellers; and Mr Charles Williams achieves considerable success as Mr Griddletop. Miss Stanley Ronalds is responsible for a clever impersonation of Glittering Gloria; and Miss Lillian Williams and Miss Peggy Harrington also distinguish themselves. The old farce, Perfection, is played as a curtain-raiser.

PRESTON.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr Stephen Pritt.—The boards are occupied here by Mr John Leopold's company in an up-to-date version of the popular farcical comedy Frivolity. Mr John Gerant gives a very amusing impersonation of Oliver Buckwheat; Mr Wilfred Vaughan does well as Jules Vermiglio; and Mr Bert Lloyd works hard and successfully as Samuel Vermiglio. Daniel Teething has a praiseworthy representative in Mr John Leopold, jun., who with Miss Amy Hall (Lucy Buckwheat) introduces the coon song and dance "My Dixie Queen" to the great enjoyment of the audience. Mr Tony Leopold is a diverting Professor Fumble, and Mr Willie Leopold a lively Tickle. Miss Ruby Wyndham capably fills the rôle of Madame Cobweb. Miss Vera Violata (Vinnie Moore), Miss Mona Hall (Maud), and Miss Queenie Bronte (Nanette) commendably sustain their respective parts.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Sawyer and Woodruff.—There is a vaudeville company here this week. Mr Tom M'Inerney gives an exciting display of wrestling in the catch-as-catch-can style; the Marblesque Trio contribute some classical statuary tableaux; Mr H. O. Wills is encored for his humorous songs; Mr W. Walker, ball-puncher, goes through a clever performance; the Waldrons (Joe and Hetty) cause roars of laughter with their songs and patter; Dwight and Son are clever mimics and clog-dancers; the Two Eltons are expert acrobatic knockabout comedians; Lily Turner is a charming vocalist; Miss Fredrica's performing dogs and pony are well trained; Mr Tom Owen, the Welsh comedian, is exceedingly funny; and the Brothers Attilla excel in their gladiatorial feats of strength and skill.

RAWTENSTALL.

Grand Theatre.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—Mr Stanley S. Gordon's company opened here on Monday with the romantic drama For the Woman He Loves. Mr Stanley S. Gordon gave a manly interpretation of Philip Meredith. The part of the villain, Silas Bradley, was well sustained by Mr Wilfred Protheroe. As James Stilton Mr Harry C. Momber was exceptionally good, and had an able partner in Miss Sallie Adelstone as Bessie Bramble. Miss Nina Vaughton as Miss Mary gave a powerful portraiture; Miss Eva Lyndhurst was good as the scheming but warm-hearted adventuress, Virginie; and Miss Marjorie Simcox as Evie proved herself a promising young actress.

READING.

Royal County Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr Reginald Taylor.—Mr George Dance's principal company is appearing in The Orchid, this being its first visit here. All the parts are in capable hands, and a full chorus do ample justice to the concerted music. Mr Bertie Wright plays the part of Meakin, the gardener, in the most diverting way; Mr Ernest Darrell gives a characteristic rendering of the part of Mr Chesterton, the Minister of Commerce; Mr G. Davy Burnaby causes much amusement as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour; Mr Edmund Hollick is capital as the Doctor; Mr Edmund Page is droll as the fire-eating French Count; Mr Arthur P. Hemsley works hard as Zaccary, the orchid hunter; Miss Ethel Bryant as Lady Violet Anstruther acts and sings very effectively; Miss Mabel Sealby is an attractive Josephine Zaccary; and Miss Poppy Wilkinson, a vivacious Thisbe. Miss Madge Lucas makes a "massive" Caroline Vokins, and her singing is much appreciated; and Miss Eve Melville is excellent as Zelie Rumbert. A well-attended matinée was given on Wednesday.

ROCHDALE.

New Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Resident Manager, Mr Charles Clucas.—The Silver King is here again, and continues its run of popularity. Mr Lauderdale Maitland gives a fine impersonation of Wilfred Denver. Nellie Denver is played with womanly feeling by Miss Lilian Bethell. Mr Edward J. George again fills the part of Jaikes with his accustomed success. Miss Violet St. Clair makes a winsome Cissie Denver. Mr W. V. Garrod cleverly portrays the Spider, and is ably supported by Mr Arthur Wright as Elijah Coombe. Miss Lorna Treherne is well placed as Olive Skinner, and Miss Sinna St. Clair is amusing as Tabitha.

Circus of Varieties and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr S. L. Lee.—Manager Lee continues to supply the patrons here with capital fare. Little Dando, eccentric comedian, creates roars of laughter with his dancing and singing. Clark and Argyle, dancers and pipers, submit an interesting exhibition of international dances. Hughes' Electrograph shows some capital animated pictures. Sid Bandon, character comedian; Brothers Levette, chair vaulters; Robert Grieve, ventriloquist; Hill, Barry, and Lang, knockabout sketch artistes; and the Selbini Troupe of acrobats complete a strong programme.

RUGBY.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing Director, Mr A. F. Cross.—Messrs Payne Seddon and Charles Madona's company was here for three nights with Are You a Mason? Mr Edward Thirlby was excellent in the character of Amos Bloodgood, and as Frank Perry Mr Arthur Claremont acted with ability and humour. Mr William Pringle as George Fisher merited high praise, and in his impersonation of Fanchon he displayed talent of high order. Mr David Denard was good as John Halton, and Mr George De Lara as Hamilton Travers gave a representation replete with wit, and contributed very materially to the success of the piece. Mr Stanley Bell was good as Ernest Morrison. Miss Constance Groves gave an excellent and artistic impersonation of Mrs Caroline Bloodgood, and Miss Leila Russell as Mrs Perry was charming and effective. Miss Jennie Levens as Annie and Mrs Pearl Keats as Lulu were both well suited, and Miss Nell Douglas was effective and amusing as Lottie. As Mrs Halton Miss Lilian Elen was good, and Miss Wilson as Fanchon Armitage also did well.

ROTHERHAM.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning.—The special attraction for the Statutes Fair week is being provided here by Messrs Charles Draycott and H. B. Peppin's company with the powerful and interesting drama The Best Must Win. Mr Robert Watson is a manly Paul Dumaresq, and Mr Charles Draycott ably portrays the part of Gaston Marquis De Marcel, alias the Panther; Mr Oliver J. Round is successful as Juan Minos, and Mr Harry Harrop scores as Jacques Courcel; Mr Fred Aldworth is also deserving of mention as Sabretache; Miss Maud Elliston is seen to advantage in the unpalatable rôle of Lucille La Fouche, and Miss Dorothy Elliston is a sprightly Suzette; Miss Violet Ospringe gives a correct rendering of the part of Therese Dumaresq, and Miss Lilian Watson Loyde is pleasing and sympathetic in the difficult rôle of Denise Dumaresq.

RUNCORN.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr H. W. Caddick.—After a very short interval Mr Coleman Davies reappeared with his talented company in a number of plays entitled No Escape, The Unknown, and The Streets of London. The first-mentioned was staged on Monday. Mr Coleman Davies was very much at home as Constable O'Grady; Mr M. Stanton undertook the dual-rôle of Geoffrey and Arthur Arlington with pronounced success; Mr V. Bracking displayed marked ability as Horace Hardcastle; Mr Bob Astley did well as Sampson Slowman; Mr E. Meehan was satisfactory as Jabez Guzzel; and Miss May Neilson as Molly Muggs was responsible for some able comedy work. Miss Eunice Udall delighted the house by her excellent acting as Ethel Arlington, and Miss Marie Douglas was well placed as Betty Guzzel.

SALFORD.

Prince of Wales's.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—The American-Indian actress, Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, with her American company, is again paying a welcome visit in the picturesque sensational drama, Wep-Ton-No-Mah, the title-rôle of which she sustains in pleasing style. Manuel Lopes as Spanish Joe, the desperado, is well sustained by Mr R. Thorne; Mr C. W. Charles as Colonel Stockton and Miss Minnie Goepel as the Colonel's daughter are well placed; Mr George Courtney as Captain Franklin and Mr Theo. Alker as Chief Gar-Ne-Gua take their parts in fine style.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Licensee, Mr James M. Hardie; Secretary and Manager, Mr C. Shayler.—As usual the management is fully alive to what their patrons appreciate, and the result is crowded houses at each performance. High Jinks, by Mr Tiller's large company, is very funny indeed; the De Breans in their entertainment are well received; the Walters, Chinese equilibrists, are very good; Harris and Worth, talking and singing comedians, cause a lot of laughter; David Toole, impersonator, is popular; and Mr J. H. Scotland, baritone; the Phillipi Brothers, in smart balancing; and Mr and Mrs Paul Knox, society entertainers, are also in the bill. The pictures conclude a good night's entertainment.

Royal Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead.—A good programme is provided here. Shawlene, the whistler, is well received; the Shaffers, gladiatorial artists, are very good; Zasma, in gymnastics on the lawn, causes some fun; Hicks's Clerks and Little Peter provoke merriment; Calso comes in for applause in his mimicry; the Durant Brothers are very good in their trapeze entertainment; Johnson is an expert dancer; Smith and Johnson are clever coloured duettists; Davis and Davis are very smart; and the Sisters Kilner, dancers; the Freans, patter artists; and some comical pictures bring a good night's entertainment to a close.

SHEERNESS.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr P. Reymond.—An excellent all-round company here includes the Calden Combination in the dramatic sketch Our Foreign Foes, in which they are eminently successful. Among the variety turns Miss Louie Hurman, burlesque actress, is exceedingly popular. Mr Jack Foley, eccentric comedian, is also well received. Miss Maggie Marston, ballad vocalist, sings in pleasing style, and Oak and Ash, patter comedians, are also amusing. The programme concludes with the laughable farce, A Husband's Dilemma.

SHEFFIELD.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr F. W. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr T. S. Carter.—The boards are occupied this week by the Norfolk Dramatic Society in Lady Huntworth's Experiment and The Magistrate. The performances are for the benefit of the hospitals.

Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—The continued popularity of the drama of romance was again demonstrated on Monday, when a large audience received with abundant signs of appreciation the picturesque eighteenth century play Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner. The scenery was artistic, the costumes were correct, and the characters were all acted in the proper spirit of the members of Mr Lewis Waller's company. As Captain Peyton Mr Thomas Kingston looked a picturesque hero, and acted in a gallant and manly fashion. Miss Elly Malyon made a graceful and interesting Elizabeth; Mr Hilliard Vox was firm as John Calden; and Miss Alys Rees; and Mr George Mallett were both admirable in important rôles.

Alexandra Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—A drama that does honour to Mr Arthur Shirley's inventive faculty and facile pen is The Midnight Mail, which was again played to a large house on Monday by Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company. Mr George Harvard cleverly depicted the various stages in the career of Harry Steyne. As the long-suffering wife, Mary Steyne, Miss Ada Oakley was sincere and thoroughly convincing. The despicable character of the crafty tempter, Billy Brewer, was excellently portrayed by Mr Fred G. Evison, a good character actor. Mr Alec Alves was successful as Leonard Royal, and the villainous Hassan was painted in bold colours by Mr Arthur Gilroy. Mr Charles M'Cann earned the good will of the audience by his acting as Donald Craig, and Mr Entwistle did well as Thornleigh.

Empire Palace.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—The pièce de résistance at the Empire this week is the clever and exciting "one man" sketch Dick Turpin, which is admirably represented by Mr R. A. Roberts. The Three Sisters Sprightly do a smart and amusing vocal and Terpsichorean act. Griff continues to cause great hilarity with his funny patter and original business. M. Jan Rudenyl is a cultured violinist, and other well-known and skilled performers are the Bros. Webb, musical drolls; Harry Bickley, comic lecturer and vocalist; the Densmores, sketch artistes; Ambrose Thorne, comedian; the Bros. Obo, comic duettists; Harry Hayton, comedian; and the Haytors, in their interlude A Hot Time.

Grand Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—"If patriotic sentiments be wanting" Mr F. V. St. Clair is just the man to meet the demand, and on Monday he again in his breezy and emphatic manner voiced the opinion of the average sturdy Briton. Lady Mansell, with her intelligent little assistants, submit a pleasing sketch, and other good turns are Hart and Rudd, eccentric comedians and dancers; and Lily Sharplin, vocal comedienne. Good business is still the rule.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

Mather.—Nov. 10, at Cragside, Wallasey, Cheshire, to Harold and May Mather (née Belcham), a daughter.

Smith—Monday, Nov. 7, wife of Lieut. C. T. Smith (professionally known as Miniature Marie) of a fine boy. Both doing well.

DEATHS.

Bush.—Fred Bush (of Bush and Bushell), Nov. 15, 1903. Ever missed by his wife, Sadie Bush, and his son, Harry.

Cathie.—Nov. 7, at Margate, after seven months' intense suffering, Nina, aged twenty, the beloved wife of Leslie Roy Cathie, of 37, Abercornplace, N.W.

Cryer.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mary Cryer, who died on Nov. 5, and was interred at Bowling Cemetery, Bradford, on Nov. 9.—Sam Cryer, Musical Director, Bradford.

Edmunda.—Nov. 7, Professor Edmunds, singing ventriloquist.

Florene.—Nov. 4, at Guildford Hospital, after a long illness, Nellie, wife of Little Florene, comedian. Buried at Aldershot, Nov. 9.

M'Kenzie.—Thursday, Nov. 3, at Stonehouse, Plymouth, the beloved mother of May M'Kenzie. Never forgotten.

Scudamore.—Nov. 1, at his residence, 8, Castlenau-mansions, Barnes, suddenly, Fortunatus Augustine Scudamore (Frank A. Scudamore), dramatist and actor, aged fifty-eight.

Wooton.—Nov. 5, at 142, Leicester-street, Wolverhampton, Douglas Frank, only son of Frank and Mabel Wooton, aged nine months.

In Memoriam.

Allen.—In loving memory of Thomas Allen (equestrian), who died Nov. 6, 1898. Never forgotten.

Haslem.—In ever-loving memory of my dear husband, Bert Haslem, who passed peacefully away at the Phœnix Hotel, Colesburg, Cape Colony, on Nov. 11, 1903. Deeply mourned by his sorrowing wife, Katie Leechman.

Though lost to sight, to memory dear
Thou ever wilt remain;
This only hope my heart can cheer,
The hope to meet again.

Haslem.—In loving memory of my dear brother Bert, who died in South Africa, Nov. 11, 1903.—C. W.

Howard.—In loving and affectionate memory of our dear and beloved mother, Sarah Martin Howard, who passed peacefully away on Oct. 2, 1901, at the age of seventy-four. Deeply mourned by her eldest son, Thomas Martin Howard, and her granddaughter, Lilly Louis M. Howard (who are now in South Africa), also Andrew Martin Howard, and James Martin Howard (who are now in New Zealand), all of the marvellous Howard Family. God rest her soul.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

The thirty-fourth season of the Royal Choral Society commenced on Thursday at the Albert Hall with Mendelssohn's oratorio Elijah, the only work of the kind that approaches closely to the masterpieces of the immortal Handel. The band and chorus were on the accustomed scale, numbering 1,000 vocalists and instrumentalists, conducted by Sir Frederick Bridge, while Mr Balfour presided at the organ with his usual efficiency. Eight sacred concerts are to be given during the season, and from the splendid results of the opening concert there is every reason to suppose that the high standard reached by the Royal Choral Society will be maintained. Miss Suzanne Adams was unable to appear owing to a severe hoarseness, but Madame Emily Squire filled her place adequately, being familiar with the music. Miss Ada Crossley was the contralto, Mr John Harrison the tenor, and Mr Dalton Baker undertook the exacting music of the Prophet, we believe for the first time. He succeeded remarkably well, owing to the beautiful quality of his voice and his artistic style. Mr Harrison was not quite so fortunate in the tenor solos, but Miss Ada Crossley was exquisite, as usual. The secondary parts were well sustained, and the effect of the whole performance was magnificent. In the course of the season The Childhood of Christ, by Berlioz; The Witch's Daughter, by Mackenzie; and Dr. Elgar's Apostles will be given.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving, March 3d, 1898.

Will be of great service.—Charles Wyndham, March 1st, 1898.

Mr A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era, March 5th, 1898.

Very useful.—Sporting Life, March 4th.

Mr Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News, March 19th.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News, March 11th.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its page, they may avoid much misapprehension and troubles.—Star, March 9th.

Should be of great value. An ably compiled digest of the law relating to the theatrical profession generally.—Daily Mail, March 11th, 1898.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun, March 20th.

Clearly set out, concise, and altogether comprehensible.—Pall Mall Gazette, March 19th.

At the New Gaiety Theatre, Ayr, Mr and Mrs Chalmers Mackey's company occupied the theatre on the first three nights of this week in The Wearin' o' the Green. Mr C. Mackey as Barney O'Hea acted with rollicking spirit, and had admirable support from Mr Reginald Garland, who made a capital Shamus M'Dermott. Mr Reuben Tayne as Michael Kenny was appropriately villainous; Mr Conway Hastings as Sheriff Martin did exceedingly well; and Miss Adele Liddon as Mrs Macdermott and Miss Nellie De Lacy as Nora M'Grath played exceptionally well.

Mr and Mrs Harry Scott (son of George Scott, of the Alhambra) have been especially engaged to play Tom and Isabel, in Ethel Arden's and George Abel's well-known sketch Three of a Kind.

Presentation.—Mr William Smith, property master, Fatal Wedding (North) Co., was on Saturday last presented by Miss Gwynn Herbert, on behalf of the entire company, with a well-lined purse in appreciation of his courteous conduct throughout the tour.

AT the Grand, Douglas, on the 2nd inst., was given for copyright purposes a production of The Prodigal Son, a drama by Hall Caine, founded on his novel of the same name.

AFTER the closing performance of Driven from Home on Saturday evening last at the Theatre Royal, Wednesbury, a number of local friends gathered in the circle bar to wish Mr John M. Dawson, the co-proprietor of the company and a former manager of the theatre, success in the future. The opportunity was taken to present Mr Dawson with a solid plain gold ring as a slight token of how his old friends in Wednesbury remembered him. Mr Sydney Webb, a well-known local gentleman, made the presentation on behalf of the subscribers, and paid a high tribute to Mr Dawson's ability as a manager. Mr Macduff followed, and in eulogistic terms related how Mr Dawson had endeared himself to local playgoers, and wished Mr and Mrs Dawson every success in the future. Mr Dawson returned thanks in a few well-chosen words.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904
"The Era" Annual for the current year preserves all the features which have made it popular among actors and actresses in the past—short stories, some of them very good and some of them not so good, by well-known entertainers, countless photographs, and a list of plays produced during the year which should make it useful to students of stage history. It is a sign of the times that Omar Khayyam should be quoted on the first page of the almanack.—Morning Post, Jan. 23d.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
The veteran J. L. Toole has a good story in "The Era" Annual (49, Wellington-street, Strand) a publication which is highly valued by all who have anything to do with the stage. He says:—I was once playing in "Dearer than Life" with Irving and Billington at Leeds. After the performance several gentlemen were in the general room of the hotel where we were staying, and among them a certain Mr Jones, who professed to have a large acquaintance in the profession, and who appeared to have a local reputation as a judge of ages.
"Well, how old," said someone, "would you take Mr Toole to be?'
"Well," said he, "sixty-five, if he's a day."
"Do you know him?" I asked.
"Oh, yes; I know him very well indeed."
"Ah! and how old should you take me to be?"
"Well, I should take you to be forty, if you're a day."
Irving asked Mr Jones if he didn't think Mr Toole was nearer seventy-five than sixty-five. "No," he said; "sixty-five, if he's a day," and the company present seemed to put it down that that would be my age. They had most of them been to the theatre and seen me—for the first time probably—playing an old man; and as it was my first visit to the town, and we were going on by the mail train that night, I had a fancy not to go away and leave them under the impression that I was this very old gentleman. I found that Jones was a decent sort of fellow, and I said to Irving that before I went I should just give him my card and let him know what a mistake he had made. By and bye, when our cab arrived, we said good-night to our casual acquaintances, and, taking Mr Jones aside, I handed him my card, whereupon he said "Oh, indeed!" in a very offensive manner, turned upon his heel, and walked away.
"Well," I said to my friends as we drove away, "that's the most impertinent fellow I think I ever met." Whereupon Billington and Irving went into fits of laughter, and confessed that they had warned Mr Jones that I was continually passing myself off as Toole, and he was to be quite prepared for my handing him a card and trying the imposition upon him.—Leeds and Yorkshire Mercury, Friday, Jan. 22d, 1904.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual, 1904, contains, as usual, many items and statistics of use and interest to all connected with the stage, and, in addition, a number of sketches and short stories by leading artistes, managers, and others. Among the contributors are J. L. Toole, Dan Leno, George R. Sims, George Robey, Huntley Wright, Harry Randall, Bransby Williams, A. W. Pinero, Louie Freear, Little Tich, George Mozart, and Douglas Crichton. The publication is cheap at a shilling.—Birmingham Daily Gazette, Jan. 16th, 1904

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual, 1904, reappears with all the features that to metropolitan and provincial playgoers make it invaluable as a work of reference. It again contains a list of new plays and important revivals at the London and suburban theatres, with dates of production to the end of November; new plays submitted in the provinces; the theatrical, musical, and equestrian obituary for the year; and other stage matters concerning which information is often desired. Each branch is excellently classified. What may, for convenience sake, be termed the "useful" portions of the "Annual" are sandwiched by forty short stories by popular actors and entertainers, the interest of these contributions being increased by autographs and portraits.—Daily Chronicle, Jan. 16th, 1904

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Published at "The Era" Offices,
49, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901

THE ERA

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1904.

A WORD FOR THE POOR ACTOR.

All the arts are regulated by the same laws of demand and supply as those which govern commercial affairs. The ebb and flow of trade is irregular, but constant. When the demand for a particular commodity is great the supply responds to it. Many who would not otherwise engage in the business are tempted to enter it. Eventually the market becomes overstocked, and there is not sufficient employment for all who are connected with the trade. A few leave it, but the bulk of those who make a living by it are unable to change their calling immediately. They can only do so, if they can do so at all, after a period of stress and endeavour. Meanwhile a large floating population of "unemployed" persons is created, and much distress and want have to be endured.

There can be no doubt that the acting profession is overstocked at present. In the old days the drudgery and humiliation which had to be undergone before an aspirant could hope to reach the London boards kept all except the real enthusiasts from "taking to the stage." The social status of the actor was low, his surroundings sordid, and his life during his novitiate a very hard one. Things have been altered considerably since PIERCE EGAN wrote "The Life of an Actor." Instead of the "barn-storming" and strolling which went on in the "early eighties" we have admirably conducted country companies visiting provincial theatres, many of which are as handsome and comfortable as those in the metropolis. Instead of the profession of actor sharing the scorn which is felt by respectable people for "rogues and vagabonds," it gives the possessor the key to a great deal of social consideration Shorn of so many of its disabilities, the profession of acting seems an ideal one to those young people who, like Fred Vincey, in "Middlemarch," want a profession without any disagreeables; and the result of late years has been an influx into the profession from a social grade entirely above that from which it was formerly recruited. Other things being equal, this may be an advantage; but, unfortunately, the possession of private means enables many of the new school of dramatic recruits to undersell those who live by their acting alone. The result is that a number of experienced and thoroughly trained actors and actresses find themselves out of engagements for long periods; while entirely incompetent persons, who have been introduced into the profession, remain in it and swell the number of its unemployed.

Of course, in time, "things will right themselves." Warned by what they have undergone, the impoverished artistes will bring up their children to anything except the stage. A certain percentage of the semi-amateur and "self-supporting" brigade will weary of being so often out of work; and if we can only do something to stem the tide of precocious juveniles who are being brought up to the profession, and who will, as they grow up, help to swell its overcrowded ranks, we may again attain, for the average actor and actress, a fair amount of steady employment and reasonable remuneration. But this amelioration will take time; and meanwhile, staring us in the face, immediate and obvious, is an appalling amount of distress and want.

One of the most valuable agencies for the relief of the poor and unfortunate in the profession is the Actors' Benevolent Fund. It is administered with a combination of sympathy and discrimination which is, we believe, without parallel in the history of charities; and this is rendered possible by the comparatively small numbers in the profession and by the interest which is taken in the Fund by our leading managers and actors. But the task which the Fund has before it in the coming winter is likely to be even more than it can accomplish with the means at its disposal. The subscriptions of actors to the Fund have during the past few months fallen off considerably. Touring business is sadly depressed; and an increase in the calls upon the Fund is almost certain to take place. In common parlance, some means must be found of "raising the wind;" and we beg every one of our readers to consider whether he or she cannot individually help the Fund.

One of the easiest and fairest methods is the sale of autographs. In their easy generosity many actors and actresses are in the habit of giving their "sign-manuals" to whoever writes for them. These autographs are often obtained gratis in order to swell collections which, when complete, are sold for considerable sums. Here we have a simple and easy means of assisting the Actors' Benevolent Fund. Let every actor and actress of note imitate the example of Sir HENRY IRVING, Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM, and Mr BEERBOHM TREE. Mr TREE'S plan may be quoted as being especially admirable. On receiving an application for his autograph he replies to the effect that if a sum of half-a-crown is sent to the secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, his - Mr TREE'S—signature and a receipt for the money will follow in due course. An admirable idea is that of Mr E. S. WILLARD, who introduces into all his contracts with artists a clause giving him the right to deduct salary due on one specified night of the year, the amounts thus collected, together, of course, with the manager's own salary, going to help the A.B.F. And then there is that always effective method of appealing to the public, the benefit matinée, of which such an excellent example was supplied by Mr TREE when he generously gave a morning performance at His Majesty's last Tuesday for the benefit of the Fund.

Another excellent plan is that which has been adopted by several of our provincial managers—we mean the imposition of a tax on free admissions. The idea has been put in practice by Mr WALTER REYNOLDS, at the Theatre Royal, Leeds; Mr ROBERT ARTHUR at the Kennington Theatre; Mr CECIL BERYL, at the Theatre Royal, Brighton; and Mr DREW MACKINTOSH, at the Palace Pier, Brighton, with excellent results. Also, it is desirable that whenever an artist is asked to contribute his or her services at an entertainment for the benefit of some charitable object an arrangement should be made to the effect that ten per cent. of the receipts should be placed to the credit of the Actors' Benevolent Fund.

The amounts raised in this way would have the great advantage of indirect taxation—they would not "be felt." When a person is in sufficiently easy circumstances to have a hobby, he can well afford an occasional half-crown for its gratification. When an individual is given the price of admission to a theatre, he can well spare sixpence; and when a charity is fattening on the obliging disposition and generosity of actors and actresses who appear at entertainments for its benefit, the institution can surely spare a fraction of its gains to help poor and starving histrions. Actors have done, and are doing, too much for Society. We were in company this week with a very bright and clever actor, who, since his return to England last January, has been appearing frequently at charity matinées, and yet has not had a single engagement. Aristocratic young men and women crowd our ranks and take the bread out of the mouths of thoroughly trained and experienced artists who appear at entertainments for "Society" charities for nothing; and, while they lavish their energies on objects with which the profession has nothing directly to do, they neglect "those of their own household." It is time they should turn over a new leaf, and think first, at any rate, of their unfortunate fellow artists In view of the painful distress which we are called upon to face, we ask managers, actors, and all concerned with the profession to support an institution which so nobly endeavours to help the poor actor in his time of need.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The concert of Thursday evening at the Royal College of Music included the splendid quartet for strings in A major of Beethoven, one of the great tone poet's most masterly inspirations in his earlier period. The quartet was played by Miss Vera Warwick-Evans, Miss Sumner, Mr Frank Bridge, and Miss Marion Harrison, full justice being done to the beautiful music. The sonata for violoncello in F by the old composer Porpora afforded Mr Ivor James scope for the display of neat execution and refined taste. Miss Agnes Coates succeeded well in "Schöne Wiege," the beautiful song of Schumann, which she gave with great taste and refinement. Chopin's Fantasia in F minor employed the talent of Miss Lucy Polgreen in the most satisfactory manner. The young lady has acquired the correct Chopin style. Songs by Miss Dorothy Purser made an excellent impression. She was heard in the Four Nursery Songs of Taubert—charming compositions—which she gave with refinement and delicacy, which fully justified the cordial approval of her friends and students. The concert concluded with the Trio of Schubert in B flat for pianoforte and strings.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, SEPT. 20.—Sunday was welcomed by the largest and most fashionable house of the season at Her Majesty's Theatre on the 17th. The popularity of the authors, Thomas Wigney Percyval, Horace Hodges, and Edward Irwin—though now disguised under a verboglomerate "Thomas Raceward" made the première of an extra interesting character. In a country where diggings are well-known places, the story has a familiar smack, and needs no searching for Bret Hartian origin, for Walter Cooper gave us this theme for drama many years ago. The first Australasian appearance of Miss Tittel Brune was an unequivocal success. She was the Sunday the authors meant the character to be. The natural girl shone through her surroundings, whether on the diggings or in the English mansion. Then comes Mr J. B. Atholwood in the part of Davey, a rugged, big-hearted son of the mine, true and fatherly, a fine impersonation. Mr Arthur Greenaway comes back after eight years' absence with his careful methods matured, his clear, resonant voice improved. His Jacky was a strong performance. The quartette of "fathers" was completed by Mr E. B. Russell's sturdy embodiment of the rôle of Towser. Mr Gaston Mervale returned to play a short but strong character, Arthur Brinthorpe, and he made it apparent that an experienced actor was again with us. Mr Roy Redgrave impressed the audience by his dignified yet impulsive Colonel Brinthorpe, and he will be of great value to the repertory of Mr Williamson's company. Tom Oxley, the sterling friend of the Colonel and Sunday, was charmingly acted by Mr Roland Staveley. It needs no assurance of mine to convince your readers that Miss Mabel Lane was a handsome and winning Mrs Naresby, and Miss Minnie Terry made a convincing and stately Nun. The play is stage-managed by Mr W. J. Hazlitt, the orchestra conducted by Mr George Hall, and the beautiful scenery painted by Mr W. R. Coleleman.

"THE OTHER MAN'S BUSINESS" is a three-act farce written by G. W. Elton and E. F. Petley, and deals with complications arising from the diversion to other purposes of a sum of money given by an uncle to a nephew to start a tobacconist's shop. Ananias himself would be beaten in the competition for inventing lies to deceive the old man. But the discovery by the nephew and his wife of the uncle's entanglement with a pretty soubrette gives them a lever which compels pardon and further disbursement. The farce bristles with fun, and Mr W. F. Hawtrey has done wisely in staging it for the last two weeks of his Criterion season. Mr Hawtrey is old Rattlechip, and he invests the character with all his finesse and conscientious attention to detail. Mr G. W. Elton is a precocious schoolboy, Horatio Bloggett, and the impersonation was a mirth-provoking one. Mr O. P. Heggie as Hill, an assistant tobacconist, created very loud laughter. Mr Gregan M'Mahon was the mendacious nephew, Authony Bloggett, and Mr Leonard Stanley made an energetic Simpson.

"THE WHIRLIGIG" is the American travesty stars' latest and merriest pack of nonsense at the Palace. There is no subterfuge about a plot, not even a pretence; it is a curtain to curtain scream with Barney Bernard, Kolb and Dill as chief perpetrators of jokes, tricks, and entanglements—all free from offence.

MR BLAND HOLT sees no reason to withdraw The Flood Tide, as the Royal is profitably filled to see this perfectly staged melodrama, or melo-farce as it is billed.

THE Tivoli saw on Saturday the return of Bob Bell and Tom Dawson two established favourites, and the appearance of Ben Goodson, the cyclist, as a baritone vocalist. The Peschkoffs, Nat Clifford. Maggie Fraser, Nellie Kilburn, Ward Lear, Irving Sayles, Ella Wellington, Maud Faning, and the Diamond Duo are supplemented by views of a motor-car climbing the Alps.

"THE THREE LITTLE MAIDS" finale was gloriously enthusiastic. All the artists were called many times, and Mr G. P. Huntley made a capital speech, thanking the public for hospitality, generous support, and kind appreciation, promising to return here in two years' time. This was loudly applauded. Mr Tours was the recipient of a presentation from the members of the orchestra, and Mr George Stephenson was presented with a handsome travelling rug by the principals. He returns at the end of next January, under engagement to Mr J. C. Williamson. The company sailed on Saturday by the Himalaya, but Miss Maud Hobson went to America.

SYDNEY, SEPT. 27.—My Friend from India, considerably shortened since its production here about seven years ago, was revived by Mr Walter Sanford's American Players at the Lyceum on the 24th inst. The acting of Mr Sanford himself as Augustus Keene Shaver was far and away the best work he has done in Sydney, and the ogling scene with Miss Ada Clare (Mrs Streete), was provocative of great laughter. Mrs Powis-Stuart as the female dude, Marion Hayshe, looked and dressed handsomely, whilst Miss Adelaide Boothby made Tilly, the German servant, an intensely amusing caricature.

"SUNDAY" grows in favour at Her Majesty's. Its intensely human interest has captured the performers as well as the audiences, and the hut scenes between the miners and their ward, are highly enjoyable. Mr Edmund Gwenn is a tower of strength, and his departure for London (when Sunday is withdrawn) and that of his wife, Miss Minnie Terry, give cause for universal regret. The play now under rehearsal is L'Aiglon.

"THE FLOOD TIDE" so satisfies Mr Bland Holt and his patrons at the Theatre Royal that no hint at a change of bill has been found necessary, and all the cleverly worked effects and carefully acted incidents maintain the prestige of the popular actor-manager.

THE AMERICAN TRAVESTY STARS will conclude their season at the Palace Theatre on Oct. 6. Meanwhile the fast and furious—and withal wholesome—fun of Whirligig is drawing delighted crowds. Theatre parties are the rage here. On Friday the proprietor of the Waverly Brewery, Mr Resch, treated 260 of his employees to a night's amusement at the Palace.

THE TIVOLI is booming just now with Mr Whimsical Walker at the head of the entertainers. His reception on Saturday was cordial, and all he did was loudly cheered. Miss Hilda Lane, Sydney's best mezzo-soprano, made her first appearance in a vaudeville show, and gave a high musical tone to the programme. Miss Goldie Collins, a clever young song and dance artiste, made a deep impression; and the Great Peschkoffs hold their own in their unique entertainment. Ben Goodson, Nellie Kilburn, Tom Danson, Bob Bell, Maud Faning, and a host more please Mr Harry Rickards' audiences with the best that they all can do.

A NEW great contralto has been discovered in Goulburn by Mr Rivers Allpress amongst the competitors at the London College of Music examinations. This young singer, Miss Ella Caspers, is not yet fifteen years old, yet she has the full rich voice of a woman of thirty. At the classical chamber concert on the 21st, Miss Caspers sang "Abide with me" (Liddle), and fairly took the expert audience by storm. She certainly has the grandest contralto voice yet heard here. Her friends have decided to leave her for yet a while with the sisters at the Goulburn Convent, and Mr Rivers Allpress has control of her musical career.

MR ALFRED HOLLINS, the blind organist, who is drawing crowded houses at the Town Hall, administered a well-deserved rebuke to the City Council who attempted to get free Sunday recitals out of him at the close of his contract. Mr Hollins naively asked for a fee of £50!

SYDNEY.—OCT. 4.—Other People's Money is a screaming three-act farce played by Mr George Stephenson's American Comedy Company at the Criterion. The principal parts are played by Miss Olive Evans and Mr Charles J. Stine, and these clever artistes are ably and enthusiastically supported by Miss Kate Douglas (an Australian), Miss Marjorie Ford, Miss Reba Bicknell (who with Mr Ralph Bicknell does some wonderful dancing), Mr Win Douglas, Mr Charles F. Bates, and Mr Claude A. Hunt. Mr C. R. Bailey is business manager, and Mr F. W. Duval is Mr George Stephenson's representative.

MR WALTER SANFORD'S American Players are appearing at the Lyceum in The Pace that Kills. Miss Laura Wall is singularly pathetic as Marie, the blind girl, and Miss Adelaide Boothby makes Kitty, a light-hearted waitress, pleasantly prominent. Mr Sandford represents Harry Burton, and his assumption of the character of an Italian desperado is excellent. Mr Jean de Lacy is a fine Franzetti, Mr George Kimkel, a good comedian, sings several songs as the Negro, Nimrod, and Mr Martyn Hagan is a capital Police-sergeant M'Shane. Mr Johnson Weir as Philip Lyndon and Mr Leo De Chateau as Stephen Morton complete a competent cast. Mr G. F. Salas is business manager for Mr Sanford.

"SUNDAY" will run until Friday night, when Australia will see the last for some time at least of Mr Edmund Gwenn and Miss Minnie Terry. Miss Minnie Tittell Brune has leaped into public affection, and her next effort as L'Aiglon will be watched with especial interest. Mr J. C. Williamson is staging Rostand's play in splendid style, and to mark the production he has prepared an elaborate souvenir.

"WHIRLIGIG" will run only three more nights at the Palace Theatre. On Thursday night Mr Harry James's American Travesty Stars will give their final performance. So far this company of capital comedians, good singers and sprightly dancers has not given any travesty, but it is on the cards that a return visit will see Miss Maud Amber, Mr Wingfield Blake, and Messrs Kolb, Dill, and Barney Bernard in their famous versions of well-known productions, notably Miss Maud Amber's malversion of Zaza

THE Tivoli bill had an attractive addition on Saturday, when the Sisters O'Meers appeared and went through their marvellous feats on the tight wire. Miss Gregson and Mr Goodfellow also made their first appearance, and all the newcomers were heartily welcomed. The gifted soprano, Miss Hilda Lane, sings charmingly. The Peschkoff Quintette of wondrous dancers, Ward Lear, Nellie Kilburn, Little Goldie Collins, and a host more are all in Mr Rickards's bill.

THE GERMAN THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 7, at the Great Queen-street Theatre, the Farcical Comedy, in Four Acts, by Oskar Blumenthal and Gustav Kadelburg, entitled "DIE GROSSSTADTLUFT."

Martin Schröter	HUGO ROGALL
Sabine	ROSE URAWZ
Walter Lenz	HANS STOCK
Antonie	CAMILLA DALBERG
Bernard Gempe	HANS ANDRESEN
Fritz Fleming	RUDOLF LEYRER
Dr. Crusius	MAX BEHREND
Frau Dr. Crusius	BETTY L'ARRONGE
Rector Arnstädt	BRUNO WIBURGER
Frau Rector Arnstädt	IDA WEISS
Marthe	GRETE LANGFEILD
A Decorator	KARL BERGER
A Servant	ROLF YVERSON

The management of the German Theatre acted wisely in selecting for their opening performance Blumenthal and Kadelburg's singularly witty and successful comedy Grossstadtluft, which might be translated with "Town and Village." The plot of this exhilarating play is quickly narrated. The action opens in a room at Walther Lenz's, a solicitor in Berlin. His friend, Mr Schröter, a rich manufacturer from the provinces, and his daughter Sabine, are staying with him. Sabine is in love with Fleming a young engineer, who proposes to her. Sabine, of course, accepts him, but her father at first refuses, Fleming being a native of Berlin, and Schröter knowing well what town Berlin is. In the end he yields, however, being talked over by Lenz, Lenz himself, who is a married man, has been leading a somewhat loose life; his wife Antonie had found him out a year ago, but had wisely refrained from making any scenes. Now, however, that the probation year is over, she emphatically declares that the first time he again deceives her she would leave him.

In the second act we are at Ludwigswalde, the home of Mr Schröter. Sabine and Fleming are married and are living with her father, who had only given his child to Fleming on condition that he should leave the dangerous town and live with him. Fleming, who is honestly in love with his wife, is, of course, bored to death in the dull provincial town. He finds a sympathetic friend in the physician, whom a similar fate in his youth had brought to Ludwigswalde. The doctor promises to do his best to get him away. Enter Antonie, who, to teach a lesson to her incorrigible husband, has run away in company with her cousin Bernhard. The doctor's trick to get Fleming away under the pretext of illness is found out by Schröter. In the third act the inhabitants of Ludwigswalde are scandalised to learn that a woman, run away from her husband, is staying at Mr Schröter's house. Fleming has firmly made up his mind to leave the place and take a house in Berlin. Meanwhile Lenz comes to see his wife and ask her forgiveness, which she eventually grants, seeing that he is sincere in his contrition.

The fourth act takes place at Berlin, where Fleming is supervising all the preparations for the reception of his wife, for whom he is longing. He is about to go to Ludwigswalde and fetch her, when she appears in the door; she has secretly left her father's house to meet her husband. Suddenly Mr Schröter is announced; he comes to fetch Fleming back to Ludwigswalde, and finds, to his surprise, that his daughter has joined her husband; but he is eventually reconciled to their idea of living in town.

It will be seen that the story, albeit by no means new, is straightforward and sufficiently amusing to serve as a vehicle for the famous authors' ingenuity in creating comical situations and inventing brilliant dialogue. The play was on the whole capitally acted by Misses Dalberg, L'Arronge, Crawz, and by Messrs Rogall, Behrend, Leyrer, and Andresen, who had a particularly hearty welcome. It might, if well adapted, be a success on the English stage.

AT the Grand, Hanley, the Magic Kettle is meeting with much success. Grais' baboons do a most interesting turn; Arthur Gilbert does well with his nicely rendered songs; Flo Chevalier is a smart comedienne; Barnard's Marionettes are much appreciated; Harry Edson, with his cleverly trained dog Doc, meets with his usual success; Arthur Machin, the handcuff king, is exceedingly smart in his line of business; Alf Gibson meets with favour in his really funny songs; and the Korries in their new act merit the applause they receive.

THE prohibition by the police authorities of Berlin of the performance of the piece Der tote Löwe, by Herr Oskar Blumenthal, has been confirmed by the Governor of the province of Brandenburg, to whom the author and the manager of the Berliner Theatre appealed. The Governor, in giving his decision, states that in a monarchical government it is impossible to allow political events, such as the resignation of Prince Bismarck, to be made the subject of dramatic treatment. It is more than clear that Herr Blumenthal's drama, in spite of the fact that it is placed in Spain in the fourteenth century, is a dramatic representation of the fall of the Iron Chancellor. The officials, who are responsible for public order in Berlin, cannot therefore allow this piece to be performed. Herr Blumenthal and the manager of the Berliner Theatre have now appealed to the Administrative Court of Appeal against the Governor's decision.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

MRS DAN LENO, through our columns, wishes to tender her heartfelt thanks to those who sent such beautiful floral tributes, also to the many hundreds who forwarded sympathetic telegrams and letters of condolence on the loss of her dear husband, whom she feels was held in such great respect by all.

ONE of the late-lamented comedian's last acts of kindness was to visit the Belgrave Hospital for Children, at Kennington, to leave a donation. This happened on the day before he took to his bed.

AMONG the many wreaths sent to poor Leno was one from two old friends at Oldham, with whom Dan spent many of his early days. It consisted of a pair of clogs covered in violets, white moss rose, and lillies of the valley. The card was inscribed "To the king of clogs, from two old friends with old remembrances."

ATTACHED to the floral tribute sent by Mr Claude Trevelyan was a card bearing the following appreciative lines:

In Memoriam.
DAN LENO.
(George Galvin.)
1861—1904.

D ear to us all wert thou whose mobile mood
A ttuned the whole wide world to mirth at will,
N or ever, in thy maddest, merriest strains,

L et humour stoop to sting one homely heart.
E 'er shall we miss "The Jester of the King!"
N or cease remembrance of that kindly "hand
O pen as day for melting charity!"

A THOUGHT that is uppermost in the minds of the friends of the late Dan Leno is the establishment of some memorial that would perpetuate his name. As he was ever ready, at immense personal sacrifice, to give his services in aid of charitable funds of all kinds, it is proposed by some that subscriptions should be asked for the formation of a permanent charitable bequest, to be called the Dan Leno Fund. This would be similar to the Adelaide Neilson bequest, and would be invested in the names of trustees and devoted to the aid of cases of severe misfortune among members of the variety profession. Another suggestion is the establishment of a Dan Leno pension for aged comic singers, for which election would have to be sought; and still another proposal is the formation of a fund for the education and maintenance of orphans of deceased members of the profession. Either suggestion, if carried out, would shed lustre on the memory of a comedian whose hand ever followed the promptings of his heart in the cause of the poor and afflicted.

THE Lyceum Christmas production is to be Enoch Arden, the subject being, of course, taken from the late Lord Tennyson's poem. Mr George Leyton will be seen in the title-rôle. The monologue will be in three scenes, and will be from the pen of Mr J. P. Harrington, the music being composed by Mr Bennett Scott. Messrs Francis and Day have purchased the words and music. For the first time during their existence they will issue the whole monologue complete to the public in book form at the price of 6d. The subject is an entirely new one, and it will be a fresh experience for the popular Mr George Leyton to undertake the delineation of so serious—even pathetic—a character. Hitherto we have seen him as warlike heroes from Henry V. down to Wellington. Whether he will become at the Lyceum a hero whose beard "the silver hand of peace hath touched" remains to be seen.

MR FRANK HEATH is working energetically in the promotion of a memorial of the late Mr Herbert Campbell. It will take the form of a bust, which, it is proposed, shall be placed in the vestibule of Drury-lane Theatre, where the deceased comedian played in pantomime for so many years. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr Edward Ledger, the hon. treasurer, care of The Era, 49, Wellington-street, Strand.

A SPECIAL performance in aid of the management expenses of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be given at Collins's on Friday, Dec. 9, by permission of the proprietors, Messrs Richards, Burney, and Co. Already a number of well-known artistes have promised their valuable services. It will be remembered that the late Mr Herbert Campbell was a member of this fund almost from the year of its formation, and held the position of president for a long period. According to the terms of the Friendly Societies Acts none of the subscriptions of members can be appropriated for the necessary expenses incurred in the management, including secretary's salary, postage, &c. We feel sure that no sick or provident fund is carried on with such a small outlay. A weekly contribution of 6d. secures a sum of £1 per week while a member is laid aside by illness; and for a weekly subscription of 9d. the sick pay is 30s. The sum of £10 is paid to the nearest relative on the death of a member. The president of the fund is Mr Pat Carey, the well-known Irish comedian; and the hon. treasurer is Mr Frank Heath.

THE bold Mr Frank Macnaghten, in taking over the Surrey and making it into a theatre of varieties on the two houses a-night principle, has stepped in where Mr Walter Stephens has feared to tread. But the latter gentleman has submitted plans, through Messrs Owen and Ward, to the Council for a proposed music hall at the junction of Lewisham High-street and Limes-grove. The latter thoroughfare is at present a cul-de-sac, and the site will not comply with the Council's regulations unless this road be continued to Clarendon-road, a distance of about sixty yards. The building is planned with seating accommodation for 1,642 persons, and the exit arrangements will comply with the regulations. Lewisham, which is rapidly increasing in population, has at present neither theatre nor music hall, the nearest places of entertainment being at Greenwich and New-cross.

THE executive committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association, under Rule 26, convene an extraordinary general meeting of the members of that association for the purpose of electing an honorary president for 1904-5, in the place of the late Mr Dan Leno. All nominations must be sent in to the chairman of the executive committee, M.H.A.R.A., 28, Wellington-street, Strand, on or before Tuesday, Nov. 22. Such nominations must bear the signature of two or more members of the association, and must be accompanied with the written consent of the nominee.

THE new members of the committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association are mostly members of the fraternity of Water Rats, who will form a powerful progressive party in opposition to the moderates, who wish to confine the Association to the limitations marked out by the railway authorities themselves. The nineteen newcomers include Joe Elvin, Wal Pink, Phil Ray, James Finney, Fred M'Naughton, Fred Griffiths, Bob Leonard, Fred Russell, Tom M'Naughton, R. G. Knowles, George Booker, J. O'Gorman, Cliff Ryland, Michael Nolan, Paul Martinetti, Pat Rafferty, Harry Freeman, and Frank Gerald. Mr Eugene Stratton polled 953 votes.

MISS VESTA TILLEY has just acquired a song by that rising composer Kenneth Lyle, entitled "The Right Kind of Girl." The composer had the privilege of himself playing the composition over to the great artist, and it was instantly secured. Mr Lyle's work is in great request, and his individuality and style make for future greatness. His "Statue in Trafalgar-square" is an exemplification of what he is capable of.

THROUGH the magistrates having refused to renew the licence of the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, if run on variety lines, all artists holding contracts are desired to at once put themselves in communication with G. and F. Peel, Granville House, Arundel-street, W.C., without delay.

MESSRS PETER LECKIE AND A. H. WATERHOUSE are opening the King's Theatre of Varieties, Liverpool, on Boxing Day, Dec. 26. The house is an old one with a new name, and has been known for many years as the Roscommon, but it is undergoing thorough repair and redecoration, and new scenery and the electric light will be installed. A grand special company is booked for the opening, under the general management of Arthur H. Waterhouse.

THE proprietors of the Tivoli Theatre of Varieties, High Shields (Mr J. K. Hall and Mr Joe. Sweeney) were the defendants in an action at Nottingham County Court on Wednesday, Frederick and Florence Mason, known in the profession as Paul Pry and Marie St. John, suing them for £10 damages for breach of contract. Dr. Lindley appeared for plaintiffs and Mr Barlow for the defendants.

MR BARLOW raised the question of the court's jurisdiction, and said, as the contract was signed by the defendant at South Shields, and the breach, if any, took place at South Shields, the Shields court was the proper place of action. This was disputed by Dr. Lindley, who explained that the defendant's agent advertised in The Era for artists to perform at the Tivoli Theatre of Varieties, South Shields. The plaintiff communicated with him and terms were arranged. It was customary in the theatrical and music hall professions for two agreements to be signed, one by the artist and the other by the management. The two were necessary to the contract, and as part of the contract was thus entered into at Nottingham, he submitted the action could be tried here. Further, solicitors who were acting before Mr Barlow was engaged acknowledged the court's jurisdiction by making an interrogatory application before the Registrar, and by their action the defendant was bound. This contention the judge upheld.

THE evidence was that plaintiffs contracted to perform at Shields during the week commencing May 16, and sent matter for the bills on April 30 On May 2 they received a telegram, "Tivoli closed for rebuilding. See last Saturday's Era. Second week's notice. All engagements cancelled." It was then too late to book elsewhere, and they therefore went on the date arranged to Shields and found the theatre had been sublet for a month. A short time ago they applied for another engagement (which was promised in the advertisement to all artists whose engagements had had to be cancelled), and it was owing to the new manager holding he was not bound by that that the action was brought. Judgment was given for the plaintiffs, and the judge certified for counsel.

"THE old Mayor out and the new Mayor in," together with "God save the King," were the popular themes throughout the country on Wednesday, and in no town in the country were these anniversaries celebrated with greater enthusiasm than at Stoke-on-Trent. Amid cordial greetings and flattering compliments Mr A. Lynam retired from one of the most successful years of office, and as a parting gift Mr Frank Egerton, on behalf of Mr Patrick Collins, of the Hippodrome, tendered him a cheque for £47 7s. 4d., the result of the sacred concert given on Oct. 15 last. This was the fourth benefit tendered in aid of the local charities during the short space of six months. In responding to the enthusiastic toasting of Mr Collins's health Mr Egerton assured Mr Risely, the coming mayor, that the Stoke Hippodrome would ever be at the disposal of any and every cause upon which philanthropy and charity had a claim.

MR E. J. DEXTER, the able manager of the Gaiety Theatre, Oldham, has established matinées every Tuesday, and judging from the attendance at last Tuesday's performance there is every appearance of the innovation being a permanent success. Should this good fortune not be brought about, we may be certain that it will not be for lack of zeal, diligence, or enterprise on Mr Dexter's part.

IT will be of interest to the patrons of the Royal Theatre of Varieties, Oldham, and the numerous personal friends of Mr George Knowles, to know of the high compliment which was paid to that popular acting-manager on Saturday. As a token of the respect and esteem in which he is held by the staff he was presented with a beautiful morocco dressing-case, a silver-mounted briar pipe, and tobacco pouch.

MR H. A. JORDISON (the well-known pantomime producer and managing director of the Empire Theatrical Agency, Limited), accompanied by Mr Shackleton, estate agent of the Calico Printers' Association, Manchester, was looking at the new exits at St. James's Theatre, Manchester, on Thursday, the 3rd inst., when he fell between two joists, a distance of some 4ft. or 5ft., and injured his leg rather seriously. We are glad to state he is making rapid progress, and the doctor gives him hope of being out again next week.

FISHING for four hours in private waters near Worcester, on Friday of last week, Mr Albert Bushell, the popular manager of the Gaiety Theatre, Birmingham, caught fourteen pike, weighing in the aggregate 140lbs. The fish, which were remarkably fine specimens, were on exhibit at the Gaiety on Friday evening, the 4th inst. Wal Pink, Tom Holmes, Ernest Shand, Chirgwin, Paul Martinetti, Barney Vox, 'Gene Stratton, and a few others, please note

MR TOM PRICHARD, of the Empire, Dudley, on Tuesday evening, spoke from the stage concerning the late Mr Leno, as follows:—"To-day Dan Leno has been carried to the grave, and the music hall stage has lost its most splendid star. His untimely death came as a particular shock to us in Dudley, inasmuch as he was a sponsor at the birth of our Empire, when, on that occasion, in his own inimitable style, he honoured these boards. He has gone from us, leaving a place which will not be easily filled, and we are left rich in kindly memories of happy evenings he has made for us. Let us then give to his memory at least the tribute of one moment's silent homage." A fine portrait of the deceased comedian was shown.

THE fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Inkerman was celebrated on the 4th by the members of the Bristol Crimean and Indian Mutiny Veterans' Association, who, by the kindness of a number of friends, were enabled to dine together at their headquarters, Orchard-street, St. Augustine's. A good number of the old soldiers were present. After dinner, Captain Norman, in an interesting address, recalled many memories of the momentous struggle. Afterwards the veterans attended a performance at the People's Palace, where, by the kindness of the management, seats had been reserved for them. The entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed, and the patriotic song by Mr George Leyton came in for special marks of appreciation. At this stage of the proceedings Mr Horace Livermore, accompanied by the Rev. J. Wain and Mr W. S. Paul, appeared on the stage, and the former extended a hearty welcome to the members of the Bristol Veterans' Association. The Rev. J. Wain stated that the proceeds of the sale of Mr Leyton's songs which would be sold in the hall would be given to the funds of the Association.

MR JOSEPH LYONS, who has invariably shown great interest in the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, was unanimously elected as president of the fund for the ensuing year. We may be sure that such an excellent organiser and such a lover of the stage will do his best to secure a record year for a charity that has such constant and ever-increasing calls upon its exchequer. Mr Lyons has twice occupied the chair at the annual dinner.

MR J. C. COE, proprietor of the Hammersmith Palace, is by way of increasing his responsibilities, as we are given to understand that he has become managing director of the company running the Grand, Fulham. This theatre will open as a music hall on the twice-nightly plan on Monday, Nov. 28. Mr Jack De Frece, of the Metropole, Camberwell, and formerly of the London Shoreditch, will be general manager, and will fill a similar position at Hammersmith.

AT the benefit given to the late Mr Charles Morton on March 19, 1891, at the Alhambra, the result was announced as a sum that did not quite reach a thousand pounds; but as the list of subscriptions was kept open for some little time after the benefit, it is believed that sum was reached. The amount realised by the entertainment at the memorial matinée on Tuesday, it is anticipated, will swell to four figures, so that Mrs Morton's monetary resources, which are stated to be very slender, will receive a very welcome addition.

MR JACK EDGAR, we may again remind our readers, takes his annual benefit at the Metropolitan on Thursday next, the 17th, when he announces a special programme of immense attractiveness. It is always a popular celebration, and one that invariably attracts a packed house.

F. V. ST. CLAIR, who has just become owner of the Hawse Tor Farm and Moorland, in the Westmorland lake district, reminds us that he procured the biggest salary (on paper) for the late Dan Leno which that famous comedian ever received. It was for the Hop Pole Gardens at Norwich, the year that Dan won the clog-dancing championship. It happened in this way. F. V. was appointed by Mr Harper, the proprietor, to engage the talent for the Assize Galas. He engaged Dan at £12 10s. per week, but when the contract arrived from Mr Harper, that gentleman, who was very illiterate, and ignorant of the rules of punctuation, had made it to read "£1210 weekly." This contract is reproduced in one of the many books published on the life of the famous comedian.

MR ST. CLAIR considers that he owes a great deal of his success on the stage to the late comedian's parents. He was engaged with Dan at "Old Jeffs," at Rochdale, the week after the championship contest. Mrs Jeffreys used to give her favourites a gold locket medal, and Dan was selected to receive one on the Friday (his benefit) night. F. V. was chosen to make the presentation, and in a telling speech he informed the audience that a certain competitor had stopped Dan in the Briggate, Leeds, and told him "That if an angel came down from heaven he (the speaker) could not be defeated," but he was defeated that very night, and by Little Dan. Mr Leno (the father) was so delighted with St. Clair's remarks that he procured him something like a dozen contracts for the Scotia, Glasgow; Day's, Birmingham; Star, Liverpool; &c. That was over twenty years ago, and F. V., who has never looked back since, often thinks that if he had not met the Leno Family at Rochdale he might to day be dispensing medicine behind the counter of a country chemist's shop, as he was seriously thinking, if contracts came in no faster than they were doing, of returning to his old profession.

A LARGE audience at the Palace on Monday welcomed Mr Arthur Roberts with much heartiness in a comedietta, which has been specially written for the popular comedian by Captain Basil Hood. Let it be said at once that the distinguished author has taken Mr Roberts's measure exactly, and has supplied him with an excellent vehicle for his mirth in the character of Brummagem Jem, from whom the trifle takes its name.

JEM intrudes at a Paris hotel on the privacy of a great traveller named Clutterbuck. This celebrated globe-trotter has engaged rooms for himself and his wife, who is hourly expected. Unknown to Clutterbuck, a lady journalist desirous of interviewing him has passed herself off as his spouse, and thereby gained admission to his rooms, where she is hiding. Of course she interviews the wrong man, and an amusing conversation ensues between her and Jem, the commercial. When asked if he has obtained any "orders" he does not understand her to mean decorations, and she is shocked when he produces a jewelled "garter" for her inspection. The interview has a pleasant, even a sentimental termination, the union of the happy couple being a foregone conclusion at the curtain falls. Mr Roberts is genuinely funny and amusing in his own way as the commercial traveller, and Miss Ruby Celeste makes a charming representative of the lady journalist, Anna Byers. Mr Stanley Damerell does well as Manley Clutterbuck; and Mr O. E. Lennon is quaint as the hotel manager.

MR HARRY BAWN has good cause to remember Nov. 5. "For the sake of the little one at home" he had prepared a pyrotechnic display, and shortly after commencing it he discovered to his surprise that a stray firework had found its way into one of his rooms, where it exploded, and in very quick time had started what promised to be a serious outbreak. In a hurried endeavour to pull down burning curtains, &c. both his hands were badly burned, but fortunately he was able to prevent the fire spreading beyond the destruction of the contents of the room in which the excitement commenced. Although both his hands are bandaged Mr Bawn has been able to put in full time at the Grand, Clapham.

WE regret to announce the death of Professor Edmunda, the singing ventriloquist, who passed away on Monday at a comparatively early age. The deceased gentleman appeared occasionally in London, but was better known in the provinces, where he was a great favourite.

MR HARRY BURNS, dramatic and variety agent, had a very successful business tour last week, ending in £3,600 worth of bookings in the Midlands in four days.

MR BRANSBY WILLIAMS, who was a great friend and admirer of the late Mr Dan Leno, was unable to accept the invitation to attend the funeral in consequence of his engagement with Mr D. J. Clarke, at the Argyle, Birkenhead. Mr Clarke could not see his way clear to releasing his star turn for the night. Mr Williams, who sent a letter of condolence and a wreath, has been presented with an original pen and ink sketch of Mr Dan Leno, in one of his most successful female impersonations, the work of Mr W. Hartley.

INTO his nightly entertainment Mr Bransby Williams introduces a powerful dramatic poem entitled "Devil-May-Care," written by Charles H. Taylor, the author of "Commissionaire" and many musical comedy lyrics, the music being by Mr Cuthbert Clarke, chef d'orchestre at the Empire. It is an immense success, and will shortly be published.

MR GEORGE BASTOW will produce on his return to London a new song, entitled "'Cos I'm one of them there funny sort o' chaps!" The words and music are from the pen of William Hargreaves, who is now engaged upon a new dialogue song for the same popular comedian.

THE Lord Provost of Edinburgh has appointed Mr Horace Edward Moss, J.P., of Ormelie, Edinburgh, and Middleton, Mid-Lothian, to be a deputy-lieutenant of the County of the City of Edinburgh. It is not necessary to inform our readers that Mr Moss is the chairman of Moss's Empires and the popular manager of the London Hippodrome.

THE long-promised production of Mr Todd of London in the Metropolis is to take place on Monday, when the new and startling sketch will be seen both at the Canterbury and the Islington Empire. The large sets for what Mr John Lawson calls an illusion will be put on at the big establishment across the Bridge, and the smaller sets will be shown at Upper-street. Mrs John Lawson will make her reappearance shortly in the production, A Bride for a Living.

MR ERNEST SHAND has accepted for immediate production a new song of a most whimsical character, specially written for him by Messrs John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn, entitled "She said 'Look ——!'" which song this popular comedian confidently anticipates will be as successful as anything in the répertoire of vocal "plums" with which he is about to enter upon his pantomime engagement this year. Messrs Harrington and Le Brunn have also equipped Miss Katie Lawrence with a new low comedy number, entitled "The butcher kept his eye on 'Liza."

A CORRESPONDENT writes:—"In none of the many notices of the late Dan Leno that have come under my observation during the past fortnight have I seen any reference to his impersonation of Black-eyed Susan. The play, burlesque, travesty—what you will—was Two Lovely Black-Eyed Susan, written by Horace Lennard, composed by Oscar Barrett, and produced by the latter gentleman during his tenure of the Crystal Palace Theatre. The title of the piece, I may mention, was suggested by Charles Coborn's song, "Two lovely black eyes," Dan made a great success at the Palace during the six nights—or was it days?—the play ran, and shortly afterwards it was produced at a special matinée at the Strand Theatre. But he was heavily handicapped on that occasion by a violent cold, and only rose by the exercise of his indomitable will from his bed at midday in time to reach the theatre. He played with wonderful pluck, but utterly collapsed at the end of the trying performance."

MISS MARIE DAINTON has scored an enormous hit in the new opera, Peggy Machree, and therein has introduced two charming songs, "By the old oak tree" and "Honeymoon Hall." The latter is by John W. Brutton, whose songs, "Maud" and "My cosy corner girl," have found such favour in musical comedy. Miss Dainton has found in this number a song which will doubtless attain the popularity of the other successes of this popular composer.

MISS MADGE LESSING, the original "Rosy Posy," will to-night introduce in Sergeant Brue at the Prince of Wales's Theatre an American song, entitled "Lucy Linda Lady," by the eminent American song-writer, Dan Reed, jun. Miss Lessing is most careful in her selection of songs, and in this number will doubtless add another flower to her vocal bouquet.

TO sing eight songs a-night—four in each house—is a little unusual in this time of lightning programmes. This, however, has been demanded by enthusiastic audiences of Miss Rachel Lowe at a leading provincial music hall. To please the public is the delight of every artiste, so Miss Lowe and her famous duck, Hoppy, must be correspondingly happy.

THE Hippodrome, Brighton, football team played on Tuesday a match with the Brighton Alhambra, on the ground of the Brighton and Hove Albion Football Club. The game, which was for the sake of sweet charity, was witnessed by a large crowd, and a close contest resulted in favour of the Hippodrome boys by five goals to two.

MISS MARGARET RADCLIFFE has been appearing with conspicuous success during the past fortnight at the Empire, Edinburgh, and goes to play in pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, at the termination of her present tour of the Moss Empires.

MRS ALLAN M'ASKILL has had one continual relapse. Her case was regarded as hopeless last Sunday. She has outlived the relapse. Now the doctors fear heart failure. Oxygen is given to her every twenty minutes at enormous cost. Her husband was detained from proceeding to Greenock as late as last Sunday evening.

MR W. G. HURST has opened a school of physical culture and gymnastics at Olympia, Victoria-road, New Brighton. It is fitted complete with every requisite for all kinds of gymnastic work for pros., who can practice in the fine, bracing air of New Brighton. It is only a mile or two from Liverpool, and can be reached from that town in twenty minutes by boat or train.

THERE is much diversity of costume to be seen on the Palace Theatre stage just now. Mdlle. Marsalskaja opens the ball in a gipsy suit of glaring, but effective colours—canary yellow, vivid cerise, and deep blue. Miss Bertha Palliser, who is the next lady to appear, wears a glittering dress of white satin, covered with white silk net flecked with silver. The coral balls, hanging like pale-pink cherries from her ears, are decidedly a happy thought. The Palace Girls make their first entrance in frocks that are both smart and pretty, being a combination of bright red rose and delicate pink, much befrilled, their lamp-shade bonnets being adorned with chiffon strings and bunches of roses under the brim. Miss Daisy Jerome wears a Paris "creation" of pale blue, elaborately embroidered with pearls. There are only two ladies in the cast of Brummagem Jem, Captain Basil Hood's traveller's tale. Miss Ruby Celeste plays the part of Miss Anna Byers, of the Daily Female, and looks the character of the vivacious lady journalist to the life in her white serge frock with a pointed turquoise blue velvet belt, and a big black hat with snowy ostrich plumes. Miss Lucy Webling as Mrs Clutterbuck wears a smart travelling coat with collar and cuffs of cerise velvet, her hat being white velvet trimmed with touches of black and a broad buckle. The dainty little magpie frocks—black and white—of the Three Pierrettes, in The Follies, are a welcome change from the usual chiffons and spangles of costume parties.

MISS DAISY JEROME, who reappeared at the Palace Theatre on Monday evening after her Continental tour, is a little American girl still in her teens. She comes from New York, and has already "experimented" in musical comedy, pantomime, and variety work, all her experiments turning out a success. She started in The Pierrot's Life as a child pantomimist, and, after an interval of school in Germany, went on the stage in sober earnest, her first opportunity occuring at the Lyric Theatre, when Miss Ada Reeve suddenly lost her voice, the day after the production of The Medal and the Maid, and little Daisy Jerome played her part for six nights. Miss Reeve presented her with a silver mirror as a souvenir of this exciting occasion; the admiration of Mr Sydney Elliston, who produced the musical comedy, took the form of a circle brooch of pearls; while the author gave her a two-pound piece, the clasp, on a red ribbon, being engraved with these words:—"For daringly entering the breach and rescuing her comrades from disaster this Medal is presented to the Maid by Owen Hall."

THE first meeting of the newly elected committee of the Music Hall Artistes Railway Association will be held on Tuesday next at one o'clock, when all the members in London are particularly requested to attend.

A DEPUTATION from the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association was present at the funeral of the late Mr Dan Leno, who had been president of the society since its formation, eight years ago. The following were in the four carriages:—Messrs F. W. Millis (Vice-President), Douglas White (Hon. Treasurer), and Pat Carey, C. C. Cornish, H. Mountford, Bob Hutt, Chas. Gardiner, J. C. Jimsor, Harry Blake (who travelled from Leicester to be present), Joe Lavender, and C. Douglas Stuart (Secretary). The floral emblem of respect from the Association was a handsome white and violet cross.

MR ROLAND YORKE AND MISS GERTRUDE BONSER have fully copyrighted and protected an original dramatic scena entitled Napoleon, in four tableaux, and its success has been immediate. The principal crises in the great little Corsican's life, culminating in the disastrous retreat at Waterloo, are shown in a dream. Mr Yorke makes an excellent Napoleon, and Miss Bonser is a pathetic and tender Josephine. The costumes are by Messrs Willie Clarkson, Morris Angel, and H. and M. Rayne, and there are five special scenes.

AT the matinée given on Wednesday, at the Palace, Blackpool, for the benefit of the Chief Constable's Poor Children's Clothing Fund, a special prologue was spoken by Mr Cyril Chantler. It was from the pen of Mr George E. Martin, of the Tower Palace, and its delivery evoked frequent outbursts of applause. The function was promoted by the Theatrical and Music Hall Sports Committee, of which Mr Geo. H. Harrop was chairman. Mr Henry Sharrock and Mr Tom Brunskill acted as hon. treasurer and hon. secretary respectively. Among the turns entertaining were Winifred Hare, Sam Mayo, Signor and Madame Borelli, Miss Lena Verdi, Atlas and Vulcana, Tom E. Murray, Grell and Grey, Rita and Rôme, Curtis and Vanity, and The Little Charwoman sketch.

DR. WALFORD BODIE has just concluded a very happy week's holiday at his beautiful Highland home, Macduff. Before leaving he gave a grand supper and dance to his tenantry. He is one of the most popular landlords in the North. While in Macduff last week the doctor's solicitor, Mr J. J. George, Town Clerk of Macduff, arranged with Marshall and Mackenzie, the famous architects of Aberdeen, for plans to be drawn for the erection of a grand new mansion in Macduff. To secure his ground the doctor will have to pull down four large dwelling-houses. The mansion will be used as his private residence.

HE opened on Monday at the Palace Theatre, Glasgow, which is one of the largest theatres in the provinces, and at both houses the huge building was packed to suffocation, hundreds having to be turned away. Despite the fact that this is his sixteenth visit to the city, the doctor seems to gain in popularity every visit.

MISS AGNES MOLTENO the well-known and favourite prima donna, is producting next week at the Metropole, Camberwell, a new and original scena, entitled "Edna's Dream." The music is written and arranged by Denham Harrison, and the words are by Roland Carse. In this Miss Molteno has three or four lightning changes, and she plays the piano, and sings in two quite different styles. There should be much success in store for the novelty.

THE popular artiste, Miniature Marie (the daughter of Mr Frank Egerton), and now the wife of Lieutenant C. T. Smith, is the proud mother of a son and heir, who was born on Monday. Mr and Mrs Smith have received a number of telegrams of congratulation from their numerous professional friends.

CHEEVERS AND KENNEDY, who were such favourites at the Cambridge during the late Mr Will Riley's time, open at the London, Shoreditch, on Monday. Many years have elapsed since they last appeared in the East.

MISS FLORRIE GALLIMORE, the popular comedienne, returns from a successful tour in the provinces to-morrow, and will make her reappearance at the Bedford on Monday to the delight of her admirers. She will be very busy while in town.

MRS ABE HOLT, widow of the late comedian of that name, desires, through our columns, to thank the Brothers Edgar for the sum £3 15s. collected by them, and also to acknowledge the kindness of the following ladies and gentlemen who helped her in her trouble:—The Waldrons (Joe and Ettie), Alf Chester, Pat Rafferty, Daisy de Roy, Paul Courtney, the M'Connell Trio, May Henderson, Mr Cussick (Palls and Cussick), and Mr Phillips (Phillips and Terry).

THE Liverpool Coroner held an inquest on Wednesday on the body of Harriet Parkhurst, aged twenty, a music hall artist. It was stated that the deceased travelled with two music hall artists, and at her own wish was trained for the profession. She was not successful, and became despondent. On Monday, after a quarrel, she took salts of lemon, writing to her sister in London that her temper had got the better of her. A verdict of suicide whilst temporarily insane was returned.

A BILLIARD contest between several of the artists engaged this week at the Empire, Rochdale, took place on Thursday at the Wardleworth Liberal Club (by permission of the secretary), resulting in a victory for the Empire artists by 112 points. Score:—Empire,—Fred Harcourt, 150; Gus Hindell, 149; and Will Kydd, 150; total, 449. Circus,—Little Dando, 104; Sid Bandon, 150; and Paddy Lang, 83; total, 337.

OWING to the loss en voyage from Dublin to the Empire, Liverpool, of a portion of their luggage, the Smytheons were, on Monday, placed in an unenviable quandary, and were unable to play the sketch The Lie Alarm, for which they were billed. However, with admirable promptitude they at once purchased fresh costumes and the necessary properties, and performed their sketch, Our Suite, to the plaudits of the huge audience assembled.

MR E. J. MACDERMOTT, son of the late Mr G. H. Macdermott, has purchased the agency founded by and run under the direction of his father.

MR ARTHUR PRINCE, the well-known ventriloquist, has been on the sick-list this week. He was unable to answer his number at the London Pavilion on Monday, and indisposition prevented his appearance at the Morton Memorial matinée on Tuesday.

MR T. P. DUIGNAN, the late manager of the Blackpool Hippodrome under Signor Pepi, has been appointed as acting-manager of the Bow Palace by Mr Frank Macnaghten, and left the popular Lancashire seaside resort on Monday to take up his new duties. Before his departure he was presented on Sunday night at the Lane Ends Hotel, Blackpool, with an illuminated address and a purse of gold. The testimonial, an artistic piece of work, was signed by Messrs G. H. Harrop, the popular Lancashire caterer and manager; F. Waller, J. Tranter, A. M. Fletcher, R. Nickson, Dr. Calvert, H. Powell Jones, Colonel Leslie, F. T. Rundall, J. E. H. Gorst, H. Brooke, H. Hawkins, and Tom Brunskill. Mr C. Morgan, who succeeds Mr Duignan at Blackpool, comes from Barrow-in-Furness

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

LONDON PAVILION.

It is evident that Mr Frank Glenister in his scheme of amusement at the fine house in Piccadilly-circus gives the widest possible interpretation to the word variety; for we have jugglers, an impressionist, comic singers, burlesque artistes, patterers, instrumentalists, and a remarkably funny skit. The last mentioned is presented by Mr Harry Tate, whose humorous powers, which were shown to such advantage in Motoring, have experienced further developments in Fishing, which is received with shouts of laughter. The scene, which is from the artistic brush of Mr W. T. Hemsley, is a backwater on the Thames. Mr Tate is accompanied in his angling expedition by a professional fisherman, and there is enough refreshment in the way of strong drink to stock an ordinary public house. The amateur has the very best of tackle and plenty of groundbait in the way of bread, which is thrown from the punt in great quantities—thus perpetuating the ancient connection between loaves and fishes. The amateur Isaak Walton, owing to his eagerness to get at the bait, is unable to free his hand from the tin pot containing it, and as he at the same time hooks himself in that portion of the anatomy known as the seat of honour, the situation is ludicrous enough. But the unkindest comment of all on the elaborate methods of the fly thrower is the success of the "village idiot," a hobbledehoy who throws snuff on the water and kills the fish when they come up to sneeze. But we need go no further in our description of a piece of tooling that loses its point in analysis. Mr Tate is exceedingly funny, and the generous encouragement meted out to him is well deserved. When, through the action of the theatres, sketches with plots are forbidden on the variety stage, it is well to be able to rely on comedians with so much resource as Mr Tate to supply such a plotless and harmless piece of nonsense as Fishing. The gentleman who plays the professional angler, and who calls himself George Washington, is entitled to a word of praise, and the youngster appearing as the village idiot does all that is demanded of him with unconscious humour. Miss Ida René, who has returned from a successful visit to America, is one of the greatest favourites at the London Pavilion, and her appearance is greeted with warm applause. She sings once again "The Rake's Progress," with its plentiful references to the devil and hell, and the dramatic strength of the number has increased since we last heard the fair singer, who also gives much charm to a lyric that may be labelled "Divine Comedy." Mr Malcolm Scott, with his amusing comments on the Beck case, the Dogger Bank tragedy, the actor-manager system—with special reference to Mr Tree and a burlesque of his style of acting—and a skit on the latest Pinero play, supplies a clever, bright and sparkling interlude, into which he further introduces a skit on Mr Hall Caine's drama The Christian. Miss Millie Lindon's charming song "The rain came pitter-patter down," with its idyllic story of love and faithfulness, enables her to score a great success, which is further added to by another well-written number which may be entitled "The cat took another sardine"—a proceeding made quite easy by the easily understood preoccupation of a courting couple. Miss Lindon's articulation is clear and distinct, her singing never forced or harsh, and the hearty recalls of the delighted audience set the seal on a success that is thoroughly well deserved. Miss Alice Pierce is back again with "impressions" of theatrical favourites, which include Mr Tree as Caliban, Miss Stella Gastelle, in La Poupée, and Miss Edna May in The Schoolgirl. We are quite sure the last-mentioned lady is more distinct in her utterance than Miss Pierce, who winds up her entertainment with an imitation of Miss Lena Ashwell in the prison scene of Tolstoi's Resurrection, produced last year at His Majesty's. High-class instrumentalism is always favoured at the London Pavilion, and we again have to recognise the excellent concertina playing of Mr Percy Honri, who is fulfilling a return engagement. Since his last visit to the London Pavilion, Mr Honri has been to the other side of "the pond," and has come back with his artistic powers deepened and his executive facilities ripened. After a little trifling in the way of imitations of bag-pipes and the curate who sings a version of "He don't know where he are" to the strains of "The Lost Chord," the concertinist gets to such serious work as the two final dances from Edward German's incidental music written for the Lyceum production of Henry the Eighth. Technique and expression are admirable, and the player may be congratulated on a success won by the most artistic means. The Zanettos, jugglers, return to repeat their great success, and a similar compliment may be paid to Mr Walter Bellonini. The Rales open the bill with some excellent dancing; Mr William Gourlay, comedian and dancer, burlesques the drama amusingly; Rich and Rich have some excellent patter; Mr Norman French's sand dance has many touches of eccentricity; and Nipper Lupino Lane is a clever descendant of a family renowned in dramatic and music hall annals. Mr George Mozart presents a capital skit entitled "Going to the Races;" Mr Edwin Boyde presents an old song with success; Ernesto astonishes with his juggling and balancing feats; and Miss May Henderson, who returns after a short absence, is as successful as ever in her entertainment, which includes some admirable step dancing. Miss Pollo Jerome is a lithe and graceful trapeze performer; and other names on the bill are Miss Lilian Doreen and Mr Arthur Prince.

THE GRANVILLE.

At the popular and pretty Granville Theatre of Varieties at Walham-green Mr Jesse Sparrow has shown a most enterprising disposition, and it is his firm intention and desire to keep up a high standard of variety, and by providing the best and brightest shows to deserve the success which ever attends assiduity and keen study of the public taste. The house has been full to overflowing during the week, and though this state of affairs leaves only standing room for the harmless necessary critic, still one must not carp at "good business" even when it means discomfort and inconvenience to oneself. Mr George Robey, fitly dubbed the "prime minister of mirth," is inimitable as ever, and he remains unchallenged by the "opposition" as the leader of the mirth-moving fraternity, more especially when he steps forth in shining armour and scanty garments as "The Gladiator." In his other song, "Say no more about it," he is equally funny, and by fixing his eagle eye on any one of his audience he always contrives to provoke screams of uncontrollable laughter. Chirgwin, the white-eyed musical Kaffir, is one whose joyful quips and carols age cannot wither nor custom stale. Nothing escapes him, from Pinero's doll and the cheap fares to America—holding forth a lure to the British alien to emigrate to Yankeeland—to the author of "Bill Bailey" and the "jaw" stopper of renown. His song "My fiddle is my sweetheart" is both quaint and pretty, and his burlesque imitation of an operatic songstress is killingly funny. Edwin Boyde, the sad-eyed comedian, causes shrieks of laughter by his diverting rendition of his ditties "Lord love me, what am I going to do?" and "She's My Wife." Arthur Lennard is well to the fore with "And the organ played" and other ditties. Miss Lizzie Fletcher has a song, "It's warm, really warm," which is well delivered, and she gives us a taste of her quality as a vocalist in "My dear old home." Eugene and Willie, the musical grotesques, with their acrobatic violin-playing, provide a clever and attractive turn. Miss Leah Laurie shines as a comedienne in her "Toodlioo" song, and gives imitations of music hall artistes. Miss Cora Caselli warbles a sort of coon song, "What a girl to wish to die for," which is set to a good tune and sung with much spirit, afterwards submitting a picturesque and graphic scena of song and dance in imitation of a Spanish Toreador, into which she throws herself heart and soul. Mr George Formby, the quaint comedian, who terms himself "the man from Lancashire," patters amusingly through his well-known song "Oh, oh, oh!" and then chants his amusing number "When uncle plays the cornet." Starr and Leslie give their club-juggling act, and the Hamiltons (Jack and Alice) give a comedy duo. Little Gitana is seen and heard to advantage in her little song and dance sketch entitled "A School Girl's Holiday," in which she proves herself a miniature marvel; and the Three Sisters Hayden deserve favourable mention, especially for their song of "cheap street music," which is cleverly composed and sung with great gusto. The Harvey Boys, boxing comedians; Tony and Flo Vernon, in their well-known Bojey sketch and paper-tearing act; Miss Rose Newport, comedienne; and George Bendon, the white coon, complete the programme. Mr W. S. Bassett still ably presides over the orchestra. Mr Ernest Bridger, the acting-manager, is assiduous in his devotion to duty, and is thoroughly in sympathy with the high aims of his chief.

GRAND, CLAPHAM.

The promise of prosperity is already shown at the Grand Hall at Clapham, which, having embarked on the two-houses-a-night plan, seems quite to realise the best anticipations of Mr Walter Gibbons, whose enterprises are manifestly born to success. First-class programmes and able management are the principal factors in the achievement, and in the latter department few are more qualified than Mr Harry Bawn, the courteous acting-manager, whose devotion to duty is such that he has remained at his post this week even though carrying his arm in a sling—the unfortunate result of burns contracted through the vagaries of a fugitive firework on the "Fifth." A costly list of artistic turns is included in the current bill, the attractiveness of which has been reflected in the enormous business done. A notable feature of the programme is Mr Paul Martinetti and company, who are seen in The Keyhole, a sketch that has done the troupe good service. Mr Martinetti's reputation as a mime was made a quarter of a century ago, but he still remains an example of the finest pantomimic art, and the laughter he arouses is as genuine and spontaneous as ever. His part of the love-stricken amateur actor is crammed with ingenious bits of eccentricity, and as he has to take part in a mock duel and to impersonate an odd old woman four feet high, full scope is given for artistic elaboration. The result is a most excruciating performance, in which the members of the company share, Mr Alfred Martinetti being a comic valet and Miss Clara Martinetti making a vivacious servant-girl. Miss May is a comely and expressive maiden, whose stern parent is ferociously played by Mr Emile Josset, while Mr John Heard enacts the ludicrous antics of a "dude" with comic skill. Mr Joe Peterman's company in The Belle of the Orient is also a potent attraction, fulfilling all the requirements of a musical comedy, the splendour of the scenes, the pretty faces, the richness of the costumes, the extravagant fun, and the lively songs and choruses all combining to keep the audience delighted. Mr Peterman has the happy faculty of turning all things to the purposes of fun, of which his "Pawnbroker's Cake-walk" in the part of a Jew moneylender forms a novel specimen. Support of an adequate nature is given by the long cast, Miss Madoline Rees exercising an irresistible charm both in singing and acting as Ruth Verney and Mr Chas Grant making a gallant Lord Exmore. Added to these two elaborate productions are a number of fine turns which are necessarily restricted by the pressure of time, but a glimpse is afforded of the low comedy ability of Mr Tom Woottwell, in "I don't like a little bit at all," which gathers a rich harvest of mirth. The Laurel Trio use a "ping-pong" table as a base for acrobatic operations, somersaults to hands and clever wrist-work forming part of their well-performed show, which is varied by the drollery of one of the trio, who also does some expert hat-catching. The Glenroy Troupe of dancers give a taste of their quality in a hornpipe, the three ladies of the company, in picturesque Highland uniform, singing "The boys of Britannia's Empire," and giving a pretty display of sword exercise and military manœuvres. The Sisters Silcott, tastefully arrayed in white, burlesque the coon lilt, and perform a dashing dance; Mr T. C. Callaghan is funny in his song "All among the sawdust;" the Royal Welsh Singers send forth a torrent of melody in a stirring glee, the lady rising to remarkable heights in the soprano; and Miss Jessie Burnett also figures in the list. The orchestra, under Mr James Sale, prove equal to all demands made upon them in the course of an arduous evening's work.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR.

A distinct class of variety lover is to be found at Poplar, and Mr Joe Haynes, in his management of Messrs Tom Maltby and Wickes's establishment, has proved that he is able to cater for them to a nicety. As a consequence, the patronage of the cosy hall never fluctuates, and the large audience that gathers each evening is always sure of an excellent entertainment. A big favourite in the current week's bill is the droll Mr George Mozart, a comedian whose methods of amusing are original and always effective. He first gave his laughable impersonations of an old lady, a boy, and a coster crossing a busy thoroughfare, each character being an admirable portrait and evoking much merriment. His song, "At the Races," in which he humorously describes the adventures of a "Juggins" on a racecourse, was also a clever and laughter-compelling number, and Mr Mozart, who is apparently as big a favourite in Poplar as he is in the halls further West, was acclaimed with an enthusiasm which must have been most gratifying. Flattering also was the reception accorded Mr Wilson Hallett, a sifflieur and infant impersonator of decided cleverness. In his song with whistling accompaniment, the occupants of the balconies were evidently determined to lend him assistance, and the item altogether was much appreciated. Very amusing and faithful was his imitation of a youngster reciting at a party; and his anecdotes relating to children also proved diverting. In response to a persistent demand for an encore Mr Hallett gave an imitation of a three weeks-old baby lifting up its voice in song, a remarkably clever piece of mimicry. Early in the programme Miss Daisy Palmer sang the tuneful and popular "I'se a-waiting for yer, Josie," with much acceptance, and contributed a dance that was distinguished by neatness and dexterity and applauded at its true worth. "No, thanks, that'll doodle-do," was the first number of Mr Wally Scott, an eccentric comedian, who also scored unmistakably in his song descriptive of his adventures at a party, his clever dancing largely contributing to the enjoyment of the audience; and Cribb and Cribb are a couple of cross-talk comedians who indulge in amusing conversation and dance with expertness. The Musical Palmers can always be relied upon to furnish an enjoyable and varied turn, and on Monday evening their initial effort was an admirably played fantasia, by three of the party, on the post-horn that was loudly applauded. "Asthore" and "Under a Panama" were excellently given by a quartet of brass, and the manipulation of the sleigh bells by a lady resulted in a tuneful selection of popular airs that was especially appreciated. Their concluding contribution was the spirited march "Stars and Stripes," Miss Daisy Palmer impersonating the famous composer, Sousa, conducting his band. Miss Nellie Wilson has an amusing and popular number in "If you can't buy a motor-car, buy a motor-cap;" and also dances with much expertness, and lovers of the Terpsichorean art were afforded a treat by the many difficult evolutions indulged in by the New York Quartet, four attractive damsels, who looked particularly smart in the bright red coats they donned to sing "Under a Panama." Other clever and entertaining varieties were contributed by the Donator, wonderful one-legged dancers and jumpers; Mr Harry Taft; and the Wyn pantomime combination. The dramatic sketch of the programme was entitled In Dark Siberia, and was given by Mr T. B. Lloyd and company. The principal interest in this is centred in the treachery of a Russian officer, Major Waroff, towards an Englishman, Captain Victor Gordon, and his heartless cruelty to a Hebrew boy, Paul Gregorivitch. The "sensation" scene is reserved till nearly the finish of the playlet, when Waroff, unable to get the boy to lie at the court-martial of the Englishman, injures his limbs, and has hot irons applied to his eyes until he is sightless. The sketch was admirably enacted throughout, the head of the combination supplying the only comedy relief in his impersonation of a petty officer, Sergeant Petrovitch, who befriends the innocent. The capable orchestra here is under the experienced and careful control of Mr George Hatley.

GATTI'S (ROAD).

Small profits and quick returns is a principle that appears to work very well at Gatti's hall in the Westminster-bridge-road, where a long evening's entertainment, embracing all that is best in the variety market, is always provided by Mr Tom Tinsley, while the prices are so moderate as to be within the reach of the humblest patrons of variety. The bill-of-fare is this week of exceptional excellence, and early patrons are well entertained by Miss Elsie Robey, who, in The Slavey's "At Home" gives a droll performance at the piano, singing and dancing and going through any number of eccentric evolutions that win her abundant favour. The Sisters Lunelle exercise their fascinations effectively in singing and dancing. They are attractive duettists, and whether singing of "Dolly" or "Lucy" or posing as the "best little girl that I know," they are quite successful in bewitching the audience. Mr Bert Brantford makes a bold bid for laughter in a couple of effusions, of which his song as a "navvy coon" is by far the best. Armed with a bundle tied in a handkerchief, he pays eulogy to his "Dinah," a name which refers, not to a lady of the cotton-fields, but to the steak-pudding and vegetables which are to constitute his midday meal, of which an eccentric and skilful dance forms a most acceptable course. It is a ludicrous impersonation drolly conceived and cleverly carried out. A great diversion is created by the Two M'Naughtons, who arrive at their destination by means of the subtlest drollery, but which the audience are not slow to grasp. The dry humour of the imperturbable Tom is sufficient to lift up the most despondent, however deep in the "dumps" he may be, especially when he combines the melodies of "Excelsior" and "Bill Bailey" in the interests of mirth, or excites his partner to frenzy by his references to the Fifth of November. The provoking ingenuousness of the audacious comedian is irresistible, and the work of he and his talented partner has such an effect on the house that it echoes continuously with bursts of laughter. A highly entertaining performance is that given by the Three Laurels, whose intrepid acrobatic feats are marked by originality, which the comicality of one member of the trio does not cloak. He causes roars of mirth by the gravity with which he juggles with hats, the tricks themselves being clever. Somersaults from a table to his partner's hands and from other positions are also performed neatly and cleanly by one of the trio, who are loudly cheered. Mr George H. Elliott achieves distinction by his appearance as the "Chocolate-coloured Coon," whose songs are all of love, to the melodious airs of which his robust voice gives every effect. "Daisy" is the first to be celebrated in song, closely followed by "Lazy Maisie," who earns her appellation by going to sleep at every opportunity, even at the psychological moment when her copper-skinned bridegroom is about to adjust the wedding-ring. Mr Elliott has later to extoll the "Brown Havannah Queen" and to perform a dance which is very graceful and expert, and which gains unlimited applause. A first-rate favourite is found in Miss Daisy James, whose chorus of "Kiss your Goosey-Poosey" is merrily trilled by the audience, while the piquant drollery of "Smart!" is well recognised, so pointedly is it brought out by the charming comedienne. A still greater impression is aroused when the young lady appears as a domestic servant, waving a red flag, to sing "My fellow's a hero," an amusing lyric relating to the guardian of a steam-roller whose noble exploits in the pursuance of his calling and in the search for beer are prolific of merriment. Miss Alexandra Dagmar has a touching song of sentiment in "Boy in Blue" which she sings with excellent expression. There is a dashing sound about "Listen to the big brass band" of which Miss Dagmar makes the most, while in the song with the refrain "Will my dream come true?" a verse relating to the North Sea "incident" alternates with others of a comic nature, into which the audience enter with zest. The Three Sisters Silcott make their greatest hit with "The Seaside Girls," but there is excellent satire in their coon trio, in which they make an impressive appearance, and do a dance with great spirit. The Mutograph continues its successful career with interesting and well diversified pictures, and the rest of the bill is made up of the Glenroy Troupe with their clever characteristic dancing; the Risto Brothers, contortionists and hand-balancers; Miss Peggy Primrose, comedienne; and Arthur Rose, comedian.

HERBERT CAMPBELL MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—A memorial to the late Mr Herbert Campbell in the shape of a bust, either in marble or bronze, is to be obtained, and placed, if possible, in the vestibule of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, the scene of so many of his triumphs. Mr Harry Randall has kindly consented to act as president and Mr Edward Ledger, of The Era, as treasurer to the fund.

It is the intention of the committee to engage an artist of repute to execute this work to the memory of the above-mentioned generous and genial comedian. The committee will esteem it a great favour if his old friends and admirers will assist in making this memorial a success. All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in The Era.

Yours faithfully, FRANK HEATH, (Secretary).

MISS FLORENTIA GLYNNE (Mrs Valvo), who has now been ill for three months, has been under three doctors, each in turn having given her up. On Friday, Nov. 4, she had a relapse, and was at once admitted into the Royal Infirmary, Bradford, where she is receiving the most skilful medical attendance.

"WOMAN AND WAR."

A New Military and Romantic Sketch, by Harry Bruce, Produced at the Islington Empire, on Monday, Nov. 7.

Harry Alford	Mr HARRY BRUCE
Sergeant M'Finney	Mr JOHN G. M'MAHONE
Captain Villiers	Mr ERIC A. GRANT
Colonel Manners	Mr ERNEST BALL
Helen, alias Will, Trooper 215	Miss FLORENCE NIGEL / Miss IVY ALBERTO

Recent events have tended to impart a special interest to a military sketch which recalls the great conflict between this country and Russia fifty years ago; and Messrs Ernest Ball and Harry Bruce have undoubtedly chosen the right moment to produce their miniature drama. And in regard to this production music hall managers need have no fear, inasmuch as Messrs Ball and Bruce have received a guarantee from Mr Blackmore on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association that no proceedings will at any time be taken against those responsible for the staging of the piece. The author founds his plot upon a supposititious incident of the Crimean War. The hero, Harry Alford, is a trooper in the 11th Hussars, and when the curtain rises upon the first scene, revealing a distant view of Balaklava Heights, we find that he is a prisoner, and has been condemned to be shot for a serious military offence. The charge against him was that of being drunk whilst on duty as sentry. His friend, Sergeant M'Finney, discovered in the trenches a flask of brandy; Alford took a mouthful of the spirit, and soon afterwards fell down unconscious. Found in this condition, he was charged with drunkenness and convicted of the offence. He is confined in a hut, and a young trooper named Will Gunstock is placed in charge. He is a friend of the prisoner, and urges him to escape. But Harry refuses, giving his companion to understand that he has ceased to value his life since the woman he loved deceived him, throwing him over in favour of an officer of the regiment, Captain Villiers, who presently makes his appearance. He gloats over the fact that Alford is about to be shot, and in an interview with the prisoner makes certain revelations, with a sinister object. He informs Alford that the woman he loved has always been faithful to him, and was still devoted to him. The captain, however, thought he had a chance to win her after his rival had suffered an ignominious death. The colonel of the regiment arrives with the information that the young soldier has been granted the Victoria Cross for gallantry shown on the field of battle, and tells him he would grant any request he chooses to make. Will asks that Harry Alford may be set free, but the Colonel refuses, although the trooper had twice saved his life during a brush with the enemy. However, Sergeant M'Finney interposes and produces the flask of brandy, which was purposely dropped by Captain Villiers. On making an examination the Colonel discovers that the spirit has been drugged, and releases Alford, while the captain is placed under arrest. At this crisis the colonel receives the order that the Light Brigade is to charge the Russian gunners, and he confides to Alford the hopelessness of the position. It is then that the so-called Will reveals to Harry that she is the woman whose memory he cherishes so tenderly, having joined the regiment by exchanging places with her brother Will. She insists upon being by his side in the famous ride, and in the last scene—"the Valley of Death"—there is an exciting fight for the standard. Harry and his devoted sweetheart are seen engaged in a deadly sword fight against overwhelming odds, but they are finally triumphant. This combat is waged to the accompaniment of the roar of a heavy cannonade, the curtain falling upon a highly realistic and sensational tableau. Mr Harry Bruce plays well as Harry Alford, and Mr Ernest Ball supplies a capital portrayal of the peppery colonel of the regiment. He also introduces a song, "The Boys of the Light Brigade," which he sings in good style. Mr Eric A. Grant is well placed as Capt. Villiers, and Mr John G. M'Mahone is brisk and amusing as Sergt. M'Finney. Owing to the great strain involved in the sword fight, two ladies are engaged to play the part of Helen, alias Trooper 215, Miss Florence Nigel appearing at the first house and Miss Ivy Alberto at the second. Comparisons are proverbially odious, but it may be said that both ladies play the part admirably, and show considerable skill in the sword fight. The scenery and effects are all that can be wished, and the new sketch may be regarded as an undoubted success.

(Signed) HARRY NATION, CHAS. PASTOR, JERRY HART, Scrutineers appointed at the General Meeting.

The total number of voting papers were 1,799, and the number disqualified reached 108. The first meeting of the new committee will be held on Tuesday next, at one o'clock, when all the members in London are particularly requested to attend.

PROF. WINGARD was specially engaged at the matinée last Saturday at the Opera House, Cork, and took the place of a curtain raiser with great success. He is specially retained to perform this Saturday by General Sir Reginald and Lady Pole Carew.—The Musical Palmers returned to town on Monday after a three months' successful tour, opening at the Palace, Bow, and the Queen's, Poplar.

THE MORTON MEMORIAL MATINÉE.

No better evidences could be adduced of the admitted service of the late Mr Charles Morton to the world of entertainment and the public than the list of representative men acting as the honorary committee of the memorial fund matinée and the packed state of the auditorium of the Palace on Tuesday afternoon, when this interesting function was brought to a most successful issue. The high-class programme, long as it undoubtedly was, might have been almost indefinitely lengthened, so eager were people prominent in theatrical and music hall circles to appear. Mr Alfred Butt, the new manager of the Palace, who worked so hard and successfully, set the entertainment going soon after one; and Mr Herman Finck's orchestra opened it with a fine rendering of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan's "In Memoriam" overture, a selection that we do not remember to have ever heard before in a music hall. Nothing could have been more appropriate, as it was written by the composer when he was plunged into sorrow by the sudden death of his father. The great disappointment of the afternoon was the absence of Miss Ada Reeve, who had intended journeying from Cardiff to be present, but was prevented carrying out her wish by an attack of laryngitis, which keeps her in bed. Miss Reeve sent a cheque for £5, and a similar course was followed by Miss Evelyn Millard, who also sent a long telegram of regret that indisposition compelled her to absent herself. Mr Lewis Waller came along to recite with fine martial spirit the "Once more into the breach" harangue from Henry the Fifth, and there was a special fitness in the appearance of Mr Charles Warner. It was this excellent actor who was specially charged by the late Mr Clement Scott with the delivery of an address to the late Mr Charles Morton on the occasion of his benefit at the Alhambra on March 19, 1891, when a sum of £1,000 was raised for "the father of the halls." Mr Warner as his contribution to the programme chose Heard at the Telephone, a tragic little piece from the French of MM. De Lorde and Foley, produced at Wyndham's Theatre on March 1, 1902. The popular actor exhibited all his old command of emotional intensity, and the distress of the helpless husband at hearing his wife's shrieks—by wire as it were—was absolutely painful as depicted by Mr Warner, whose treatment of the thrilling situation was rewarded with immense applause. Mr Warner had excellent support from Mr Henderson Bland and Miss Gunn. Miss Esmé Beringer, who has fulfilled several successful engagements at the Palace, exhibited her fine elocutionary gifts in Frank Desprez's powerful poem, "Lasca." The lighter vein was struck by Mr Louis Bradfield and a contingent of fascinating Empire girls, who sang "Mr Mosenstein;" by Mr Seymour Hicks and eight Gibson Girls, who gave "A Quaint old Bird," from The Catch of the Season; by Mr Henry Lytton, Miss Agnes Fraser, and the Lyric Girls, in "A Cosy Corner;" and by Mr R. A. Douglass, in a capital monologue. Mdlle. Adelina Genée came from the Empire to bewitch us all with a couple of songs from The Milliner Duchess, and several excerpts were given from the Alhambra ballet, including the evolutions of les petits Japonais, a polka by Miss Slack and Miss Josephine Casaboni, and the danse des rubans. Miss Camille Clifford, a Gibson girl, gave an original character sketch of "The girl who goes out walking all day," and sang prettily; Miss Maude Courtney's American stories went down well; Miss May Gurney chose the well-known ballad, "Sing me to sleep," to which she gave much expression; Mr Arthur Roberts, with the Palace girls, scored a pronounced success; Mr Rutland Barrington, apologising for lack of voice through a cold, gave a short and amusing recitation, entitled "Alexander;" Mr Maurice Farkoa sang "Bedella" in French; the Follies performed the burlesque cantata, The Pearl of Peckham; and Mr Robert Ganthony submitted a quaint sermon on the incomplete record of "Little Bo-Peep." The artistes from the halls included Mr G. H. Chirgwin, an established Palace favourite, in much-appreciated selections from his varied répertoire; Miss Marie Lloyd, in "Eh, what, what?" Mr George Robey, in "Say no more about it;" Dataz, the "living almanac;" Desroches and Bianca, Parisian eccentrics; Mr Mark Melford—heartily laughed at in his amusing sketch, Nonsuited; the Magic Kettle in its reversal of Nature's laws; Miss Alice Pierce, with some impressions of favourite actresses; Phroso, as a doll, quite as mysterious as Mr Pinero's at Wyndham's; Mr Malcolm Scott, pattering in his own amusing way; Mr Ernest Shand, admirably emphasising an amusing song; and Miss Bessie Featherstone, with "The Latest London Betting." As honorary musical directors, Mr G. W. Byng came from the Alhambra, Mr Cuthbert Clarke from the Empire, Mr Carl Kiefert from the Vaudeville, Mr Hamish M'Cunn from the Lyric, Mr Bond Sayers from the London Pavilion, and Mr Howard Talbot from Daly's. The honorary stage-managers were Mr George Capel (Empire), Mr George Fielder (Vaudeville), Mr J. A. E. Malone (Daly's), Mr E. Royce, junior (Lyric), Mr W. Warde (Daly's), and Mr Charles Wilson (Alhambra). Some charming actresses sold programmes, button-holes, and chocolates, and the rates ruled high. Among those assisting in this work were Miss Gertie Millar, the Misses Madge and Ruth Vincent, Miss Pauline Chase, and Miss Edith Blaiberg. The programme, by-the-way, was embellished with drawings by Tom Browne, Dudley Hardy, and John Hassall, and given away with it was an excellent portrait—the last taken—in mezzotint, by Langfier, of the late Mr Morton. The entertainment lasted four and a-half hours.

A VERY charming act is that given by Mdlle Nadji at the Alhambra. The fair performer is a handsome specimen of womanhood. Her feats of balancing are neatly performed. She demonstrates how easy it is to ascend or descend a staircase on her hands with body poised in the air, and also how to dance upside down. Mdlle. Nadji is an acrobat of no mean order. The clever lady finishes her entertainment by seizing a pad with her magnificent set of teeth, and while supporting the weight of her body, revolves with great rapidity. The apparata used in this performance is particularly smart and up to date, and the lady is gracefully attired, making one of the most successful turns on an excellent programme.

MRS FRANK LEONARD, of 202, Darwin-street, Birmingham, writes as follows:—"I am desirous of heartily thanking Mr Milner Verren for the sum 10s. 6d. collected from the artists at the Hippodrome, Coventry; Mr Fred Little, for 5s.; and Prof. M'Cann, for his collection (£1 7s. 6d.), from the following artists at Ohmy's Circus, Bolton:—Mr John Irvin, 5s.; Mr Hector, 5s.; Mr Ohmy, 5s.; Mr Hanneford, 5s.; August and September, 5s.; Claude Ohmy, 2s. 6d. I also thank The Era for giving publicity to my case."

CLYO AND ROCHELLE return to town on Monday after thirteen weeks' successful provincial tour, opening at the Granville, Walham-green.—Mr Will Cornish, the celebrated companologist, has signed through Messrs Nathan and Somers, for two dates at the London Coliseum (four weeks each date) and also for all Mr Stoll's other halls for 1906-7-8.

AT West London Police-court, on Saturday, Mr P. Hedderwick applied to Mr Rose, on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association, for process against Mr Coe, the proprietor of the Hammersmith Palace of Varieties, for permitting a stage-play, The Fighting Parson, to be performed at his music hall on six different evenings. Mr Coe was fined a short time ago under similar process in respect of the same play. The magistrate, having perused the sworn information, granted a summons.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

They have a pleasant custom at Hammersmith of celebrating the anniversary of that fine establishment by a week's variety festival; and when we arrived on Wednesday we found the place packed to listen to a remarkable list of artistes in the current programme and to several extra turns. A strong attraction of the regular company is Little Tich, with his impersonation of a torero, who, to please his inamorata, is burning to distinguish himself in the arena, and longs to give a fierce Spanish bull his quietus. Fortune is kind to him in this respect, and in his description of the weird encounter is found plenty of opportunity for laughter. It would be astonishing, indeed, if the diminutive comedian were ever allowed to depart from a hall without giving his big-boot dance—an item in his répertoire that has done him good service since the early eighties. Mr Harry Pleon, another star of the regular programme, exploits some amusing mimetic business when he gives his impression of the way in which Sir Henry Irving, Mr R. G. Knowles, and Mr Gus Elen would sing "Bluebell." Mr Pleon also imitates Mr Eugene Stratton, with dance. The versatile comedian also has another funny trifle in "How to make a book," in which he impersonates a "juggins" who seeks information from an expert at laying odds. He is initiated into the mysteries of "backing 'em" by a "fly" turfite, and his experiences on the course are as expensive as they are unpleasant. His misfortunes, presented as they are so amusingly by Mr Pleon, are heartily laughed at. Cline and Clark, the black-and-white comedy artistes, sing and dance with much expertness; and the Collinson combination is seen to great advantage in The Cook's Guest. In this comic trifle is introduced an important interlude—nothing less than a burlesque of a scene in The Sign of the Cross, which is drolly worked. The singing of Mr Jake Friedman is always worth listening to, and though his skit on opera is not to be taken seriously—in fact it is intensely amusing—yet we think he could do justice, if called upon, to several of the florid arias of Donizetti and Bellini that he treats with such unctuous humour. The Maples introduce one of the cleverest items in the programme, giving examples of Parisian and American dancing into which they manage to introduce some wonderful movements, tumbling, &c. The Two Errolls, comedy acrobats, are rightly so-called, the gentleman of the pair being a genuine droll. He successfully clears a number of chairs and a table on which his lady partner stands, and the show is generally very smart. There is nothing better in the way of eccentric tumbling than the tricks of the Missouris; and nothing more laughable in the way of buffoonery than the motoring sketch of Mr Harry Tate, who is as great a favourite at Hammersmith as he is elsewhere. Miss Mignonette Kokin is a delightful dancer, who fascinates all by her art; and Miss Elsie Roby introduces plenty of drollery into her turn as a comedienne pianist, dancing to her own accompaniment. Mr Henri Cazman is responsible for an entertainment that shows great versatility; there is genuine vim in the dancing of Miss Florence Yeaman, who emits a peculiar shrieking whistle which is much appreciated; and other turns in the regular bill include such excellent turns as Mr Dan Crawley, eccentric comedian; Kitts and Windrum, smart society entertainers; Spry and Montl, vaudeville artistes; Mr Leslie Bell and Miss Lily Pearl, in A Little Bit of String; Mr Walter Wallis, comedian; the Sisters Lunelle (Louie and Nellie), soubrettes; and Miss Edie Maddigon, comedienne. The Edisonegraph winds up the entertainment with an exhibition of some excellent films. The stage on Wednesday was under the management of Messrs Fred Reeves and Cadle, and the extra turns included G. H. Elliott, W. Young, St. Mayo and Coombes, Little Cliffe, and Miss Archbutt. On Tuesday Mr Jack Collins, Cussack, and Talma, illusionist, added to the interest of the programme, and on Monday additional entertainment was forthcoming from Mr Herbert Shelley, Miss E'sa Joel, Mr Herbert Maden, Mr Alix Lukos, and Miss Marguerite Broadfoote. It is evident that Mr J. C. Coe, who has to cope with formidable opposition in his immediate neighbourhood, is determined to give his patrons the very best talent that is to be obtained in the variety market. He is loyally backed up by Mr Lewis Vincent, his acting-manager.

PARIS MUSIC HALL NOTES.

THERE was much interest evinced over the production of The Country Girl at Olympia, and on the whole, the French adaptors, Cottens and Fordyce, have done fairly well. It was a trifle disconcerting to find that the part of Nan had been entirely eliminated, and a few of her numbers given to Mariette Sully as Sophie. The principals wander on and off as though they had no very vital part in the play, but in this case the play is merely the vehicle on which to carry Max Dearly to a singularly genuine success. Everything centres round Barry, and Dearly gives a faithful imitation of all Huntley Wright's quaint mannerisms, introducing also an imitation of poor Dan Leno's famous harp interlude, which set us all laughing at Drury-lane, though it made me sad to see the humour of "the King's Jester" travel over the Channel to Paris, where it set all Parisians laughing heartily and wholesomely at the very moment that the originator of so much laughter was lying still for ever. Dearly dances gracefully, and is full of life and energy. He carries the entire play on his shoulders, yet is never obtrusive. He has caught the sense of the humour, a thing imitators usually lack, and one was sincerely glad to see that Parisians, though they may scoff at our art and jeer at our comedy, still can laugh as heartily as we do over genuine clean fun when once they have overcome their astonishment at finding that fun does not necessarily need to be salacious. Mariette Sully did her best to support Dearly in her various duets with him, but her ignorance of the first principles of dancing made it very hard work for her. They should have let pretty Marion Winchester sing the "poultry song" with Dearly, for she is an exquisite dancer, and would not have been afraid of the efforts entailed in this amusing duet. This charming little American danced an English country dance in the first act to the delight of the audience. She is as light and as graceful and as gay as a bird. Later she sang a song and danced a very graceful pas seul. We have another American, in the person of Miss Whitney, but she had little opportunity of showing us what she can do.

GABRIANI'S rich, mellow tones were heard to perfection in her two solos as the Indian Princess. It was regrettable that she was only permitted to sing one verse of "Under the Deodar," to which she did ample justice. Alice Bonheur sang the songs allotted to her acceptably, but a Parisian's idea of a Devonshire lassie's work-a-day dress is marvellous. She looked like a Belgian peasant on a fête day, and her voice is not suitable to the soft tones necessary to the charming "Cooey" song. Dekernel has none of the fat facetiousness and quiet humour of the original "Rajah of Bhong," and his careful imitations of Mr Rutland Barrington's little mannerisms were lacking in point.

IN fact, the music caught on at once. People hummed the refrains and joined sotto voce in the choruses, which, by the way, were sung in English by Mr Tiller's sixteen energetic young ladies, who had appeared earlier in the evening in a number, entitled The Phantom Guards, in which they executed some graceful and complicated evolutions, and were very cordially received. The electric light effects utilised in their sword display were very pretty and effective, as was also their novel act.,

FUNERAL OF DAN LENO.

Only a few days ago was borne to the grave, at a ripe old age, the veteran who was known far and wide as the "father of the halls," the late Charles Morton. And now the famous little comedian who was justly proud of the title of "the King's jester," has been laid to rest, at an age when most members of his profession are regarded as still in their prime. The deep regret expressed at the passing away of one who added so much to the innocent gaiety of the patrons of both theatre and music hall has been universal; and that the funeral of Dan Leno on Tuesday should have evoked remarkable demonstrations of the widespread popularity of the deceased comedian was only to be expected. It was a bright, cheerful morning; but as mid-day approached heavy clouds gathered, threatening rain, and a cold wind blew across Clapham-common. Along the main road one perceived a stream of people all hurrying along in the direction of the residence of the deceased comedian. Just at the point where the funeral cortège had to cross the Balham High-road a vast crowd had gathered, and the traffic was entirely suspended while the procession wound its way to the Church of the Ascension, where the first part of the service was conducted. Even the L.C.C. tramcars, which were packed inside and out, were compelled to stop running for the time being. The funeral procession was timed to leave Mr Leno's residence, Springfield, Atkins-road, Clapham-common, at half-past twelve, but for more than a couple of hours previously people began to assemble in the neighbourhood of the house, and, under the control of the police, lined the footpaths which led in the direction of the Church of the Ascension. The body of the late comedian, enclosed in a coffin of solid oak, had been placed in the large drawing-room. The brass plate bore the following inscription—

George Galvin
(Dan Leno).
Who entered into rest Oct. 31, 1904,
Aged 43.

On the head of the coffin was a massive crown, sent by Mr John Leno, son of the deceased. At the foot was a large globe composed of white chrysanthemums, with the words in violets, "Lost to his children; lost to the world." A heart made husband, Mr and Mrs Fred Griffiths, Mr and Mrs Fred Emney, Mr and Mrs Seymour Hicks, "Some Visitors to the Empress, Brixton," Staff of the Empress, Brixton, Little Zola, Staff of the Empire, Dudley, the London Entertainment Protection Association, Tom White's Arabs, Mr and Mrs Alf Lotto, Mr and Mrs Wilkie Bard, Mr and Mrs Will Poluski, the artistes, managers, and equestrian staff of the London Hippodrome, Sir Thomas Dewar, Mr and Mrs Boissett, Mr and Mrs Vento, the stage-manager and staff of the Palace Theatre, Sunderland, Mr and Mrs H. J. Ward, Mr Weedon Grossmith, Mr Edward Compton, Mr Gus Elen, Mr Arthur Collins, Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter, Mr George Robey, Mr Lionel Rignold, Miss F. Robina, Mr George Mozart, Mr Joe Elvin, Mr John Lawson, Mr Carl Hertz, Mr C. Angelo, the Haytors, Walton and Lester, Mr Oswald Stoll, Mr Pat Carey, the "Water Rats" (a large shield), The Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association, Artistes and Staff, Empire, Johannesburg; Mr and Mrs Lowen, Mr and Mrs Dunkley and family, Mr and Mrs Monk, Mrs Dobson and children, The Gramaphone Company, Mr F. H. Nicholls, Bradley and Truman, Mr and Mrs Fisher, International Artistes' Lodge, Berlin, Proprietors of the Hotel de L'Italie, Papa Brown, Mr and Mrs Jesse Burton, Miss Alice Beare, Mr and Mrs F. Cates, Crown Bowling Club, Mr Edgar Budden, Mr Tom Carter, Mr George Lill, Mr F. Leon and Miss Lizzie Kirk, Mr Gus Garrick, The Kellinos, Mr H. Darnley, Mr R. Frantz, C., A, and E. Hearn, Mr and Mrs Wal Pink, Mr C. Sarina, Mr Eddie King, Mr J. Finney, Mr Will Oliver, Mr Jack Collinson, Mr Harry Jee, Sisters Richmond, Sisters Preston, Staff, People's Palace, Sunderland; Mr Frank Coyne, Mr Leon Victor, Mr and Mrs G. A. Burton, Mr Thomas Trodd, Mr and Mrs Baggallay, Schneider Family, Messrs A. and S. Gatti, Mr and Mrs Heeley, Mr and Mrs Watson, Mr and Mrs Harry Hunter, Mr Crawsher, Mr Bond Sayers, Mr and Mrs Brisley, Friendly Aid Society, the Boys of Covent-garden, the Oxford Music Hall, the Servants, Miss Lena Williams, Mr Leonard Ball, Mr Wybrow, Mr Alf Browne and staff, Mr Will Crackles and Mr Tom Collier, Mr C. Thorburn, Mr Handcock, Mr and Mrs O'Brien, Aunt Fanny, Queen and Le Brunn, Mr F. Stuart, Mr Jesse Sparrow, Mr and Mrs John Reynolds, Mr and Mrs Crisp and Miss Hounds, Mrs Wallace, Dr. Canon Curtis, vicar, officiating, assisted by the Rev. A. W. Hooper. As the coffin was borne into the sacred edifice, which was crowded, the hymn "Brief life is here our portion" was sung. The other hymns during the service were, "There is a green hill far away" and "Now the labourer's task is o'er," and at the close an eloquent address was delivered by the vicar. In the course of it he characterised the occasion, with its vast assemblage of mourners, as a last tribute of respect to "a great genius." He spoke of the good that lay in genius which can provoke genuine mirth, make men forget their troubles, and innocently refresh their brains, and emphasised the fact that in the course of his brilliant public career the lamented comedian had never "done an act or said a word that could offend the most fastidious eye or ear." From this remark the preacher passed naturally on to the reflection that if every play and song seen and heard upon the stage were clean and wholesome, the theatre and the music hall would be truly uplifting to the vast community which seeks its pleasures within their walls. Incidentally the address made mention of the fact that of his "princely income" the dead comedian devoted a large part to the succour of those members of his calling less fortunate than himself. As the body was carried from the church at the conclusion of the first part of the service Chopin's Dead March was played.

The procession was then reformed, and the cemetery at Tooting was reached about 3·0 o'clock. The committal sentences were read by the Rev. A. W. Hooper, and with the pronouncing of the Benediction by Canon Curtis the service was brought to a close.

Besides those already enumerated, a large number of others were present at the interment, in their ranks being Mr Arthur Collins, Mr Sidney Smith, Mr George Gray, Mr Frank Glenister (of the London Pavilion), Dr. Valerie (Mr Leno's medical attendant), Miss Marie Loftus, Little Tich, Mr Richard Warner, Mr Harry Tate, Mr Will Oliver, Mr Fred Karno, the Selbinis, Mr E. De Vere, Mr A. Lotto, Mr F. W. Millis, and Mr C. Douglas Stuart, the secretary of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, and others too numerous to mention.

In spite of the notice on the gates to the effect that the public would not be admitted, thousands of people besieged the entrance to the cemetery, and a posse of horsed police had all their work cut out to prevent serious crushing. Only a small section of the public were admitted, and these were passed through in batches of a hundred at a time. The brick vault which had been built as the last resting place of the remains of the lamented comedian is on the first plot inside the main gates. The burial place was hidden from view by a solid marble slab, on which was inscribed "The family vault of George Galvin (Dan Leno)." The funeral arrangements were carried out by Mr Theophilus Dunkley, assisted by his son, Mr H. R. Dunkley.

of beautiful flowers and pierced with an arrow came from the widow. Another striking floral offering was from the Terriers' Society, and consisted of a large easel with a white palette and brushes, bearing the word, "Dan." Accompanying it was a stool on which was the inscription in flowers, "A vacant stool." Miss Vesta Tilley had sent a wreath with the words, "Sleep well, old friend." A full-sized harp, sent by "an admirer," was another of the chief floral tributes. From Miss Marie Loftus came a magnificent cross; and Miss Marie Lloyd sent a large lyre. Mr and Mrs Lubbock forwarded a floral tribute in the form of a Bible composed of white bloom, with a book mark of Parma violets, having on one page the word "Fame," and on the other, "Peace." Mr Ernest Shand sent an original design consisting of a pair of clogs in violets on a cushion. Mr Sid May's floral tribute took the form of the proscenium of a stage with the act drop down, across which were the words "The stage waits." A beautiful harp came from the Sisters Preston, and another from Mr and Mrs A. Chevalier. Mr George Leybourne, jun., sent a scarlet cushion of flowers; Mr and Mrs Johnny Danvers, a cushion with the words "Rest, Dan, Rest;" and a beautiful tribute ("With deepest sympathy") came from Mr and Mrs Harry Randall. Other offerings came from Mr Beerbohm Tree, Madame Melba (whose wreath was inscribed, "A tribute to a great artist"), Lord Monkswell, Mr Gordon Craig ("In remembrance of the work of a great creative artist"), Mr J. L. Toole, Mr Martin Harvey, Mr Arthur Bourchier, Mr J. L. Graydon, Mr H. E. Moss, Mr Oswald Stoll, Mr J. R. Dixon, Mr Milton Bode, Mr Bransby Williams, Mr and Mrs Smithson, Mr Ohmy and staff of Ohmy's Circus, Mr William Gourlay, Mr Wm. Clarkson, Mr Eugene Stratton, Mr Angelo Asher, Mr and Mrs G. W. Moore, Miss Kate Carney, Mr John Hyman, the London Pavilion Orchestra, the staff of the Canterbury, Mr and Mrs Cliff Ryland, Mr and Mrs Edgar Romaine, the Chelsea Relief Society, the directors of Drury-lane, the directors and managers of the London Pavilion, the staff of the London Pavilion, Mrs Herbert Campbell, the Empire Music Hall, the Selbino Family, Datas, Miss Ada Blanche, Zanettos, Mr Will Evans, Mr T. Karno, Mr and Mrs T. and Mr and Mrs F. M'Naughton, Mr Joe O'Gorman, Mr and Mrs Fred Russell, Mr and Mrs Paul, and Mr and Mrs Alfred Martinetti.

A large number of telegrams were received by the family, the senders including Sir Henry Irving, who wired, "Pray accept my deep and respectful sympathy with you and your family in your great sorrow;" Messrs Albert Chevalier, Weedon Grossmith, J. L. Toole, whose telegram ran, "Accept my deep sympathy in your great trial;" Mr Martin Harvey, Mr and Mrs Harry Randall, Mr George Grossmith, Mr Cecil Raleigh, Mr and Mrs Eugene Stratton, Miss Vesta Tilley, Mr Hickory Wood, and Mr and Mrs Moore.

The hearse was drawn by six horses, which were decked with black plumes and elaborate trappings, and on one of them rode a postilion. In the first of the mourning coaches which followed were Mrs Leno (the widow), Mr John Leno and Mr Ernest Leno (the sons), and Mrs Lubbock (the daughter). In the second rode Mr and Mrs J. Danvers, Mr and Mrs Rish (the last-named a sister of the deceased), and Mr Lubbock; in the third, Mrs Dobson, and Mr and Mrs Reynolds (Mrs Leno's father and mother), and Mr Will Reynolds; and in the fourth Mr Brisley, Mr Leon Victor (who had acted as Mr Leno's agent from the outset of the comedian's career), and Mr and Mrs H. Galvin (the former being the deceased's brother.

By the side of the coffin walked, as pall-bearers, the president of the Water Rats Society—Mr Tom M'Naughton—and those who have formerly filled that office, namely: Messrs Paul Martinetti, Fred Russell, Joseph O'Gorman, Eugene Stratton, Joe Elvin, James Finney, and Wal Pink.

Following the mourning carriages came six coaches with members of the Water Rats Society, four coaches with representatives of the Music Hall Railway Rates Association, of which Mr Leno had been for eight years the president, and two coaches with members of the Terriers Society.

The service at the church was fully choral,

(SPECIAL TO THE ERA.)

SIR PHILIP BURNE-JONES, BART., and Messrs Banks, Craven, Hann, Harford, Harker, Hemsley and Spong (with power to add to their number) have been elected by the Scenic Artists' Association as a Committee to organise their first annual exhibition, to be held the week of Feb. 20, 1905. Several of the leading London managers have promised their kind co-operation by loan of models of their theatres, sketches, and photographs of scenes by present and past scene painters, and other articles of artistic and historic interest, and by graciously granting permission to the artistes under their respective managements to volunteer their services to entertain at the Scenic Artists' Exhibition.

THE concert on Sunday evening, Nov. 20, in the Royal Opera House, Covent-garden, in aid of the Benevolent funds of the three London branches of the National Association of Theatrical Employees and the London branch of the Musicians' Union promises to be a great success. Amongst the artistes who will appear are Madame Blanche Marchesi, Madame De Cisneros, Mr Joseph O'Mara, Mr Walter Kirby, Mr W. A. Peterkin, and Miss Vera Warwick-Evans (solo violinists). An orchestra of 200 will be conducted by Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie, and there will be a military band of 150.

NOTICES and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

(FROM OUR MELBOURNE CORRESPONDENT.)

At Melbourne, on Sept. 26, the remains of the late Melancthon Burton Spurr were interred in the Church of England compartment of the St. Kilda cemetery. The occasion was one surrounded by extreme sadness. Up till Tuesday, Sept. 19, the genial entertainer had held the stage of the Melbourne Athenæum for a period of four weeks, throughout which exceptionally large audiences had been attracted by what is generally admitted to have been one of the best "one-man" shows ever held in this city. Although Mr Herbert Flemming, Mr Spurr's manager, interrupted the farewell season last week on account of his principal's indisposition, it was thought then that he was simply run down through overwork, and needed a few days' complete rest. Dr. Felix Meyer attended him for an attack of angina pectoris, combined with throat trouble. He appeared to be rallying till Friday, Sept. 22, when an unfavourable change took place. Dr. Meyer called Dr. Springthorpe in consultation, but, despite unremitting attention, diabetic coma, which invariably has a fatal termination, supervened on Saturday, Sept. 23, and ended in death at 4 30 on the following Sunday afternoon. The deceased artist had suffered from diabetes for the last ten years, and the heavy work of an exceptionally successful tour through Australia and New Zealand doubtless told upon him. He was about fifty-eight years of age, and practically died in harness. Up till last Thursday, Sept. 21, he was most anxious to keep faith with the public and complete his Melbourne season. It was only by strict order of his medical adviser that he was dissuaded from doing so, and only a day or so before his death he composed a song for inclusion in his répertoire. Mr Flemming, Mr Morgan, and two nurses were in constant attendance on him towards the last. At the actual moment of death Mr Flemming, who was holding his friend's hand, states that a gold cable ring worn by the deceased broke—a mournful symbol peculiarly appropriate to the sadness of the occasion. The funeral was largely attended by representative gentlemen from the theatrical and social worlds, and the pall-bearers comprised Messrs Herbert Flemming, John Kemp, James Morgan, Clive Meynell, A. E. Bayliff, and Dr. F. Meyer. Tributes in the form of many beautiful wreaths were received from Mrs Beatrice Wall (mother of the deceased); Mrs Mel. B. Spurr, "his little girl," a ten-year-old daughter; Mr W. Mayne, "his old pal and partner;" Messrs Reynolds, London publishers; Mr Herbert Flemming; Dr. and Mrs Clive Lowe, of Auckland; Mr and Mrs Bland Holt, at present in Sydney; Mr James Maskelyne, Egyptian Hall, London; Mr A. H. Judd and Queen's Hall staff, Sydney; "His Boyhood Friend" of Hull, England; Green Room, Yorick, and Savage Clubs, London; Mr James Morgan, Mr Claude H. Whaite, Mr J. A. Riedel and Dunedin friends, Miss Ellie Marx and Mr J. H. Winterbottom, Cape Town; Melbourne Savage Club, Mr F. M. Clark, Mr C. Lake, Mr George Musgrove, Mr E. B. Manning, Mr Lawrence Campbell, Mr and Mrs Harris, and Messrs Glen and Co., of Melbourne; and others from South Africa, New Zealand, Sydney, Tasmania, Brisbane, and Melbourne.

Mr Flemming having decided to stay in Australia, Mr Clive Meynell had arranged for an Indian tour, and Mr Spurr had actually completed arrangements with Mr J. Nevin Tait to "go on ahead." Poor Spurr "heard the East a-callin'," but it was not to be.

Is is one of life's little ironies that in the September issue of an Australian magazine Mr Spurr contributed an article on "The Day's Work of an Entertainer," the concluding paragraph of which read as follows:—"A good constitution is, of course, a sine qud non, and this, I am thankful to say, I possess. If I had not, I think travelling in South Africa would have finished me off. In a train for three and a-half days, and then show for two hours at night. But I survived it. Then, of course, I take care of myself. I eat well and sleep well, take plenty of exercise, and very little liquor. I try not to worry even when my jokes go wrong, and I like to find some good in everything and everybody. My motto is, 'God gives us our relatives; thank God we can choose our friends.'"

Mr Flemming has received a large number of cables, telegrams, and letters of condolence from all parts of the Empire. A shilling subscription has been started in Melbourne, the object being to erect a memorial over Spurr's last resting-place. So popular had the late artist become throughout this country that the promoters of the memorial are anxious that all classes should be accorded an opportunity of contributing—hence the nominal sum fixed.

MISS RITA GALLALLY'S DRAMATIC RECITAL.

At the Steinway Hall on Thursday evening Miss R. Gallally gave a dramatic recital before an appreciative and crowded audience. A most enjoyable evening's entertainment was opened by the young and charming débutante (a pupil of Mr and Mrs S. Hasluck) with a powerful rendering of Dickens's "Death of Sidney Carton," which prepared the audience for the good things that followed. Her second item was Hans Andersen's fairy story, "The Red Shoes," to which Dr. Walmsley Little's incidental music lent an added charm to a performance that was natural and pleasing. In proof of this artist's resource she next gave a selection from Henry V., in which she sustained the character of Princess Katherine with much daintiness. A marked feature of this really excellent performance was her broken English. At the finish she was presented with several floral tributes. In this scene she received able assistance from Mr W. Bloye Higgs whose King Henry V. deserves a special word of praise. Miss R. Gallally in a trio of recitals, (a) "The Lesson of the Watermill," (b) "Once upon a Time," (c) "A Lesson with a Fan," won a well-merited encore, to which she responded. With dramatic force and effect she held the attention of her audience with her pathetic word-picture of Re Henry's "A Frenchwoman's Story," which was a marked feature of her extensive répertoire. At the close, in Theyre Smith's comedietta, A Happy Pair, the character of Mrs Honeyton received all the bright vivacity the part demanded at the hands of Miss Gallally. As Mr Honeyton Mr W. Bloye Higgs merited the meed of appreciation his efforts commanded. Lack of space prevents us from individualising the vocal items of Mr Edgar Coyle, which were splendidly executed with great feeling and expression. The same must be said of the violoncello solos by Miss Amy Flood-Porter, which were interpreted with a brilliancy that evoked enthusiastic approbation. The splendid work of the accompanist, Miss Kate Murdoch, deserves a special word of praise, being executed throughout with marked skill.

PRESENTATION.—Mr Wallace Stranack, manager of The Fatal Wedding (North) company, was on Saturday last at the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, the recipient of a testimonial address, and was presented with a silver-mounted pipe, pouch, matchbox, and gold-mounted amber cigar holder in silver case, as a mark of esteem from the adult and juvenile members of the company. Mr Norman Latham, musical director, gave Mr J. Wilfred Chilton, the advance manager, a handsome silver-mounted pipe in case, in token of good fellowship.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.

FRANCIS, DAY & HUNTER,

JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

Joseph Jefferson, the famous American actor, announces his intention of retiring immediately from the stage, on the ground of failing health. Jefferson, who is seventy-five, commenced acting as a child, his two celebrated parts being Rip Van Winkle and Bob Acres. He was born at Philadelphia on Feb. 20, 1829. Mr William Winter, the eminent American critic, writes of him:—"He was reared amidst theatrical surroundings, and when only four years old was brought upon the stage, at the Washington Theatre, by Thomas D. Rice, the famous delineator of Negro character. This comedian, on a benefit occasion, introduced the child, blackened and arrayed precisely like himself, into his performance of Jim Crow; and little Joe was carried upon the scene in a bag, by the shambling Ethiopian actor, and emptied from it, with the appropriate couplet—

Ladies and gentlemen, I'd have you for to know
I'se got a little darkey here to jump Jim Crow.

An eye-witness of this first appearance—that admirable actress, Mrs John Drew, of Philadelphia—says that the boy instantly assumed the exact attitude of Jim Crow Rice, and sang and danced in imitation of his sable companion, and was a perfect miniature likeness of that long, ungainly, grotesque, and exceedingly droll comedian.

In 1837, when eight years old, this little lad is found at the Franklin Theatre, New York, with his parents, and it is recorded that he appeared upon the stage, Sept. 30, in a sword combat with "Master Titus."

Often in those days the youthful Jefferson participated in performances that were given in the dining rooms of country hotels, without a scrap of scenery. This kind of experience, indeed, was not uncommon with the children of Thespis in the earlier times of the American stage. After many rough experiences Jefferson came out at Chanfrau's New National Theatre, in 1849, as Jack Rackbottle in a representation of Jonathan Bradford.

On leaving the National Theatre, in the early fall of 1850, Jefferson and his wife proceeded to the old Olympic, where they acted in November; and about this time the young comedian applied, but without success, for a position in Brougham's Lyceum—opened Dec. 23, that year. A little later, in the season of 1851-52, Jefferson was attached to the company of Anna Thillon and the Irish comedian, Hudson, who gave musical plays at Niblo's Garden; and shortly afterwards at this theatre he was associated with Mr and Mrs John Drew, William Rufus Blake, Lester Wallack, Mrs Stephens, Mrs Conover, and Charles Wheatleigh. He then formed a partnership with Mr John Elsler, and took a dramatic company through a circuit of theatres in the south, visiting Charleston, Savannah, Macon, Atlanta, Augusta, Wilmington, and other cities. After this tour was over he settled for a while in Philadelphia, and then in Baltimore—first at the Holiday-street Theatre, and then at the Baltimore Museum, where he was manager. In the summer of 1856 he made his first trip to Europe, his purpose being to study the acting then to be seen on the London and Paris stage. On Nov. 18, that year, the beautiful Laura Keene opened her new theatre, afterwards the second Olympic, at Nos. 622 and 624, Broadway, New York, and Jefferson was soon added to the force, already very strong, of her recruits. On Oct. 18, 1857, for the first time anywhere, was presented Tom Taylor's comedy of Our American Cousin, and this brought the crisis in Jefferson's professional life. He acted Asa Trenchard in this piece, and he was instantly famous.

The season of 1858-59 at Laura Keene's Theatre lasted till July 14 in the latter year, when Jefferson's relations with her company were ended, and on Sept. 14 following he appeared in the dramatic company engaged by Dion Boucicault and William Stuart for the Winter Garden Theatre, then opened with Mr Boucicault's adaptation of The Cricket on the Hearth. The first presentation of Mr Boucicault's powerful drama of The Octoroon (Dec. 5, 1859) was an important incident of this season; and on Feb. 2, 1860, a new theatrical version of Dickens's novel of "Oliver Twist," made by Jefferson himself, was for the first time presented, the withdrawal of Mr Boucicault, who left the theatre suddenly, on a disagreement as to business, having opened the way for the presentment of new attractions. The Winter Garden season, meantime, was still further signalised by the production (Feb. 19) of Mrs Sydney Frances Cowell Bateman's play of Evangeline—a work based on Longfellow's poem of that name—in which Miss Kate Bateman began the more mature portion of her professional career, and in which Jefferson acted the humorous character. He withdrew from the Winter Garden in the spring of 1860, and on May 16 opened Laura Keene's Theatre for a summer season, which lasted till Aug. 31.

Early in 1861 Jefferson's first wife suddenly died; and this bereavement, together with apprehension prompted by his own delicate health, now persuaded him to seek refuge and relief in travel and new scenes. At first he proceeded to California, arriving in San Francisco on June 26, 1861, and on July 8, immediately following, he made his first appearance in that city. This event occurred at Maguire's Opera House in Washington-street, and Jefferson's California season lasted till Nov. 4, that year, when he made his farewell appearance. The next day he sailed for Australia, where he passed four of the most prosperous years of his life."

On Sept. 4, 1865, Jefferson appeared as Rip Van Winkle at the London Adelphi. His success was great. The British public instantly took Rip Van Winkle to its heart. Jefferson arrived in New York, on his return from England, Aug. 13, 1866, and on Sept. 3 appeared at the Olympic Theatre as Rip Van Winkle. The performance was received with delight by all classes of spectators. The next year, 1867, he was at the Olympic Theatre again (from Sept. 9 to Oct. 26), and played nothing but Rip Van Winkle, which drew crowded houses.

Jefferson had married in 1867. In 1869 he bought a large estate near Hohokus, New Jersey. The year 1872 was signalised by a severe and dangerous illness. In June, 1875, he went again to England—this time on a professional expedition, remaining abroad two years and a half. His first London engagement, at the Princess's, extended from Nov. 1, 1875, to April 29, 1876, and his second, from Easter, 1877, to the ensuing midsummer, when he went to the Haymarket for a brief season of farces, under the management of John S. Clarke. Jefferson arrived home on Oct. 17, 1877, and on Oct. 28, at Booth's Theatre, under the management of Mr Augustin Daly, again accosted his countrymen as Rip Van Winkle. A warm-hearted welcome greeted him, and he again made a successful tour of the United States. In 1878 he paid a second visit to California, and on Dec. 16 that year he acted in New York, at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, under the direction of Daniel H. Harkins and Stephen Fiske. After that he was absent from the metropolis of the east till October, 1879, when he appeared at the Grand Opera House; and in that theatre his New York engagements have since been fulfilled. In the autumn of 1880 he effected, at the Arch-street Theatre, Philadelphia, a careful and brilliant revival of The Rivals, and made an extraordinary hit as Bob Acres; and his professional exertions have since been largely divided between Acres and Rip Van Winkle.

AT the Hippodrome, Stoke, Miss Vesta Victoria is scoring a huge success. Prince Ishmael, illusionist, contributes a marvellous entertainment Igo, boy comedian, meets with success; Ray and Mills are very funny in their act; Harry Barker pays a welcome visit, and is much appreciated; Ella Rose sings her songs admirably; Arthur St. George is a capital comedian; Craig, Rose, and Craig, athletes, contribute a really good turn; and Collins's Bioscope shows some capital pictures.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(COPYRIGHT.)

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Rev. T. Horne, the hon. organising chaplain of the Showmen's Guild, has occupied for the past eight and a half years the onerous position of chaplain of the Union Hospital and Workhouse, West Didsbury, Manchester. That work he has recently resigned, and will shortly commence ministerial duties in a busy North London parish. In making this change in the sphere of his clerical work the rev. gentleman has been careful to only accept such fixed ministerial duty as shall give him all necessary time to continue, and even to extend, his labour of love for the Guild and also increase his work on The Era. Now that the necessary difficulties attending so very important a change are over, the Rev. T. Horne wishes it to be widely known that his new work will enable him to be even more useful to his showmen friends than ever he has been in the past, that his voice and pen will be more than ever at their service. His removal to London and his increased writing for The Era week by week will be a manifest gain to the whole body of travelling showmen. More than that, he will give himself ample time to visit most of the principal fairs, especially those parts of the country where hitherto the Guild has lacked members for want of someone on the spot to organise meetings and to explain the society's work.

This necessary propaganda work the Hon. Chaplain will endeavour to carry through, and in accepting clerical work in London he has been able to make most excellent arrangements for liberty of action and time wherein to carry out work amongst the people of the fairgrounds of the United Kingdom. The many possibilities of increased usefulness and the changes that may be thought advisable that the settlement of Mr Horne in London involves, will be considered by the executive committee of the Guild at a special meeting to-morrow, Sunday, Nov. 13, at the society's room, The Black Lion Hotel, Salford, 7·0 p.m. See advert. The Hon. Chaplain will attend and address the committee.

BEFORE we attempt to outline a future policy of work for the Guild something further must be said of the serious burden the Guild has been trying to bear with regard to the Parliamentary work of trade defence. The Guild has striven for the past four years to bear this financial burden with an income ample enough for the necessities of its work other than Parliamentary defence. It began four years ago to battle for the rights and liberties of showmen in the Private Bills Committee Rooms of the House of Commons. With a reserve fund of over £200, aided by the continued munificence of its honoured president, Lord George Sanger, whose donation of £100 every year has been such an enormous help, the Guild entered upon this absolutely necessary work. Yet, whilst we recognise the generous response of a certain number of showmen to our continued appeals for funds, the fact remains that four years' Parliamentary defence work not only exhausted the reserve funds, but also the yearly income of the society, and to-day the executive have to face a serious deficit and accumulating financial responsibility.

WHAT are showmen going to do? There is one thing they cannot afford to do, and that is to lose all the very substantial advantages that Parliamentary Defence has gained for them. As men of business, as men of progress they must see to it that every point gained in the national recognition of their enterprise is fully maintained. Nay, it is true that if they do not continue to advance they must lose ground and fall back in the strenuous struggle for their true place in the national life. When victory is already won, to neglect the opportunity of gathering in the fruits of that victory were to stamp themselves in the sight of all men as being unfit to enjoy the full rewards of their hard-won fight for citizenship.

WE pointed out last week that whether the Guild, like the other societies, held many meetings or few, its work went on unceasingly, that its executive—honorary or paid workers—were ever watching and ever energetic in all the varied and necessary departments of work—the present year being, without doubt, the most brilliantly successful of its many years of useful enterprise—yet, except the response at King's Lynn and at Treorchy, the Society's work has hitherto met with but poor appreciation.

WHATEVER may be said of the lack of meetings since Treorchy, it certainly cannot be said that it has been through lack of information. We have again and again in these columns fully explained the position of the Parliamentary Defence Fund, and the immediate need of subscriptions to pay for the work so ably done by the paid agents and experts engaged in the successful work of trade defence. We ask, therefore, that even now, late in the day as it is since the victory was won, let the money roll in, and let the men who have done their work so well be paid.

WE hasten to explain that although the urban district council of Acton, when their Bill was defeated, had to pay the legal expenses of the showmen's defence, there were other expenses the Guild had to bear—unavoidable expenses that could not be charged to the defeated corporation. It must also be remembered that in almost every instance where victories were won without a Parliamentary fight (we refer to the negotiations with reasonable and amenable corporations), petitions had to be prepared and lodged, and at every point fees paid and unavoidable expenses incurred. We state this now because we wish to correct any possible mistaken impression as to the relief in expenses the victory over Acton meant to the Guild funds. Of course, it meant a great relief as regards Acton, but it did not touch the expenses of some six other petitions lodged in the Private Bills Office of the House of Commons.

THE work of 1904 in Parliament is finished—well and truly done. Showmen are the last men in the world to want to deny good and true work its full reward and wages. Again, we say, let the subscriptions roll in rapidly; let them be willing and generous in full gratitude for the splendid work accomplished and the victories won.

AT the Newcastle Trades' Exhibition, in addition to the vast array of trades exhibits, we noticed Aldison's hall of laughter, Yorke's electrical exhibition, and the colliery exhibition. A grand treat to musical visitors was provided by the Royal Garrison Artillery Band. The exhibition has been well patronised, and great credit is due to the manager, the genial Mr Cowie.

AT the Market-yard, West Hartlepool, were William Murphy's "Golden Venice," Beaumont's aerial flight, shooting gallery and range, Emmas, and fancy stalls; Testo's exhibition of wonders of the deep; Beans, with a moving stereoscope; Kitson's coker-nuts and gold-fish aquarium; Mrs Campbell's China bazaar; Smith's new football game; and Slavin's strength register.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES were enabled to study natural history by practical demonstration of the world's life by the visit on Saturday last of the well-known concern of Messrs Bostock and Wombwell's No. 1 Aggregation, which was well patronised by the inhabitants. A feature of the show was the horse, Linus, with an extraordinary abundance of hair from mane and tail, an hirsute wonder in reality. The management of the show is in the capable hands of Mr H. Birkett, with Mr Burns on ahead.

BOSTOCK AND WOMBWELL'S are due to exhibit at West Hartlepool on Nov. 12 and Hartlepool East on Nov. 14. A good patronage should await them, as it is a long time since a menagerie of so large dimensions paid a visit to the Hartlepools. Morpeth Hirings was held on Wednesday with all the fun of the fair erected in the streets of the little Northumberland town. Amongst many showmen and stallholders we noticed Walter Murphy, with his looping-the-loop gondolas; Miller's North country varieties, with the new addition, the splendid traction engine, which has been named the "Stella Mattina;" Toogood's fancy bazaars, Walker's coker nuts, fancy stalls by Messrs Stockwell, Cottam, Nace, Rigby, Blomfield. There was a large number of street auctioneers in addition.

ALNWICK Hirings was held last Saturday in the market square, Alnwick, the country seat of the Duke of Northumberland. Alnwick Hirings is one of the old-time fairs where the customs of engaging servants on hire in a public market are still adhered to. A striking feature of the honesty displayed in entering into engagements by verbal contracts between master and servant are the rarity of their being broken. On the pleasure side we noticed Walter Murphy's looping-the-loop gondolas, which had travelled through from Morpeth by special train; Toogood's bazaars, Walker's coker nut sheet, Knight's dolly stalls, Stockwell's stalls, Slavin's machines of height and weight.

STOCKTON Hirings was largely attended. Amongst the shows present were Mr William Murphy's "Golden Venice," which has lately been renovated, Messrs Richardson Bros. Limited, Venetian gondolas, Harry Carls with his four-abreast jumping generals, Crow and Son's galloping horses, Robinson's gallery shooter, coker-nuts, Emma stalls, and juvenile swings, Sheeran's bottle breaker, with repeating rifles, Emma stalls, Hancock's Emma stalls, gallery and shooter; Newcome's miniature horses, and Moore's troupe of boxers.

WE understand that Mr Wm. Murphy is giving the entire proceeds of the takings of his "Golden Venice" towards the Stockton and Thornaby Hospital on Monday night, Nov. 14. We hope a good round sum will be realised for a most deserving and charitable cause. The arrangements relating thereto are in the capable hands of Mr Sanderson, secretary, Stockton and Thornaby Hospital, Mr Geo. Campbell, agent general; and Messrs Murphy brothers.

SOUTH SHIELDS fair was held on Wednesday in the Market-square. Amongst the shows were Walker Hoadley's magnificent four-abreast generals with the large traction, Belle of the Road; Hamilton's galloping horses with traction, Billy No 1, driving the dynamo for electric light; W. and B. Murphy's Venetian gondolas with traction, Queen Alexandria; Cooper's Cinématograph, and Collena's museum. The north round concludes at the Garrison Field, Sunderland, Christmas carnival.

FROM the Midland Round we have news of the continued success of Holloway's New Empire Theatre at Astwood Bank. Mr Holloway is applying for a month's extension of his licence. He signalises the end of the present licence by a benefit performance for the Astwood Bank and District Hospital Society. The entire proceeds will go to the funds of this most excellent charity.

AT Bromsgrove, Jennings's Alexandra Theatre is located for a short season. The répertoire this week includes A London Outcast, The Unknown, The Factory Girl, Lady Audley's Secret, Man and Wife, and Meet Me in the Lane When the Clock Strikes Nine. Good business has rewarded the efforts of the management.

THAT clever contortionist Snakello is giving his unique performance in the Royal Hotel Yard, Redditch.

CHAS. HERBERT'S fair ground amusements are now at Headless Cross for the winter season. Whilst stationed here the whole aggregation will undergo the necessary renovation for the next year's enterprise.

AT Darlington are the concerns of Messrs Geo. Payne's Cinématograph theatre, W. J. Beavis's fine art, Prof. Moore's fistiana, Richardson Bros.' roundabouts, J. Hancock's Winchester range, and Messrs W. J. Firman, Hancock, and Robson, with varieties, cokers, &c. James Manders with ostriches and Messrs H. Shaw, T. Cain, and J. Wright's varieties are at Hetton-le-Hole. H. Carls with steam horses, C. Robson and J. Robinson with shooters, and Geo. Halliday with roll-up boards are at Stockton-on-Tees.

AT North Shields are Messrs Richardson Bros., with steam gallopers, W. Testo, Rosher, Lowther, Stephens, and H. C. Brian, with shooters; and Messrs M. Watkins, J. Smith, J. Millar, H. Stephens, A. Newsome, Coultman, and Sedgmore, with varieties, cokers, &c.

AT South Shields are Messrs Spencer, with big boats, and Pinninger, with swings and highfliers.—Mr R. Mackney's theatre of varieties and ghost illusion Pavilion is at Witton Park.—H. C. Brian, with fine-art gallery, and Walker Hoadley, with steam horses, are at Willington.—Messrs W. and B. Murphy's electric gondolas are at Easington-lane.—Mr Testo's cinématograph theatre is at West Hartlepool.

THE singularly clear and unmistakable decision of the Blaina and Nantyglo bench of magistrates re Ebley's portable theatre and building bye-laws is being challenged by the district council. The council, evidently smarting under its sense of defeat, will not take "No" for an answer. It was a decided "No." They do not possess, nor can they be given, power to control portable erections. That control is only within the province of the county council, acting under bye-laws sanctioned by the Local Government Board, to interfere with portable erections of the character of Mr Ebley's theatre. However, the latest news from Blaina is that the clerk to the Urban District Council is instructed to ask the magistrates to state a case for appeal to the higher court.

THIS is another instance amongst many of late years in which public money—the hard-earned money of the ratepayers—is being recklessly squandered by their elected representatives in order to bolster a claim to exercise powers that the law does not allow. Not only is this a grave injustice to the ratepayers, but it also inflicts most unnecessary loss of time and money on travelling showmen. During the past four years the Showmen's Guild has spent over a thousand pounds in opposing the demand of local bodies for the powers that Blaina and Nantyglo wished to exercise, though they had them not. In this case the people of the district, who earnestly desire to have their theatre, will have to find the money to defeat the very object they wish to secure. The opinion of learned counsel will be sought by the elected autocrats of the council, and the poor outraged ratepayers will have to find the money.

BEVERLEY hirings took place on Nov. 5 and 7. Here were Goldthorpe Marshall's Venetian gondolas, W. Shipley's three-abreast and the four-abreast of the same proprietor, Messrs Waddington's twin yachts, T. Neal's juvenile swings, and Carvill's over-boats. The shows included Mr John Mander's moving waxwork, Capt. T. Payne's Bioscope, Sahib Leo's Egyptian hall, Mr Charles Relph, and Wee M'Gregor. The supplementary fun of the fair was provided by Messrs A. Barker, T. Ross, F. Hume, G. Bradshaw, P. Brindle M. Tearney, and others.

LANCASHIRE showmen must be watchful or else they will lose one of their best fairs. The following incident occurred in the Wigan Council Chamber the week after the fair, and it clearly shows that the fair has enemies in the Corporation. When the minutes of the Markets and Fairs' Committee were submitted for approval they contained the following:—"That it be an instruction to the markets superintendent that at all future pleasure fairs the proprietors of stalls, vans, or roundabouts of any description be not allowed to commence building up on the Market-square before one o'clock on the Friday preceding the fair." Before the minutes were confirmed the enemies of the pleasure fair made their attack.

COUNCILLOR BENSON asked, When are we going to abolish the pleasure fair? The Mayor pointed out that the question would have to come before the Council upon a resolution after due notice. The councillor retorted that he gave notice then and there for the next meeting of the Council. Alderman Richards reminded Councillor Benson that the people of Wigan had a say in the matter, and that before any steps could be taken a poll of the inhabitants would be demanded. Alderman Johnson sided with Councillor Benson and expressed his opinion that to abolish the Fair would be a good thing. Alderman Richards again defended the Fair with the economic fact that it would mean a loss of £500 a year in tolls to the town.

ALDERMAN JOHNSON then trotted out the ancient "bogie," that fairs are a menace to public health. Councillor Gaskell followed with the old, old fallacy that the fair was a disgrace to the town, and Councillor Deakin said that for the sake of the regular market people, the fair ought to be abolished. Fortunately Wigan has its local showmen and hosts of friends and champions of the fair. The point of real danger is that by insidious and vexatious new regulations they may endeavour so to cripple the business of showmen that they may hesitate about continuing their attendance at Wigan Fairs.

THIS is an old dodge of the enemies of the fairs throughout the country. They cannot carry the people with them in their abolition crusade. They can, and do, use their power on the Town Council to pass hindering regulations like the one we have given above. This will lead the way to some other attack. The fair may suffer in popularity, and, of course, in revenue to the town, and, last of all, the argument will be used—"See how the fair is dying out!" Let us give it the quick and merciful dispatch.

AFTER having undergone renovation and having been handsomely redecorated, Cooke's Circus, Lothian-road, Edinburgh, will reopen for the season on Monday evening. The programme, prepared by Mr Cooke on this occasion, vies in attractiveness with the best that has been seen at the circus. In addition to the usual equestrian acts, acrobatic "turns," and other circus business, a thrilling and sensational spectacle entitled Prairie Life Out West has been arranged, and will be presented by Mr Cooke, who will, no doubt, enhance his reputation as an amusement caterer by this entertainment. Smoking will again be permitted in all parts of the circus.

THE singular collection of bric-a-brac paintings, waxworks, old carved oak, monuments, and effigies got together by the late Mr R. S. Wilson, of Tuxford Hall, Notts., is to be dispersed. Mr Wilson was a wealthy eccentric. He converted his residence into a wonderful museum, and in his grounds he had constructed a deep pit, which represented "Hell," presided over by a figure of Satan, bound to the earth with chains. In the "Hell" were figures representing the late President Kruger, religious lawyers, drunkards, hypocrites, and others whom Mr Wilson had condemned to fire and brimstone. Within the hall were relics of Napoleon, Wellington, and Nelson; Byron, King John, Cromwell, and Charles Stuart. Full-size waxwork figures repose on carved oak bedsteads, and with figures in armour, are disposed in extraordinary fashion in the various rooms.

MR WM. TAYLOR was granted a licence for his excellent portable theatre, for a month's season, after the following interesting debate by the East Grinstead Urban Council.

MR WHITEHEAD proposed and Mr Miles seconded that the licence be granted. Mr Morris strongly opposed it, and contended that the theatre was taking money from those who could least afford it and from some of those who, before the winter was over, would be asking the ratepayers for assistance. Mr Morris aroused some laughter by describing what he saw on the occasion of a recent visit by himself to the theatre, and argued that the witnessing of a presentment of tragic scenes was likely to do far more harm than merely reading about them. He contended that the Council was the custodian of the morals of the place and their object should be to make the world better for living in it. Mr Whitehead bore testimony to the excellent way in which Mr Taylor managed his place and said nothing took place there that was injurious to the morals of the town.

MR GALLARD spoke in a similar strain, but denied that they had anything to do with the morals of the place; all they were concerned in was to see that there were proper precautions against fire. The theatre was a place that brought many people into the town from surrounding villages, and they all spent something before they went back. There might be a few things they ought to shut their eyes to, but on the whole people could learn many things for their good in such a place. Mr Taylor's theatre was conducted in a proper manner. Mr J. Rice said he should not vote, as he had not yet had an opportunity of visiting the place, but he would do so during the ensuing month, and according to what he saw so would his vote be given, if further extension was applied for. Mr Hills doubted the right of the Council, even if they disagreed with the theatre, to say that people who did favour it should be debarred from visiting it. Personally, he had no feeling either way.

AT the Four Courts, Dublin, on Monday, was heard an appeal from a decision of the Recorder dismissing an action brought by James T. Jameson, trading as the Irish Exchange News Bureau, against the defendant, who trades as the Ampere Electrical Company, to recover damages for breach of a contract, entered into by the defendant for the supply of an engine and dynamo of sufficient power and capacity to exhibit a Biograph in Limerick, Ennis, Galway, and Cork during October and November last year. The engine and dynamo, which had been forwarded by rail on Oct. 2 to Limerick, did not reach there in time, and when the dynamo was started, it only gave a light for a few seconds owing to the breakdown of the engine. The result was an uproar in the theatre, and the plaintiff was obliged to refund the £30. The defence was that the agreement protected the defendants against responsibility for accidents and breakdowns. The Judge reversed the Recorder's decision, and gave a decree for £30 and costs.

AT Holloway's New Empire Theatre, Astwood Bank, large houses attend nightly to witness the excellent performances given by Mr Holloway's first-class company. The singing competion was won by Mr W. Bint, of Astwood Bank. Mr Holloway has kindly offered to give the proceeds of a performance to the Redditch Hospital. Mr Eagle's photographic studios are still doing good business. He has also all the latest automatic machines and living pictures.

A SHOWMAN CASE.

We briefly reported last week another bye-laws decision, this time by the Windsor magistrates. A victory against a bye-law—manifestly ultra vires—was obtained by the able advocacy of Mr T. Watson Wright, solicitor to the Vandwellers and Showmen's Protection Association. The Town Clerk, Mr E. U. Durant, stated the case for the prosecution against the well-known show and roundabout proprietors, Messrs Hastings and Weyman, Wm. Biddell, R. M. Warwick, and Mr Thomas. The bye-law reads as follows:—"No person shall, in connection with any roundabout, show, exhibition, or performance placed or held in any street or on any vacant ground adjoining or near to a street, make or cause to be made any loud or continuous noise by means of any organ or other similar instrument to the annoyance of residents or passengers."

Detective officer M'Lain said on Saturday, Oct. 22, in consequence of instructions from Head-constable Nicholls, he went to a field at Spital, nearly opposite to the Duke of York publichouse. There was an entrance from St. Leonard's-road, passing by Mr Garlick's shop. Witness on approaching the field heard a great noise. He then saw a number of stalls and roundabouts. The first roundabout was commonly known as galloping horses. The next was a switchback, and the third was galloping horses. The first show was a cinématograph exhibition, the second a peep show and fine art exhibition, and the third a cinématograph show. There was an organ attached to each of these shows, and they were playing. The motive power of the organs was mostly steam. Witness first went to Mrs Thomas, who was taking the money at the first roundabout.

There were cymbals attached to the organ, and there was also a whistle blowing at intervals. Witness next went to the owner of the peep show, called a "fine art exhibition." Witness there saw the defendant Warwick. There was an organ attached to his show driven by a small steam engine. It was at work and making a noise. Witness asked Warwick for his name and address. He replied "What for?" and witness said "It is for committing an offence against some new bye-laws. Have you been cautioned?" He replied "I have not; but if it's the organ I will stop it." He then stopped it.

Witness then went to the switchback, roundabout, and a cinématograph show, owned by the defendant Hastings. Witness asked him who the owner was, and he replied, "Hastings and Weyman, York Hotel, Llanelly, Carmarthen, but if there is any trouble I will take the responsibility for both." There was a steam organ and also a whistle blowing at intervals. The next show he went to was Samuel Jones's, where there was a steam organ attached to a roundabout. It was playing. The noise of all the organs was loud and continuous. Jones gave his address as White Bear, Hounslow. At Biddell's show there were stage performances and an animated picture show. At this show an organ turned by hand was playing with a big drum attached to it.

Mr Watson Wright admitted that attached to these roundabouts and shows was an organ to each making a loud and continuous noise.

Cross-examined by Mr Wright, Detective-officer M'Lain said these shows were in a field containing about seven or eight acres. The shows were nearer the far end of the field than St. Leonard's-road. The whole of the field was fenced in either by hedges or wire, except a small portion which was opened for the purpose of people going in, or admitting shows. There was another entrance. The actual entrance into the field was about thirty-one yards from the road, and this entrance goes between houses and back gardens. Witness had known these shows and roundabouts to be in this field or the next field year by year for the past fourteen years. The owners of the shows always conducted themselves properly, and carried out their business properly. He (witness) told defendants that the proceedings were being taken in consequence of complaints

The Town Clerk, in answer to the Bench, stated that the field belonged to Colonel Bulkeley.

Mr Watson Wright said £25 was paid for the use of the field to the agent (Mr Mason) of Colonel Bulkeley.

Mr Thomas Clegg, of 2, Dorset-villas, Bolton-road, a turning out of St. Leonard's-road, said his house was roughly about 300 yards from the field where the roundabouts and shows were. On Saturday last, at six o'clock in the evening, he heard noises from five mechanical organs, three drums, two pairs of cymbals, one cornet, four rattles, two brass bells, numerous whistles, and periodical revolver shots. All the noises proceeded from the field, and as a resident he was excessively annoyed, and the noises prevented him from following his usual occupation. The noise was loud and continuous.

Cross-examined by Mr Wright: Personally he did not agree with that class of amusement. He would not object if he could not hear the noise with his doors and windows closed. Witness had objected through the public Press to the noise made by the draghounds. He had also complained in the Press of Messrs White's mineral water vans passing his house. Witness had complained before the magistrates of a fried fish shop near his house. He (witness) went to the field the previous evening so that he could get evidence in support of any fresh summonses. The police had taken proceedings on his initiative. Witness stated on his oath that he could hear the noises inside his house. He walked three-quarters of a mile away from the field on Saturday night, and he could still hear the noises distinctly. Witness did not say he would object to them at that distance. He objected now as they interfered with his comfort and business avocations. There were houses less than half the distance to his field. Although the wind was blowing in a direction away from his house the night previous he still heard the noises. The dwellers in the houses nearer the field must have heard them. Witness got up a memorial to the Town Council against the noises. The blacksmith near the spot did not sign it, as he did not ask him. Two persons only refused to sign. Witness was a literary agent, and he had a considerable amount of editing to do. During the last three years this fair had continued from six to fourteen days. Witness had only resided there three or four years.

Inspector Verrall, of the R.S.P.C.A., of 2, Olive-villas, Bolton-road, said his house was about 300 yards away from the place where the roundabouts were fixed. On Saturday last he heard the noise of organs starting at about six in the evening. Witness was disturbed by the noise, which was loud and continuous. He went with Detective-officer M'Lain, and his evidence was correct. Witness was disturbed in writing his reports to his society, which he wrote in the evening, and he had to catch the nine o'clock post. Witness signed a petition to the Town Council.

The memorial was produced and read by the clerk. Amongst others it was signed by witness.

Mr Wright objected to the memorial being put in.

Cross-examined by Mr Wright, witness said he had been an Inspector six years, but he had never summoned a showman for cruelty. The noise was certainly an annoyance to him. He (witness) would not object if he could not hear it in his house. He could hear the noise in his front room facing Bolton-road when the doors and windows were shut.

Head Constable Nicholls said he received complaints of the noises from Mr Clegg.—The letter containing the complaints was produced and read.

Mr Wright formally objected to the letter being put in as evidence.

Witness proceeded to say that in company with the three last witnesses, he went to the field where the show was, and corroborated the evidence given by Detective-officer M'Lain and other witnesses as to the noises. Witness was at present residing in Frances-road, at about half a mile from the field in question, and while in his garden he could hear the noise complained of most distinctly. He did not, however, personally complain of it. Witness also heard the noise at the police-station the same night.

Police-sergeant Barham said on Saturday last, about 1·20, he went into the fair field and saw the defendants, Mrs Thomas, William Hastings, Samuel Jones, and William Biddell. Witness had a copy of the bye-laws with him, and read bye-law No. 9 to each individually. Biddell pointed out that his organ was a hand organ. He asked if the bye-law said anything about the distance from the road, and he replied "No."

Mr W. B. Mason, auctioneer and land agent, said he was agent for the owner of the field in question, Colonel Rivers Bulkeley. It was not vacant land. They had allowed a man to have the feeding on the land on the condition that he kept the fences in order. The entrance to the field was a private occupation road. It was with his sanction that the ground was let to the fair people.

Mr Watson Wright, in the course of an able speech for the defence, said on the merits of the case this complaint was not reasonable, and the bye-law did not apply in this instance. Of course, to the people concerned, the case was an important one, and also to the public of Windsor and the authorities. If the magistrates decided upon a conviction, it would be serious for these people travelling about the country, who were following a lawful occupation. If they were excluded from going into towns by reason of such a bye-law their trade would be ruined. There were one and a-half millions of pounds invested in these shows throughout the country, and there were several thousand pounds' worth of property on the field at Windsor. Mr Wright then went on to point out to the magistrates that the show field was an enclosed ground, and did not adjoin a public street, nor was it "near to" a public highway. It was not "vacant ground" either. It was not waste land or common land, but a rateable field. Thus the bye-law did not apply in such a case. It was meant for beanfeasters and such people.

The Clerk said the case seemed to hinge on this—Is this land vacant ground and was the noise a loud and continuous noise?

Mr Watson Wright said the witness called by the prosecution (Mr Mason) had proved that it was not "vacant ground," and as to the noise being a nuisance, he could call volumes of evidence from persons residing within 130 yards of the show to say that it was no nuisance, and that their children were able to sleep soundly while the organs were playing. These show people were reasonable people, and they always tried to comply with the wishes of the police.

After further argument, Mr Wright quoted cases bearing on the matter, and said he had been engaged in numerous similar cases.

The Chairman, after conferring with his brother magistrates, said they had come to the conclusion that it was unnecessary for Mr Wright to call evidence. They could not make up their mind that this field was "vacant" land. It had been stated by one of the witnesses called that it was not vacant ground, and there was nothing to show that it was vacant ground. Therefore, they felt the bye-law did not support a conviction in this case, and they dismissed the summons.

Mr Durant said the Town Council would apply to the Home Office to make an amendment to the bye-law. If they said they would not pass any amendment to it, then it settled them.

Mr Wright—That is so.

Mr Durant said he had had a deal of correspondence with them, and one or two words were altered by the Council, but they had afterwards to be amended back to the model bye-laws.

Mr Wright said the Home Secretary did not wish these show people to be unreasonably interfered with. They on their part did not desire to be a nuisance to anybody, and instead of staying in Windsor six days, as originally intended, they were leaving that day. Those people who did not like the noise might go away for the few days the fair was here if it upset them so; but there were hundreds of others who liked the noise and movement at a fair.

The most important results may follow from this decision of the Windsor magistrates. The determination of the Town Council to seek for a revised bye-law will give the local showmen an opportunity of appealing against the bye-law as being bad, not only in its construction, but also in its penalising rigour and unreasonable restriction. We shall watch with great interest the next step in this most important case. To compel the Town Council to revise its bad bye-law is in itself a big gain. We heartily congratulate the showmen concerned and their legal champion, Mr T. Watson Wright.

COUNTY COUNCIL AND AMUSEMENTS.

(SPECIALLY REPORTED FOR THE ERA.)

LEWISHAM PALACE OF VARIETIES.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered plans submitted by Messrs Owen and Ward, on behalf of Mr Walter Stephens, of a music hall proposed to be erected at the junction of Lewisham High-street and Limesgrove, in respect of which proposed building application for a music and dancing licence will be made. Limes grove is at present a cul-de-sac, and the site will not comply with the Council's regulations, unless this road be continued through to Clarendon-road, a distance of about sixty yards. The building is shown to have seating accommodation for 1,642 persons, and with a slight alteration to the dress-circle exits the exit arrangements will comply with the regulations. The committee recommended "That Messrs Owen and Ward be informed that, provided the works are commenced within six months, the Council will be prepared to grant a certificate under Section 12 of 41 and 42 Vic., cap. 32, to the owner of such building, on being satisfied that the premises have been completed in accordance with the plans referred to, and the regulations of the Council, and that certain stated conditions have been complied with." Approved.

CHILDREN EMPLOYED AT THEATRES.

The Public Control Committee reported with reference to legislation during the year affecting the work of the Council. With regard to the Prevention of Cruelty to Children Act, they stated that it is practically a re-enactment of another Act, which it repeals, but there are a few alterations and additions, most of which have reference to the neglect or ill-treatment of children. The principal changes affecting the work of the Council relate to the employment of children for profit at theatres, music halls, and other places licensed for public entertainments. The Act regulates the exhibition of children at such places; and it prohibits the training of a child under sixteen as an acrobat, &c., except under licence. The Act also empowers a petty sessional court to grant licences, subject to restrictions and conditions, for the employment of children over ten years of age to take part in, or be trained for, entertainments in premises licensed for public entertainments or in any circus or other place of public amusement. The person to whom a licence is granted is required by the Act to send forthwith a copy of the licence to the Council, and it is the duty of the Council's inspectors to see that the restrictions and conditions contained in the licence are duly complied with. They have taken the necessary steps to draw the attention of the managers of theatres, music halls, &c., to this provision of the Act. The Act also places the onus of proving the age of a child in respect of whom an offence has been committed under the Employment of Children Act, 1903, upon the person charged with the offence. The Act came into operation on Oct. 1, 1904.

"LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST."

This comedy, which is now mostly relegated to the study, was among the earliest of Shakespeare's original plays, if not the earliest. "Love's Labour's Lost I once did see," wrote Robert Tofte, in 1598, in his The Month's Mind of a Melancholy Lover. The play was therefore then no longer new. "In its original form," writes Dr. Herford, "it no longer exists. A few months before Tofte wrote, it had been revised and expanded by Shakespeare for performance before the Queen as a part of the Christmas festivities at Whitehall. The text thus 'newly corrected and augmented' was published in the following year, and is known as the first quarto. Soon after the accession of James I. the play, which had pleased Elizabeth, was resorted to by Shakespeare's company in one of the embarrassments created by the vigorous dramatic appetite of the new Queen.

"The 'corrections' of 1597 have, doubtless, removed many marks of early style; happily, however, they have also, indirectly, given us a unique clue to them; fragments of the original version having, in at least three cases, remained embedded in the 'corrected' text. The earlier version of Rosaline's compact with Biron (v. 2, 827-832) is singularly jejune. The past mistress of quips and cranks seems to take up the rôle of moral censor as a new phase in the game of outwitting the lords, and to impose her penalty by way of flinging a last decisive shot at her adversary. In the latter version (v. 851 f.) she has passed, like the princess, into a serious and feeling mood (announced to the reader by Biron's question: 'Studies my lady?'), and the demand, before petulantly tossed at him in somewhat jerky iambics, is now gravely formulated in lines of subtly varied movement and eloquently rounded phrase, and with a moral dignity for which certainly nothing in her previous bearing prepares us. But then Shakespeare, when he thus 'corrected,' was already the creator of Portia."

Schlegel thinks Love's Labour's Lost a humorous display of frolic. "A whole cornucopia of the most vivacious jokes is emptied into it. Youth is certainly perceivable in the lavish superfluity of labour in the execution; the unbroken succession of plays on words, and sallies of every description, hardly leave the spectator time to breathe; the sparkles of wit fly about in such profusion that they resemble a blaze of fireworks; while the dialogue, for the most part, is in the same hurried style in which the passing masks at a carnival attempt to banter each other."

In his informative commentary on the play Mr Sydney Lee writes:—"The hero of Love's Labour's Lost is the King of Navarre, in whose kingdom the scene is laid, and the play was produced at a time when the bearer of such a title in France was attracting the serious attention of earnest-minded Englishmen. Similarly, the two chief lords in attendance in the comedy—Biron and Longaville—bear the actual names of the two strenuous supporters of the real King of Navarre; while the name of the Lord Dumaine is a common Anglicised version of that Duc De Maine, or Mayenne, whose name was so frequently mentioned in popular accounts of French affairs in connection with Navarre's movements that Shakespeare was not unnaturally led to number him also among his supporters.

"If we recall the anxious interest with which contemporary movements in France were watched by England from 1589 to the end of 1594—the exultation that followed every victory of Navarre's party, and the dejection that followed every defeat—it seems impossible to attribute to any mere chance coincidence the introduction of these names. It was in 1589—in or about which year our most trustworthy critics are agreed that Love's Labour's Lost must have been written—that England was startled by the news of the assassination of Henry III. by a fanatic monk, and that the dissensions between the Bourbon and Guise claimants to the vacant throne were to be settled at the sword's point. It was in the same year that Elizabeth for once belied her constitutional vacillation, and promised that some appreciable assistance should cross the Channel to aid Navarre.

"The only personage introduced into Love's Labour's Lost who will in any way compare with the productions of Shakespeare's after years is Biron. Coleridge saw in him the original sketch of Benedick, and there can be no doubt that to his characterisation Shakespeare devoted special attention. Most of his speeches are so superior in their workmanship to the rest of the play that we cannot but believe that they were worked up after the comedy was first produced, and are to be included among the corrections and augmentations mentioned in the title-page of the 1598 Quarto as having been recently made. The relation in which Biron stood to the English people between 1589 and 1598 would fully account for the distinction thus conferred upon him.

"Biron was well-known by repute and highly popular in England; the English contingent sent by Elizabeth in 1589 usually serving under his command, and finding him 'very respective to her Majesty and loving to her people.' His gaieties were proverbial, and the delightful portrait drawn by Rosaline of her lover is substantially true to the historical Biron. Armado, the 'phantasime Monarcho' is undoubtedly intended to recall an eccentric figure well-known in London some years before under the name of the 'Phantastical Monarcho'; his 'epitaph,' written by Churchyard (1580), speaks of him as a compound of folly and wit, 'grave of looks and father-like of face," who uttered 'strange talk' before strangers, sententious, not inclined to mirth, but 'well disposed' if any Prince took pleasure in any mirth he made,—'loved to hear him lie,' as the King says of Armado.

"The points of resemblance between this historical supporter of Navarre's and Shakespeare's Biron are numerous. The bravery, the common sense—the necessary complement of good generalship—and the love of recreation of the dramatist's hero at once suggest the popular Frenchman. His protest against the 'barren task' his companions impose on themselves—'not to see ladies, study fast,'—his 'salve for perjury' after all the oath-takers are forsworn, where he contends 'to see no woman' is 'flat treason 'gainst the kingly state of youth,' readily recall the leading features of his living namesake's court life."

Dr. Herford adds:—"Clearly, the pith of the play lies in the pleasant exposure of these affectations of Elizabethan culture. It is a 'comedy of humours,'—Shakespeare's one experiment in the genre which a decade later Jonson made his own. Shakespeare, like Jonson after him, has his fling at the 'vainglorious knight,' 'the profane jester,' 'the affected courtier;' but the animus of their satire is not altogether the same. Jonson assails these affectations with the downright scholar's scorn for shams; Shakespeare laughs at the 'lost labour' of those who, in one or other of these ways, insist (in Biron's phrase) on 'climbing over the house to unlock the little gate.' But his laughter is not all in the same key. Holofernes and Armado are purely comic figures, commended to us by no single sympathetic touch, and sent off the stage sadder but in no degree wiser than they entered it. Armado serves for the 'quick recreation' of Navarre and his bookmen. But Shakespeare has not a whit more respect for their own projected Academy of study, fasting and seclusion, and mercilessly derides it through the lips of Biron. But when they 'of mere necessity' forswear their asceticism, and the 'lost labours of love' actually begin, the satiric note becomes more equivocal. In the finest scene of the drama—one of the finest comic scenes in all the early dramas—where their perjury is discovered, the ridiculous situation of the perjured students contrasts strangely with the lyric beauty of the love-strains put into their mouths."

SEACOMBE.

IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Kiernan.—A powerful variety company is appearing here this week, headed by Lily Marney, who gives her latest success "The Spanish-Irish Girl" and a few of the older favourites. Amongst the other good turns we find the Vyponds, in a smart little patter absurdity, Engaging the Servant; Nancy Renshaw, the laughing Negro comedienne and bone soloist; the Werners, in a marvellous exhibition of cycling on, or rather in, a teacup track; Mr J. Linson, ballad and descriptive vocalist; Mdlle. Flora Lumiere's Fairy Grotto, including her kaleidoscopic and fire dances; the Summersons (Will and Maggie), a clever pair of comedy duettists, dancers, and pantomime artistes; Campkin tramp cyclist; the Hucos, burlesque entertainers; Blanche Gerard, vocalist; and Mdlle. Luba De Sarems, with "Sports from the Far East, including a performing wild mountain bull, two thoroughbred Java ponies, eight handsome performing dogs, and the bucking and kicking donkey Snowball. The Irving Bioscope is also in full swing each evening with the latest series of animated pictures.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. C. Harrison.—Why Woman Sins holds the boards here this week, the drama being successfully presented by Messrs Geo. Harris and Fred Terriss's company. Lieut. Maxwell is carefully and successfully treated by Mr Wallace Campbell. Captain Carlton as interpreted by Mr Terriss is a typical villain. Mr Harris is a capable Cecil Spencer. The Jim Rainbird of Mr Lionel Ellis is a meritorious performance. Mr Clifford Spencer as Sam Spavins, Mr Forbes Harrison as Orlando Whiffles, and Mr Cecil Churton as Captain Algie Steward give effective help. Lily De Vere is vivaciously played by Miss Winifred Preece; Miss Gussie Everett as Ida Valette wins much approval; Nell Desmond is skilfully portrayed by Miss Effie Bartlett; and Miss Susanne Kippaire is successful as Nanette.

SHREWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr W. C. Dornton.—The powerful detective play Sherlock Holmes was presented here on the opening nights of this week by Mr Chas. Frohman's excellent company. The title-rôle was in the capable hands of Mr Kenneth Rivington, by whom it was admirably sustained; Mr Fred Inwood made a capital Dr. Watson; Mr Chas. E. Scott was successful as John Forman; Mr Howard E. Laing was a capable Sir Edward Leighton; Mr Wm. Watson was all that could be desired as Count Von Stahlberg; Mr Arthur B. Murray as Professor Moriarty merited praise; Mr Ernest Gray played with much ability the part of James Larrabee; Mr Harry Stafford was alert as Sydney Prince; Mr Harry Mann was successful as Alfred Bassic; Mr F. Clive Ross made a burly ruffian as Jim Craigin; Mr George Fairburn was good as Tim Leary; Master Charles Chaplin was smart as Billy; Mr Harry Wright was excellent as Lightfoot M'Teague; Mr M. M. Louis as John was successful, and Mr G. F. Anson satisfactory as Parsons. The part of Alice Faulkner was effectively played by Miss Florence Radcliffe; Miss Ethel Gordon as Mrs Faulkner acted with ability; Miss Carrie Lacey was exceedingly good as Madge Larrabee; Miss Hattie Newcombe as Mrs Smedley was successful; and Miss Marjorie Murray made a capital Terese.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—Mr Charles Frohman is represented here by Mr H. A. Saintsbury and a powerful company in Sherlock Holmes. Mr Saintsbury vividly portrays the idiosyncrasies of the popular and astute Conan-Doyle detective, his acting being admirable in every detail. Mr W. F. Sterling also displays aptitude by contributing a striking sketch of Moriarty. Miss Vera Longden is a graceful and warm-hearted Alice Faulkner; Miss Maud Linden, a charming and handsome Madge Larrabee; Mr Walter Hicks, a smart Billy; Mr Pelham Raynor, a neat Sidney Prince; Mr Lawrence Leyton, a characteristic Dr. Watson; and Mr Leslie Carter, a blustering James Larrabee.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—The animated talking and singing pictures, billed as the greatest invention of modern times, are being received here with curiosity, mingled with approbation. The Griffiths Brothers are among the oldest of favourites here, and their funny burlesque wrestling bout not only maintains but enhances their reputation. Daisy Dormer is dainty alike in singing and dancing; a Herculean equilibrist act by the Brothers Teviotdale is a strong feature; Maxwell and Frances appear in a good vocal speciality act; Gilbert Rogers, vocalist and humourist, contributes successfully; Hal Forde is a clever and artistic comedian; Sybil St. Elmo with some charming ballads lends varied character to the performance; as also does the tramp cycling act of Gusto.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr Jos. Sweeney.—Packed houses are testifying to the popularity of the performances given here. This week's bill has Walter Stockwell, whose amusing quips and eccentricities are quite to the popular taste. The Countess (Charlie and Marion) render some humorous duets in bright and animated fashion; Baroni and Kemp, quick-change artistes, provide a comic speciality act; Florence Gwynne in her musical scena entitled "The Stage-Struck Servant" is afforded excellent opportunity of exhibiting her talent; and R. F. Forde, T. B. Fayme, George Bernard, and Teddy Denham are all commendable in their particular line of business.

STAFFORD.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Jas. Elphinstone.—A Royal Divorce is attracting appreciative audiences this week. An unusually powerful company is headed by Miss Edith Cole as Josephine and Mr Frederick Victor as Napoleon, these parts receiving excellent treatment. Talleyrand is ably delineated by Mr Claude Agnew; Mr Albert Grenville is a robust General Augereau; Marie Louise is in the capable hands of Miss Ethyle Murray; and Stephanie De Beauharnais is charmingly played by Miss Helen Richmond.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the St. Helens Theatre, Limited; Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—This week we have Mr Willliam Greet's company in Lucky Durham, which is scoring a decided success. The principal parts are exceedingly well enacted by Messrs W. F. Grant (in the title-rôle), H. De Solla (Lord Mountfallon), Daniel M'Carthy (Vallerton), and Paul Belmore (Steighton); Misses Mary Relf (Lady Mountfallon), Phyllis Relph (Helen Vallerton), Nellie Bonser (Mrs Durham), and Miss Jessie Winter (Margaret Steighton). The remaining characters have competent representatives and the piece is capitally well staged.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford, Will Sley, and F. Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr A. V. Cornell.—We should have been favoured this week here this week with a visit of Miss Marie Loftus; but owing to a motor-car accident which befell her last week she was unable to appear. The Nelson Newsboys, however, deputise for her, and score a success. The Six Brothers Luck are provocative of great merriment in The Demon of the Cellar and The Wizard. Other good turns are given by Wat Tyler, character vocalist; the Zaros, acrobats of high merit; Les Belles Americaines, vocalists and dancers; Herbert Berts, eccentric comedian; and the Bodina Trio, in their musical speciality.

SMETHWICK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr C. Barnard; Manager, Mr G. Hewitson.—There is a triple bill here this week, and considerable interest centres in the cinématograph slides depicting incidents in the Dogger Bank outrage. These pictures are admirably shown by the British Bioscope Company (Messrs Lee and Steele) and were very much appreciated on Monday by a large audience. The chief attraction is, however, the drama Under Two Flags, founded on Ouida's famous novel. The rôle of Cigarette is admirably sustained by Miss Laura Walker; Mr Alfred Goddard's impersonation of the hero, Bertie Cecil Royellieu, is one of the successes of the evening; Mr R. Harley West gives a capable enactment of Barklie; and from Mr Charles Brooke comes an acceptable Lord Royellieu; Mr C. Douglas Carlile as Lord Rockingham realises the part of the languid aristocrat very well; Mr Will Hook, an accomplished young comedian, plays the part of Rake, the devoted valet, with a good deal of humour; Mr Charles D. Pitt scores as the Black Hawk; Miss Celia Gordon makes a graceful Princess Venetia Corona; Miss Joan Stean acts charmingly as Countess Olga; Miss Bertha Kingston is all that can be desired as Lady Beatrice Guinevre; and Miss Daisy Carlton is seen to advantage as Lavinia.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. Marlow; Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company commenced a three nights' engagement here on Monday night with their sporting farce entitled The Money-Makers. Mr Frank Lacy is eminently suited in the rôle of Captain Archie Fitzgerald, known as Fitz; Mr Edward Binfield makes a good Fred; Matthew M'Dougall finds in Mr Allen Thomas an admirable exponent; Miss Muriel Ashwynne and Miss Lorna Lawrence as Dot and Mabel respectively give good impersonations of their sporting characters, and are most creditably upheld by Miss Frances Davie as Bella, who is responsible for all the scheming; and Miss Mary Griffiths makes a capital Mrs Bannerman. Two in a Trap precedes each evening.

SOUTHPORT.

OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—General Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming.—A cordial reception was accorded to Miss Lena Ashwell, who paid her first visit to this theatre on Monday, when the romantic play, Marguerite, was presented. Although not seen to the best advantage in the title-rôle, Miss Ashwell's conception of the part was entirely satisfactory, and merited unstinted praise. She was capably supported by an excellent company, prominent amongst whom were Mr Charles Groves, who gave a brilliant interpretation of St.-Phar, and Mr Frank Mills, who submitted a realistic and effective portraiture of Neuville. Miss Sydney Fairbrother played exceedingly well as Mdlle. Senedar, and Miss Helen Macbeth essayed the part of Madame Trial successfully. During the week Mrs Dane's Defence was presented.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; Resident Manager, Mr Herbert Vere.—An unusually attractive bill-of-fare is provided here this week in the shape of the Osmond Tearle Shakespearian and classical répertoire company, who are presenting a round of Shakespearian drama. A beginning was made on Monday with Othello, which was witnessed with keen interest by an appreciative audience. Mr G. Alexander Marsh as the Moor submitted a sound and artistic portrayal. As Desdemona Miss Carrie Baillie gave a decidedly fine and impressive impersonation. Iago as depicted by Mr John Burton was distinctly good, whilst Roderigo met with capable treatment at the hands of Mr Cyril Grier. Mr George Tearle displayed creditable abilities as Cassio, and Miss Fannie Chamberlain made the best of Emila. The other characters in the cast were well sustained, whilst the costumes and other stage appurtenances were very good.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldor Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—Mr Edmund Tearle and company are here in a round of the legitimate. On Monday Virginius was staged, and on Tuesday a very delightful performance of The Merry Wives of Windsor was given. As Sir John Falstaff Mr Tearle acted with a bluff humour well befitting the part, and was in all respects excellent. Mr Walter Raynham's Justice Shallow was a careful study; Mr W. J. Miller's Master Ford and Mr V. O. Crabtree's Master Page were cleverly done. As Dr. Caius Mr T. W. Benson was as near perfect as possible; and Mr J. V. Fairley's Sir Hugh Evans was also clever. Mr R. Melton's host of the 'Garter" and Mr Edmund Grogan's Bardolph were good impersonations. Miss Kate Clinton's Mistress Ford was piquant and Miss Violet Lesborough's Mistress Page was also worthy of note. Good work was done by Miss E. Tearle as Ann Page and Miss Mary Campbell as Mistress Quickly.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—This week's bill is headed by Miss Florrie Gallimore, who appears with her usual success. Carr and Rose, in their vocal comedy act, "Their First Quarrel;" the Four Royal Welshmen, glee singers; the Picquays, unique acrobats; Evelyn Taylor, male impersonator; the Dorothy Quartet of dancers; Vance Bros., comedy musicians; and the amusing series of films by Payne's Bio., entitled "A Trip to the Sun" are also among the attractions in a well-arranged bill.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—The return visit of Mr Charles Harrington's company in Uncle Tom's Cabin has not failed to attract large audiences here this week. Mr J. Carr gives a sympathetic impersonation of Uncle Tom, and Mr B. Lenton makes a capital Mr St. Clair. Mr John Henry Rogers gives a realistic impersonation of Simon Legree, and Mr Guy P. Ellis acts ably as George Harris. Mr Charles Harrington portrays the part of Phineas Fletcher with ability, and Mr Fred Charles is amusing as Marks, the lawyer. Miss Zerlina Zerbina (Mrs Harrington) as Cassy acts effectively, and Miss Hettie Johnson is a pleasing Eliza Harris. Miss Sylvia Stella is clever and mirth-provoking as Topsy, and Miss Ida Fane is satisfactory as Aunt Ophelia.

STOURBRIDGE.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—On Monday Mr Gordon Starkey's company opened here on Monday in A Message from Mars. The presentation was most effective and the several leading artistes came in for a cordial reception. Mr Cyril Austen-Lee as Horace Parker gave a clever impersonation. Mr Percy Tyler as a Tramp displayed marked ability. The character of Arthur Dicey was well sustained by Mr A. Collins Rolfe. Mr William Lockhart as the Messenger from Mars scored a great success. Miss Edith Cuthbert as Minnie was exceptionally clever, as were Miss Florence Heather as Mrs Clarence and Miss Violet Auberles as Miss Parker. For the last three nights of the week we have a return visit of No Cross, No Crown.

SUNDERLAND.

AVENUE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Mr Wilson Barrett's play The Never-Never Land is being produced here this week by Messrs John Hart and H. Armitage's company. Mr E. F. Kennedy gives an excellent representation of the part of Jack Mowbray. Mr Geo. M'Kenzie as Jack Laudale, Mr Edward Rochelle as Nat Rudder, and Mr Cecil Elgar as Lord Thorland are equally good in their respective parts. Miss Caroline Barrett as Sybil gives a fine portrayal; as Lady Walgrave Miss Marion Fawcett is capital; and Miss Julie Kennard and Miss Margaret Parker are good as Sal Berker and Smudgee.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Messrs Carlton and Armitage's company, in In the Ranks, occupies the boards here this week. As Ned Drayton Mr Edward Lloyd gets all that is possible out of the rôle; Mr Archie W. Chappell as Captain Holcroft is good; Mr H. Cecil's Gideon Blake is praiseworthy. Miss Edith Blair-Staples as Ruth Herrick gives an excellent impersonation; and Miss Ella Milner does well as Barbara Herrick.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr George V. Wybrow; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alfred Browne.—The American Comedy Four, vocalists, head the bill here this week. The Three Romas give a gladiatorial exhibition which is both clever and neat. A most amusing turn is that of Conway and Leland; Slade Murray is a favourite; Harry Coates, the singing navvy, does well; and Katie Holloway, comedienne, and May Lilian Levey are much appreciated. Vernon's animated pictures conclude each performance.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Bellian.—The Belle of New York has been presented here by Mr Ben Greet's company, under the direction of Mr J. Bannister Howard. Ichabod Bronson was well sustained by Mr Arthur Rickett. Mr Harold Wardroper was good as Harry Bronson, Mr Walter Emro as the Polite Lunatic, Mr Guy Forde as Doc Snifkins, and Mr Walter Uridge, as Kenneth Mugg were as comical as ever and caused great amusement. Miss Mora Hersee was a charming Violet Grey and sang prettily; Miss Helen Rose was excellent as Fifi Fricot; and Miss Ida Grandison (Cora Angelique) looked and played well as the "queen of comic opera."

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—During the current week the boards here have been occupied by Mr J. Rice Cassidy and his company, including Miss Lillian Clare, presenting Dan the Rake and The God of War.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—The interesting programme here includes the following:—R. G. Knowles, the popular comedian; Marie Reeve, a charming comedienne and smart step-dancer; the Florador Quartet, in their laughable comedy sketch, Naughty Nin; Rezene and Robini, amusing and clever trapesists; the Ashers, capital duettists, in The Dude and the Soubrette; Lizzie Daniels, a delightful comedy soubrette; the Young America Quintet, charming vocalists and excellent dancers; Geo. Brooks, an excellent comedian; and Verno and Voyce, excellent singing comedians.

SWINDON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners; Musical Director, Mr F. H. Lucas.—Local playgoers are being attracted in large numbers this week to enjoy a second visit of that bright and pretty musical comedy The Lady's Maid, fitted with new dances and several new musical numbers. Mr Gore Ousley's company, under the business management of Mr Harry Humphries, is an unusually strong one; and the scenery, staging, and pretty dresses are in excellent taste. Miss Isa Bowman's artistic abilities are so well known by playgoers throughout the kingdom that her popular success in the title-rôle need not here be described. She is full of life, and her songs and dances are most highly appreciated. Miss Pauline Hague plays the part of Alison Grey with remarkable freshness and charm. Mr Denis Drew appears successfully as Charlie Marchmont; Mr Chas. T. Chaloner, a great favourite in this town, is almost irresistible as Sammy Spriggs; Mr Harry Fischer as Josiah Biffin is also genuinely funny; and Mr Harold Eden as the Hon. Augustus contributes largely to the success. Miss Noel Neville is a vivacious Zaza Marmosette.

TON-Y-PANDY.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr B. Counsell.—Mr W. H. Hallatt and company are here in the romantic drama Two Little Sailor Boys. Mr Hallatt does ample justice to the character of Commander Noel Tregarthen. As Richard Redstone (Lieutenant R.N.) Mr L. Booker displays much ability, as also does Mr E. Warden in the part of Captain Tom Yorke. Admiral Grey, R.N. (retired), is well played by Mr G. C. Murray. Messrs S. Cotterell and A. Horton give good interpretations of Ben Baxter and Jim Royston respectively. Miss Blanche Steel is thoroughly at home in the rôle of Lola Grey, alias Lola Yorke. Mildred Grey is played with much dignity by Miss Marie Daventry. The title-rôles are safely entrusted to Miss M. Day as Cyril Grey and Miss E. Frances as Tom Yorke.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr F. Burland.—Fred Cary tops the bill here with success in his funny songs and patter. Fanny Robina gains much favour by her vocalism. Very sensible songs are sung by Florrie Cooper, who wins a host of friends. Rodin, tramp cyclist, does some smart things. Mdlle. Magda, Billy Bint, and the Solari Duo, together with Berno's Pictures, contribute to the success of the evening.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Captain Welton Dale; Acting-Manager, Mr F. E. Manaton.—The first part of the week has been devoted to a return visit of Mr John Tully's American company in Uncle Tom's Cabin, in which Mr J. L. Franklin gives a powerful impersonation of the old slave. For the remainder of the week Why Smith Left Home, with Mr Horace Lingard as Smith, is exercising the risible faculties of the audience.

WALLSEND.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr T. Richardson.—Messrs Perry and Stanton's company with The Sporting Girl opened here on Monday. Mr George Perry is exceptionally clever as Penton Hook, and Mr Charles Sanders causes considerable amusement as Jack Garling. Mr Marcus Gray gives a powerful impersonation of Marcus Castellino, and Mr J. H. Sterling makes the most of the part of George Drewitt. Miss Madge Stanton is a pleasing Kitty Fitzroy, and as Amy Beddoe Miss Clara Knowles leaves little to be desired. The leading feature of the entertainment is the excellent speciality dances, introduced by Miss Lily Mathews, and Miss Gertie Montrose, their cake-walk being received with great enthusiasm; they also capably fill the rôles of Kate Darlin and Jennie Chitley.

WEXFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr E. P. Ronan.—Mr E. Oswald Brook's No. 1 company was here on the 3rd and 4th inst. with the farcical comedy The New Housemaid. Mr Somers Bellamy was entrusted with the part of Peter Pinkerton, and it could not have been placed in better hands. Mr Montague Ashley was efficient in the rôle of Pinkerton's nephew, Arthur, while Mr Charles Calvert's impersonation of the Rev. Stephen Stingles was excellent. Mr Pan E. Draco gave a capital character sketch of the detective, Marmsbury Doom, while Mr Campbell Coldsmid was amusing as Rosebery. Mr Ralph Roberts as the Hon. Bertie Rasleigh had a lot to do, and did it in first-class style, the house being kept in a continuous roar of laughter while he was on the stage. Miss Madge Haines as Caroline Pinkerton was hugely enjoyed, and received well-merited applause, while Miss Ethel Caryllon made a fascinating Dulcie. Miss Pattie Elliott as Agnes created a most favourable impression, and Miss Ella Edgar as Nellie Haddock and Miss Nellie Burney as Lettice sustained their respective rôles in a capable manner.

WAKEFIELD.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company in the drama A Woman's Pluck occupies the boards this week. Mr James Willard gives a fine rendering of Dick Darrell; Mr Edward E. Ashby exhibits dramatic power as Winston Dale; Mr J. P. Dryden is able in the dual-rôle of Mark Scanlon and Jim Daremont; Mr Charles F. Wentworth is seen to advantage as Sir Noel Fordyce; Mr Harry Emmerson is humorous as Roger Pippin; Mr Cecil Raymond is capital as Sir John Daredevil; and Miss Tina Shaw ably fills the part of Bertie Daredevil. Miss Jessie Yatman makes a charming Jessie Pope; Miss Daisy Dale is well suited as Gertie Fairfax; Miss Agnese D'Aragon is pleasing as Mrs Pippin; Mr William Hayward does justice in the character of Matthew Pope; and Miss East-Robertson submits a clever, realistic portrayal as Grace Daremont. The piece is well mounted.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wakefield Hippodrome, Limited; Manager, Mr D. G. Morney.—The Dayton Family of Risley acrobats perform some marvellous feats; the Five Delevines appear in a successful musical sketch entitled Flirtation; Messrs Grant and Allen are amusing comedians; the O'Malleys, patter comedians, are well received. Mr Harry Barclay, comedian; Miss Bessie Willows, ballad vocalist; M. Handell, in a speciality act; Duncan, club manipulator; and Mons. Oswald also appear.

WALSALL.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—The musical comedy, entitled The Houp-la Girl, played by Mr Henry Johnston's company, is here this week. Mr Thomas Barry is a capital Prince of Felsenberg; Mr Lancelot Fisher as Lieutenant Archibald Lambton is most humorous, and causes much laughter; Mr Jack Durant as Frank Savill, the artist, is exceedingly good, his songs being well received; Mr Harold Perry is a dashing Major Daffney. Miss Florence Brandon, in the title-rôle, is charming; Miss Edith Haley and Miss Maggie Fraser respectively play the parts of Dick and Isobel admirably. The Rosie Rice Quartet of dancers are seen to advantage.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr Frank E. Burdett's company, in The Indian Mutiny. Mr H. Ryeland-Leigh gives a manly rendering as Lieut. Manley; Mr H. G. Brandon is most successful as Capt. Manley; Mr W. S. Tindall is a satisfactory Major Ingleby; as Terry O'Brien Mr George Scully is very humorous; Miss Agness Kingston makes a charming Kate Ingleby; Miss Maud Digby acts with much dramatic power as Ghuz-nah; Miss Kate Bruce is well placed as Mrs Major Ingleby; Mr Villiers Stanley and Mr J. S. Shedden as Nebu Sing and Abul Khan lend good support.

WALTHAMSTOW.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr George F. Slatter.—Many features of an attractive nature figure in the programme here this week, and it could not be truthfully said that there is a single weak point in the entertainment. Mr Fred Karno's comedians are here in their side-splitting skit on music hall performances, The Mumming Birds. Since this sketch was here before many alterations have been made in the cast, but the present company sustain the rollicking humour of the amusing idea with a gusto that admits of no comparison. Every member works with a loyal desire to conduce to merriment, and their united efforts receive, and deserve, the reward of loud laughter and vehement applause. The Sisters Wingrove are as pretty a pair of duettists as can be seen; their good looks are greatly in their favour, their dresses are chic, and their dancing extremely neat. A great success is achieved by Mr George Antill, "the Evening Shadow," who sings a clever parody of "Pansy Faces" with much humour, and dances in such a manner as to make his audience crave for more. The Sixtonis give a clever burlesque scena Opera Gone Mad in capital style, the manner in which the gentleman "throws himself about" being extraordinary. Much has been said of My Fancy in praise of her dancing, and it is only necessary to add that she is at her best this week. Mr Fred Russell with Coster Joe is very successful, every quip and crank being eagerly taken up and applauded to the echo. The singularly quaint manner of Mr Jack Pleasants finds admirable outlet in his songs "Naughty Boy" and "How did he get to know?" both of which, although old favourites, are as popular as ever. The Eight Lancashire Lads give a capital exhibition of many varieties of dancing, while their singing of "The Lost Chord," with which their turn opens, is irreproachable. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope gives a pretty series of pictures. The Palace orchestra, under the direction of Mr B. Petersen render the overture to Auber's Masco Spada with brilliancy.

KING'S THEATRE.—Good business is the order of the day at the King's, the new and original drama A Rogue's Daughter, by M. Hall Page—an interesting story, well supplied with effective situations and told in vigorous language—being exactly suited to the tastes of a drama-loving public. The company engaged in the interpretation is that of Miss Marie Menzies, and that lady herself gives a very pathetic and powerful rendering of the heroine, Letty Grey. Mr Alex Wills is a finely declamatory Sir George Mynard. Possessed of a handsome presence and a resonant voice, Mr Wilfred Blair soon makes himself popular as Frank Tyler; while Mr Richard Ferris contributes a clever study of the cool, calculating order of villainy as Colonel Foster. Mr A. Hall Menzies as John Gibbs, otherwise "Hercules," works untiringly and with pronounced success. These chief actors are well supported by a good all-round company.

WEDNESBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Harry Batteraby; Acting-Manager, Mr W. J. Cranston.—Mr Ernest R. Abbott's London company is here in the patriotic naval drama The Mariners of England. Mr Ernest R. Abbott in the rôle of Lord Nelson gives a strong and characteristic impersonation; and as Admiral Talbot Mr Clifford Clifford is seen to advantage. An artistic rendering of Captain Hardy is given by Mr John Lester; Mr W. H. Garbois as Captain Letaudy proves himself a capable artiste; Mr Edwin Keene as Tom Tripp is highly amusing; an interesting part is that of Marston, ably rendered by Mr W. H. Davis Brown; Miss Ada Abbott makes a charming Mabel Talbot; and as Nellie Dell Miss Linda Riley is seen to advantage. Miss Isabel Singleton as Polly Appleyard proves a success. On Thursday and Friday East Lynne was played.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr E. H. Bull and Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Percival.—The bright and smart little play A Country Mouse is being performed here this week by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company. The part of the Hon. Archibald Vyse is taken by Mr Charles Esdale, whose portrayal is admirably done. Mr John Nesbit does capitally as John Bowlby, M.P.; Mr George Traill is amusing as the Duke of St. Kitts; and Mr George Trollope is good as Lord Robert Wykeham. As the unsophisticated Angela Muir Miss Ida Richardson plays demurely; Miss Madeline Maude is an excellent Lady Sophia Bowlby; Miss Edith Walker a capable Violet Aynsley; and Miss Adie Boyne a very efficient Mrs Cropper. The comedy is preceded by A Bit of Old Chelsea.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessees, Mr Fred Benton and Mr Fred J. Little; Manager, Mr E. J. Compton.—This week Mr J. A. Campbell's company is appearing here in The Sin of Her Childhood.

WARRINGTON.

Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Messrs Haddon and Loader's company, in the stirring drama The Greatest Scoundrel Living, is the attraction here this week. Mr Frank Munro is a manly hero; Mr John Cecil is a dignified Jasper Moulton; and Mr Jack Haddon as Percival Haines acts with dramatic force. A clever sketch of the adventurous Greek is submitted by Mr George Herbert; Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam is a graceful Rosa Moulton; and Miss Marie Rayner scores as Mabel Cross. The laughter element is in the capable hands of Mr Wilton Bedford, Mr Harry Liddle, and Miss Lottie Pearce. The staging is very effective.

Royal Theatre of Varieties. — Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Willmot.—The Jackson Family head the bill here this week, and as musicians supply an excellent turn. Haig and Novel score in an acrobatic act, and Tom Heys is a smart boy comedian. Oma and Calderon are clever tumblers, and Rose Harvey is a popular favourite. Harry Walker has a spice of originality in all his songs, and the Royal Bioscope, worked by Mr Wiesker, shows some excellent pictures.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

Grand.—General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident Manager, Mr Fred Conneaux.—Mr W. W. Kelly is presenting The New East Lynne with a company of all-round excellence, which includes Miss Agnes Imlay, who achieves a triumph in her rendering of the rôle of Lady Isabel; Mr W. Faulkner Fox, who endows the part of Murty O'Flynn with some refreshing Irish comedy; and Mr William Heilbron, who as Archibald is responsible for some effective acting. Mr Walter T. Clifford ably fills the part of Francis Levison, Miss Lily Ellison makes a success of Willie Carlyle, Joyce is well played by Miss Lizzie Maddocks, and other parts which are played with ability are Barbara Hare by Miss Helen Stewart, Cornelia Carlyle by Miss B. French Stewart, Justice Hare by Mr Robert Wilton, Lord Mountsevern by Mr M. Talbot, and Richard Hare by Mr James Willoughby.

Palace. — Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—Undoubtedly the strongest turn this week, although not in bill or programme, is "Aga," a mysterious illusion, which Mr Macnaghten has secured in Paris, and now places on the stage for the first time in this country. Another number on the programme which is the cause of much wonderment is "The Magic of Japan," as exhibited by Max Sterling. Some smart and clever acrobatic feats are done by Zenary Brothers. Nelson and Thomas are funny and brisk in their sketch, On the Ra-Ta. The Sisters Caselli give an alert exhibition of high kicking. Johnny Alexander's company in the pantomime absurdity Our Lodger and Permane's educated bears have been here before, and are as popular as ever, and another attractive turn is done by Leslie Race, comedian. Edgar Budden, bone soloist and roller skate dancer, is also on the programme.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

Victoria Hall.—Manager, Mr E. W. Sully.—Mr William Greet's company opened here on Monday with The Lady Slavey. Miss Addie Lennard was extremely vivacious as Phyllis; Miss Millicent Marsden acted and sang with distinction and looked remarkably handsome as Flo Honeydew; Miss Jean Van Dalle as Maude and Miss Ethel Ashton as Beatrice both gave excellent interpretations, their Terpsichorean efforts gaining loud applause. Mr Walter T. Hybert's Lord Lavender was an ideal impersonation of the dude. The broad humour displayed by Mr Frank Sherlock as Roberts fairly convulsed the house with laughter. Unstinted praise must he given Mr Harry Walsh for portraying a typical Irishman as Major O'Neill, and Mr Allan Morris's Vincent A. Evelyn cannot be eulogised too highly.

WEST STANLEY.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr Mark H. Lindon.—Mr Henry Bedford and company were here this week. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday Gipsy Jack was produced, wherein Mr Bedford in the title-rôle does remarkably well, and is ably assisted by Miss Jeffreys as Mother Hunt. Miss Bessie Bedford gives a highly satisfactory delineation of the part of May Harvey, whilst Mr Sid Bedford as Joe Banks and Miss Jennie Risley as Jennie Huggins supply the comic element. On Thursday and Friday Mafeking was produced.

Victoria Theatre. — Proprietor, Mr T. C. Rawes; Manager, Mr David Williams.—Mr T. Jarman's company, with the stirring drama, In Dark Siberia, is here this week.

WHITEHAVEN.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Clark.—Miss Daisy De Roy's variety combination is appearing here this week. The following artistes contribute to the programme:—Miss Daisy De Roy, comedienne and vocalist; Fred Brooks, comedian; Rae and Rae, tumblers; Bendo, a clever contortionist; the Musical Japs, Giacomo, chapeaugraphist and mimic; and Miss Hilda De Gray, vocalist.

Royal Standard of Varieties.—Manager, Mr Tom Dyson.—The company engaged at this place of amusement is mostly the same as last week. Mr George Russell, comedian, is an established favourite; and the Peel Family continue to merit the applause they receive. The Daniels, sketch artistes; H. Sheppard, in a musical act; Mr Walter Lang, vocalist; and Mr Tom Dyson, vocalist, work hard towards the success of the programme.

WIGAN.

Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr John Worswick.—Mr Ben Greet's talented company is presenting to crowded audiences nightly Mr Hall Caine's The Eternal City. The part of Baron Bonelli is ably portrayed by Mr D. Lewin Mannering; Miss Edith Anton Laing as Donna Roma is admirable.

Grand Theatre and Hippodrome. — Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—Yukio Tani, a remarkably clever Japanese wrestler, and Apollo, the "ideal Scotch athlete," in a classical entertainment, are two great attractions here this week. Beattie Worth, burlesque actress and vocalist; Harry Hughes, singing collier; Carson Hicks, sand dancer; Lucy Weston, comedienne; Harry Leybourne, a clever mimic; Rowland Hill, comedian; and Sam Shipley, character comedian, complete a good list of artistes.

Empire.—Manager, Mr W. Birchall.—Onda and Leon, comedy performers; Julie Ormsby, ballad vocalist; George Goldburn, character comedian; and Steeley and Dowton, a lively comedy couple, are popular. Ted Hensey—as a substitute of Fred. Nairne—comedian and dancer; Albert Rostel, comedian and dancer; Alice Coventry, character comedienne; and Denby and Dent, in a comedy act, are also well received.

WINDSOR.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Governing Director, Mr Samuel James; Business-Manager, Mr Worton David; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Nash.—Bright, musical, and altogether pleasing as it was when played here the week after production at Hastings in February last, The New Commander, a naval, musical comedy, has returned to Windsor this week greatly improved all round. It has been strengthened by judicious and important changes in the cast, several delightful new numbers and lyrics have been introduced, and the play goes with a merry swing. Miss Grace Warner, whose company this is, is, of course, in chief command, assisted by Mr George Gordon and Mr Val Kim, the able and energetic business-manager and acting-manager respectively. Mr Caffyn Baxter is the talented and efficient conductor. Miss Grace Warner as Violet Flintheart enacts the role, if possible, with greater charm and dramatic effect, and Mr George Gordon is still strong and efficient as Lieutenant Frank Harding. Mr St. Bernard Wyntour, who previously played Lieutenant Jack Tremingway, is now a most excellent Sultan of Ramjamjah, while Mr George Handel ably succeeds him as Tremingway. Matthew Flintheart is well represented by Mr Francis Searle, and Mr Miller Anderson proves humorous and diverting as Tittums, the waiter. Miss Maud Warburton is a capital Freddie Bounce, midshipman. Miss May Dallas is highly successful as the sprightly Vivette. The Misses Marian May, Nellie Stephens, Violet Kilner, and Bell Reyne, ladies of the harem, are highly skilful dancers. The screaming musical comedy The Little Widow was billed for Friday night.

WORCESTER.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Carlton Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr Albert J. Lewis.—Lovers of the lyric drama have experienced a great treat this week in the performances of the Moody-Manners No. 2 opera company, whose répertoire for the week was most attractive, as the following will show:—Monday, Tannhauser; Tuesday, Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci; Wednesday, Maritana; Thursday, Carmen; Friday, Lohengrin; Saturday matinée, Daughter of the Regiment; Saturday evening, Bohemian Girl. Principals, chorus, and orchestra alike scored a great success in the opening performance of Tannhauser, as a prelude to which Mr Harrison Frewin, the musical conductor, gave a short "explanatory chat." The title-rôle was most efficiently undertaken by Mr Edward Arthur, who, already well-known here in other capacities, won fresh honours by his really fine singing and dramatic force; Miss Enriqueta Crichton as Elizabeth made a most favourable impression, her impersonation being marked by true artistic perception.

WORKINGTON.

Queen's Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Stanley Rogers.—On Monday A Girl's Cross Roads opened to an excellent house. Miss Lily Hammersley gave a powerful rendition of Barbara Wade, scoring an unqualified success. Miss Ethel Bracewell was charming as Constance; Miss Kate Watfred revealed spirit and ability as Nellie; Mr W. G. Gaisford was a manly hero; and Mr W. Fraser-Brunner was an insidious villain. Other members deserving of praise were Miss G. Newcombe as Tilly; Mr Wm. Corrie admirable as Toby; Mr W. E. Griffiths as Farmer Meadows; and Mr E. Howard as Dr. Weston. The scenery and general mounting were excellent.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Wright.—Charles R. Stone's company produced on Monday night What Became of Mrs Racket? to an appreciative house. The piece went swimmingly, and there were encores for the good singing and dancing. Mr G. Wyatt gave a clever impersonation of Tolman. Mr E. Rawlinson was interesting as Racket; he sang with effect. Mr E. O. Clarke was capital as Mr Dalroy; Mr C. R. Stone was amusing as Obadiah; and Mr S. Junior was good as the waiter. Miss E. Madelle was vivacious as Mrs Racket; Miss E. Kelsey was clever and lively as Mrs Tolman; and Miss D. Stone was graceful as Katy. Miss V. Hill, Miss E. Hill, and Miss L. Flopp as the Frippett trio secured applause.

WORTHING.

Theatre Royal. — Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr Norman Macowan's London company is here with Monsieur Beaucaire. As Monsieur Beaucaire Mr Norman Macowan is perfection; the Duke of Winterset of Mr Stuart Willson is a masterly performance; Mr Herbert Cornish deserves praise as Major Molyneux; Mr P. Ramsey Forman is a forcible Captain Badger; Mr H. A. Young is extremely good as Beau Nash; and Mr Hans Schlesinger ably portrays the double part of Marquis De Mirefoix and Francoir. Miss Violet Sterne is really excellent as Lady Mary Carlisle.

YORK.

Royal.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington.—Sunday is undoubtedly a charming play, and Mr Louis Calvert's excellent company is doing the fullest justice to it this week, the consequences being large and delighted audiences. In the title-rôle Miss Nita Faydon is admirable. Most of the work falls upon the shoulders of this accomplished artist, who, however, is equal to all emergencies, and her impersonation is as charming as it is natural. Mr J. Edward Pearce is exactly suited to the rôle of Col. Brinthorpe; Mr Whitford Kane is particularly smart and effective as Jacky; and the remaining parts are in the able hands of Mr C. B. Vaughan, Mr E. A. Douglas, Mr F. Powell, Mr J. H. Manley, Mr T. Norman Walter, Miss E. Watson, and Miss Olive Adair.

Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sydney Brooke.—Austin Rudd once more heads the bill, and is as popular as ever. David Poole is a ventriloquist of the first rank, and scores heavily. Ailsa Douglas is a pleasing soprano, and much fun is caused by the drolleries of Mr Wal Croft. Bert Woodward gives a smart cycling show; and Law and Norman; the Burnells, acrobats; Charles Milner, vocalist; and Mdlle. Lucretia make up an excellent bill, and meet with much success.

GROVE'S DICTIONARY OF MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

London: Macmillan and Co., Limited.

A new edition of this standard work is being issued by Messrs Macmillan and Co., and the first of the five volumes has been published. Since the original edition saw the light more than a quarter of a century ago, the scope of the dictionary has been enlarged in many ways. For instance, as we learn from the preface to the work, "upon the first edition a limit of time was imposed, the date 1450 being fixed as the beginning of the music that could be expected to interest modern readers. The study of ancient music, and in particular of that which belongs to ecclesiastical plain-song, has been so widely spread (partly as a result of the scientific articles written by the late W. S. Rockstro in the later part of the dictionary) that no book on music could now be considered complete which made its starting-point as late as the middle of the fifteenth century." It is also pointed out that there was no article on acoustics in the first edition, and such composers as Bach, Berlioz, Brahms, and Chopin were inadequately treated. These five headings, and that of Defrees in music, may be referred to as indications of the alteration of plan in the new edition. It is stated by the editor, Mr J. A. Fuller Maitland, that the three great articles which are Sir George Grove's chief work in musical literature, those on Beethoven, Mendelssohn, and Schubert, have not, indeed, been left intact, but the alterations in them have been made in strict obedience to the writer's own wishes in the matter of additions and corrections. At his death he left a large quantity of material intended for use in a later edition of the dictionary, in connection or amplification of these great articles, and the work of incorporating them in the text has been done in the case of the article on Beethoven and Mendelssohn, by writers to whom he himself entrusted the materials.

This week, Mr Edward Terry.
Tuesday, £122 0s. 9d.
Derry was once noted for citizens whose tastes inclined very much to the drama. In fact, they were a theatre-going public. But theatrical life in Derry for a good many years past has been dull in the extreme. With the advent of an enterprising theatrical manager to our city, such as Mr Payne Seddon—to whom Irish provincial towns owe a deep debt of gratitude for the efficient manner in which he catered for them in his tours—let us hope that a new era has dawned on the local theatrical sphere, and that we may see nightly at the Derry Opera an audience such as was witnessed last evening.
W. PAYNE SEDDON, Opera House, Londonderry.

THE CHORUS.

lent valuable and material help to the principals. They will compare favourably with any of the highly lauded American choruses imported to our shores in recent years. They work with astonishing verve and go, have magnificent and, what is just as important, really well trained voices. To us who are not in the secret as to how these things are managed it is an inexplicable puzzle how a number of ladies of such surpassing loveliness can be gathered together in a single company.—Eastbourne Society.

TIZAN.
FOR GLORY OR FOR LOVE.
MY QUEEN DIVINE.
A SMILE FROM THE GIRL I LOVE.
WILLIE, YOU HAVE CAUGHT MY EYE.
LOOK OUT FOR HER.
SHE'S A VERY DEAR FRIEND OF MINE.
THERE'S ALWAYS ONE.
I WAS A STRANGER AND YOU TOOK ME IN.
THE WAITER LAUGHED.
THEN THE CORONER SAID "OH!"
I FEEL SO SLEEPY.
QUEER LITTLE OSTRICH.
M'CORMICK
MY GOLDEN BELLE.
DOWN IN SOMALILAND.
MY WHITEWASH MAN.
COME, BE MY HONEY.
IT'S LOVELY TO LOVE A LOVELY GIRL.
FOLLOW THE CROWD ON A SUNDAY.
THAT'S WHAT THE ROSES WILL TELL YOU.
YOU ARE THE BEST LITTLE GIRL IN THIS GREAT BIG WORLD.
IN DREAMLAND.
ONLY OF YOU.
'TIS A LOVE SONG.

INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT

Mr A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette, Aug. 2d, 1901

Dear Mr Harris,—I have just finished unpacking the "Cinderella" Pantomime you recently cleaned for us. I must say that I have never seen goods returned from any cleaning firm cleaned and packed in such first-class condition. It was delightful to open them. Either our stuff was exceptionally good, or you have excelled yourself. Best wishes. Hoping I shall have to worry you a lot this coming year, Yours faithfully, S. (FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, NOV. 17.—Being—as the name implies—a military piece from beginning to end the new play met with a most cordial reception. Some of the scenes, notably those of the second act, where the action passes in the barracks, are full of broad humour, and amused the audience immensely. There is hardly any plot, but a series of episodes are intertwined, and many of the scenes are so loosely woven in as to appear at first sight to have little connection. Young Lieut. Robert Von Winterfeld loves Fränze Kurz, the daughter and heiress of a very wealthy man. Although the girl reciprocates his affection in secret, she gives him to understand she believes his motives are purely mercenary ones, and says she does not wish to be married for her fortune. Robert is cut to the heart, and proposes himself for active service in Africa. In the third act—by the intervention of good-natured Captain Witte—Fränze owns her love, and she and Robert become engaged just on the eve of his departure, it being too late to draw back. In the final act we learn that a hard fate has overtaken Fränze; her lover is killed by the Hereros. Another and happier couple are—or lead us to believe with certainty that they will become such—a compositor, who is serving his time in the army, and the daughter of a retired colonel. The young man—a worthy and very talented fellow—is a writer in his spare hours; his works are successful, and by the end of the play he is a celebrated author. These are the chief incidents in Soldaten, which was excellently acted throughout.

AN interesting performance of Costa's pantomime, L'Histoire d'un Pierrot, was given at the Theatre des Westens last week with so much success that it is filling the bill several times this. Frau Prasch-Grevenberg gave the part of Pierrot as gracefully and cleverly as she did that of L'Enfant Prodigue some years ago. Her facial expression was wonderfully good, and her every gesture suited the music exactly. The piece is well-known to your readers, so a description would be superfluous. Other rôles were satisfactorily acted by Fräuleins Doninger and Schultz, and Herren Ziegler and Geissler. The mounting was effective, and the pleasing music was admirably interpreted by the orchestra, under Kapellmeister Roth. The ever-popular operette, Die Kleinen Lämmer, preceded the pantomime.

SIGNOR DUSE'S brief season is at an end, and we can only deplore its brevity. Six performances are far too few for a city of the size of Berlin; the National Theatre was "sold out" every night, and many eager Berliners were unable to see "die Duse," to their great chagrin. Hedda Gabler was given on Thursday, and the famous actress's interpretation of Ibsen's heroine astonished even the critics, some of whom had doubted her powers as regards this particular character. It was a masterly rendering, such as was scarcely surpassed by that of Clara Jadair, in Donnay's L'Altro Pericolo, which formed the closing performance on Saturday, and which latter rôle is considered by many to be Madame Duse's best. The enthusiasm of the audience on Saturday knew no bounds; handkerchiefs were waved, flowers in endless numbers handed up, and cries of "au revoir" resounded through the house. It must not be forgotten to mention the excellent support Signor Rosaspina afforded to the star. The rendering of Jörgen Tesman especially was a highly commendable one.

NICOLAI'S comic opera, Die Lustigen Weiber von Windsor, was revived last Monday at the Royal Opera, and met with an unusually hearty reception. It was a new cast, the scenery and costumes were for the most part new, and great pains had been expended upon the whole performance. Frau Herzog and Fräuleins Rothauser and Dietrich, Herr Naval and Herr Knüpfer sang and acted splendidly, Herr Knüpfer giving a particularly fine account of Falstaff. Kapellmeister Richard Strauss conducted, and under his capable direction the orchestra played brilliantly. It was an evening of genuine enjoyment, such as even our Royal Opera seldom offers.

SOPHOCLES' tragedy Electra—Hugo Von Hofmannsthal's adaptation—has reached its seventy-fifth performance (not consecutive) at the Kleines. The play is more Hofmannsthal than Sophocles, and is certainly—possibly for that reason—the most successful adaptation for the modern stage extant. It is a powerful, effective work, and doubly so, acted as it is here. Frau Gertud Eysoldt gives—in the title-rôle—one of those marvellous renderings for which she has become famous, and in which few can compare with her. It is the weird, unusual, passion-torn characters that seem to appeal to this singularly-gifted and fascinating artist, and Electra and Salome are, perhaps, her greatest triumphs. Frau Bertens—who has hitherto given the rôle of Clytemnestra in admirable manner—was succeeded by Fräulein Durieux with less success, but the rendering of Chrysothemis by Fräulein Hoeflich was a very fine piece of acting. Among the audience sat Signora Duse, and followed the play with close attention. Electra is being translated into Italian for Signora Duse, who will produce it next season.

THE next novelty at the Kleines will consist of three one-act plays by the well-known Austrian writer, Arthur Schnitzler. They are Der Grüne Kakadu (which was done some time back at the Deutsches), Der Tapfere Kassian, and Hans Delorme.

THE Luisen Theatre produced Adolf Wilbrandt's four-act drama Die Tochter des Herrn Fabricius on Thursday last, and the results were all that could be desired. The audience appreciated the interesting play—which has already been detailed in your columns—and applauded the artist warmly. On the whole the cast was good.

"DER WEIBER-KONIG" having reached its fiftieth consecutive performance at the Thalia, the management is preparing a piece to take its place. At present, however, nothing definite is announced, and the Weiber-Konig is drawing so well that it would be a pity for him to abdicate.

THE next novelty at the Deutsch-Amerikan Theatre is a musical farce in five acts, entitled New York. Herr Adolf Philipp is again the author and composer; he is, moreover, the manager and the principal actor. There has, surely, never existed a more popular or talented author-actor-manager than the versatile Mr Philipp. His laughable farce, Ueber'n Grossen Teich—already described in your columns—is still running successfully, having reached its 400th performance.

HERR LUDWIG FULDA'S latest drama, Maskerade, will be produced at the Deutsches Theatre next week. The production of Rüderer's drama, Morgenröte, takes place at the Neues this evening, and talking of productions reminds me that Leoncavallo's Roland Von Berlin is announced for first performance at the Royal Opera on Dec. 13. Whether this date will again be changed remains to be seen; in any case, Roland is in steady rehearsal.

HISTORIC PROVINCIAL PLAYHOUSE.

BY T. H. BARROW.—VI.

Tate Wilkinson was in many respects an odd specimen of humanity. He avoided the plain, wholesome dietary beloved of the average Englishman, and became terror-stricken at the bare sight of a round of beef or any other large joint. He had, on the contrary, a penchant for delicate dishes and dainty confections. To gratify the pleasure of unexpected discovery he would hide confectionery in dark holes and corners of his garret. Avoiding the Burgundy wine for which the capital city of the north was then justly celebrated, he developed a strong partiality for old Madeira, but a few glasses of this grateful and stimulating beverage would invariably confuse his intellect and confound his utterances.

Here is a piquant example. Michael Kelly, an actor of repute, had supped with Tate, and under the potent influence of the merry wine of Spain both were in high glee. Barry, a brother actor, became the subject of conversation.

"Sir," exclaimed Tate, with an accentuating thump with his fist on the table, "Barry, sir, was as much superior to Garrick in Romeo as York Minster is to a Methodist chapel—not but I think that if lobster sauce is not well made a turbot isn't eatable, let it be never so firm. Then Mrs Barry, too, was very fine and very majestic in Zenobia. Siddons in the same play was very good—not that wild rabbits are better than tame ones. Though Mrs Barry was so great in her day yet Mrs Siddons—stewed and smothered with onions, both of them are delicious. Mrs Pope was admirable in Queen Elizabeth. A man I had here made a very good Oronooks—not but I would always advise you to have a calf's head dressed with the skin on; but you must always bespeak it of the butcher, though the last bespeak of Lord Scarborough did nothing for me—nothing at all. The house was one of the worst of the whole season—with bacon and greens—not twenty pounds altogether—with parsley and butter."

Thus the muddled eloquence of Madeira! Tate would babble on with persistent garrulity until the monotone of his own voice sent him to sleep—and his guests were grateful to be able to slip away home. From the top of the gallery he was wont to view a new piece. Once, indignant at what he considered slovenly acting, he commenced to hiss his own company. The "gods" were not only less critical, but turned upon him with counter indignation, and promptly ejected him from his own theatre!

Tate's marriage was not without its romantic side. In 1765, fulfilling an engagement under Baker, he had occasion to visit a milliner's shop in the city. In an obscure corner, Mrs Doughty, a little elderly lady, sat knitting. She was evidently indulging in a critical commentary on the previous night's performance at the theatre. Without looking up from her work to see who had entered the shop, she chattered on—"Well, I am sure, Nanny, you never shall persuade me to go to the play again to see that hunchbacked Barber. Give me the Mourning Bride and Mr Frodsham and then there is some sense in it. But for that man, that Wilkinson as you call him, from London—pray let him go back and stay there, for he is the ugliest man I ever saw in my life; and so thinks Jenny. I am sure if he was worth his weight in gold he should never marry a daughter of mine!"

Jenny happened to be the daughter. Whether or not she shared her mother's antipathies to Tate at that time is difficult to say, but three years later she married the ugliest man the good old lady ever saw in her life, and with the latter's consent. Six children were born to them. A son, John Joseph Tate, married an actress named Miss Reynolds, and succeeded to the management of his father's theatres. A daughter, Patty, became deeply attached to Mrs Siddons, and when that good lady's own daughter died, became her companion, and inherited a legacy of £500.

The following sonnet was addressed to Mrs Robinson by an admirer who witnessed her performance of Jane Shore in the York Theatre, in February, 1786:—

So full of Nature is thy mimic art
In the sad portrait of repenting Shore;
Soft pity melts each virtuous Fair One's heart,
And prostitutes resolve to Sin no more.

Each manly breast, too, owns thy magic pow'r,
Pierced with her sorrows and remorseful fears,
Nature's just tribute all with plaudits show'r
Heart-felt, involuntary floods of tears.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Eade Montefiore; Acting-Manager, Mr H. C. Cavanah.—The play this week is A Country Mouse, which is cleverly acted and greatly enjoyed by large audiences. Miss Violet M. Harley gives a most delightful representation of Angela; and the other ladies' parts are excellently filled by Misses Edith Walker, Eve Erskine, Emily Levettez, and Agnes Allan. Mr Charles Harley plays admirably as John Bowlby, and the other characters all receive due justice. The curtain-raiser, His Landlady, is smartly acted.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. Ernest Sheldon.—Payne's Little Vagabonds have a great reception, and another notable turn is that of Zarmo, the juggler. The Daunton-Shaw Troupe of cyclists are again conspicuously successful; and the Floradora Girls continue popular. Among the other clever artists who appear with success are Mr Tom Lloyd, a most resourceful comedian; Mr W. H. Downes, one of the best singers on the variety stage; Les Voces, two splendid vocalists; Mr J. C. Morris, a smart comedian; and Queen and Le Brun, popular comedians and dancers. The programme concludes with the Bioscope display of pictures.

ABERTILLERY.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Duckworth; General and Resident Manager, Mr Geo. W. Ventom.—This week we are favoured with a special return visit of Mr S. F. Cody's powerful American company in the sensational drama, The Klondyke Nugget. As Sam Deats Mr Edward Leroy is polished and effective; Mr Vivian Cody as Joe Smith plays the part for all it is worth; Mr Leon Cody is a robust example of an Indian chief; Bill Sykes as played by Mr Jim Barker is full of interest; as also is Tom Lee by Doc Horsfall. Mr Tom Gilmore is responsible for humour in the part of Dr. Paddy O'Donohue, his singing and dancing being much appreciated; Judge Matherson is in the capable hands of Mr Bob Throp; Mr Geo. Leigh as Jim Wilson is powerful; Miss Lillie Kerr as Nellie is pleasing; and Miss Edith B. Mumford is a charming Rosie Lee.

ACCRINGTON.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr J. E. Barnes.—Mr Wm. Maclaren's company opened here in Proof on Monday. Pierre Lorance was a masterly performance by Mr W. Maclaren; Lazare was well played by Mr R. Fulton; Chamboran had a good exponent in Mr Ardene Linden; and Mr E. St. Clair Pearce must be complimented on his embodiment of the Seneschal; Miss Lily C. Bandmann gave a clever rendering of Valentine; Madeline was well played by Miss Gertrude Evans; and Miss Gertrude Coates was good as Adrienne. East Lynne and The Lady of Lyons are also in the week's scheme of attractions.

HIPPODROME.—An excellent bill is being provided here this week. Palles and Cussick, Rowland Hill, and Charles Milner are all excellent in their several lines. The Lynches are another good turn; Renson and Waite are also very funny. The Bruces complete a capital entertainment.

ALDERSHOT.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Clarence Saunes; Resident-Manager, Mr George E. Williams.—The delightful manner in which the charming costume play Monsieur Beaucaire is produced by Mr Norman Macowan's company is really worthy a special line of comment. Miss Violet Sterne's refined and talented interpretation of Lady Mary marks her an actress of great ability. Mr Norman Macowan's powerful conception of Monsieur Beaucaire is followed with fascinating interest. It is, indeed, a clever piece of acting throughout. Mr F. Stuart Wilson's Duke of Winterset is a meritorious performance; Mr Herbert Cornish gives a capable interpretation of Major Molyneux; and Mr Conybeare Gough's clever impersonation of the humorous Mr Rakell is very acceptable. Mr Hans Schlessinger's fine appearance and natural foreign delivery causes his Marquis De Mirepoix to stand out prominently, and as the belligerant Captain Badger Mr P. Ramsay Forman is good.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—The well-known operatic tenor, Mr J. W. Turner, and his company commenced at the Theatre Royal a week's series of English opera performances. On Monday evening The Bohemian Girl was performed, with Miss Ethel Locker as the gipsy maid, Arline, and Mr F. J. Hargrave as the Polish refugee, Thaddeus. Both are vocally gifted, and sang the varied solo and concerted music with great power, sweetness, and artistic grace. The Gipsy Queen of Miss Mabel Dennis was a success, both histrionically and vocally. As the Count Mr Jno. Ridding was as vocally effective as ever, and of Mr Sidney Clifford's Devilshoof and Mr Cummings's Florestein it is unnecessary to speak. They are both genuinely droll. The band and chorus were efficiently led by Mr T. Lawton. The Lily of Killarney, Faust, Il Trovatore, The Waterman, The Daughter of the Regiment, and Maritana are also in the répertoire.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmot.—This week's bill here includes the performances of those clever jugglers Hanvarr and Annie Lee, whose speciality is entitled "The Golfer and the Maid." The Bodina Trio harmonise vocally and sweetly. One of the stars of the performance is the pocket "Vesta Tilley," Miss Flo Hilton, male impersonator. Rosie Harvey, burlesque actress, creates a good impression, and Mattie Crawford is an excellent serio and dancer. Harry Walker attracts attention with comic eccentricity, and Drum and Major, duettists and bâton swingers, create quite a furore with their amusing antics. The reappearance of Atlas and Vulcana, society athletes, has drawn admirers of physical beauty and skill. The Hippo. Bioscope still continues to be a feature of the entertainments.

AYR.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry W. Day.—A ripple of joyous merriment pervaded the theatre while The New Barmaid had her three nights' lease of the place. Mr Joseph B. Montague was responsible to a great extent for this pleasing state of the house, for his acting of the part of Bertie White was admirable. The dignified acting of Mr Herbert Cottesmore as Colonel Claymore was a rare foil for showing up the idiosyncrasies of Bertie, and so was the burly brother William of Mr Alex Loftus. Mr Leslie Austin as Captain Lovebury both acted and sang well, and the same may be said of Mr Frank Melroyd as Mons. Bonsor, who, in consort with Miss Violet Osmund as Dora Heather, danced delightfully. Miss Jean Gilmour as Lady Moulton was dignified and charming, while Miss Hilda Blanche and Miss Maude Nicoll as the old and the new barmaid respectively left nothing to be desired, and it would have been hard to have improved upon their acting. The piece was excellently staged, and the whole was under the direction of Mr Alexander Loftus.

BACUP.

NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr Richard Nightingale.—Messrs Armadale and Warren's company is the attraction here this week in the sensational drama, The Face at the Window. Mr E. Hoggan Armadale assumes the principal rôle as Le Loup, and puts a wonderful amount of dramatic force into his interpretation of the part, Mr T. W. Dunscombe cleverly depicts the business-like detective, Paul Gouffet. Mr Alfred Richards is the hero, Lucien Cortier, and works hard; while Mr Bob Anderson makes a very funny character of Peter Pottlebury. Mr George Pythian makes a good impression as Henri De Brisson, and Mr C. Allen-Hineson is well placed as Le Blanc. Miss Maria Florence fully maintains the interest which centres in the character of Marie De Brisson. La Pinau is well represented by Miss Jeannie Dempster, and Miss Lizzie Chambers excites no little merriment as Babette.

BARNSLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. C. Mitchell.—Mr George Dance presented another excellent musical play here on Monday—The Girl From Kay's. Miss Lily Lingard very cleverly portrays Winnie Harborough; Norah Chalmers is capitally played by Miss May Marton; Ellen affords fine scope for the talented Miss Polly Prim; Mr Johnnie Schofield is intensely humorous as the vulgar Max Hoggenheimer; he is well supported by Mr Tom Shelford as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle; Mr Garnet Wilson is distinctly effective as Harry Gordon; Theodore Quench, Q.C., is made the most of by Mr Sam Lysons; and Mr Charles Goold does full justice to the part of Joseph, the hall porter.

BATH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr Lewis A. Long.—The Orchid is being presented in an excellent manner by Mr George Dance's principal company. Mr Bertie Wright gives an exhilarating performance as Meakin. Mr G. Davy Burnaby as Guy Scrymgeour is received with approbation. The wonderful eccentric dancing of Mr Arthur P. Hemsley as Zaccary is watched with amazement, the clever performer evoking hearty recalls. Mr Edmund Page, in addition to the heavy duties of stage-management, undertakes the character of the Frenchman, Comte Cassignat, his duelling scene with Mr Wright creating immense hilarity. Other gentlemen who assist in the fun are Mr Edmund Hullick (Dr. Fausset) and Mr Ernest Darrell (Mr Chesterton); Miss Ethel Bryant is a pleasing Lady Violet; and Miss Madge Lucas as Caroline Vokins has a congenial part. Miss Mabel Sealby is a captivating Josephine Zaccary; Miss Poppy Wilkinson makes a bright and engaging Thisbe; and Miss Eve Melville (Zelie Rumbert) and Miss Ida Chichester (Lady Anstruther) sustain the general high level of the representation.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Trussell.—Harry Tate's company is presenting the laughable skit Motoring this week to the accompaniment of incessant laughter; Barlee and Smith in their smart turn A Rehearsal are popular, the singing of the lady being particularly good; Francis, the intrepid juggler of cannon balls, is well received; Sam Redfern, the black boss, is as good as ever; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, the original singing cardboard box makers, meet with acceptance; Sandy and Carl, knockabouts and burlesque boxers, have a large following of admirers; Walter Emerson, comedian, returns to gain fresh laurels; and the banjo medley of the Sisters Redfern is well performed.

BELFAST.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr James M'Cann.—Mr Charles Frohman's company, including Mr H. B. Irving and Miss Irene Vanbrugh, opened here on Monday with Mr Arthur W. Pinero's capital play entitled Letty, which roared a great success. Miss Vanbrugh appears in her original part of Letty, and this accomplished actress delighted all with her skilful impersonation. Mr H. B. Irving upheld his established reputation by his remarkably clever acting in the rôle of Nevill Letchmere, and his success was in every sense noteworthy. A fine portrait of Hilda Gunning was furnished by Miss Eleanor Souray; and we have nothing but praise for Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, who interpreted the rôle of Marion Allardyce with consummate skill. Mr Scott Craven admirably sustained the part of Bernard Mandeville; and Mr Leslie Victor was all that could be desired as Richard Perry. Miss May Blayney appeared to much advantage as Mrs Ivor Crosbie; and the rôle of Ivor Crosbie was capitally sustained by Mr T. S. M'Causland Stewart. Mr Vernon Steel was highly effective as Coppinger Drake.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr John P. Beardmore.—The chief attraction here is furnished by Messrs Hume, Rose, and Lewis, the famous American comedy team, whose act has been most successful. The great naval and military spectacle For King and Country, presented by Mr Tom Herman, is a great feature of the bill, the performance by many local children being very praiseworthy. The patriotic tableau "Great Britain; or, England is Ready," is undoubtedly a fine spectacle. Dandy George introduces his canine wonder Rosie, whose performance is certainly very remarkable; and Regan and Ryan are very droll comedians and smart dancers. The Harry Du Cane Trio made a big hit with their entertaining aerial gymnastic act, and the clever ventriloquist Miss Bessie Travis, whose talent is obviously hereditary, created a furore on Monday. Also appearing are Mr Fred Fox, comedian; Miss Kitty Time, comedienne; and Mr Jack Lorimer, comedian, whose Scotch songs are intensely funny.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brook.—The chief feature at this popular hall is supplied by Rousby's Electrical Review of Paris, presented in four tableaux, a singularly beautiful show, exhibiting some of the most interesting features of the French capital. The Tribune Trio appear in their exhilarating sketch, The Cheerful Idiot; Ford and Hanson stage a fine musical show, their manipulation of several musical instruments being very clever indeed; Miss Margaret Radcliffe is a talented vocalist, her pleasing voice being hard to great advantage in "Blue Bell;" and Nello is undoubtedly a wonderful lady contortionist. Miss Ethel Dunford has a sweet voice, which has been heard with pleasure in several songs, and others appearing are Juan and M'Que, comedians; May Milburn, the accomplished comedienne and dancer; and Mr Charles Stevens, comedian.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs.—The Original O'Learys top the bill at this old-established hall (so ably managed by the experienced Mr H. T. Downs), and gain much success with their burlesque act. The great Vandinoff is truly described as a marvellous artist in oil colours, his paintings being beautiful. A novel performance is submitted by Cordite, billed as the "world's champion rope spinner;" and the coloured comedians, Pete and Juno, have gained a capital reception, fully deserved. Weisker Brothers' Bioscope, which has enjoyed a full measure of success here, exhibits some new and decidedly interesting pictures this week; and the acrobatic comedians, Testo Brothers, submit a most enjoyable performance. Also appearing are Cissie Reece, Sid Bandon, and Bert Holmes.

IMPERIAL HIPPODROME AND CIRCUS.—Proprietors, Messrs Carter and Bosco; General Manager, Mr Irving Bosco; Assistant-Manager, Mr George Dobler.—Congratulations to Messrs Carter and Bosco on the success of the reopening of this popular place of amusement, and it is also only due to Mr George Dobler to say that not a little of the success is due to his energetic efforts. This week another fine programme has been provided, the Flying Dillons being the stars. Their thrilling and exceedingly clever aerial performance has been cheered to the echo nightly. Clown Caban's performing animals remain a great feature of the entertainment. The high ladder performance of the Escaladers has created quite a sensation; and the act supplied by Mr H. Stone proves him to be a fine equestrian. Max Merlin, the human crocodile, is very smart, and the graceful and accomplished equestrienne, Princess Annie, is accorded an ovation nightly. The juggling act of the Tarrias is also quite amazing. The clowns, Happy Burgess, Ping-Pong, and Handy Andy, are great favourites, and their droll antics create roars of laughter. Praise is also due to the Hippodrome Pictures, furnished by the management, the subjects being most entertaining. Mr Harry Metcalf acts as equestrian director with conspicuous success.

BEDFORD.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter R. Wilson.—This week Mrs Henry Mayhew and Mr Charles Herrick's company has paid a visit in The Triumph of Truth. Miss Marie Auckland as the Twin Sister played with conspicuous ability; and the part of Blanche De Croix was in the capable hands of Miss Rosabel Dodd. Miss Lily Rogers as Katie Bright was quite in keeping with the name of her character. Little Nellie Kenneth as Lena gave a pathetic portrayal; Jack Eversleigh was played with much verve by Mr E. L. Louis; and Mr Johnny Clegg as Tommy Woodhead infused much humour into the piece. Mr J. A. Keogh left nothing to be desired as Sir Chas. Eversleigh; and T. Renaud Lockwood made a good French mobsman. Mr Chas. Herrick as Vitto Mascagni was entirely successful.

BILSTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—The first three evenings of the current week were devoted to The Mariners of England, by Mr Ernest R. Abbott's company. As Lord Nelson Mr Abbott has a character which suits him admirably. He is well supported by Mr W. T. Riley as Harry Dell; Miss Linda Riley as Nelly Dell; Miss Ada Abbott as Mabel Talbot; and Mr W. H. Garbois as Captain Lebaudy. Mr Edwin Keene is capital as Tom Tripp, and so is Miss Isabel Singleton as Polly Appleyard. A "special version" of East Lynne by the same company was underlined for Thursday.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Milton Ray's company in A Hot Night forms the attraction here. Mr Rolando Martin creates considerable amusement in the rôle of William Whiffles; Mr Arthur Milton is a capital Frank Frith; Fontenoy Flutterwig is admirably represented by Mr Francis Hope. Mr Alfred Wellesley does well as Professor Heenan, and Mr Harry T. Butler is a capable Mark Maybury. Miss Cissie Hylton is a vivacious and clever Pollie Drake; Mrs Flutterwig is efficiently assumed by Miss Beatrice Annesley, and Mesdames Clara Reid, May Mulvey, and Alice Alders also appear to advantage. The Eldorado Quartet of dancers are an acquisition.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Miss Emma Litchfield's combination in A London Actress command extensive patronage. The somewhat trying part of Hilda Mannering is carefully and effectively filled by Miss Litchfield, Miss Violet Lawson earns distinction as Phyllis Crawford, and Biddy Malone is well played by Miss Louise Millward. Mr Stuart Cleveland is well to the front with a vigorous rendering of Sergeant-Major Clive Crawford. Mr Sam Wilford makes the most of his opportunities as Pat Maloney, and Mr Fred Fernan contributes a good character sketch of Moses Mendoza. Subordinate parts are well filled, and the scenic effects are above the average.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.—A company which reflects credit on Mr Clarke's liberal catering includes Mr George Lashwood, Mr Tom Costello, Mr Malcolm Scott, and Dutch Daly, all of whom well maintain their high reputation as comedians, each individual artist scoring heavily on this, one of many return engagements here. Miss Marie Kendall, the accomplished comedienne, is fulfilling a highly successful engagement, as also are Spry and Austin, whose humour and ability is a leading feature. The Zaros give an imposing and clever acrobatic display. Fredrica's dogs are well received, and Steve M'Carthy, the Irish coon, completes an excellent programme. On Thursday Mr Clarke, with his accustomed generosity, gave his annual benefit in aid of the local charities, the gross proceeds of a matinée performance being devoted to that worthy object, the Argyle company being reinforced by several extra turns from the Liverpool halls.

BLACKBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr Harry Yorke; Business-Manager, Mr Reginald Yorke.—A Message from Mars, under the direction of Mr Mouillot, is making a welcome reappearance here this week. Mr Rawson Buckley gives a capital performance of Horace Parker; the Messenger is effectively played by Mr W. H. Brougham; and admirable support is afforded by Mr Bruce Lindley as a Tramp, Mr Frank G. Dunn as Arthur Dicey, Mr H. E. Laneeley as Dr. Chapman, and others. Miss May Saker as Minnie Tempier acts in a pleasing manner, and Miss Flora Hastings appears to advantage as Miss Parker. The other parts are well filled.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr E. H. Page.—Bound to Win, the attraction here this week, is meeting with much success. Mr F. G. Kimberley is good as Harry Lyndon, and other parts are well-played by Mr Sidney Renneff as Squire Forbes, Mr Frank Strickland as Phillip Ayre, Mr James Hont as Ned Oakley, Miss Nina Blake Adams as Marion Forbes, and Miss Evelyn Robson as Gladys Orme. An effective touch of realism is afforded by the introduction of two thoroughbred horses.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr Will Murray; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Drury.—Phil Ray heads the bill this week, and met with a capital reception from a crowded audience on Monday. Peggy Pryde was accorded much favour for her songs. Other good turns are Will Matcham, vocal and musical comedy artist; Booker and Narbis, in their sketch The Interviewer; Maud Ross, comedienne; E. W. Selman, comedian; Brothers Harlem, rifle and bâton manipulator; Kit Keen, coon comedian; the Haywards, in a clever act; and the Australian Twin Andersons, in their skipping-rope act. The benefit of the popular manager, Mr Will Murray, is announced for next Friday evening.

BLACKPOOL.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr Herbert J. Montague's Osmond Tearle répertoire company is catering for the public here this week. The Merchant of Venice was played on Monday, with Mr Alexander Marsh as Shylock and Miss Carrie Baillie as Portia, both artists acquitting themselves with credit. Bassanio had a capable exponent in Mr Cyril Grier, whilst Mr Godfrey Tearle did well as Lorenzo. Messrs George Tearle, John Burton, William Lowe; and Misses Fannie Chamberlain and Kathleen Magee are also members of the company. The School for Scandal, Romeo and Juliet, As You Like It, Julius Cæsar, She Stoops to Conquer, and David Garrick are included in the week's bill.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Signor Pepi and Company.—The most pleasing turn here this week is supplied by Frances Haskoll, whose illustrated songs are most cordially received. Madge Grey, comedienne, is also a favourite; Victor Newman is a clever mimic; the Cullane Trio give a funny sketch; Nancy Renshaw is a charming soubrette; Cameron is a clever conjuror; Larry Lewis makes many jokes; and Kioto contributes a novel equilibristic act.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Waller.—The chief attraction here this week is Phroso—what is it? Other turns include Les Bollingers, the rag painters; Beatrice Rénee, a charming comedienne; the Two Weirs, duettists and dancers; the Valdares, wonderful trick cyclists; Rachel Lowe, novelty vocalist; Harrigan and Holt, comedians; and Arthur Forrest, speciality artist.

BIRMINGHAM.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnston.—The Girl from Kay's has returned considerably improved and brightened, and with a company, under Mr George Dance, which does excellent justice to the piece. Great pleasure has been expressed in the appearance of Miss Simeta Marsden as Winnie Harborough, this being a charming impersonation, and one that brings this clever artiste supreme honours. Mr H. C. Barry is another great success in the rôle of Hoggenheimer, and the theatre rings with laughter at the sallies of this unctuous comedian. Miss Alice Russon as the distressed bride, Norah, acts and sings with infinite charm. Mr Chas. Hanbury as the unfortunate Benedict, Harry Gordon, gives a most polished performance, and Miss Maisie North as the Maid, Miss Ada Crossley as Mrs Chalmers, Mr Jas. Wigley as Chalmers, Mr Leslie Roy Cathie as Fitzthistle, and Mr Fred Rolph as Joseph are very successful.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr Victor Turner.—San Toy has been revived here under most auspicious conditions. Miss Fanny Dango excels in the part of San Toy, which she invests with a dainty spirit and true artistic perception. Miss Louie Collier adorns the rôle of Chu San with her vocal charms. Miss May Francis fascinates the house as Poppy; and Miss Alice Lethbridge dances with all her accustomed grace. Mr E. Statham Staples is in the forefront as Li, evoking the utmost hilarity with his quaint conception. Mr Colin Coop increases the gaiety with his clever humours as the Emperor; Mr Stratton Mills ably fills the rôle of Sir Bingo; Mr John Humphries emerges from the difficulties of the mandarin with success; Mr Reginald Kenneth as Captain Bobby sings well and acts with capital ardour; and the cast and production all round evoke the most hearty applause.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—The Mysteries of the Thames, presented here for the first time on Monday, fully sustains the prestige of this well-conducted house. Mr Roy Fortesque is most successful in depicting the sufferings and struggles of the ruined Dick Brandon. James Denbigh is represented by Mr F. Brooke Warren, who sows the seeds of suspicion and crime with the art of a practised stage villain. Miss Gwynne Warren cleverly doubles the rôles of Flash Nell—an excellent and by no means a flashy conception—and her forsaken cripple sister, Grace Rochdale, which she plays with true and irresistible pathos. Miss Lallah Shelton obtains much sympathy for the wife, Kate Brandon, and the audience is genuinely moved at the sufferings of little Doris, ably portrayed by Miss Nellie Palmer. Mr Elton Morgan as Bill Bosco plays with rugged force, and Messrs Gilbert Hall, Dan Hardie, and the Misses Clare O'Sullivan and Flo Norman act their parts with much ability.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Hindle Taylor.—Driven from Home, in which Messrs J. K. Murray and J. M. Dawson's company appear, has provided a pathetic and sensational success nightly here. Miss Lydia Donovan is accountable for two cleverly-enacted rôles, Laura Raybrooke and Walter Hatherleigh. Mr J. K. Murray acts as the inflexible parent, Anthony Raybrook, with the utmost success. Mr Jack Dawson portrays the elder Walter Hatherleigh in a satisfactory manner. Mr Cyril Harrison as Geoffrey Waring plays a villain's part with easy grace; and Mr Aylmer J. Williams represents Dick Saunders with much success. Jack and May M'Kenzie as Mr and Mrs John Anderson contribute valuably to the comic side of the story, and score with a clever speciality scene.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—The World, which bears the hall-mark of Drury-lane drama, was presented here on Monday by Mr John F. Asche to a crowded and highly delighted audience. Mr Stuart Lomath as the good Sir Clement was specially admired for his effective acting. Mr Francis Hawley as the unworthy brother, Harry Huntingford, received from the wrath of the "gods" the finest tribute a villain's powers could evoke. Miss Georgette Thierry proved a most capable as well as beautiful exponent of the wronged wife, Mabel Huntingford; and Miss Beatrice Fay as Mary Bly the won sympathy, admiration, and tumultuous applause. Mr Bernard J. Lieli as Moss Jewel kept the house amused, and Mr Jackson Hayes as Martin Bashford, Mr Adam Alexander as Langley, and Miss Ellen Owen as Miss M'Tabb were also in favour.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard.—Otto the Outcast once more introduces that clever and popular comedian, Mr Harry Starr, in his well-known and successful study of the title-rôle. In addition to this, Mr Starr has gratified his admirers with his historical reincarnations of the first Napoleon and Lord Nelson, in which he effects a striking quick-change act, and which is greatly appreciated. Mr Richard Harris renders good support as Roderique D'Estalier; Miss Lizzie Webb gives a successful impersonation of Lara, the flower-girl; Miss Rita Rosslyn acts cleverly as Corinne Jarbeau; Mr Conrad Clerke as the Marquis and Mr William Miller as Daddy Bruneau show much ability; and the humorous rôles of Carotte and Susette are well sustained by Mr J. Turner and Miss Edna Lester respectively.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr A. W. Matcham.—Packed houses this week are appreciating the performance of the Kellinos in their speciality act, "Venetia." Eugen Maarden's fire-dancing horse remains another week, as also does Pat Rafferty and the Brothers Damm. O. T. Fiske and Nellie M'Donough in their comedy-drama, Brocky's Temptation, go exceedingly well; and Fanny Robina is a most entertaining burlesque artiste. The Bros. Webb, the M'Kays, James Kurry, J. W. Rickaby, and Ambrose Thorne add to the mirth of the programme.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Albert Bushell.—That particularly bright star, Harriett Vernon, is the big attraction here this week, her songs being well applauded. Her latest is "Karama," a Japanese song which is loudly encored. Lilian Lea, whose voice is one of purity and power, rendering Tosti's "Good-bye" with fine effect; Athas and Collins have a good comedy act; and the Abadaroffs, prehistoric mountebanks; the Brothers Redmond, eccentric acrobats; the Korries, Billy Tucker, Gus Garrick, and Martin and Myers evoke much enthusiasm.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The big turn this week is John Tiller's company of fifty artistes, in High Jinks; or, Fun on the Sands. The scenery and dresses are effective, the dances are pretty, and the comedians provide many opportunities for laughter, the most prominent being Bob Selvidge and Fred French. A clever and daring acrobatic display is presented by Ergotti and King Luis. The Five Parroscopplis, Martin Conway, Lowell and Lowell; Virginia, with her piccaninnies; Dave O Toole, J. W. Bray, and T. W. Russell are also in the bill.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident Manager, Mr Edward Foster.—The principal attraction this week is Seeth with his twenty-three forest bred lions, who give an interesting performance. The Hungarian dancing of Anny Store and Company in The Gypsies' Romance is loudly applauded. Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire mill girl, is responsible for some fine singing; Alfred Hurley, has a good song which goes well; an exceedingly smart equilibristic turn is supplied by the Nevarros; and other excellent turns are Fred Lincoln and Alice Maple, the Brothers Harrison, J. H. Kisbey and the Barangay Trio.

BLYTH.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Resident-Manager, Mr G. E. Good.—An excellent attraction has been provided here by Mr Douglas Bruce's company in the drama entitled In a Woman's Grip, which was presented to a Blyth audience for the first time on Monday. Mr Frank Lichfield was a prominent figure as Dick Langley, an ex-prizefighter, and Miss Beatrice May as Mary Langley, otherwise Convict 43 and the Princess Zyaroff, put in some excellent work.

BOSCOMBE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson's company is the attraction here this week, in The Scarlet Woman. Mr Reginald Fox is seen to advantage as Richard Marchant, Mr David M'Farlane gives an effective rendering, on conventional lines, of the villain Will Raymond, and Mr Bryce Methven's impersonation of Philip Gordon is well received. Mr Mat Melrose rouses much hearty laughter as Samuel Simpkins. Miss Laila Cowell appears as Fanchette, and the character of Mrs Desmond finds a capable exponent in Mrs Scott-Watson, while Jeanne is represented by Miss Gracie Walker. Miss Scott-Watson plays the title-rôle with a full perception of its possibilities. Trilby was billed for Friday. The productions are under the direction of Mr Charles Dravcott.

BOURNEMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee, Mr Mouillot; Manager, Mr R. Stewart.—Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company in Little Mary opened here on Monday to a large and enthusiastic audience. The play was really excellently presented by a well-balanced cast. Mr A. Holmes-Gore as the Earl of Carlton was, of course, a conspicuous success. Mr Arthur Kightley played Lord Rolfe with a delightful ease, and was very convincing. Two capital character sketches were given by Mr George Mudie and Mr Archie Bascombe as Sir Jennings Pyke and the Earl of Plumleigh respectively. The latter character, although a small one, is full of detail, and stood out prominently. Mr Ean Macdonald duplicated the parts of Terence Reilly and Dr. Topping very cleverly. Miss Gertrude Burnett was charming as Moira Loney, and played the part with delicacy and finish. As Countess of Plumleigh Miss Elspeth Dudgeon was really good, but just missed achieving a great success by being inclined to overplay the part. Miss Evelyn Neilida and Miss Gwendolen Richmond as Lady Milly and Eleanor Gray complete a very strong cast. The comedy is preceded by The Bugle Call.

BRADFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr J. R. Richardson.—A return visit of Messrs. A. and S. Gatti and Charles Frohman's company with Mr J. M. Barrie's quaint and charming comedy Quality Street, has proved very welcome to Mr Hart's patrons, and the usual excellence marks the representation of the piece. Mr David Glassford in a convincing manner plays the dashing Valentine Brown; Mr A. Carlaw Grand's Ensign Blades is a well-studied caricature; in a very winsome manner Miss Grace Armytage Noble sustains the part of Miss Phœbe Throssell; and as her sister Susan Miss May Whitty is excellent.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—The Sign of the Cross has not lost any of its singular powers of attraction, as was evident on Monday, when a large audience again greeted very cordially Mr Wm. Greet's company in the play. The cast is practically the same as on the occasion of the last visit here, and the play is staged in the same admirable manner. Mr F. B. Woulfe's Marcus Superbus is a well-studied, bold, and finished effort. The emotional acting of Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, who is a charming and graceful Mercia, moved her audience visibly. The senile Emperor Nero has a clever exponent in Mr A. Bernhardt Turner. Much broad but admirable humour marks the Glabrio of Mr Frank Wood. The villain Tigellinus is represented with effect by Mr Charles Aldred. Miss Ivy Millar is powerfully emotional and convincing as the boy Stephanus, and Miss Alma Bolton's Berenice, and Miss Ethel Land's Poppæa are noticeable amongst the other excellent efforts of the company engaged on the representation of the popular play.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Crawford Swann.—There are many deserving old favourites amongst the company here this week, Hugh Stanton and Miss Jessie Burgwitz being prominent in their satire, For Reform. Harry Hayton, comedian, contributes an acceptable turn, and Vosper, with his facial imitations, is again enjoyable. Griff, the clown juggler, as usual, contributes immensely to the evening's enjoyment; and the Tourbillion Troupe of acrobatic cyclists again evoke applause. Leo Tell gives remarkable imitations of animals and instruments. The comic acrobatic work of Swan and Bambard is clever and diverting; Margaret Ashton sings acceptably; the musical performance by the Miles-Stavordale Quintette (an excellent combination) is very enjoyable; and Charles Leb's animals are remarkable and entertaining examples of training.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. E. Berry.—A capital company includes Jordan and Harvey, American comedians, who on Monday made a successful first appearance here with quaint "patter" and amusing burlesque; Nellie Gannon pleased her audience with descriptive song and dance; Cullen and Carthy, comedians, and Little Cluly won both laughter and approval in their amusing turn; and Harry Wright, character extemporé singer, contributed successfully. Dolly Harmer, comedienné, submitted one of her usual acceptable specialities; the Zenary Bros., in "The Meeting at the Club," gave a clever acrobatic display; a good turn was given by the Two Stars, duettists and dancers; Edith Courtney sang ballads very well; and the Bros. Ethairlen reappeared in their delightfully humorous eccentric comedy turn.

BRIGHOUSE.

ALBERT THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr T. Morton Powell; Business-Manager, Mr M. Manley.—The attraction at the above theatre this week is Miss Frances Delaval's company in The Biggest Scamp on Earth. Miss Delaval is a powerful Naomi Belvedere; Miss Dorothy Mahomed plays the part of Irene May charmingly; and the part of Mother Hawk finds a talented interpreter in Miss Patty Groves. The Scamp is most ably portrayed by Mr Percy Carne Waram.

BURY (LANCS).

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Mr Julian Malvern's company is presenting the drama, I Defy the World, here this week. Mr Lewis Gilbert plays finely as Leon Darville; Mr Joseph W. Worsley is a fine villainous Count de Beaulieu; Miss Carry Ellis is good as Pauline Delaporte; and Miss Lina Nazeby is worthy of mention as Blanch Darvil.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Mr Culling provides a good programme at this house, and this week Mr Fred Harcourt, the modern magician; Leveta, the Oriental Mystery; Texas Hattie, tight-rope walker; Harry Morris, comedian; Amy Elvina, comedienne; and Charlene and Charelene are here.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr Wm. B. Broadhead.—Excellent performances are given here this week by Cabaret and his wonderful dogs; Dale and D'Argan, in "Le Café Magique;" Omega, slack-wire artist; Henriques, acrobats; the Dorothy Quartet of dancers; the Onatis Troupe of jugglers; and Billy Williams, comedian.

BRIGHTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr C. P. Levilly's company opened here on Monday with Amorelle, which was admirably staged. Mr Eric Thorne was highly amusing as Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crow, and Miss Stella Gastelle sang and acted charmingly as Amorelle. Mr Fred Seymour made a capital Dotard, Mr John Doran was very effective as Jules, Mr Newton Ide's François, Mr Gerald Clifford's Lupin, Mr Arthur Dennis's Boissy, and Mr Robert Fairbank's Count of Cideaux were well played. Miss Kitty Cavendish was a pleasing Lesbia, Miss Madge Avery proved entertaining as Marina, and Miss May Bradbury was successful as Jeanette. The full chorus and augmented orchestra acquitted themselves admirably, and the duties of conductor were in the hands of Mr Harry Rushworth. At Thursday's special matinée, Mr Arthur Bourchier, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, and the Garrick Theatre company, appeared in The Walls of Jericho.

GRAND THEATRE.—Under the entire control of Mr Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr W. F. Crowe.—Mr Frederick Melville's company is here this week with Her Forbidden Marriage. Mr Horace Hunter gives a very fine portrayal of the hero, George Madison, and Miss Isla Garnet Vayne is earnest and winsome as the heroine, Lucy. The villainous Charles Devereux finds an excellent representative in Mr Clarence Hague; Miss Emily Hughes merits warm praise for her sympathetic treatment of the character of the Mother Superior; Miss Doris Brookes is well suited as Lady Lucretia; and Mr Charles Carte is effective as Sir George Lancaster. Mr Harry Elliston as Timothy Tuttutt and Miss Marie Kildare as Pattie Lovejoy sustain the comic element with much success.

AQUARIUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Bernhardt.—On Monday Mr Bernhardt inaugurated his lease of this theatre with afternoon and evening concerts. The very enjoyable programmes were admirably sustained, the artists who appeared including Mr W. Louis Bradfield, Little Miss Decima Brooke, Miss Madge Temple, Madame Edith Welling, Miss Olive Jarvis, Mr Douglas Lott, Mr Victor Benham, Miss Jessie Jolly, Miss Maude St. Malo, Mr H. Coombs, Miss Minnie Cooper, Miss Audrey Anderson, Miss Addie Croker, Stanelli, the Misses Dorothy and Violet Edge, Miss Rita Everard, and Miss Jennie Franklin. Other attractions were furnished by the Aquarium orchestra under the direction of Mr J. W. Slatter, and by a series of animated pictures.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr J. L. Graydon; General Manager, Mr Ernest Lepard.—The following are here this week:—George W. Leslie and company, in Chums; Little Barney, eccentric comedian; the Sisters Govell (Annie and Lottie), character impersonators, vocalists, and dancers; Frank Seeley, in his latest London successes; Ernest Ball, actor-vocalist; Lennie and Hast (Peggie and Walter), in a humorous opera-bouffe fantasy, The Heirloom; the Hudson-Powell troupe, in The Young Recruits; Lillie Lassah, comedienne and dancer; the Denmark Pair, in Arguments; the Reed Oetzmann Troupe of pantomimists, in On Tour in the Tyrol; and the Alhambra pictures.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—Al. Lawrence, American mimetic comedian; the Freydos, athletes and hand balancers; the Elysian Troupe, in an enjoyable musical turn; Charles Vandyke and company, in Nicodemus; Foreman and Fannan, the "eccentric millionaires;" F. Cumminger, sand dancer; Katherine Dahl, American prima donna and burlesque actress; Florence Hill, burlesque actress and dancer; and animated pictures.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Under the personal direction of Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Mr Orton Tewson's company is here this week with My Sweetheart, the musical numbers of which have been introduced and arranged by Mr Broughton Black. Miss Grace Arundale as Tina acts and sings with great charm, and Mr Broughton Black, who is an excellent Tony Faust, also displays expressive vocalisation. Mr Charles D. Steele is an amusing Dudley Harcourt. Mr R. Noel Barton M'Guckin's Joe Shotwell and Miss Gertrude Le Sage's Mrs Fleeter are able representations. Miss Pollie Marshall as Mrs Hatzell and Mr Ambrose Skinner as Farmer Hatzell are effective. Mr Harry A. Gribben is a capital Harold Bartlett, and Mr Charles Stephenson is well placed as Dr. Oliver.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—Miss Maude Thompson and Mr Arthur Eldred's company is here this week with Lady Huntworth's Experiment. Mr Frank G. Bayly achieves great success as Captain Dorvaston; Mr Henry Bute is well suited as the Rev. Audley Pillenger; Mr Arthur Eldred proves very amusing as Gandy; Mr Hawley Francks's Mr Crayll is admirably played; Miss Maude Thompson gives a finished representation of Caroline Rayward; and Miss Joan Burnett makes an entertaining Keziah. Other parts are ably sustained by Mr Coningsby Brierly, Miss Gladys Bartle-Frere, and Miss Edith Stewart.

COLISEUM.—Lessee and Director of Entertainments, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr C. Smith-Wilkes.—The following are here this week:—The Dandies, society entertainers; Lily Black, comedienne; A. C. Revel, in a juggling act, with electrical effects; Dainez's comedy circus; Helen Andrews and Walter Thompson, American operatic comedy duo; Charles Woodward, actor-vocalist; the Three Sisters Jonghmans, vocalists; Flo Cecil, soubrette; and the Coliseum pictures.

BRISTOL.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Macready Chute.—There was a large attendance here on Monday evening, the attraction being Miss Lena Ashwell and a strong company in the interesting drama, Marguerite. The play is excellently staged, the scenery being realistic and the Louis XVI. costumes rich and appropriate. Miss Ashwell presents a clever study of the name part, powerful sometimes, vivacious often, and always charming. Mr Frank Mills was earnest and effective as Neuville; Mr Charles Groves was highly successful as St. Phar; Mr Thomas Holding acted cleverly as Phillippe, Marquise De Pommeuse; Mr Charles A. Doran made the most of Citizen St. Juste, as also did Mr L. R. Dunrobin as Berton, Mr Edward Knox as M. L'Abbé, Mr H. Pellew as Viscomte De Cosset, Mr C. P. Peele as De Luneville, and Messrs L. G. Saville, W. Belgrave, and Cecil Pearce as the Emissary, De Noailles, and Officer of the Austrian Army. Miss Beryl Mercer, Miss Sidney Fairbrother, and Miss Marie Hudspeth were capital in their respective parts of Gertrude, Mdlle. Senedar, and Madame Brunet. Mr Harry Halley was amusing as Barelle, and other artistes in Marguerite's theatre were satisfactorily taken by Misses Helen Macbeth, Hilda Dick, Mabel M. Aldridge, Messrs G. Drayton, T. Melton, H. Cotsford, F. Irvine, A. Fairchild, H. Longford, and H. O. Cusack. The performance commenced with the comedietta Out of the Question, nicely played by Miss Hilda Dick, Miss Mabel M. Aldridge, and Mr Thomas Holding. Mrs Dane's Defence was billed for performance later in the week.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Ernest Carpenter.—This week we have Mr Hill-Mitchelson's company in the Russian drama The Assassin, which in all respects is admirably staged. Mr Hill-Mitchelson plays Prince Demitri effectively, displaying both dignity and power when necessary for the exposition of a somewhat unthankful and difficult part. Miss Ruth Sheppard plays with much distinction as the Countess Wanda, presenting a fine powerful performance of an impressive part, her rapier duel with Prince Dimetri obtaining much applause. The parts of Nita and Ivan Ipanoff are nicely taken by Miss Grace Aimers and Mr John C. Carlyle, and other characters of more or less importance are satisfactorily impersonated by Miss Alice Barber, Mr Fred Wilberforce, Mr Edward Swinton, Mr Fred Yarnold, Mr Theo Balfour, Miss Dora Woodward, Miss Ada Douglas, Miss M. Armstrong, Mr Arthur M'Cullock, Mr Paul Beckett, Mr C. H. Henderson, Mr Cyril Maitland, Mr Leo Waller, and Mr Alfred Hall.

PALACE.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Resident Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr Welchman.—Fred Karno's company is here with two pantomime sketches, Jail Birds and Mumming Birds, both being capitally played. Harry Freeman, a comedian who is always popular here, has some good songs; Bert Lytton, comedian, is also popular; Miss Florence presents a good turn as a mimic of well-known artistes; Thornbury appears successfully in his speciality of ventriloquism and lightning painting; Russell Hatton pleases all parts of the house with his clever character sketches from Dickens; the Avrignys are smart jugglers; and Paul is expert as a foot equilibrist. The performance concludes with a new set of animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Miss Minnie Hunt and Mr Rhys Thomas are appearing here in their musical duologue Her Birthday. Miss Hunt's charming voice is heard to advantage in a solo, duets with Mr Thomas go well, the duo-sketch is both clever and amusing, and it is capitally acted. Grant and Grant have a good speciality of song and dance; Miss Rose Cabani, comedienne and expert dancer, obtains appreciation; Larola does a smart tumbling, &c., act; Michael Nolan's Irish songs are well received; the Arthur Saxon Trio obtain applause for various strong acts; J. W. Hall, comedian, has some amusing songs; the Lombarts have a good gymnastic speciality; the Waltons display considerable skill as Chinese equilibrists; and the performance concludes with a display of animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.

VICTORIA.—Managing-Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Licensee, Mr James W. Haworth; Manager and Secretary, Mr James M. Hardie, jun.—Fifteen weeks appear to have been sufficient to test the inclinations of the inhabitants of this district, and variety bi-nightly shows gave place to more legitimate theatrical performances on Monday evening, when a very large house gave Mr Tom E. Murray a flattering reception. It was not a sudden change, as the performance was the musical farce, Our Irish Visitors, and no restriction had been put on smoking; but this will no doubt naturally follow during the week. Mr Murray is a favourite in the locality, and as Colonel M'Mahon he kept the audience in roars for three hours. He was ably assisted by Mr J. W. Braithwaite as Mr O'Brady, Mr Alfred D. Adams as Olly Softsolder, Miss Augusta Tullock as Mrs Softsolder, and Miss Helena Coe as Mrs M'Mahon.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr John Waller.—Mr Fred Karno's company with His Majesty's Guests is the attraction here this week. Mr Harry Roxbury, a smart comedian, gives a droll portrayal of Sergeant Lightning; Mr Charles F. Howard as the swell burglar is thoroughly efficient, his singing gaining much applause; Mr Wellesley Smith is quite at home in the character of Universal Provider; Miss Jessamine Newcombe displays much dash and spirit as Lady Maud Easem; Mr E. C. Lilly, Mr Chas. Cordon, Mr James Ross, Mr Chas. Leoville, Miss Florence Moore, and Miss Madge Campbell add materially to the success of the piece.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.

ATHENÆUM HALL.—Mr W. S. Penley's company with Charley's Aunt was here on Monday. Although it is some considerable time since the last visit the piece seems to have lost none of its attraction. Mr E. H. Wynne as Lord Fancourt-Babberley, was, of course, the life and soul of the play; he was greeted with a round of applause on his first appearance, and a perfect ovation on his assuming the title-rôle. Mr A. Mallalieu played Jack Chesney with a proper dignity and Mr M. Wylton was a good Charles Wykeham. Brassett, the college scout, lost nothing in the hands of Mr F. Epitaux, and Miss B. Fitzgerald was a charming Kitty Verdun.

CAMBRIDGE.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr James Welch and his company were well received here on Monday on a return visit of The New Clown. As Lord Cyril Garston Mr Welch kept the audience in good humour. Mr G. H. Snazelle again appeared as Mr Dixon, the circus master, and rendered valuable assistance. Miss Audrey Ford was charming as Rosie Platt. The other members of the cast, viz., Mr Cyril Harcourt, Mr Leopold Profeit, Mr H. J. Crane, Miss Alexandra Carlisle, and Miss Estelle Winwood, all met with distinct approbation. On Monday and Tuesday The Lady Burglar was played as a curtain-raiser, in which Mr Welch embodied Darcy Fitzherbert, K.C., and Miss Audrey Ford, Honora Macfarlane, B.A., their original parts. On Wednesday The Man in the Street was given.

CASTLEFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr Chas. Gadsby; Business Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—Mr Henry Bedford and company are here this week with Mafeking and are attracting enthusiastic audiences. Mr H. Bedford himself undertakes with success the rôle of Colonel Fleyden Howell, and is very popular. Mr Alec Alexander is consistent and energetic as Captain George Hart, whose manly sentiments please the house. Mr H. Dobell Lyle shows excellent restraint and self-possession as Lieut. Cecil Rayne. Mr Robert Seymour presents a capital exposition of Van Haag, the unscrupulous villainy of the man being ably depicted. Mr T. Arthur Plummer's Schubert is a powerful performance. Mr Sid Bedford shows considerable cleverness and resource in his droll delineation of Tommy Atkins, keeping the house in roars of laughter. Miss Bessie Bedford is a charming and vivacious Alice Leigh. Miss Gertrude Gilbert gives a sympathetic and clever portrayal of Lady Muriel Denbigh. Miss Jennie Risley plays gracefully, naturally, and even pathetically as Annetta. Miss Enid Trench gives a winsome reading of the part of Sister Ursula. Messrs John Worth, Cuthbert Nobes, and Leonard Page are excellent in their respective parts of Pat, Sandy, and John Jones.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Castleford Hippodrome Syndicate; Entertainment Directors, Messrs Herbert Cole and Harry Bancroft.—A capital programme is again being presented here. Mdlle. Devena gives a clever exhibition as a club juggler. W. H. Morgan soon establishes himself a favourite, and is deservedly applauded for his fine rendering of songs. Parr supplies a capital turn. Walter Bannell is a smart comedian and dancer. Miss Jennie Joy is an able vocalist and is well received. Alec Aubrey, gymnast, is much appreciated. Two sketches Everybody's Widow and Judith, The Queen of Crime, are well acted by Messrs T. C. Glenville, Bert Morley, Herbert

CARDIFF.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Redford.—An admirable performance of Cousin Kate was given here on Monday by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company. The audience seemed delighted with the piece, and frequently expressed their approbation. Miss Lilias Earle appeared in the title-rôle, and by her charming and fascinating impersonation quickly won the admiration of all. Mr Yorke Stephens was another unqualified success, his rendering of Heath Desmond being a capable piece of acting. These two clever artistes are in a large way responsible for the success. The Rev. James Bartlett had an exceedingly good portrayal from the hands of Mr Walter Ringham; Miss Hilda Honess made a sweet and natural Amy Spencer; and an excellent delineation of Mrs Spencer was given by Miss Helen Leyton. The piece is preceded by a comedietta entitled A Case for Eviction, in which Miss Betty Castle, Miss Hilda Honess, and Mr Walter Ringham achieve success.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; General Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company in the well-known drama Alone in London is paying a return visit here this week. The villainies of Richard Redcliffe are capitally brought out by Mr Stephen Ewart; Walter Burnaby is ably depicted by Mr Percy Davison; Miss Madge Devereux gives a sympathetic rendering of Nan, the flower girl; and the natural impersonation of Mrs Maloney given by Mrs C. Wood deserves the highest praise. Miss Ada Elliston as 'Liza Jenkinson and Mr Lonnen Meadows as Charley Johnson give an excellent account of themselves. Capital support is found in Miss Letty Lewis (Ruth Clinton), Mr Stafford Smith (Mr Burnaby), Mr Hugh Brady (Spriggins), Mr Henry George (John Biddlecombe), Mr J. W. Wilkinson (Jenkinson), and Miss Ada Tilley (Tom Chickweed).

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—An excellent variety company has been engaged for this week, and includes the Brothers Egbert, the happy dustmen, with "A Quaint Scene in a Backyard;" the Three Pantzer Brothers, holders of the American championship for head to head and one arm balancing; Bob Hutt, comedian; the Four Olympian Stars, burlesque vocalists and dancers; Edwin Brett and Emmeline Orford, in their bright and breezy vaudeville, Two Love Birds; a new series of animated photographs; Miss Lallah Selbini, the musical bicyclist, assisted by Midget Harry; Blake and Granby, comedy duologue artistes; Miss Ella Retford, comedienne; and Jerry and Joey, in their droll equestrian act.

CHELTENHAM.

OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager Mr H. Oswald Redford.—This week My Lady Molly holds the boards, and is proving as fresh and attractive as ever. Miss Edmee De Dreux, in the title-rôle, submits a charming impersonation, and Miss Zoe Gilfillan as Alice Coverdale is at her best. Mdlle. Ebba D'Arcier as Alice's governess is praiseworthy; as Captain Harry Romney Mr Leicester Tunks is successful; and Mr Stuart Alexander does well as Lionel Bland. Mickey O'Dowd finds a capital exponent in Mr Stephen Fitzgerald, and Mr H. Godwin Hunt is excellent as Sir Miles Coverdale. Mr M'Closkie is good as Judge Romney, as is Mr R. Cooper in the part of Reuben Oats. Miss Mabel Carr as Hester is appreciated.

COATBRIDGE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Mary Watson; Manager, Mr C. B. Fountaine.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr C. Finch-Hatton on a return visit with From Scotland Yard, and on Monday the house was well filled. Mr Finch-Hatton, who appears in no less than five different characters, shows excellent capabilities. Mr T. Arthur Ellis powerfully portrays Dean Fordyce; Mr James F. Firth comically enacts Weary Marsden; and Joe Staggers is successfully rendered by Mr Mike Johnson. Miss Josephine H. Lee deserves the highest praise for her impersonation of Mad Marie; Miss Ada Stelling is appreciated as Dolly Beetles; and Sybil has a clever representative in Miss Helen Lowther.

COLNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr G. Harding.—Mr Henry Johnstone's company is here this week with the thrilling drama The Bank of England. Mr Hubert Chambers makes an excellent Sherlock Holmes; Mr Charles Goff in the rôle of Tommy Sprouts causes much amusement; Mr C. Ninian proves himself a capable Gordon Isaacs; and Mr C. H. Gallier is decidedly clever as Godfrey Dane. Mr Juan De Alberti is capital in the character of Stephen Hartley, whilst Mr Frank Ernstone makes an admirable Bertie. The leading ladies include Miss Hilda Clyde as Sylvia Barraclough, Miss Marie Loreth as an American widow, and Miss Ada Ryder as Margaret Dane. The remaining characters are taken by other capable members of the company.

CREWE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry Taylor.—Mr and Mrs Fred Benton's company is here this week with A Marriage of Vengeance. The chief character of the play, Stella, is acted with a considerable amount of power by Miss A. Harrison Tate; Mr Alfred George Fry is seen to advantage as Paul Earnscliffe; and as Glynne Earnscliffe Mr Charles Coventry is a capable exponent. Mr Louis Norman in the villainous part of Geoffrey Fannock, alias John Ridley, proves himself a capital artist. Mr George A. De Gray as Max Rheimhardt makes the most of his opportunities. Mr Seymour Perry as Bob Shorner causes much amusement, and is ably supported by Miss Etta Turner as Amelia. The part of Elsie Dean is quietly but effectively sustained by Miss Maud Stuart.

CROYDON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr Reginald Lawrence.—Mr Ben Greet's energetic company is drawing good houses with the ever-green Belle of New York. Miss Mora Hersee, in the title-rôle, is lively, cheerful, and fascinating; Miss Helen Rose is a most captivating Fifi Fricot; and Miss Ida Grandison is jolly and pretty as Cora Angelique. Mr Arthur Ricketts scores as Ichabod Bronson; Mr Harold Wardroper plays with finish as Harry Bronson; Mr Walter Emro is amusing as the Polite Lunatic; Mr Guy Forde makes a comical Doc Snifkins; Mr Walter Uridge deserves congratulations for his rendering of Kenneth Mugg; and the remaining characters are well enacted. The chorus, scenery, and dresses leave nothing to be desired. The piece is produced under the able direction of Mr J. Bannister Howard.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry E. Reckitt.—Miss Beatrice Isaacson's company is here with A Great Sensation. Mr Sydney N. Hallows is appropriate as Jack Damer; Mr Alexander L. Isaacson scores as Bunko Bates; Mr Frank G. Kent is invigorating as Wiley Jones; Mr Frank V. Fenn is an interesting Robin Dale; Mr Tom Robertson is admirable as Henry Encombe; Miss Beatrice Isaacson wins sympathy with a consistent performance as Eva Dale; Miss Edith Wallis acts creditably as Sidonie; and Miss Marion Mayne is good as Ria. Mr Harry E. Rickitt is a courteous manager.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—A strong array of talent is attracting good houses here. The bill includes Mr Gus Elen, coster comedian; Chard and Clarey, in the comedy episode A Covent-garden Ball; Tots and Ettie Davis, in the scena The Flower Girl and her Blind Sister; Mr John E. Coyle, comedian; Miss Daisy James, comedienne; the Dellers, the Two Bells, Mr Ernest Rees, the Two Rubies, Mr Hamilton Hill, the Sisters Oswald, Mr Frank Boyce, the Karno Trio, and Mr Fred S. Partridge's orchestra.

CHORLEY (LANCS.).

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr G. T. Sante; Secretary, Mr J. Clay.—Miss Ida Millais and company is paying a welcome return visit here with the sensational drama No Man's Land. The scenery has been greatly improved, and the water sensations, in which real water is used for a tropical storm and water falls, is exceptionally smart and effective. The company includes Mr Henry Herne, a capital exponent of Harry Oaklands, and Mr Fred Conyers, excellently presenting Silas Moore. Nat Marsden is safely entrusted to Mr William Matthews; Mr Alfred Byron is good in the dual-rôle of Gilbert and Captain Norman Bathurst; Mr Sydney H. Morton smartly undertakes Solomon Jacobs, Mr A. Burrows being good as Thompson Poodle. Mr Claude Haviland capably renders Dr. Buxton, and as Mary Bathurst Miss Ida Millais is particularly charming and effective.

CORK.

OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr John Horgan.—Mr Edward Terry opened a week's engagement here on Monday in Sweet Lavender. His impersonation of the part of Dick Phenyl is intensely humorous, and he is as fresh and vigorous as ever. He is ably supported by a good company. Mr George Howard as Wedderburn showed himself to be an experienced actor; Mr Allan Pollock as Horace Bream played effectively; Miss Vara Renny was pathetic as Ruth Rolt; as Mrs Gilfillian Miss Beatrice Selwyn played in an engaging manner; and Miss Beatrice Terry as Lavender did exceedingly well. The House of Burnside, Bardell v. Pickwick, The Telephone, You Never Knew, Love in Idleness, Kerry, and The Passport are also in the répertoire.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Henry Kemble.—There is a really fine programme here this week. The Four Herberts, give a comedy act, On the Farm, into which they introduce some clever acrobatic feats; Fred Dunston, comedian, is well received in his songs; Maisie Pelham, comedienne and dancer, submits an agreeable turn; Kid Johnson is responsible for a good display with the clubs; Reed and Lane, comedians, create much amusement; Harry Barker, vocalist and actor, sings well; Sadie Cooper, soprano and dancer, also pleases; Gillin gives a clever ventriloquial performance; and Edison's Bioscope shows some fine war pictures.

COVENTRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—Mr George Dance's company in the musical comedy A Chinese Honeymoon is paying a successful return visit here this week. Mr Frank A. Wood makes a most imposing Emperor of Ylang-Ylang; Mr Leonard is a capital Hi-Lung, Lord High Admiral, and causes great amusement; Mr Percy Yorke is successful in his impersonation of Tom Hatherton; Mr Harry Brayne is amusing in the character of Mr Pineapple; Miss M. Slade as Fi-Fi is immediately established as a firm favourite, and well deserves it; Miss Jose Collins is charming as the jealous Mrs Pineapple; while Miss Alice Drummond deserves credit as Mrs Brown, the "official mother-in-law;" and Miss Marie Adair is graceful as Princess Soo-Soo, and also possesses a capital voice. The musical numbers and choruses, which have been added to since the last visit, are received in a satisfactory manner, and a capital entertainment is assured.

DERBY.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr Chas. Denley.—This week sees a return visit of Mr Auguste Van Biene with The Broken Melody, which hardy annual, it is interesting to state, seems to have lost none of its powers of attracting the play-loving public. Mr Van Biene's impersonation of Paul Borinski is too well known to require comment here, but it may be said that his 'cello contributions are received with rapt admiration nightly. Miss Lena Burnleigh is to be complimented upon her charming portrayal of Mabel, which is an outstanding feature of the production. As the Duchesse Miss Ida Chapman's performance is such as to do her infinite credit. Mr Arthur Bawtree gives a good account of General Ivanoff; Mr H. Ludlow and Miss Morton are highly amusing as the Hon. Richard and Mrs Spinacher, as also is Mr T. P. Haynes as Dudley Mortimer; while Mr J. Cummings makes a capital Beaujour. Mr E. Laceby and Miss Avis Graham do well as Mr and Mrs Dixon respectively, and Mr E. Edwardes is an acceptable Dr. M'Grath. The play proper is followed by a one-act comedy, entitled The First Night, in which Mr Van Biene alike astonishes and convulses his audience with his diverting impersonation of Achille Talma Dufard, an old French actor.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes.—The principal attraction here this week is provided by the original Leopolds, a troupe of exceedingly clever lady and gentleman acrobats, whose performance is of a very creditable character indeed. Terry and Bentley appear in a variety entertainment, entitled The Hunt, in which they provide some smart singing, dancing, and acrobatic work. Harry Meir, described as the man with the hat, is wonderfully diverting, his tricks receiving hearty approval. Henry Drew, Welsh basso, sings his songs in fine style, and is cordially received. Harry Attwood, eccentric comedian, provokes much hearty laughter. Rozel submits a startling aerial gymnastic performance. Bertha Norwood, coon singer, is well worthy of mention. The pictures submitted by the Sheffield Photo. Company are entertaining.

DEWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Resident-Manager, Mr J. Herbert Asquith.—Mr Frank Bertram's company this week is playing an excellent drama entitled The Convict's Daughter. The cast is an all-round powerful one, and full justice is done to the many stirring incidents. As Michael Graham Mr Frank Bertram is sufficiently powerful; in the rôle of Patrick Mr Alfred Terris is witty; Mr T. W. Hurst as Harold Trevalyen is capable; Mr G. M. Williams is the cowardly villain to the life; and Mr J. K. Walton puts in a sterling performance as Frederick Neville. Miss Maud Osmond gives quite a clever portrayal of Marion, Miss E. M. Savery is capable as Edith, and Miss Julie Alexander as Betty is well placed.

HIPPODROME AND VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr George Weldon.—Cyrus and Maude, in their farcical "Turpin" speciality, again meet with much success; the Smythsons, in a clever sketch, are deservedly praised; Paddy continues to shine with his versatile business; and George Mack, comedian, meets with general success. Miss Eva Reed is a dainty comedienne, and T. B. Fayme has several catchy songs. The Radium Girls are very bright, and Kydd and Kydd have much amusing patter. The Bioscope continues to give fresh pictures, and the orchestra, under the able bâton of Mr Willcox, is still a pleasing feature.

DOVER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Dover Theatres, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Fred C. Dew.—Mr T. Arthur Jones and company are here with Life's Sweetest Sins. The plot, scenery, and mechanical effects, especially the submarine act, are very fine, and the company is a first-class all-round one. Miss Madge Morley won all hearts by the utter absence of artificiality in her portrayal of Doreen Rivers, the part suiting her admirably. Miss Amy Rudd scored an emphatic success for her excellent acting as Fay Colbrooke, and a dainty and captivating Bess Grayson was found in Miss Sara Dudley. Mr T. Arthur Jones, a favourite with Dover playgoers, played in his usual manly, invigorating, and forcible manner as Captain Harold Marston, and Mr Charles Sewell as Ernie Woodstone gave a particularly clever study of a part not over-burdened with possibilities. Mr A. Bartlett Garth impersonated Dr. Colbrooke with just the right trace of subtlety, and received excellent support from Mr George R. J. Austin as Sam, the Scribe, and Mr C. Vernon Proctor as Flash Jim. Mr Arthur Andrews was the life and soul of the piece as Bob Tanner, and together with Mr Bertram Lee as Martin, provides a fund of genuine amusement. Called Back was played on Thursday.

DONCASTER.

NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Councillor J. W. Chapman.—A delightful variety entertainment is the attraction here. Vivid and graphic animated pictures afford great pleasure; Le Brunn and Irene, in their juggling act, are a good turn; Loder Lyons is a capable exponent of ventriloquism; the Musical Carlettics are vociferously received; Clown Ohmy, with his performing dog, Toby, is extremely humorous; Belford and Mars, comedy duettists, are deservedly popular; and Will Ivor, stilt performer, is smart. Ethel Lucerne, comedienne, is acceptable; the Three Funnyosities, sketch artists, are amusing; Mons. Edgar, trapezist, is agile; and Jessie Harper, the singing mill-girl, is distinctly a persona grata.

DUBLIN.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr Charles Hyland.—Mr Lewis Waller's company, under the direction of Mr Peter Davey, is appearing here this week with the romantic play Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner, which was heartily enjoyed by a very crowded house on Monday. Mr Thomas Kingston gave a spirited and dashing reading of the character of Captain Harry Peyton; Miss Eily Malyon submitted a charming portrayal of Miss Elizabeth; Mr Elliott Ball distinguished himself in the rôle of Mr John Colden; and Mr George Mallett cleverly interpreted the part of Mr Valentine. Miss Alys Rees was most bewitching in her representation of Mistress Sarah Williams; Mr J. Harold Carson as Major Murphy and Mr Keith Fraser as Captain Massey were both effective in their respective rôles; the John Edwards of Mr J. Attfield was a capital performance; and Black Sam was capitally presented by Mr Tom Taylor.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Frederick Moullíot; Resident-Manager, Mr Arthur Armstrong.—Dublin's favourite actor, Mr Martin Harvey, commenced a twelve nights' engagement here on Monday night with The Breed of the Treshams, and there was a large and fashionable audience present. The play was magnificently staged and was well played by a clever company. Mr Martin Harvey again delighted the audience with his excellent representation of "Rat" Lieutenant Keresby. Miss Coleridge appeared with distinct success in the rôle of the Hon. Margaret Hungerford, and Miss N. De Silva was again seen in the character of Batty. Mr Charles Glenney acted splendidly the part of Colonel Hungerford, and the Viscount Dorsington was ably represented by Mr Albert E. Raynor. In the rôle of Francis Tresham Mr Milton Rosmer displayed considerable skill and ability, and Mr Percy Anstey gave great satisfaction as Colonel Sir Henry Curwen. The other parts were creditably sustained.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr Kennedy Miller.—Under the Russian Flag is being played here this week by Messrs Paumier and Howard's company. Mr Walter Howard gives a realistic impersonation of Captain Demetrius; as Luka Marischka Miss Ellen Snow submits a careful study; General Romanoff is capitally presented by Mr Charles Reyne; and Miss Ada Champion is most effective as Vera Vasiloff. The parts of Michael and Ivan are played in a satisfactory manner by Messrs George Arthur and F. W. Freeman respectively, and as Ogarito Miss Agnes Howard is amusing.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—The programme presented here this week is a good one, the leading feature being the Hoopers, in a ridiculous juggling act which causes much laughter. As a mimic Geo. Newburn has few equals, and the Two Romers, operatic duettists, score successfully. Beatrice Willey is a charming ballad vocalist; the Tally-Ho Trio give pleasing concerted pieces; Leo Stormont is a capital baritone; and Espinosa and Neilson are expert dancers. Austin and Cowan are an entertaining turn, and Baker and Balfe in their xylophone act are decidedly good. Mark Sheridan, who remains from last week, is nightly encored, and the Empire pictures are up to date.

TIVOLI.—General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy.—Topping the bill here we have Auto Atlas, whose wonderful feats of strength elicit applause. The Brothers Donar, acrobatic equilibrists, are well received; Harry Conlin is a comedian of more than average merit; the Sisters Hall are highly pleasing as vocalists; and Leighton and Mona are a smart pair of comedy artistes. Ryde and Beeman, comedy acrobats, meet with success, and Alma Gray, who dances admirably, is much appreciated. The Lorrisons, comedy artistes, are a capital pair, and Harry, conjuror, and Frank Gee, comedian, are also billed.

DUDLEY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr J. W. Tilley.—The Ben Greet company, in The Eternal City, is paying a welcome return visit here this week. Mr D. Lewin Mannering is still master of that very difficult character, Baron Bonelli, and Miss Edith Anton Laing is seen at her best as Donna Roma. All the other characters are in capable hands.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Tom Prichard.—Prof. Inman Hocking, American hypnotist, electrician and scientist, is not only providing the large audiences here this week with amusement by his hypnotic powers, but is also doing wonders with people suffering from paralysis and chronic rheumatism. Amber Austa, comedienne and dancer, is a great favourite, and capable turns are given by the Two Manzanares, speciality artistes, Sylvines Trio, Continental gymnasts; Chas. Pastor, laughing comedian; Molly Doon, comedienne; Geo. Barron, comedian; and Will Haines, comedian.

DUNDALK.

TOWN HALL THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Payne Seddon.—Mr Edward Terry presented on Wednesday to a house packed from floor to ceiling his ever-popular Sweet Lavender. As Dick Phenyl Mr E. Terry greatly pleased the audience; Mr A. Hylton Allen as Clem Hale played the part to the life; Mr Allen Pollock was highly effective as Horace Bream, and added much to the humour of the piece; Mr George Howard as Geoffrey Wedderburn was well placed; the part of Mr Bulger was played with distinction by Mr Fred Knight; while Mr Arthur Cornell made a capital Dr. Delaney. As Ruth Rolt Miss Vera Renny acted with great feeling, and Miss Beatrice Terry in the title-rôle was charming. Mrs Gilfillan represented, by Miss Beatrice Selwyn, was in excellent hands, and Miss Olive Wilton was a successful Minnie.

DUNFERMLINE.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr W. E. Potts.—On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of last week A Fatal Crown appeared here before good audiences. Mr Ian Maclaren did ample justice to the part of Lord Guilford Dudley; Earl Northumberland was in the capable hands of Mr J. M. Rowe; Simon Renard was well handled by Mr Henry Howard; Mr Thomas Harding scored as Herne, the Wizard; Mr Willie Atom was very amusing as Xit; Mr Harold Batt did well as Izzod Clay; Miss Elaine Verner was excellent as Lady Jane Grey; Miss Maud Anderson gave a capable rendering of Mary Tudor; Miss Dorothy M'Kenzie as Barbara did well; and Miss Kythe M'Kenzie made a good Dorcas Dossitt.

EASTBOURNE.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr George Hayes.—Mr Alfred J. West's entertainment, entitled "Our Navy," is being given here. The very fine photographs, the excellent animated pictures, and the realistic effects provide amusement and instruction in a most pleasant manner. Pictures of the Japanese and their ships bring the entertainment well up to date, and the lecturer contributes some well-rendered songs.

ECCLES.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Hague; Acting-Manager, Mr P. Ryan-Smith.—Mr F. H. De Quincey and company are here this week in a répertoire of plays, including The Red Lamp, Richelieu, Othello, and The Twin Sister. Mr De Quincey renders the various leading rôles in an artistic manner, and is well supported by Miss Sime Seruya and a capable company.

EDINBURGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Hollister.—The very welcome engagement of Mr Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott attracted a crowded audience to this theatre on Monday. Mice and Men was the play chosen for the occasion, and it is needless to say that it received a most effective rendering from Mr Forbes Robertson and company. In Peggy Miss Gertrude Elliott had an eminently suitable rôle, and she charmed everyone by the exceeding naturalness and spontaneity of her acting. The love scenes were given with much tenderness and charm, and altogether her performance was one to be remembered. Mr Forbes Robertson gave a quiet and dignified rendering of the noble-minded Mark Embury, his acting being marked throughout by that artistic reserve which characterises all his performances. At the close of the play both Mr Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott had a most enthusiastic recall. Mr George Sumner played Roger Goodlake with the necessary bluffness, while Captain George Lovell was capitally rendered by Mr Frank Gillmore, who made a dashing and irresistible lover. Mr J. H. Ryley presented a clever picture of Kit Barniger, the dancing master, and Messrs Ernest Cosham and Leon Quartermaine were excellent in smaller parts. Miss Auriol Lee was a fascinating Joanna Goodlake, and Miss Ada Mellon acted with point and humour as Deborah, Misses Minnie Griffin and Dorothy Paget completing the cast. The piece was nicely staged. On Thursday The Light that Failed was given, with Mr Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott in their vivid impersonations of Dick and Maisie.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General Manager, Mr G. T. Minshull.—A return visit of Mr George Edwardes's company in The Orchid drew a crowded attendance on Monday, when an enjoyable performance of the successful Gaiety comedy was given. There are one or two changes in the cast, a cordial welcome being given to Mr Lawrence Grossmith, who made quite a hit as the Hon Guy Scrymgeour. He worked hard all through, and proved himself an admirable comedian. Mr George Gregory, another newcomer, was seen to advantage in the comical rôle of Meakin, and his diverting acting evoked unbounded merriment. Mr Donald Hall resumed his old part of Dr. Fausset, and Mr Ellis Ogilvie gave the touch of a true artist to his clever picture of the orchid-loving Aubrey Chesterton. Mr Sam Walsh displayed unusual versatility as Comte De Cassignat, and Zaccary, the orchid hunter, had an agile representative in Mr Sidney Vincent, his dancing being loudly applauded. Among the ladies Miss Coralie Blythe's impersonation of Lady Violet was specially noteworthy, and Miss Gertrude Gilliam earned high honours with her delightful acting as Josephine. This is an exacting part, and Miss Gilliam played it to the full satisfaction of the house. Caroline Vokins was undertaken by Miss Irene Verona, who exhibited dramatic and vocal ability of a high order, all her music being encored. Miss Luna Love was a charming secretary to the great minister, Miss Ethel Griffies threw a dash of romance into her rendering of Zelie, and Miss Amy Payne distinguished herself during the evening by the grace and spirit of her dancing. The choral numbers and dance movements were brilliant and effective, and lavish mounting and dressing added much to the success of the comedy.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss.—Mr Albert Chevalier, the coster comedian, secured another great triumph at this theatre on Monday, when he made his reappearance before a large and enthusiastic audience. The whimsical humour of his varied creations again appealed to his admirers, those given on Monday being portrayed with marvellous skill. Mr Chevalier brought the East-end of London before the house with happy effect, and poetry and pathos were exemplified in "My Old Dutch," which still maintains its hold upon the public. Miss Lily Burnand's smart songs were a distinct success, and Mr Tom Leamore's eccentric personations kept everybody well amused. Miss Sybil St. Elmo's cultured ballad singing was deservedly applauded, and the contributions of the St. James's Quintet of vocalists were greatly enjoyed. Professor Berner's marionette entertainment proved as delightful as it was ingenious, and the duets, patter, and dancing of Maxwell and Frances pleased the house immensely. Cassie Walmer, a dusky beauty, created quite a furore with her fine singing, while as a sand dancer she is unrivalled. Gilbert Rodgers, raconteur, and Abel and Welsh, grotesque eccentrics, also appeared.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Tom Ellis.—My Native Land, played by Mr Oswald Gray's company, has occupied the stage here this week. There was a good audience on Monday, and the performance was hugely enjoyed. Mr Gray appeared as Andy Blake with success; Mr John Riley played the rascally Norry Boyle in a masterly way; and Mr Joe English proved not only a good actor but an excellent singer and dancer as Solomon Moses. Miss Cissy Vyna gave an effective embodiment of Winny Blake; Miss Marian Holmes was an efficient Myra Payne; and little Pearlie Richards made an interesting appearance as the child.

COOKE'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr John Henry Cooke.—The reopening of the present season has proved the most brilliant Mr Cooke has ever had, and appreciative audiences crowd the circus nightly. Another recherché programme was arranged for Monday, and the reception accorded to the various artists who appeared has been most enthusiastic. The chief attractions of last week remain, and none have received more applause than Kentucky Beau, the cake-walk horse, that, under the guidance of Miss Ernestine Rosa Cooke, performs quite an interesting series of rag-time dances. Robed in a habit of silver and blue of unique design, emblematic of the national colours of America, Miss Cooke looked distractingly lovely, and entered into the spirit of her well-trained horse's rhythmic movements with a grace that is all her own. De Gracia's wonderful performing elephants have also drawn forth lavish encomiums from both Press and public, and their nightly game of cricket pleases old and young alike. The balancing feats of the Brothers Leotard have been well received, and among other new items the musical mélange of the Stanzars has given much satisfaction. The acrobatic dancing of the Sisters Warner is another feature, and Mdlle. Eva has again distinguished herself in a dashing bareback act, where she manages three horses with astonishing skill. Mr Anthony Powell's boxing stallions give a pugilistic display, while the pictures shown on the Bioscope have all proved interesting. "Prairie Life out West" is one of the most elaborate arenic productions ever seen here, and introduces Mr Leicester Alfred Cooke, Talberto and Douglas, and the full strength of the company, numbering over a hundred performers.

EBBW VALE.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Manager, Mr Arthur Knight.—After a run of drama, a welcome change took place on Monday, when Mr J. H. Morton's company appeared in the musical burlesque and pantomime, The Rajah of Ranjapore. Mr Alvin Sawyer as Horatio Chick takes first place, and Mr Harry Cornwell's Mr Stubbs is a capital impersonation. One of the greatest hits, however, is made by Mr Bert Harrow in the amusing part of Thisles. He is admirably partnered by Miss Marion Walker as Eliza, who keeps the audience in roars of laughter by her amusing portrayal of the housemaids part.

EXETER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford.—Exeter playgoers are enjoying Florodora this week, and the crowded house that welcomed Mr Tom B. Davis's company on Monday, when the piece was presented under the direction of Mr Wentworth Croke, showed how gratifyingly they appreciated the production. It was a thoroughly enjoyable performance, Mr Daley Cooper as Tweedlepunch kept the house in roars of laughter, and Miss Leonora Grieve as Dolores displayed real artistic talent, and was very loudly applauded, her singing and acting making a most favourable impression. The other principal characters were most ably sustained.

FALKIRK.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Horace W. Ebbutt.—Why Woman Sins, a stirring naval drama, was produced on Monday by the company of Messrs Geo. Harris and Fred Terris. Mr Wallace Campbell's presentation of the character of Lieut. Harry Maxwell, the hero, was characterised by much dramatic power, and the same remark might be fittingly applied to Mr Fred Terris's Captain Herbert Carlton, the villain. As the suffering and wronged Nell Desmond Miss Effie Bartlett displayed much ability. Miss Gussie Everett as Ida Valette played her part with vigour. The light comedy touches of Miss Winifred Preece as Lily De Vere, a music hall star, and Mr George Harris as Cecil Spencer were much enjoyed, and the broader humour of Mr Clifford Spencer as Sam Spavins, Mr Forbes Harrison as Orlando Whiffles, and Miss Marie West as Nancy Nibble provided a continual feast of laughter.

FOLKESTONE.

PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland.—Messrs Hardie and Von Leer's company, in A Path of Thorns, is here this week. Mr Cyril W. Mackay is a manly Rev. Frank Selby; Mr Claude King highly successful as John Edmunds; Mr Alfred Lester amusing as Sam Hallett; Mr Cecil Du Gue is in every way excellent as Jonas Deane; Mr G. Mayor Cooke is well placed as Edward Langley; Jim Price finds an able representative in Mr J. H. Booth; Mr Walter L. Rignold scores as Ratty Gabbitt; Miss Mary Raby is good as Constance Howard; Miss M. Stanley Burt acquits herself well as Nellie Hallett; Miss Violet Luddington's portrayal of Bessie Edmunds is pleasing; Miss Amy Rogerson as Jane Adelaide is decidedly funny; and Little Mabel May as Lucy acts and sings charmingly.

GATESHEAD.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Limited; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Straughan.—An attractive bill submitted here includes the Max Trevally-Harley Troupe of acrobats, who provide an acceptable turn. The Burnells, musical and comedy artistes, are also responsible for good business; the boy comedian, Archie Glen, is acceptable; Gus Harris, Hebrew delineator, and the Haldyne Duo create much amusement; and other capable turns are provided by Harry Nelson, Tyneside comedian; the Clarks, America's banjo duo; Miss Florence Wood, comedienne; and Martino, in "A Nest of Vipers."

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—The principal turn here is that of the Seven Savonas, the musical marvels. Their performance is a great musical treat, and has evoked enthusiastic demonstrations at each house. The performance is bright from start to finish, and one that there is undoubtedly a big demand for, judging from its enormous success here. In addition to their musical display the Savonas give a wonderfully clever cycling turn as the Six Cycling Elliotts. Other clever turns are those of Vasey and Ramsey, eccentric dancers of great ability; Miss Flora Platts, a refined vocalist, with illustrated songs; Senorita Elvins, a wonderfully smart trapeze act; Teddy Denham, a good comedian; Cecilia Jackson, dancer; and Elsie and Annie, duettists and dancers.

GLOUCESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Owners, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr W. H. Weller.—The Marriage of Kitty is this week being presented by Mr Frank Wilson's company. Mr Frank Wilson plays the part of Sir Reginald Belsize in effective manner, whilst John Travers is successfully sustained by Mr Sydney Orton. Mr J. F. Leighton gives a merry rendering of Norbury, and Mr Royston Keith, jun., acts in able style as Hampton. Miss Vera Fordyce invests with much charm the character of Katherine Silverton, Madame De Semiano is praiseworthily delineated by Miss Kate Harwood, and Miss Averil May is noticeable as Rosalie. The curtain-raiser is the amusing farce entitled He and She.

GOOLE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John E. Tomlinson.—Messrs Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company opened here on Monday for three nights in the military drama The Two Hussars. Mr Valentine Vivian makes a model Colonel Manners; as the hero, Harry Alcock, Mr Wilson Benge is a conspicuous success; Mr Fred J. Webb is good as the villain, Paul Villiers; Mr G. Paradise is a capital Sergeant M'Finnie; Mr Louis Nanton as Robert Runn and Miss Lallah Price as Molly Cutts keep the audience in continuous good humour; Marie is delightfully played by Miss Danvers Smith; Miss Sadie Smith sustains the dual-rôle of Ellen Maythorne and Will Gunstock in excellent style; Mr S. James acquits himself ably as Lewis Montague; and Mr Chas. Fynes is a clever Carew Jones. A special feature is the songs and dances introduced by Mr Louis Nanton and Miss Lallah Price.

GREENOCK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Alex. Wright; Managers, Messrs A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Mr Henry Swinerd's company is here this week, with Dare-Devil Dorothy. Mr Walter Boyce is a capital General Garston; Mr Cecil W. Parke is convincing as Captain Fielding, and sings well; Mr Henry C. Ward shows ability as Captain Dudley; Mr Wilfred Carr enacts Featherstone Haugh acceptably; Mr Arthur Verne is amusing as Silas Crump; Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith sings and dances well; Miss Kathleen Gannon is good as Ruth Montrose; and Miss Marjory Cecil as Dorothy Montrose is a general favourite. Miss Mabel Blake and Miss Lillie Blake are expert dancers.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. L. Skivington.—Mdlle. Roza's Canine Hippodrome heads the bill this week, and is well received. Ray and Mills, musical ball performers, give an acceptable turn; Bob Stephenson, Irish comedian, is applauded; Craig, Rose, and Craig perform some amazing dental feats; Nelson and Thomas, sketch artistes, are good; Eck Ray's School Boys, comedians, are amusing; Kate Holloway, comedienne, is successful; and a good turn is given by Burg, Haud, and Wise with the comedy act Ye Brown Cow Inn.

GLASGOW.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Humphreys.—Miss Julia Neilson and Mr Fred Terry are here this week with their latest success, Sunday. Miss Neilson's acting of the title-rôle made a very strong impression on the audience, particularly in the heavier scenes, which were carried through with thrilling effect. The Colonel Brinthorp of Mr Fred Terry was marked by all his customary naturalness and feeling, and as Arthur Brinthorpe Mr Malcolm Cherry gave quite an intense performance, while Mr J. D. Beveridge's conception of Tom Oxley was a pleasing feature of the production. The four miners are well drawn characters, and with Mr Rothbury Evans as Towzer, Mr J. Carter-Edwards as Davy, Mr Horace Hodges as Lively, and Mr Alfred Kendrick as Jacky, they lost nothing in make-up or in acting. Miss Bella Pateman made a delightful Mrs Naresby, and Miss Kathleen Doyle represented the Nun with great tenderness, and as Abbot Mr Ernest E. Imeson was also good.

ROYALTY, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. W. Downie.—Mr George Musgrove's company, with The Belle of New York, is this week paying a farewell visit. The Violet Gray of Miss Beatrice Lamotte is a charming performance, and her fine voice gains for "Follow on" the usual success. Miss Lilian Digges as Fifi renders her numbers charmingly. Mr Philip Leslie acts and sings with good effect as Harry Bronson, and Mr Harry A. Meymott is exceedingly funny and entertaining as Ichabod Bronson. Mr Max Copland supplies a humorous study as the Polite Lunatic. Mr Cecil Burt does good work as Doc Snifkins. Mr William Pringle as Blinky Bill proves himself an able comedian, and his whistling solo is loudly applauded. Miss Ida Lawrence is equally successful as Kissie Fitzgarter. The Portuguese Twins are suitably represented by Mr Alfred Selby and Mr Albert Sealby. Kenneth Mugg is ably acted by Mr Paddy Dupres. Miss Winnie Brown makes a handsome Cora. The chorus is strong and well-balanced.

KING'S, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr H. Macfarlane.—Considerable interest attaches to the present visit of Sir Henry Irving and his company, in view of the approaching retiral of the famous actor. Happily we in Glasgow are promised another visit before that event takes place, but it is evident from the enthusiastic reception accorded to Sir Henry that playgoers here are determined to make the most of him while they have the opportunity. On Monday The Merchant of Venice was presented, and Sir Henry Irving's masterly embodiment of the wily Shylock was never better given. Every word and gesture told with unfailing effect, and the large audience followed the play with sympathetic interest. Miss Edith Wynne Mathison was the Portia, and acted with grace and charm in the Belmont scenes. In the Trial scene she fully rose to the occasion, and her delivery of the "mercy" speech was particularly good. Mr Gerald Lawrence made a handsome Bassanio, while the Antonio of Mr James Hearn was a dignified and touching portrayal. Mr H. B. Stanford as the light-hearted and talkative Gratiano was specially well placed. Mr F. Tyars as the Prince of Morocco and Mr F. Archer as Tubal were seen in familiar parts. Mrs Cecil Raleigh made a charming Jessica, and Miss Grace Hampton infused a deal of humour into the part of Nerissa. Mr Charles Dodsworth's Gobbo was an excellent bit of fooling and Mr T. Reynolds, cleverly made up, proved a suitable foil to his humour as Old Gobbo. Mr Mark Paton, Mr F. D. Daviss, Mr Lionel Belmore, and Mr Vincent Sternroyd also lent able assistance. On the other evenings of the week Becket, Waterloo, The Bells, and The Lyons Mail were given.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S. — Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr Hugh Murdoch.—The attraction provided here this week is one that is sure to be welcomed on the south-side, viz., Mr Wentworth Croke's No. 1 company in the popular drama The Christian. Miss Grace Chalmers as Glory Quayle plays with earnestness, while the able support given by Mr Hilliard Vox in a great measure contributes to the success of the production. The other characters are all in capable hands, notably that of Horatio Drake, Mr Jackson Wilcox, but the list would be incomplete without the names of Messrs Stanley Radcliffe, Charles B. Beddels, and Misses Gertrude Homewood and Clara Nicholls.

GRAND, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr A. Mascard.—After a fairly long absence Gentleman Joe has returned to Glasgow. Mr Milton Bode's company presents the comedy, under the direction of Mr Stanley Rogers, and Mr Kennedy Allen appears in the title-part. He is quite a success, whether in song, patter, or dance, and sustains the heaviest part of the evening's work. Mr Robert Vincent as Lord Donnybrook, Mr W. H. Moore as Mr Ralli Carr, and Mr G. Wyley as Mr Jacqueson sustain these characters admirably, and combine with Mr Allen in making the performance thoroughly enjoyable. Mr Sydney Benson is excellent as Dawson, the butler, and works to equal purpose with the page boy, William, a part sustained with considerable merit by Miss Edith Benson, while James, a footman, is capitally represented by Mr Jack Harper. Mr J. W. Hooper is the Pilkington Jones, boisterous and voluble to a degree, and whose three daughters are fittingly impersonated by Misses Enid Russell, Minnie Linscott, and Marie Hayden. There is some capital singing and dancing in the piece, in which Miss Hebe Bliss, Miss Mabel Kerridge and Miss Eida Burman take good part respectively as Mrs Ralli Carr, the Hon. Mabel Cavanagh, and Miss Lalage Potts, all of whom are clever and receive much-deserved applause. Miss Maud Marriott is the Emma of the play, and by graceful dancing and good vocal contributions invests her work with a pleasing degree of interest to the large audience present. She has many fine opportunities with Mr Kennedy Allen, which neither artiste lets slip. The other parts are in good hands; the chorus is large, tuneful, and well dressed, the scenery and staging are attractive and appropriate, and in act two the Edingale Trio of dancers and the Margate Minstrels appear to great advantage, the former being warmly recalled.

METROPOLE, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr John Dunbar.—Mr Frank Bateman's company is here with At War with Women, in which Miss Lizzie Montague acts with artistic finish the part of the wicked Auriel Romanoff; against whom Baron Kirsch wages war, the Baron being represented by Mr Clinton Baddeley with declamatory emphasis. Auriel's companion in ill-doing is ably acted by Mr A. G. Polson-Turner as Ivan Clovitch; and Mr Edward Louis as a young Russian officer gives a fine impersonation of the lover, Alexis, besides doubling the part of a Russian refugee. Miss Marion Warren is attractive as Frida Malakoff, and Mr Fred Vaughan makes a soldierly General Malakoff. Mr Fred Wilson as Jerry Blake, Mr George Dent as Hans Phocas, with M. Leigh as Katinka, give a spice of grotesque comedy to the drama.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. H. Oakden. — Mr Chalmers Mackey is always a welcome visitor in Govan, and this week he is appearing with his clever company in The Wearin' o' the Green. Mr Mackey is well supported by Mr Reginald Gorland, Mr H. Sainsbury, Mr C. Hastings, Miss Lalla Stanhope, and Mrs Chalmers Mackey.

WHITEVALE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr George Green.—This week we have The New East Lynne, presented by W. W. Kelly's company. Miss Agnes Imlay, who takes the part of Lady Isabel, is realistic in her acting, and gains the sympathy of the audience. Mr William Heilbronn as Archibald Carlyle is very natural, and proves a popular favourite. Mr W. Faulkner Cox is really funny as Murty O'Flynn, and causes much laughter by his Irish bulls. Mr Walter T. Clifford as Francis Levison, the scheming villain, acts well. Miss B. French Stewart as Cornelia Carlyle acts the part of an old maid admirably. Mr James Willoughby takes the part of Richard Hare, which he plays very well; Mr T. W. Ford as Mr Dill, an old bachelor, creates much amusement; Miss Helen Stewart as Barbara Hare acts very well as Carlyle's second wife; Mr Albert Wilton (Justice Hare) is good as the forgiving father; Miss Lily Ellison as Willie Carlyle promises well; Miss Lizzie Maddock in the double part of Afy and Joyce Hallijohn is very funny; and Mr M. Talbot scores as Lord Mountsevern.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss's Limited.—The principal turn here this week is given by Mr Fred Maxwell and company in a sensational little romance entitled The Corsican Brothers. Mr Fred Maxwell takes the dual-rôle of the brothers, and, assisted by a very able company, gives a remarkably strong piece of acting. Another little sketch of a most amusing nature, Rejected Remounts, is produced by Mr Fred Ginnett. The De Koch Bros., acrobats and hand-balancers; M'Phee and Hill, in their horizontal bar act; and the Max Welson Troupe, with their strong act on the hanging ropes, are all very successful. The Schutzmeisterl'n Quartet contribute a pleasing musical entertainment; and the Wedburns, as comedy artists, give an acceptable turn. Albert Le Fre, comedian and dancer, is well received; and Harry Dent and Ted Cowan both make creditable appearances as comedians.

TIVOLI AND QUEEN'S.—Proprietors, Messrs Colquhoun and Armstrong, Limited; Managing-Director, Barney Armstrong; Acting-Managers, Messrs T. J. Colquhoun and Fred C. Ewing.—The one house a-night performance at each of these theatres has distinctly caught on, crowded houses being the order of each evening. Mr Will H. Fox, "Paddy-whiski," has been a pronounced success in his humorous musical satire. Miss Rose Elliott again charms by her characteristic singing, her "Bluebell" being in great favour. The Four Jumels repeat their unique musical performance, their banjo playing being worthy of mention. The Sisters Charnley and the Sisters Neilson vie with each other as capable exponents of the dancing art. Variety is given to the programme by the whistling solos of Arthur Slater and the clever acrobatic display of Cinizelli. Forrest and King are well received, as are also Tate and Tate, who deservedly head the bill. Other attractions include Bendon's Bioscope, the Three Woodbee Wonders, Gilbert's cats and dogs, and Miss Flo Schuberth.

BRITANNIA. — Lessee, Mr James Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr George Saphrini.—Another good company here includes Zarma, in his unique mystical performance; Fred Pollard, the lively comedian; Zooroff, mimic of animals, &c.; Charlie Cowper, an eccentric comedian of much ability; the Valadons, Harry Glynn's comedy turn, Fred Golden and Kitty Grey, and other smart turns.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical Secretary, Mr William Biggam.—Harrigan and Holt, pantomime favourites, are responsible for much merriment; Jim Harte and party, in a sketch, The Mummy, are a pronounced success; Elvo and Evelyn give a diverting little sketch; J. K. M'Farlane, a clever Scotch comedian; Carne Curre, in his comedy act, displays much humour; J. W. Cralgie, soprano, has a pleasing voice; and J. W. Bowie, tenor; the Victoria Troupe of all-round dancers; Alf Walker, Negro comedian; and Andrew Brown, tenor, complete the bill.

GRANTHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Edward Marris.—Musical plays are always popular at Grantham, and one with the reputation of Three Little Maids, which visited here last week-end, was certain to receive a cordial welcome. A daintier trio of damsels could not be imagined than Miss Vera Vallis, Miss Nellie Groves, and Miss Dora Trevor. Mr Frank Henderson as Lord Cheyne was irresistibly funny, and Mr R. Barrie, in the congenial part of the Caddie, and Miss May Wright as Gretchen provided a great deal of amusing business. Mr H. A. Welchman as Bryan was distinctly good, and M. Jules Charmettes was a most vivacious M. De L'Orme. The latter gentleman played a delightful 'cello solo in the third act.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. W. Nightingale.—The two shows a night are now being given at the cosier and more centrally situated theatre instead of at the Aquarium. In a capital programme Mr J. W. Rowley soon wins favour by his effective singing and acting; Mahatma continues to please with his mystic performance; the Walonells contribute a clever comedy triple bar act; the Rushforths gain favour in their illustrated songs act. Miss Ella Dean, burlesque actress; Frank Hope, trick cyclist; Maud Dewey, lady whistler; Musical Stidder, and King Leo, ventriloquist, help greatly towards the success of the entertainment.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr Geo. Gilbert.—Tremendous applause greets the clever turn of the Klein Troupe of cyclists; Aniam and Ostra contribute a smart aerial show; Eugene and Willie give an enjoyable eccentric musical performance; the Mozondos excite laughter and wonder with their wonderful barrel-jumping; Miss Alicia Mayne sings well, her songs being illustrated; Mr Tudor's performing ponies evidence careful training; Little Bishop and Doodles amuse with their funnlosities; and other items in a long and varied programme are well received.

GRIMSBY.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. — A new melodrama by John Denton, presented by the author's own company, has appeared here this week. The play, which is entitled A Modern Judas, contains several scenes of a sensational character. Mr Frank Beresford satisfactorily undertakes the part of the wrongly accused man, Jack Vavasour; whilst the character of Claire Rivers, his betrothed, is well portrayed by Miss Violet King. Mr Percy Rhodes is sufficiently vindictive and desperate to make a success of the part of the disreputable Captain Melbourne, and he finds an able seconder in Mr Trueman Towers as Bennett. Miss Kate Walbran does good work as Elise. An abundance of comedy is provided by Mr Willie Scott as Tom Hopkins, Miss Dolly Harcourt as Polly, and Mr John Denton and Miss Ada Palmer as the eccentric brother and sister Elkanah and Agatha.

HIPPODROME.—The "Gentle" Mackweys, artists who somewhat belie their adopted name by doing a good deal of knockabout business, have greatly amused the audiences here this week with their speciality, A Few Minutes' Fun on the Wire. Will Cornish has given a capital musical turn. He is particularly clever in the art of handbell ringing. The Three Victorias, although unable to appear on Monday, owing to their luggage having gone astray, have during the remainder of the week contributed some pleasing dancing and singing. Comedy has been supplied by Walter Blake, and by Reilly and Taylor, American-Dutch comedians. Other good turns have been given by Vernando, ventriloquist; Houpla and Heels, equilibrists and acrobats; and Mabel May, singer and dancer.

HOYLAND.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Owner, Arthur Carlton; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Geo. S. King.—Miss Olga Audré and company in The Mockery of Marriage were received with enthusiasm on Monday. In the leading rôle Mrs George S. King plays the part with much sensibility; Mr Arthur Wimpenny as Dick Kenyon is very successful; Mr Frank Dalton as Seth Pearce is most acceptable; and Miss Florence Zillwood as Alva Kenyon is very good, and meets with applause. The Four Aces are responsible for good acrobatic performances.

HALIFAX.

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Messrs Polini and Melford have a very capable company here in The Silver King. Mr Lauderdale Maitland gives a fine performance as Wilfred Denver; Mr E. J. George still plays old Jaikes with deep feeling and sympathy; Mr W. V. Garrod is effective as Captain Skinner, playing with a quiet determination that is very effective; the rôle of Corkett is cleverly handled by Mr Philip Renouf; and as Nellie Denver Miss Lilian Bethell is seen to great advantage.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Steuart Cecil.—An interesting bill this week is headed by Sam Mayo, a comedian whose quiet style is evidently to the taste of Halifax audiences, for he is in great demand. W. J. Churchill, a comedian of much popularity here, also goes well; Downes and Langford, duettists and dancers, keep the audience entertained; the Bros. Durant, grotesque acrobats, are both clever and amusing; the Sisters Casselli are capable dancers; and Professor Dunning gives a ventriloquial show which is well done.

HANLEY.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone.—Miss Ellen Terry and company are appearing this week in a round of standard works. On Monday The Merchant of Venice was presented with the greatest possible success. Miss Terry as Portia contributed her usual brilliant performance, which was greatly appreciated. Mr Alfred Bucklaw as Shylock was natural and effective; Mr Charles Thursby as Antonio proved himself to be a master of his art; Bassanio in the hands of Mr Matheson Lang was admirably acted; Mr E. Harcourt Williams as Gratiano was a decided success; Mr F. S. Hamilton and Mr George Fitzgerald in the respective parts of the Duke of Venice and the Prince of Morocco were well placed; Mr John Willes and Mr L. Craske were seen to much advantage as Launcelot and Old Gobbo; Miss Hutin Britton as Jessica portrayed the part with much skill; and the Nerissa of Miss A. Campbell was a performance worthy of the highest commendation. Much Ado About Nothing, The Good Hope, and Nance Oldfield are in the week's programme.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr James Wynes.—The premier position is held this week by Yukio Tani, the Japanese wrestler, who displays much ability, his performance also being most interesting. Griffin and Marks are a pair of funny knockabout sketch artistes; the Brothers Lloyd contribute a marvellous performance on the tight rope; Miss Whitaker is a singer of much ability, her harp playing being also applauded; Arthur Pearl sings a capital song, the audience taking up the chorus heartily; Harry Leybourne is a comedian of merit, his quick changes being excellent; the Two Comos are musical eccentrics who meet with appreciation; Valoni presents his exhibition of trained pigeons, which is applauded; and Victoria Lytton sings her songs well.

HASTINGS.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Geo. H. Gaze.—On Monday Mr Lawrence Irving, supported by an excellent all-round company, presented his play Richard Lovelace to a well-filled house. Mr Irving appeared as Richard Lovelace, whose high-souled honour and chivalry he most successfully portrayed. The Lucy Sacheverell of Miss Mabel Hackey was a delightful performance. Mr William E. Ashcroft as Colonel Martin Hawley played forcefully. The minor characters had excellent impersonators in Mr Henry Crocker as the Alderman, Mr Michael Sherbrooke as Mr Porter, Mr Chris Walker as the Adjutant, and Mrs Campbell Bradley as Mistress Porter. The serious play was preceded by Daisy's Escape, in which Miss E. Halford-Thompson amusingly portrayed the wayward heroine.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION. — Entertainment-Manager, Mr J. D. Hunter. — Messrs M. B. Buckstone and J. K. Cox's company opened here on Monday in the sensational drama The Seal of Silence, which was staged with close attention to detail, and afforded lovers of realism full enjoyment and excitement in the fight for life of the second act and the explosion tableaux of the third act. Mr Albert Sefton makes a benevolent Kenneth Morrison; Mr George Langdon is thoroughly the villain as Captain Norman; Mr C. Arrol Alderoyde is realistic as the scientist, Dr. Renwood; Mr Magill Martyn plays vigorously as Juggler Jack. A clever child is little Daisy Cook, who is much in evidence as the boy Victor; Miss Gertrude Hunt gains sympathy as Lillian Desbrooke. Some welcome comedy is supplied by Mr Chas. W. Coleman as Bimbo, a clown; and Miss Cissy Cleveland as his sweetheart Dora.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny.—An attractive bill is contributed to among others by Newhouse and Ward, skilled bicyclists in humorous business; and the Five Whiteleys, who are clever equilibrists, acrobats, and xylophone players and excel as wire walkers. M. Gintaro executes remarkable juggling and top-spinning feats, and secures a fine reception; Lily Lena proves a dainty comedienne and is well received; Mystery Gauze shows great talent as a female impersonator; Mary Thorne, comedienne, charms her large audience by her grace and style; Ena Beryl pleases as a vocalist and plays the mandoline cleverly; songs are well rendered by Alec Kennedy, and Mr Dalmayne deserves a word of praise for his new Bioscope pictures. A special matinée on Wednesday was attended by over a hundred of the aged and young inmates of the Hastings workhouse by special invitation of the popular manager, Mr Harold Penny.

ROYAL CONCERT HALL.—Kubelik and party, under the auspices of Dr. Abram, gave a concert matinée here on Wednesday, which attracted a crowded house.

PUBLIC HALL.—On Saturday night Herr Simon Wurm brought his series of proposed winter concerts to a premature conclusion. The orchestra played a popular programme well, and Miss Effie Ingram proved a vocalist of pleasing voice and ability.

HORWICH.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Arthur Sandiford.—Mr Sandiford has provided his patrons with a strong dose of melodrama this week by engaging Mr Stanley Hope's company, in The Master Criminal. Miss Nellie Thearle plays Cecile in most artistic style; Telford Lestrage, in the hands of Mr Alfred Guyon, is well played; Mr John Power plays Philip Manners with great feeling; Mr Julius Wright presents Ben Beaudav, detective, very effectively; and Mr Wilton Marsh as Gentleman Jim and Mr Roy Gordon as Dawney the Traitor show to advantage. Miss Enid Edoni's rendering of the part of Mabel is extremely pleasing and sympathetic; Little Gladys Marshall plays Winifred prettily; Miss Bessie Armitage makes Mary Murphy a fine robust character; and Tod Squires as Tommy Dull keeps the house convulsed with his songs, dancing, and eccentricities, being ably assisted by Miss Kitty Terris as Peggy Perks.

HUDDERSFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy G. Arthur. — Mr Frank Fenton's company is here for the week with the romantic play If I Were King. Mr Frank Fenton ruffled it gaily as the poet, François Villon; Mr Clive Currie was curtly sinister as his Majesty Louis XI. of France; Mr Fred Garrett as Tristram displayed appropriate surliness; Miss Louise Vansittart was gay as Huguette Du Hamel; Miss Marion Grey played with fine judgment as the aristocratic Katherine De Vaucelles; Mr Leonard Maxwell put in good work as D'Aussigny; and Miss Violet Monkton made a dignified Queen of France. The play was carefully mounted and dressed.

HARTLEPOOL.

EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; General Manager, Mr Harry Burns.—The list this week includes the Achmed-Ibrahim Troupe of Bedouin Arabs, in their tumbling and gun-spinning exhibition; Florrie Bray, in some well-rendered songs; Will Ellerslie, in his amusing mimicry; and the Sisters Lee, in one of the smartest acrobatic turns seen here for some time. Carl Mysto heads the bill, and creates wonderment by the way he releases himself from numerous handcuffs, chains, &c. The Countess evoke considerable applause in their harmoniously rendered duets, and Oliver Conroy, comedian; Percy Curry, the Tyneside vocalist; and the Burns' Bioscope are also among the attractions.

HEBBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. A. Jackson; Acting-Manager, Mr Thos. Robson.—Another first-class variety company is presented here this week. Stylo, the hoop king, gives an excellent and well appreciated performance; the Grosvenor Sisters met with a most enthusiastic reception as operatic vocalists; Kloof and Ramsey are amusing as well as clever instrumentalists; George Bernard is an actor-vocalist of considerable ability; Beatrice Bonnie is an admirable serio-comedienne; Capita, the living marionette, gives a novel performance; and Katie Moore, comedienne and bâton manipulator, is also very good.

HULL.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr W. Morton; Resident Director, Mr W. F. Morton.—There are few companies, if any, more popular than the Karnos, who are once again in our midst, giving their very acceptable entertainment, His Majesty's Guests. It is round Mr Fred Kitchen, the Sergeant Lightning, that most of the fun rotates, for he is the very heart and being of the play. Adequate and efficient support is given by the other members of the company.

GRAND THEATRE, OPERA HOUSE. — Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; Local Manager, Mr Wynn Miller.—Mr George Dance's Country Girl company is here playing to good houses. Under the very efficient stage-management of Mr J. J. Daly A Country Girl makes a very brave show. Mr Joe Nightingale was a capital Sir Joseph Verity. Miss Daisy Le Hay was a capital Nan; she was intensely natural, and soon won for herself a place in the audience's heart. The Marjory of Miss Maud Boyd was such as one expects from an artist so talented. In the vocal numbers she gave fitting expression, whilst her acting was in excellent taste. Miss Ethel Negretti was a pleasing Princess. The hit of the evening was made by Mr Charles R. Waleron in the part of Barry; the humour was fresh and spontaneous, and in female garb he secured a laugh without recourse to any vulgarity. Mr Waleron has won for himself a high place in the audience's appreciation, and is assured of a warm welcome the next time he visits the city. The rest of the cast worked hard.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Sole Owner, Mr W. Morton; Manager, Mr Geo. Morton.—The Worst Woman in London is a play not by any means new to Hull. The Frances Vere of Miss Constance Medwyn is a creditable piece of histrionic art. The fight is as effective as usual, and brings down the house.

PALACE THEATRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Manager, Mr A. Graham.—The Tschernoffs are at the top of the bill this week, and deservedly so, for the cleverness of ponies, dogs, cats, and pigeons is marvellous. Vasco, the mad musician, is always popular here, and finds favour with the audience. The Sisters Sprightly are comediennes of the first order.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr John Sylvester Sage.—The Sisters Phillips and Brothers Lorenzi are the principal turn here. Cattle, on a ladder, performs some very smart tricks. Les Prinellas present a sketch entitled A Country Flirtation. Ada B. Kingsley proves herself a capable burlesque artist. Joe Gill meets with much favour. Sunshine and Shadow and living pictures are also in the bill.

CIRCUS.—Resident Manager, Mr F. Emerson.—Harry H. Hamilton's Excursions are drawing big houses. A good variety company is also engaged.

HYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Joseph W. Maloney.—Mr J. Rice Cassidy's company is appearing here this week in Dan the Rake. Mr Frank Copeland acts with earnestness and conviction the rôle of Lieutenant Charles Kavanagh; the villainous side of human nature is graphically depicted by Mr Fredk. Biron as Captain Tom Cooper; Mr F. Orchard makes an admirable Colonel Flamer; and Messrs Stephen Crossley and Chas. Crosby as General Lake and Trooper Jackson render good service. Abundance of comic relief is furnished by Mr J. Rice Cassidy in the title-rôle and Miss Lilian Clare as Madge, and they are ably assisted by Mr Norman Hall as Archille. Miss Florence Halton is a charming Helen, and Miss Ada Rosco a highly successful Mrs Donelly.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. G. Fisk.—Tommy Atkins was played here on Monday by Mr Milton Bode's company. Mr Frederic Ross was an earnest and manly representative of Harold Wilson; Mr George C. Doughty was a villain of a "mildly mannered" type; and Mr Maurice Drew as the stern parent and Mr C. A. Wenman as the unwilling host of his superior officer were each of able assistance to the cast. The female parts were also strongly represented by Miss Ethel Tinsley as Kate Perkins, Miss Lola Patey, and Miss Marie Fontaine.

HIPPODROME. — Another change of programme was submitted on Monday, among the newcomers being Rappo and Ella, equilibrists; Warde and Wylie, comedians; Alec Thomas and Andy Fagan, vocalists; and Grand and Allen, variety artists.

KIDDERMINSTER.

NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr R. C. Gudgeon, jun.—The Grip of Iron, played by Messrs E. H. Knight and George Denham's company, is the attraction here this week. It includes Mr Fred Powell, who has played Simmonet, the Strangler, over 5,000 times. The company is strong all round, and the drama is effectively mounted.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Messrs Lester Reekie and Howard Stephens.—"Is It You?"—snapshots of local people thrown on the screen—is a novel item that is packing the house this week. Joe Hastings, jumper, leaps lightly over a six-barred gate, &c.; Carl Howard, the crazy conjuror, evokes hearty laughter; Charles Bradford, Clara Hastings, Brenda Leslie, Lister Reekie, and Gibbon's Bio-Tableaux complete the bill.

KING'S LYNN.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Bannister Howard; Business Manager, Mr Hubert Leonard.—The attraction here this week is the ever-popular comic opera Les Cloches de Corneville, performed by Mr St. Alban and company. Mr St. Alban plays with much power the part of the miser, Gaspard; Mr Geo. A. Fox as Henri, Marquis de Corneville, sings well; Grenicheaux is capably played by Mr Walter Cranbourne; Mr George Delaforce as the Bailie is amusing; and Mr Fowler Thatcher as Gobo keeps the house in roars of laughter. Miss Dolly Royce is a charming Germaine, and Miss Lucie Fitzroy an amusing and vivacious Serpolette. Great praise is due to the work done by the chorus and augmented orchestra, under the directorship of Mr F. T. De Banzie.

LANCASTER

ATHENÆUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Hy. Wilkinson.—A Country Girl, as given by Mr Chas. Macdona's company, is the attraction this week. Miss Lilly Shaw sings with taste and expression as Nan; Miss Clara Judge looks pretty and acts in a piquant manner as Marjory, and as Sophie Miss Marjory Moore has a true grasp of the rôle and makes it very charming. Mr Chas. Marston in the rôle of Geoffrey Chaloner is really admirable in both action and song, Mr Frank Hill's Sir Joseph Verity is full of humour, and as Barry Mr Harry Emerie keeps the house in roars of laughter.

LEEDS

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr Fredk. Vincent.—Mr John Hare and company are here with J. M. Barrie's comedy Little Mary. The leading lady is Miss Hilda Trevelyan, and her conception of Moira Loney is highly artistic and thoroughly convincing. Mr Hare wins the appreciation of the audience by his admirable personation of the Earl of Carlton; and Miss Helen Rous plays the Countess with distinction. A capital delineation of the pompous physician, Sir Jennings Pike, goes to the credit of Mr Rudge Harding; and Lord Rolfe is ably presented by Mr Carter Pickford. Mr Fred Grove is responsible for a capital study of Terence Reilly, the principal character in the prologue. The curtain-raiser is 'Op o' Me Thumb, for a pleasing presentation of which we are indebted to Miss Hilda Trevelyan and Mr Rudge Harding.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Bush.—The musical comedy Kitty Grey continues to be a big attraction, well presented by Mr St. John Denton's company. Miss Hilda Guiver acts the name-part with distinction, always winning the demonstrative approval of her audience. Lady Binfield is pleasingly portrayed by Miss Edy Helene. Miss Constance Hamilton makes a charming Sadie Poulson, and Mrs Bright is a no less successful effort by Miss Emily Stevens. The important rôle of Lord Plantagenet is in the hands of Mr Leslie Harris, whose clever and amusing work is exceedingly popular. Mr Robert Whyte, jun., and Mr Innes Smith, are also effective in leading parts.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston.—The popularity of C. and F. Renad's famous farce The Swiss Express is again evidenced by the good business done here this week. Messrs Chas and Fred Renad again provide a strong lead, their untiring efforts having a good deal to do with the success this piece has achieved. Mr Harwood Cooper gives powerful assistance in his heavy dual-rôle, and Mr George Martin, Mr Alex Wylie, and Miss Marie Millward handle big parts in effective style.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr T. Gerald Morton.—The Lukushima Troupe of Japanese acrobats and equilibrists are prominent here with a remarkably fine show. The company also includes Pia Carozzi, an accomplished harp soloist. The Coloured Meisters remain a second week, and are big favourites; Frank Hilbert, handcuff expert, claims to expose the methods of handcuff manipulators; Mabel Hind does a pleasing song and dance; Helen Martin, vocalist, finds favour; two clever comedians are appearing, namely, Phil Herman and Charles Cardon; and vocal selections by Stewart and Morgan fully merit the unstinted applause which they receive. The Anartos are giving a clever musical sketch with success; and Callie and Walker score with a smart comedy act.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr Thos. Barrasford; General Managers, Messrs Chas. Weldon and Edgar O. Waller.—Houdini, the handcuff king and prison-breaker, is a huge attraction here. An excellent company supports the Phillipi Bros. being prominent with a speciality turn, Shunting. Of acrobatics there are clever exhibitions by Sibb and Sibb and the Picquays. George Penn is entertaining and amusing in an original musical act. The De Breans once more submit their Japanese speciality in good style. Ethel Yorke is a successful comedienne. John Lloyd, vocalist, describes himself as the singing collier, and Algie and Reggie, comedians and eccentrics, submit further acceptable entertainment.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. W. Wood; General Manager, Mr J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Jones.—The outstanding feature of the week's entertainment is a smart comedy and juggling turn by Alber and Amber, a clever pair in the guise of tramp and waiter. Joe Peterman presents his excellent musical comedy sketch, The Belle of the Orient, with great success; Sinclair and Whiteford are an entertaining comedy duo; Hicks' Clerks again appear in a fine vocal act; George Gilbey, the popular comedian, is one of the strongest turns on the bill; and Famous Henderson, a blind but accomplished musician, pleases by his expert concertina solos. George Foyle, character vocalist, and Marie Weston also contribute to a most attractive programme.

LEAMINGTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr Harry Esden. —This week Uncle Tom's Cabin is being presented here by a capable company, in which Mr Kara Deanrajah as Uncle Tom and Miss Florence Venimar as Eliza are the outstanding characters. The play is realistically staged, and an excellent variety company appears in the fourth act.

LEICESTER.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr C. D. Leigh.—We are this week having a personal visit of Mr F. R. Benson and company, who are presenting a most enjoyable répertoire. The engagement opened with Hamlet, in which, of course, Mr F. R. Benson essayed the title-rôle, and the extremely satisfactory manner in which this gifted artist played this difficult part evoked the plaudits and admiration of a delighted audience. The Ophelia of Mrs F. R. Benson was another very successful portrayal, worthy of all praise. Mr A. B. Pittar as Claudius rendered an excellent account of himself, and Mr H. O. Nicholson as Polonius, Mr Cyril Keighley as Laertes, and Mr Clarence Derwent as Horatio were admirably placed. Mr Percy D. Owen and Mr George Buchanan as the courtiers, Rosencrantz and Guildenstein, were very good. Mr George R. Weir, who is a favourite here, made a conspicuous success as the First Grave Digger. Miss Gertrude Scott was capital as the Queen of Denmark, and others who rendered good service were Mr Philip Sanders (a son of Canon Sanders, of St. Martin's Church, of this town), Miss Steddall, Miss Violet Vorley, Mr G. F. Hannam-Clark, Mr Savile Percy, Mr Hugh S. Hay, Mr J. P. Wilson, Mr Clark, Mr Lewis, Mr Reginald G. Davis, and Mr Arthur Whitby. The programme of music included a minuet, "Old England," by Herr Theo. Klee, the musical director, which was admirably played by the orchestra.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—A welcome return visit is being paid here this week by Mr William Bourne's company in Voices of London. The drama is a powerful one, and Mr Charles Boult as Arthur Leyland, Mr Ellis J. Preston as Eustace Courtney, Mr Frank Liston as Stephan Woodleigh, and Miss Maud Buchanan as Eleanor Lisle are to be singled out for embodiments of great merit.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED. — Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal.—The attractive programme here this week is topped by Eugene Stratton, who is scoring a success in his songs of coon life. At the other end is Tina Clementa, who submits a very pleasing show with her remarkably trained horse and dogs. Binns and Binns return and arouse hearty laughter and admiration in their musical burlesque speciality, The Vagabonds. As performing cyclists the Noiset Troupe stand out as amongst the most daring and clever. Alcide Capitaine is seen to considerable advantage in a smart and graceful gymnastic display. The Scottish Meisters, the Highland comedy quartette, give a popular and enjoyable turn. Lizzie Valrose, a lady well-known to Leicester people, gets a cordial reception for her song, "Bluebell." Walter Stanley, who makes a first and successful appearance at this hall, is a funny and versatile comedian. Arthur Melrose, whistling comedian, goes well, and Bert Byrne, a capital comique, also entertains.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—The sensational sketch Humanity, presented by Edward Renier and company, by arrangement with Miss Cissie Lawson, is the big attraction here this week, and holds the audience spellbound. The other artists appearing with success are Will Johnson eccentric comedian; Little Dando, the diminutive eccentric comedian; Charles Johnson, comedian and cake-walker; the Wiltons, in their comedy bar act; Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer; and Jimmy Shields, one-legged dancer.

LEIGH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Dewhurst.—Messrs Garside, Knowles, and Lullow's company is appearing here this week in a drama entitled The London Fireman. Mr J. Forbes Knowles gives a manly interpretation of Hal Curtis, a young fireman; Mr Arthur Pringle is capital as Viscount Fleming; Mr Edward L. Garside is excellent as Henry Curtis; and Mr Charles Preece is amusing as Nixey Stringer, receiving able assistance from Miss Nellie Garside as Polly Bramble. Miss Violet Temple looks charming as the Countess Fleming, and as Ida Curtis Miss Mona Gray is very pleasing.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. H. Dunlop.—The Four Rosaires, gentlemen acrobats, who top the bill here this week, are exceedingly clever; Miss Olive Vane, male impersonator, is good; Mr Tom Williams, tenor vocalist, sings in capital style; Galino contributes an interesting musical turn; the Brothers Ashton, patter comedians, score; the Three Boleros, in a comedy bar act entitled "The Tramp and the Dude," are loudly encored; Mr Frank Mulvan, swell comique, is also well received; and the Hippodrome pictures are all that can be desired.

LINCOLN.

ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr Frank King.—Mr Charles Macdona's company in The Little Maids supplies the attraction here this week. Miss Vera Vallis as Ada is delightful both in song and dance, and Miss Nellie Groves as Hilda and Miss Doris Trevor as Edna also win the highest favour. Miss Iris Coley, Miss Margaret Douglas, and Miss Eva Swinborne are excellent as Lady St. Mallory's protegées, and that lady herself is happily placed with Madame Ilme Norins. Miss May Wright is a capital Dutch girl; Mr Frank Henderson scores all along the line as Lord Cheyne, and his "Algie" song evokes continuous mirth; Mr H. A. Welchman as Brian and M. Jules Chumettes as De L'Orme are also well suited, and the latter proves himself a clever 'cellist. Mr R. Barrie is a laughter-maker as the caddie, Cupid; while Mr W. P. Morgan is very good as the Vicar, and Mr Louis Lavel conducts a very effective chorus and band. The staging is a feature of merit.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr Sydney Arthur.—Here is a big programme in which song and dance are the chief features, and every item of which manages to hit the popular taste. Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes; Lady Mansell and her clever juveniles; and the Charkassian troupe of whirlwind dancers are the pick of the programme; T. W. Johnson, Stevens and Stevens, Hart and Rudd, Sisters Chester, Wilfred and Walter Clyde also appearing with complete success.

LLANELLY.

ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr John Tully.—This week we have A Woman's Revenge, played by Miss Winifred Chalmers' company, including the well-known actor, Mr Henry L. Osmond, who appears with much success as Frank Drummond. Miss Chalmers takes the part of Mary Lonsdale in a clever manner. Miss Elmore Frith as Jephtha Grimwade and Miss Maude York as Mabel Wentworth are both very good. Mr Herbert Woodin makes a capital Chilton, and Miss Madge Palmer as Lottie Bromley is most capable.

LONDONDERRY.

OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr W. Payne Seddon.—Mr Harold V. Neilson is playing here this week staging The Tyranny of Tears, and A Fool's Paradise. As Clement Parbury in the former, Mr Neilson is very good, and Mr W. Lemmon Warde sets George Gunning excellently; Miss Amy Sangster as Miss Parbury is very effective, and Miss Yvonne Orchardson plays Hyacinth Woodward in admirable style

LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.—The Duchess of Dantzic, played by Mr George Edwardes's original London company, occupies the boards here. Miss Evie Greene is the Duchess, and the cordiality with which her delightful performance was greeted on Monday must have afforded that lady every satisfaction. The Napoleon of Mr Holbrook Blinn was a carefully though-out study, and Mr Courtice Pounds was responsible for much of the laughter that prevailed, his Papillon proving very diverting.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. M. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Gaffney.—The Geisha has been the attraction here during the week. Miss Aimée De Leska was a charming O Mimosa San; Miss Florrie Saunders danced and sang most engagingly as Molly Seymour; a quaintly amusing Wun Hi was Mr Edward Carlton; Marquis Imari was ably sustained by Mr Lionel Braham; and praise is due to Mr Arthur Cartwright for his manly Reginald Fairfax.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. French; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Beltram.—The ever-popular The Private Secretary has attracted considerable attention here this week, the company responsible for the production being that of Mr Eugene C. Stafford. All the eccentricities of the bewildered Rev. Robert Spalding were duly presented with effect by Mr Geoffrey Guise; a capital Mr Cattermole was portrayed by Mr W. Hargreaves; Miss Dora Grey was Edith; Miss Deverell the Eva Webster; Mrs Alfred Davis, Miss Ashford; Miss Cicely Wade, Mrs Stead; Mr Austen Leigh was consistently good as Douglas Cattermole; and others who afforded able assistance were Mr Vivian Gilbert, Mr Raymond Chester, and Mr Wilfrid Compton. Good for Nothing was the curtain-raiser.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Licensee, Mr J. G. Howard; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Montgomery, jun.—The popular comedy-drama In Old Kentucky has been given here this week by an excellent all-round combination. Included in Mr J. F. Elliston's company are Mr J. George Steel, who enacts the hero, Frank Harley, and Miss Amy F. Hermann, a charming Madge Brierley. Mr A. S. Bankes is a creditable Colonel Beauchamp, and Mr Eric Hudson acquits himself well as Jasper Grafton. Some capital turns are provided by Mr Jimmie James, banjo soloist and bone manipulator, and Miss Edith Harmer, vocalist.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—A good programme is headed by Mr and Mrs Lem Hughes, in their sketch A Matrimonial Substitute, which evokes roars of laughter. F. V. St. Clair is loudly applauded for his topical songs; Brothers Attilla are well received and greeted with loud applause for a fine exhibition of weight lifting; and Mdlle. Flora Lumiere's "Fairy Grotto" is greatly enjoyed, particularly the fire dances. Others who contribute to a most enjoyable evening include Josh Dixon, eccentric comedian; Burke and M'Coy, in a comedy act; Tatten Hall, comedian; Harris and Worth, patterists; and Major Sutherland, described as the spinning marvel.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—Packed houses have been the rule here this week, the attraction being The Fatal Wedding, played by Mr Bert Coote's company. Mr Wilfred Payne is good as Howard Wilson, and Miss Marie Houseley delightfully sympathetic as Mrs Wilson. The adventuress, Cora Williams, is presented effectively by Miss Gertrude Harrison; Mr W. Stranack is a typical man about town; and Miss Gladys Rose Jones is to be complimented on her "little mother." The cake walk, with songs and dances, performed by the children in the third act, is very pleasing.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr Fred Granville.—The Golden Ladder is in the hands of a capable company, under the direction of Miss Mary Austin and Mr Vivian Edmonds. The latter enacts the rôle of Michael Severn with dramatic power, and Miss Austin is graceful and effective as Lillian Grant. A capital Rev. Frank Thornhill is presented by Mr Harry Cullenford. The bioscope between the acts continues an attractive feature.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A. Cook.—Head of the bill here this week is the sketch company of Mr A. C. Lilly, who present Drummed Out, which, with its military aspect, is somewhat effective. The popular Alec Hurley and his company remain another week to create great laughter with The Piccaninnies and The Lambeth Walk. A remarkable series of equilibristic feats are performed by the Four Milons; the refined comedy act of the Alaskas is neat and amusing; and continuous laughter greets An Early Morning in the Kitchen by the Densmores. The beautiful grotto, with its fairy fountains and cascades, shown by Hagedorn, remains another week; an exhibition of really smart foot balancing is that of the Wartenberg Brothers; and others in the programme are the Great Alexander, trick cyclist; Brothers Obo, comedians; Will Musgrave, eccentric comedian; Sisters Iris, duettists and dancers; Harry Coates, the "singing navvy;" and Tenny-son and Wallis, comedians.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Included in a capital bill this week is Carl Reinsch, who provides an interesting turn with horses and dogs. For still another week we have the Magic Kettle and also Miss Minnie Letta and her sporting girls. These items have proved an immense draw. A pretty scena is that provided by Selkirk's juvenile spectacle Japan's Handy Men, performed by 100 Liverpool children; and good work is done by three able comedians, Alf Gibson, Austin Rudd, and Dion Wade, each of whom is well received. Mr and Mrs Paul Knox are a pair of accomplished society entertainers, and B. Troba is an expert juggler.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr F. O'Toole.—A principal engagement here this week is that of Curtis and Vanity, the well-known cake-walkers. Their work is loudly applauded. Mr T. W. Barrett, an old-time favourite, renders some of his best songs; Professor Bennett is a clever ventriloquist and humorist; Miss Millie Harris is a "singer of sensible songs"; and Mr Arthur Stratton gives a good turn as comedian and vocalist. Others in the programme are Kirby Stevens, eccentric comedian, and Harry Conder, quick change artiste. The cake-walk competitions and the electograph continue to interest.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Elwin W. Smith.—Dan Conroy heads the bill here this week. He is a comedian of ability and brings with him his best songs. Barrett and Knowles, a pair of smart comedians and patterers, make a first appearance, and are accorded hearty applause; a sweet singer is Miss Ailsa Douglas, the Lancashire soprano; Vardon, the golfing ventriloquist, provokes much merriment; Louis Murray gives a capital turn as a character vocalist; and Tom Neeldon is a smart comedian and dancer. The Bioscope proves a feature of the evening.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr J. Kiernan.—Good patronage continues to be bestowed upon the popular East-end house. This week the bill is headed by the Woellhats, whose diversified turn as pantomimists, dancers, and patterers gives great satisfaction. The Sisters Russell provide a refined show of burlesque and low comedy. Dardan and Iris in their speciality act as vocalists, dancers, &c., are good. Keith and Merson give an interesting acrobatic singing turn; and the remainder of the artistes who appear are May Fallowfield, coon singer; Solo and Mayo, duettists and dancers; and Blanche Gerard, comedienne.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery. Signor and Madame Borelli are at the head of the bill here this week with a very neat musical act, a feature of which is their cat duet; the Four American Belles provide a smart turn with their singing and dancing; Lanton and Lane, the popular comedians, create great laughter; Nellie Amphlett is a vivacious comedienne; Joe Huda, comedian and dancer, pays a welcome return visit; Fred Bronte has a voice of sweetness and power, his several songs being well received; and Lil Esplin is a charming comedienne.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—The programme here this week is full of good things. Top is Spangelettis' Circus, introduced into a comedy act, where Brown and Spinks, a pair of smart comedians, put ponies and dogs through clever manœuvres. Billy Ross and company, including Miss Hilda Brandon, provide a laughable act, The Hot Member; Syd Herman, with his "Hebrew Alien," is very diverting; Conan and Doyle are a couple of able comedians; and others on the bill are Amy Donna, comedienne; Violet Rivers, eccentric male impersonator; George Martinengo, character vocalist; Mona M'Donald, comedienne; and the Three Novells, who are clever acrobats and tumblers.

LONG EATON.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—This week there is good patronage for a capable company, including Miss Grace Lester, in the historic dramas of Lady Godiva, Nell Gwynn, and Jane Shore. Opening with Lady Godiva, Miss Lester was seen in one of her best parts, and she was ably assisted by Miss Jessie Leslie as Lady Aldyth, Miss Westerleigh as Elfrida, Mr James Duncan as Leofric, and Mr Lewis Leslie as Algar. Mr Edward Beecher was excellent as Tom. The pieces are admirably staged.

LONGTON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. Sherriff Howard.—Mr Douglas Bruce's well-balanced company is presenting A Girl's Cross Roads for the first time in the district this week. Mr W. E. Griffiths gives a masterly impersonation of an old farmer, and quickly enlists sympathy and interest; Mr George Galsford is well suited with the juvenile part; Mr Wm. Eraser Brunner gives a convincing performance as Cuthbert Lumley, and Mr Wm. Corrie keeps the house in roars of laughter as Toby Turner. Miss Lily Hammersley as Barbara Wade, the dipsomaniac, gives a most convincing reading of the character.

MACCLESFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr W. K. Gatley.—This week we have an able all-round company under the direction of Mr Hare, presenting The Golden Chance. Mr J. Hare gives a powerful portrayal of Stephen Clinton; Mr H. M. King as Arthur Hastings is realistic; Miss Agatha Halford presents a sympathetic Lydia Hastings; Mr J. A. Stimson as Sam Brown and Miss Jenny Hallworth as Susan keep the audience in a good humour; and Mr D. Arkinstall as Isaac Shelberg is very good.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Lessees, Messrs Bendon and Lardeu.—The big attraction here this week is a funny absurdity A Hot Reception, which is given by Messrs Hill, Barry, and Lang. Billy Richardson is a popular favourite; Sam Shipley, comic singer, has some good songs; Satsuma, the marvellous Japanese conjuror, astounds the audience with some remarkable tricks; Miss Violet Beatrice, ballad vocalist, is the possessor of a good voice; Little Lady Fauntleroy, ventriloquist, gets a good reception; and other good turns are Sam Weller, comedian and dancer; and Miss Beatie Worth, balladist.

MAIDENHEAD.

NEW PAVILION.—Sole Proprietor, Mr George Gude.—This week a farcical quick-change sketch, entitled The Crazed Curate, is presented by Mr Martin Byam and Miss Mildred Vaughan, the lady also contributing a pleasing turn as comedienne and dancer. Foto cleverly executes lightning cartoons of celebrities, George Romano neatly presents sleight-of-hand tricks, and Golding is an amusing ventriloquist. George Trusty is successful with patriotic songs, particularly with "The Colours of our Empire's Flag," the chorus of which is well taken up by "the boys"; Charles G. Thorn mimics popular artists, Tom E. Hall appears as an eccentric character comedian, and Warner and Wilson cause much amusement as "cross-talk" comedians.

MAIDSTONE.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Manager, Mr Beslee.—This week Mr Joshua Dyson's diorama and gipsy choir are fulfilling an engagement here, and although this is by no means their first visit they are drawing crowded houses nightly. Mr J. L. Hersee is responsible for the musical portion of the programme, which is of a varied character. Miss Flora Orchard is a clever elocutionist; and Miss Ethel Barson, sleigh bell soloist; Miss Gertrude Bland, with auto-harp selections; and the contralto solos of Miss G. T. Winterburn call for special mention. An interesting selection of animated photographs and a sketch make up a popular programme.

MANCHESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr Edmondstone Shirra.—Good business is ensured here this week by the presence of Mr and Mrs Kendal in a répertoire of well-known plays. A Scrap of Paper was given on Monday evening with great success, a large audience continually signifying its high appreciation of the excellent work of the two principal members of the company. Mrs Kendal's Susan Hartley and Mr Kendal's Colonel Blake, both portrayed in splendid style, were also supplemented by capital performances of several others of the cast, notably Mr Bassett Roe's Sir John Ingram, the amusing Dr. Penguin of Mr Ernest Hendrie, and the various interesting rôles of Mr R. Sheldrick, Miss Elise Clarens, Miss Mary Jerrold, and Mrs A. B. Tapping. Tuesday's performance of The Elder Miss Blossom was characterised also by acting of a very high quality, Miss Elise Clarens as Sophie Blossom being seen to great advantage in support of the premier couple. The remainder of the week's programme, Still Waters Run Deep and Dick Hope, could not be improved upon in point of attractiveness, the last-mentioned play being billed for two evenings and a matinée.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—Mr Tom B. Davis's company occupies the stage here in the always popular Florodora. The strong feature of the cast is the inclusion of Mr Edward Lewis as Tweedlepunch, a part which the popular comedian plays with exceeding gusto. It is much to the advantage of the piece also that Mr Leonard Russell still retains his part of Frank Abercoed, his singing of the song "The Shade of the Palm" being undoubtedly one of the successes of the evening. Miss Lena Maitland's Dolores is rendered nicely and in good voice, Miss Isabelle Dillon playing the prominent rôle of Lady Holyrood with capital effect. Mr Fred Winn as Cyrus Gilfain and Mr Frank Grans as Arthur Donegal contribute largely to the amusement. Miss Hilda Dugdale makes a pleasing Angela Gilfain. A capable chorus and an augmented orchestra are under the direction of Mr Ashley Richards.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Mr Edward Marris's company are here this week in As Midnight Chimes, after a successful week at the Grand Junction Theatre.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn.—A brilliant and pleasing performance of The Toreador was given here on Monday by Mr George Edwardes's company before a very large audience. Miss Dasie Wallace as Dora Selby and Miss Nancy Langtyre as Nancy Staunton are both charming as the centre of the love interest, which is heightened by the clever and amusing performances of Mr T. W. Volt as Sir Archibald Slackett and Mr Fred Allandale as Augustus Trail. Mr John Donald makes a fine Carajolo; Miss Alice Oppitz is very effective as Donna Teresa; and Miss Nellie Bouverie gives a good comedy sketch of Mrs Malton Hoppings. Mr W. H. Powell's clever dancing as Pettifer is worthy of special note, and Mr Lionel Victor does exceedingly well in the ample part of Sammy Gigg. Others who distinguish themselves in a long cast are Mr Fred Fowler, Mr E. Nainby, Miss Daisy Stratton, and Mr Harry Scott.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead. —A capital programme here this week is headed by Charles Chard, the successful eccentric comedian. Other prominent and excellent turns are David Poole, a very smart ventriloquist, and Shawlene, well described as the world's greatest and sweetest whistler. Capital business is contributed also by Calvo, the double-voiced mimic; Tom Bassett, Shakespearian comedian; Meler and Mora, speciality artistes; Haig and Novel, in a clever comedy act; the Brewster Troupe of speciality artistes and vocalists; Annie Casey, comedienne; and the Sisters Volbecque, comedy duettists.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A decided attraction is here this week in the shape of Messrs Preston and Doherty's company in The Rich and Poor of London. Max Goldberg's drama is full of interesting and sensational crises, and the performance gave pleasure to a large house on Monday evening. Mr Sidney C. Cranston as Gussey Lamb and Mr Sidney Danch as Spider Jack (who direct the company), contribute much toward the success. Miss Dora Danch and Master Bert Danch have also good parts, excellent performances being given by Miss Bella Tilbury, Mrs E. F. Brady, Little Arline T. George, Mr Andrew Money, and Mr Harry Tilbury. A number of minor rôles are quite satisfactorily rendered, and the staging and general effect leave nothing to be desired.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Berry.—Messrs Dan Avery and Charles Hart's company, in In Dahomey, has been delighting large audiences here. As Rareback Pinkerton and Shylock Homestead Messrs Dan Avery and Charles Hart are seen to great advantage, the audience being kept in continuous merriment. Excellent support is afforded by Messrs Pete Hampton, Fred Douglas, Walter Dixon, Leon Williams, Pete Washington, William Garland, and the Misses Laura Bowman, Stella Hart, Pauline Freeman, and Fanny Wise. Great praise is due to the artistes who take part in the spectacular cake-walk in the last act, the dancing being something exceptional.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—The top star attraction here this week is Boswell's Circus, introducing well-trained ponies, donkeys, and dogs in an interesting and humorous performance. Ada Fawn, comedienne, contributes a popular turn; Harry Weldon is a great favourite, his singing and patter, given in a quaint style, being much appreciated; Tom E. Hughes makes a hit with his song "I'm One of the Upper Ten;" Arthur Albert, actor-vocalist, has a finished and pleasing style; Gerald Mount entertains at the piano, and has some good songs; Terras Brothers are smart acrobats; and considerable amusement is caused by the ball-punching and burlesque boxing efforts of Clark's Nippers. Other pleasing items are Lydia Dudley, of the new female police force; the Dunvilles, in their musical speciality; Dingle Dale, comedian; and the Hippodrome pictures.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A farcical sketch, A Bit of Bacon, contributed by the Geoffreys with success, and the clever mechanical novelties and dancing of George Chanti, are the principal items in this week's programme Madame De Rose sings baritone songs to the satisfaction of the audience; Mdlle. Kleet poses in a number of beautiful, artistic pictures, with limelight effects; the Lavelles give an amusing acrobatic act; Emma Don and company are responsible for some enjoyable solo and quartet singing; and Zasma gives an acceptable gymnastic performance. Other satisfactory items are supplied by George Reeves, vocal comedian; J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist; and Smith and Johnson, the coloured couple. A series of animated pictures completes.

TIVOLI. — Managing Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—An all-round excellent programme here includes that famous character actor Bransby Williams, whose artistically rendered dramatic recitals and imitations are enthusiastically received. Florrie Robina, burlesque actress, has several good songs, and is also appreciated. Lillie Souter, characteristic comedienne, is highly amusing; and Charles Faning's humorous patter and songs cause much laughter. Albert Darnley is a first-rate character comedian; the Wilsons are decidedly entertaining in their speciality; Nellie Farrell sings in a pleasing manner; the Two Wills are clever and amusing herculean acrobats; and Ida Gladstone contributes an enjoyable song. A fantasia on "The Village Blacksmith," arranged by the musical director, Mr Frank J. Smith, is excellently rendered by the orchestra.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—Prominent and well-received turns here this week are George D'Albert, a versatile comedian, who is particularly successful with a descriptive song; Brown and Nivarro, American speciality artistes, who dance and sing well; and John Grun Marx, the modern Hercules, who lifts twenty-five persons at one time. Kitty Clover's comedy company are seen to great advantage in a capital sketch entitled Not a Word, and Lew Wills contributes a pleasing musical comedy act. Other good turns are Carr and Rose, vocal comedy couple; Merton and Rydor, vocal speciality artistes; Bert Leslie, comedian; and George Prince, "the crazy comic." Some interesting animated pictures are also shown.

PALACE. — Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—At the Wednesday matinée here a new sketch entitled The Lady Boxer was produced successfully by Messrs Dottridge and Longden. The scene is the lady boxer's apartment, which contains a ball-punching apparatus, and in which she is visited by a gentleman—one should rather say a villain—with whom she has lived. The villain's chief business in life seems to be the betraying of women, young and innocent ones by preference; and an acrimonious scene occurs in which the lady boxer accuses him of the death of one young girl, and vows to prevent his designs upon another, a flower girl, whom she has already befriended. When a little time after, in the same scene, the flower girl is at the mercy of the rascally fellow, she manages to open a door which lets loose a big dog; and the dog tumbles him about the stage in realistic style. In the midst of the fun the lady boxer returns; and then comes the great scene of all. Certainly the villain needs much persuasion to put his hands up to the indignant lady; but when he does so it is with the intention of settling her pretensions to the ability to give him what she emphatically calls "a damned good hiding." Needless to say, her use of the gloves is far too much for him, the alacrity with which she floors him time after time evoking much applause from the house, and, incidentally, considerable laughter from the lady's boy servant, whose delight it is to "bait" the villain from a safe distance. Finally, the man is allowed to make his escape with the big dog once more at his heels. The parts were well played by a cast whose names did not appear. The week's programme is an exceptionally strong one, the star turns being R. A. Roberts, the unrivalled Protean actor, in his celebrated sketch, Dick Turpin, and Chung Ling Soo, the Chinese conjuror, whose remarkable feats are exceedingly popular and gorgeously put on. A strong turn also remaining from last week is that of Clark and Hamilton, the American comedy artistes, while other excellent business is contributed by Hector and Paulus, comedy acrobats; the Lannons, duettists and dancers; Florence Esdaile, soprano vocalist; Tom Edwards, an exceptionally good ventriloquist; Little Zola, comedian; Tray and Rich, black and white faced artistes; Arthur Reece, vocal comedian; and Amy Sullivan, comedienne. The Palace pictures are also included in the programme.

ARDWICK EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Will Collins.—A big attraction here this week is Ethel Arden and George Abel, assisted by a capable company, in a laughable sketch, Three of a Kind, which keeps the audience in roars of laughter from start to finish. The great Caicedo performs some remarkable dancing on the wire; Slade Murray has some exceedingly smart patter; the American Comedy Four sing in a highly finished manner, and cause some amusement with their eccentric methods; Frank Maura goes through an astonishing performance in foot juggling, and earns substantial applause; and the clever juggling of Henry Kaiser, including his eight candle trick, is well received. Considerable merriment follows the efforts of the Baldwin Brothers in their clever acrobatic sketch, and of Grell and Grey, in their absurdity Bertie's First Lesson in Tennis. The Wheelers are quaint cyclists who do some smart tricks; Arthur Rigby scores with his song, "For he's a married man;" Flo D'Orville dances gracefully; and Jessie Albini appears in descriptive songs.

MARGATE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr F. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr C. F. Bawtree.—Mr Chas. A. Chandler's company is here with The Bells of Hastemere. Mr Leonard Yorke gives a stirring presentment of Frank Beresford, and Mr Montague Turner is capital as John Silkstone. Mr Charles A. Chandler plays Capt. Vere efficiently, and Mr Douglas Hamilton is seen to advantage as Matthew Brookfield. Mr Charles Cecil and Mr Fred F. Allen do well in their respective rôles of Reuben Armstrong and Joseph Thorndyke. Mr Charles Clarke as Patrick Desmond, Mr Powell James as Capt. Salem, Mr Ted Stone as Benjamin Tremble, and Mr Harry Montague as Toby each play capitally. Miss Harrietta Polini is successful as Evelyn Brookfield, and Miss Stafford Smith does well as Dorothy Tremble. Miss Mary Hardacre in the rôle of Mary Northcote makes a favourable impression, and Miss Florence Chandler is a pleasing Norah Desmond.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr E. Macknight; Business-Manager, Mr Charles E. Hardy.—Miss Marie Menzies' company is here with A Rogue's Daughter, in which Miss May Wynlard sustains the title-part charmingly. Mr Alexander Wills puts in useful work as Sir George Mynard, and Mr Wilfred Blair is in evidence as Frank Tyler. Colonel Foster is ably interpreted by Mr Richard Ferris, and Mr Charles Stimson is a good exponent of rascality as Isaac Isaacs, Mr Will Wilson as Ebenezer Dunnem, Mr A. Hall Menzies as John Gibbs, and Mr E. Palarlet as Christopher Crummle are capital. Mr George Shorrock as Inspector Bates and Mr T. Rowe as Inspector Morris are excellent. Miss Millie Doris is amusing as Priscilla Jenkins, Miss Mabel Hall plays with good effect as Dicky, Miss K. Raile excellently sustains the rôle of Mrs Jenkins, and Miss Marie Menzies is seen to advantage as Lotty Grey.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson.—The Indian Mutiny, presented by Mr Frank E. Burdette's company, opened to a full house on Monday. Miss Maud Digby displayed ability in the arduous rôle of Ghuz-nah. Mr Villiers Stanley as Nebu Singh, Mr Ernest Kean as Ra Goonga, and Mr J. S. Sheddon as Abul Khan were exceedingly good. Mr H. Ryeland-Leigh played well as Lieut. Stanley, Captain Stanley had a capable representative in Mr H. G. Brandon, Mr W. S. Tindall was good as Major Ingleby, and Mr George Scully scored as the humorous Teddy O'Brien. Miss Kate Bruce as Mrs Ingleby and Miss Agnes Kingston as Kate Ingleby both did well.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Messrs George and Charles Imeson.—Messrs Charles Frohman and Arthur Chudleigh's company is here in The Duke of Killicrankie. Mr Langhorne Burton appears in the title-rôle with much success, and Mr Arthur Grenville in the amusing part of Mr Pitt-Welby, M.P., is capital. Mr Guy Newall gives a neat study of Mr Hicks; Miss Doris Templeton submits a charming rendering of Lady Henrietta; and Miss Aida Jenoure is a capable Mrs Mulholland. Miss Clarke, Miss Irene Hamilton and Miss Helen Roberts act well in their respective rôles. Barbara is an excellent curtain-raiser.

OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Licensee and Manager, Mr T. Hopcutt.—In the Ranks is here this week, and an admirable performance is given by Messrs Arthur Carlton and H. Armitage's company. Mr Edward Lloyd and Miss Edith Blair-Staples appear in the title-rôles. They give a powerful study of their parts, and meet with great success. Miss Ella Wilmer is an excellent Barbara Herrick, and Miss Barley-Clarke is good as Mrs Timms. Mr Arthur Palling and Mr Archie Chappell appear as the Grenadier Guards, and Mr Herbert Cecil makes a good impression as Gideon Blake. Mr Leon Ainscliffe plays with distinction as Sergeant Searle.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—Leonard Barry and his company in The Soldier's Promenade head the bill. The sketch is well played, and creates much amusement. Raffayette's dogs give an astounding performance, and Florence and Lillian in their adept drawing-room scene are great favourites. Lee and Bentley in the sketch Castles in the Air prove a capital turn, and Laurie Wylie's patter is good. The Maningoes give a clever acrobatic show; Joe Mac, comedian, creates a good impression; and Millie Denham sings pleasing songs. Some interesting films are shown on the "Bio."

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr Wm. Peacock; Manager Mr Wm. Ainsworth.—The Teesside favourites, Bella and Bijou, head the bill here. They meet with a hearty reception. The Revell Troupe, in pantomimic act Mischief, are favourites, and Fred Curran receives well-earned applause. Bert Weston, comedian, pleases everyone, and George Edney, comedian; Varley and Sinclair, duettists; Louis Kerno, vocalist; and George and Edwards and the "Bio" make up an excellent programme.

MOTHERWELL.

NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr W. Gillespy.—Good entertainment is provided this week by Mr Lawrence Brough's company with The Lady of Ostend and The Cruise of the Saucy Sally. The Lady of Ostend was staged first, and as the Baron De Longueville Mr Brough was most amusing. Mr Percy Marshall was clever as Joseph Carbury, and Mr Harry Hampson was the cause of much laughter as Dick Whortles. Mr Edmund Gurney gave a good display as Toby Krockitt, the prize-fighter. Miss Rosamund Rokeby was a vivacious Lady of Ostend, Miss Kate Milford made an attractive Dorothy Whortles, and Miss Eleanor Gilbart was comical as the sedate mother-in law

MEXBOROUGH.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. H. Melton.—Mr J. Gar Kiddie's company is this week presenting A Little Coquette. Mr J. W. Groves is decidedly clever as Anne Teeke; Mr F. Bruce gives a skilful sketch of the miser, Gabriel Grabbe; as Scrapp, the village constable, Mr Geo. Hester is thoroughly entertaining; Mr E. H. Bertram does well as Captain Nevermind; and Messrs J. Bell and J. Clarence assist capably in the comedy. Miss Lizzie Payne is delightfully chic in the title-rôle; Miss Flo Warner is most successful as Robin Adair; and Miss Nellie Butt is smart as Charlie Crowquill. The Milstead Quartet of lady dancers perform very gracefully.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr Fred C. Sutcliffe.—My Lady Molly, with its fine old English flavour, and Mr Sidney Jones's flowing melody, always in keeping with the spirit of the piece, is again being performed here by a company under the direction of Mr Frederick Mouillot. Miss Decima Moore fortunately reappears in her old part of Alice Coverdale, and she is as dainty and charming as ever. Lady Molly Martingale is acted with commendable liveliness and spirit by Miss Beatrice Edwards, who sings capitally. Miss Lottie Crawford is also successful as Hester, and the Madeline Mirabeau of Miss Amy Cooper is an enjoyable performance. Mr Harry T. Davies as Harry Romney scores considerably from both an acting and singing point of view, and his friend Lionel Bland is agreeably presented by Mr Ernest Mozar. Mr John T. M'Callum now appears as Mickey O'Dowd, a character which loses nothing of its mirth-provoking qualities in his capable hands. A very admirable performance is the Sir Miles Coverdale of Mr Augustus Cramer, his acting and singing calling for warm praise. Mr Frederick Silverton is to the fore as Reuben Oates.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham.—Not long have we had to wait for the appearance of the newly produced musical play, Peggy Machree, which is this week being presented by Mr Chas. E. Hamilton's company, and on Monday was accorded an appreciative and encouraging reception from a large audience, who found a certain charm in the simple and unpretentious piece, as well as in the music, which is chiefly characteristic. A nice sentiment pervades the production which is wholly agreeable. Mr Denis O'Sullivan as Barry Trevor and Miss Marie Dainton as Lady Margaret O'Driscoll are especially prominent and successful. Mr O'Sullivan acts with power and fine feeling, and the same may be said of his rendering of the Irish songs, which are immensely enjoyed, thanks to his artistic efforts. The Lady Margaret of Miss Marie Dainton is a winsome and dainty performance, and her several songs, which she gives with much charm, notably "The Old Oak Tree," with its graceful dance, are also repeatedly encored. Mr Graeme Campbell as Alexander M'Dougall, a gaunt Scotchman in kilts, acts with much dry humour. Well-drawn characters also are those of Moira and Michael, servants of the O'Driscolls, which are depicted with many happy touches by Miss Freda Bramleigh and Mr Shiel Barry respectively. The foppish Sir Lawrence Borthwick is well acted by Mr Marc Macdermott, and Captain De La Cour has an effective exponent in Mr Stanley Pringle.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—Mr Edward Marris and company are paying a welcome return visit this week in The Dandy Doctor. Mr Marris again appears in the title-rôle, and his performance throughout is excruciatingly funny. He is ably assisted by Miss Florence Smithers, who continues to display low comedy of marked ability in the part of Jane. Mr Walter Nugent sings and acts pleasingly as Arthur Vandyke, and Mr W. N. Gilmore submits a delightfully refreshing rendering of the dude. Mr James Danvers makes the most of his opportunities as Colonel Pendred, and is also responsible for a speciality act on the piano, in which he receives excellent assistance from Miss Elsa Nicholson. Miss Lizzie Primmer is decidedly successful as Ivy Pendred. The Dandy Belles (Misses Flo Allen and Cissie Evelyn) are expert dancers; and Mr Ben Rowe and Miss Holden receive a big encore for their cake-walk speciality.

ELSWICK THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr Charles M. Daly.—Here we have Miss Winifred Maude's company, in The Sins of a City. Miss Maude herself appears as Seaweed—a part she acts very cleverly. Miss Marie Lyons also creditably sustains the rôle of Lesbia; and the slavey, Midge, has an amusing representative in Miss Agnes Norman, who contributes songs and dances. Mr J. W. Baxter doubles the parts of Joe Woodleigh and his miserly twin brother with excellent results, and Ralph Blackwater is depicted very effectively by Mr Leslie Beaufort. Mr Victor Du Cane as a comical Jew causes plenty of laughter. The Sandy M'Donald of Mr Royce Carleton is a good performance.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—Marie Loftus, whose popularity remains undiminished, is receiving the heartiest of welcomes here, and her comedy powers are again amply demonstrated in her various efforts, the most entertaining and amusing of which is undoubtedly the skit on pantomime she so cleverly presents. We have a novelty in talking and singing animated pictures, and this act is stated to have been given here on Monday for the first time in this country. James Bard on the swinging wire gives a skilful exhibition, and his white-clad figure with the stage draped in black adds to the effect of his performance. Lilian Lowe is encored in unmistakeable fashion for her excellent rendering of "The song that reached my heart," and Charles Russell in a song descriptive of famous historic episodes earns approval. In the sketch given by Mr and Mrs Clifford Bronte the latter is especially amusing as a cockney slavey with romantic ideas. Much admiration is excited by Jan Rudenyi, the Hungarian violinist. Daisy Dormer is indeed a dainty comedienne, and the Cavallini Brothers occasion amusement in their funny parodies. Entertainment of an enjoyable description is provided by Lee and Kingston, the comedy duo; the Three Georgis are clever and amusing as comic acrobats; and pleasing duettists and dancers in the Sisters St. Julian also appear.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs R. Thornton and S. Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—The visit of Sherlock Holmes has attracted good houses this week. The thrilling adventures of the famous detective have been keenly followed by enthusiastic audiences, who show their appreciation of the production in no half-hearted manner. Mr H. A. Saintsbury is responsible for the title rôle, and has been entirely successful. Good support is forthcoming from a good all-round company.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr Will H. Boardman.—The extraordinary properties of liquid air as demonstrated by means of the magic kettle are again proving interesting and instructive. Dusty Rhodes, who casually informs the audience that on a wet day his name is "Mud," appears in the guise of a tramp, and submits an entertainment which is decidedly clever and in many respects original. Possessed of a really excellent voice he uses it to the best advantage in his imitations of sundry singers, which he invariably introduce with some apt and humorous remark, and the hearty laughter and applause which he evokes are testimony to his success. Donaldson Brothers and Ardel and company find plenty of scope for their pantomime business in A Zoological Comedy, which they are again successfully presenting. Very cordial is the reception accorded the Falcons, who submit a smart and amusing acrobatic comedy act. Miss Nellie Ganthony, society entertainer, gives proof of her ability in this line; and J. H. Scotland is an excellent baritone vocalist with an agreeable manner. Ella Shields sings a budget of American songs in good style, and the sketch How She Did It serves to introduce Addie Dorina as a quick-change artiste. Whit Cunliffe is a clever and versatile entertainer, Nora Emerald is a bright comedienne; and Browning and Wally, gymnasts, and Alphonse Silvano also contribute successfully.

NEWPORT.

LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—A Soldier and a Man is being presented here by Mr Clifton Alderson and company. Mr Clifton Alderson's impersonation of Harold Sinclair is a fine character study; Miss Billie Doyle's Rose Melbury is an ideal heroine; Mr Frank Powell does well as the villain, Herbert Walgrave; Mr Harry Wright's impersonation of Jim Ferron is a clever mixture of humour and pathos; and Miss Nettie Sobrier makes a bright Sergeant Jane Wicks. The piece is capitally mounted.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll.—R. G. Knowles is the star turn here, and on Monday the house accorded him a warm welcome. Verno and Voyce, who possess good voices, sing some good duets, and George Brooks, comedian, causes hearty laughter. The Florador Quartet, in their comedy sketch Naughty Nin, provoke a good deal of merriment; the Young American Quintet, conducted by Miss Mattie Boorman, create a favourable impression; and Marie Reeve is applauded for her clever step dance. Rezene and Robini provide a turn that is clever and amusing; the Ashers, in The Dude and the Soubrette, are amusing; and Lizzie Daniels, soubrette, completes a good programme.

NORTHAMPTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Elward Compton; Resident Manager, Mr W. J. Andrews.—The School Girl is being presented here by Mr George Dance's principal company. Miss Ethel Beech is very good as Lillian Leigh; Miss Grace Sinclair is a handsome Cicely; Miss Mildred King as the Mother Superior makes a hit with her song; Miss Hope is a model Saafedza; Miss Elena Sevest is a presentable French bonne; and Miss M. Walbran, Miss N. Minshull, and Miss Florence Lee are pretty and dashing American girls. Mr. Leslie Holland is a comical Sir Ormesby St. Leger, Mr Charles Adeson is very funny as General Marchmont, and Mr Alfred Leslie as Tubby Bedford completes a comical trio. Mr Lister Morrah is good, dramatically and vocally, as Edgar Verney, and Mr Cameron Carr gives a consistent representation of Peter Overend. The chorus and orchestra do well under the direction of Mr Edward H. Whitehall.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr Robert Barton; Musical Director, Mr Walter Ashton.—The excellent vocalism of the Yorkshire Mill Lasses (Miss Mona and Miss Gladys Wells), whose sweet and powerful voices are used with artistic grace in duets, please all here, and the varied instrumentalism of Messrs Barton and Franklin is also admired. The Five Delevines (three gentlemen and two ladies) give an acrobatic, pantomimical, and musical act, which is amusing. The Olive Trio of comediennes and dancers supply a novel turn. T. C. Callaghan is a clever comedian, and his songs go well, and Gertrude Moore, transformation dancer, Flo St. Clair, and J. W. Ellison also contribute with success.

NORTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—Messrs George Edwardes and Charles Frohman's company is presenting Are You a Mason? here this week, which has been cordially greeted. As George Fisher, the stockbroker, Mr Anthony Fawcett gives a really clever impersonation, and his reception has been an enthusiastic one. Mr Stephen Wentworth is capital as Frank Perry, and Mr Harry Ashford is very funny in the rôle of Amos Bloodgood. Mr Frank Ridley is smart as Hamilton Travers; Mr Valentine O'Connor creates a good impression as Ernest Morrison; and Mr Tom Mowbray proves successful in the part of John Halton. As Mrs Caroline Bloodgood Miss Harriet Trench is seen to advantage; Miss Lucy Edwin gives an entertaining performance of Lottie; Miss Violet Graham is a satisfactory Eva (Mrs Perry); and the other characters are ably filled. The play is preceded by an enjoyable comedietta, Hushed Up.

BORO' VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson.—The Andos, happy little Japs, are at the head of an enjoyable bill-of-fare, and their clever performance gains much applause. Mr W. Permane's educated bears are proving very attractive, and Mr Walter Stockwell, the popular comedian, makes a great hit. Messrs J. C. Scatter and Son, Tyneside comedians, are good; Miss Marie Gibson, soprano, is received with favour; and Miss Florence Gwynne, in her musical scena "The Stage-Struck Servant;" Mr Jack Carlin, comedian; and Mr J. P. Carroll, military tambourine player, also contribute successfully.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Wm Mould.—Messrs Ike Scott and Son, with "The Blind Coster," are here, and have lost none of their popularity. Mr Barney Stuart, in "Impersonalia," is received with much favour; Signor and Madame Prosper Benn, in their sketch, From Pavement to Stage, are loudly applauded; Young Codge, the whistling street arab, is smart; and Miss Kitty Marlor, comedienne and soprano vocalist; Miss Edith Sylvesto, in her speciality act; Mr Ben Nevis, raconteur and dancer; and Payne's Bio-Photoscope all meet with favour.

NORWICH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's No. 1 company in Quality Street is here this week. Mr George A. Brandram as Valentine Brown acted with much care and ability; Mr Arthur F. C. Lysons was amusing as Ensign Blades; Mr Dan Dyer was good as the Recruiting Sergeant; Master Ernest Hollom deserved commendation for his portrayal of Master Arthur Wellesley Tomson; and Mr Herbert Chown as Lieut. Spicer and Mr Arthur Curtis as a Waterloo Veteran ably accounted for their respective parts. Miss Florence Jackson as Miss Phœbe Throssell was the life of the piece, and her admirable acting met with warm approval. Miss Grace Edwin was exceedingly good as Susan Throssell; Miss Gwynneth Galton was genuinely funny as Patty; whilst Miss Isabel Merson as Miss Willoughby, Miss Marie Dennett as Fanny Willoughby, Miss Frances Leslie as Henrietta Turnbull, Miss Lillian Rogers as Charlotte Parratt, Miss Violet Hollom as Isabella, and Miss Beryl Burnie as Harriett were respectively good in their several characters. The staging and dressing deserve mention.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt.—A capital programme is presented to provide amusement to country friends visiting the Cattle Show this week. The celebrated Geo. Bonhair-Gregory Troupe head the bill, and give a wonderfully clever Risley performance; Tell and Tell as comedy acrobats provide much fun; Harry Radford and Mdlle. Valentine, American burlesque jugglers, are amusing; the Four Mezanos are clever musicians; Charley Dixon, crazy comedian, is very good; Bob Hamilton, character comedian, has a favourable reception; Kate Lynd is a successful comedienne; Steeley and Dowton receive applause for their comedy legmania act; and Grey and Welford are excellent patter comedians and comedy boxers.

NOTTINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—The presentation of Mr Henry Arthur Jones's comedy Joseph Entangled, on Monday, roused much interest, which was sustained throughout the play. Miss Mona K. Oram acts Lady Verona with a delightful touch, showing up the frivolous character with delicate tact, and in the final scene revealing the true womanly nature with a tenderness that wins all hearts. Mr H. B. Warner makes a handsome and gallant Sir Joseph, acting with taste and discrimination, his impersonation throughout being full of true artistic feeling. Mr S. W. Ashworth embodies Hardolph Mayne with the requisite amount of dramatic force. Mr Horace Lane offers a most most natural portraiture of the vacuous Harry Tavender, and his feather-brained, but pretty wife, is capitally drawn by Miss Shelley Calton. Miss Rosamond Bury imparts a charm to her small part as Lady Joyce. Mr Lawrence Grant makes a distinct hit as Jermyn Pyecroft, his philosophical pleasantries evoking great hilarity. Mr Cecil Brooking is highly amusing as Professor Tofield, and a couple of servants are excellently typed by Miss Claire Cavendish and Mr Everard Digby.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Charles P. Cooke.—Mr Arnold Bell's company occupies this theatre this week, opening on Monday with the presentation of Ben-My-Chree. In the rôle of the excitable hero, Dan Mylres, Mr Arnold Bell is seen to advantage, acting with great force and taste. Mr Cuthbert Imrie is entirely successful as Ewan Mylres, and great credit is due to Mr H. M. Clifford for his convincing impersonation of Gilchrist Mylres. Miss Frances Campbell as Mona Mylrea acts in a most charming and winsome manner, and Miss Violet Campbell as Kitty gives a dainty rendering. Miss Lillian Earle and Miss M. Heildon are both excellent in their respective parts, and not a little is added to the success of the piece by the clever portraiture of Hommey-Beg, the deemster's deaf servant, by Mr Joe Bardsley. Mr William Reid as Davy Fayle and Mr D. Farrough as Mr Harcourt, the Governor, are both very good; and mention should be made of Mr F. C. Robson as Thorkell Mylrea. The Shaugraun and The Octoroon are also in the week's bill.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr A. W. Bull.—The stirring events depicted in A Life's Revenge by Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr F. G. Somerfield's company, have found much favour here. Mr John F. Traynor plays the hero, Paul Starovitch, with ease and manliness, and Mr T. G. Vane assumes the kindly Maurice Trevor with distinction to himself. A strong and realistic portrayal of the villainous Prince Strogoroff is given by Mr Somerfield, and the scheming Michael Orloff finds a capable exponent in Mr Walter Roberts. Miss Dagmar brings undoubted histrionic gifts to bear on the part of the Princess Vanda Ivyala. Miss Amy Ellam acts with energy as Marcia Vittoria, the adventuress. Humorous relief is capitally afforded by Miss Maudie Grayson (Daphne Dashaway), Miss Amy Hughes (Acculina), Mr Charles E. Warne (Col. Tumbleoff), and Mr Sydney Ernest (Nicholas).

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—"The Marvellous Tea Kettle" has made its appearance here, much to the delight and wonderment of crowded audiences. The operators, a lady and gentleman, were kept busy on Monday night producing the many extraordinary effects, and were accorded a hearty reception for their interesting experiments. It is impossible to speak too highly of the Kreme Family of acrobats. The dexterity and neatness with which they accomplish their many difficult feats evokes a perfect storm of applause. Walter Groves and company, in the sketch Artful Jim, cause continuous laughter throughout their "turn." Amy Russell renders a song with animation, and Alice Ormonde wins favour by her singing. Fred Earle's comical song, "Seaweed," gains him high popularity, and the Two Bees are again heard in "Hiawatha," which continues a huge success. Items are also well served by Walter King, comedian; Burt Shephard, comedian; Horace Wheatley, comedian and dancer; and the Rayfords, comedy artistes.

NUNEATON.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter J. R. Bryan.—The Ben Greet company, under the direction of Mr J. Bannister Howard, is doing good business here this week with La Poupée. Mr Algernon Lee makes an exceedingly amusing Lancelot, whilst the grotesque humour of Mr Bert Danson, in the part of Hilarius, keeps the house in a state of merriment from beginning to end. Miss Cissie Wade makes an exceptionally charming Alesia, and is soon in favour with the audience. Mr Joseph A. Bull gives a fine study of Father Maxime, and, with Mr H. T. Parr, Mr Williams, Mr Chas. Flynn, Mr G. Speed, and Mr James as brother monks, gain a repeated encore with "The Jovial Monk." Praise also is due to Miss Margaret Ainsworth as Madame Hilarius and Miss Eva Ellis Henri. The augmented orchestra is successfully conducted by Mr Bolton.

OLDHAM.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—Mr Louis Calvert's company is occupying the boards here in the London success Sunday. Miss Nita Faydon is portraying the title-rôle with remarkable ability; Mr J. Edward Pearce as Colonel Brinthorpe is conspicuous in a manly part; Mr Ernest A. Douglas as Tom Oxley receives due appreciation for his clever acting; the Towzer of Mr Frederick Powell is very effective; Mr John A. Manley is good as Davy; and the Lively of Mr T. Norman Walter is all that can be desired. Mr Whitford Kane as Jacky is responsible for a clever impersonation; Miss Elizabeth Watson as Mrs Naresby is sympathetic; Miss Olive Adair is effective as the Nun; and Mr Charles B. Vaughan is exceedingly breezy as the devil-may-care Arthur Brinthorpe.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr George Knowles.—Captain Woodward occupies premier position here with his performing seals, their wonderful tricks eliciting great admiration. Edgar Forrest's comedy sketch company is well received in My Friend the Enemy; Talberto and Douglas are successful as knockabouts; Harry Ray and Lillie Calden receive cordial appreciation for their dancing comedy act; as a baritone vocalist George Adams does well; Collins and Rice, comedy and speciality artistes, are a success; and Patty Yole, comedienne; Maud Beaumont, burlesque actress; and Fred Clements, comedian, are well received.

GAIETY.—Manager, Mr E. J. Dexter.—A capital company here includes Johnny Holland and company, in My Friend Boots; the Sisters Mitchel (Madge and Nell), comediennes and expert dancers, give a clever turn; Fred Poplar, comedian, wins several encores; France and Francis, eccentric comedians, are responsible for a capital performance; Lil Hartley, descriptive vocalist, is very successful; Mozetti, the boy juggler, gives a capital performance with billiard balls and Indian clubs; Kitty Wager is very smart with her catchy songs; and the Bioscope is as popular as ever.

OXFORD.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr C. C. Dorrill.—The latter half of last week Mr Frank Wilson's excellent company gave capital performances of The Marriage of Kitty. This week Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company has been drawing full and highly appreciative houses with The Money-Makers. Mr Frank Lacy plays Fritz in light agreeable fashion; while his Uncle Matthew is performed by Mr Allen Thomas in a dry and humorous style that is highly effective. Miss Muriel Ashwynne makes a fascinating and attractive Dot, and is well supported by Miss Lorna Lawrence as Mabel; but the honours of the play are carried off by Miss Frances Davie, whose Bella is such a light, vivacious performance as to keep the house in good humour right through the agreeable play.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. G. P. Wells.—Miss Gladys Silvester and Mr Fletcher Sansome's musical comedy company is this week paying a return visit here with Jack's Sweetheart. Mr Harry C. Lovell makes an attractive Jack Tremayne, and Mr Murray Yorke is effective as the villain, Captain Dugard. Mr Dan Clifford is the life and soul of the piece as Samuel Sherlock Spotter, and is ably assisted by Miss Nellie V. Warden in a clever interpretation of Sally. Mr Fred Laceby is droll as Hon. Bertie Babington, and Mr Fletcher Sansome is successful as Sir Henry Stanhope. Mr Edward Smyth is forcible as Ben Reeve; Miss Madge Western gives a successful portrayal of Lady Dolly Dartley; Miss Augustus Rocheford is adequate as Mrs Hopkins; and the Misses M. Clarke, A. Valerie, and M. Isabelle dance in pleasing style. Miss Gladys Silvester makes a dainty and charming May Leslie.

TOWN HALL.—Managers, Messrs Sidney Acott, Harris, and Co.—Maskelyne and Cooke's Mysteries are paying us a most welcome return visit here this week, and opened to a crowded and delightful audience on Monday. The programme includes The Gnome's Grotto and Will, the Witch, and the Watchman, but Mr David Devant's delightful conjuring still continues to be the great attraction of this most successful show. The Chamounix Alpine Orchestra contributes some capital music and pretty songs.

PAISLEY.

PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Porprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile.—Miss Madge Girdlestone's company is giving successful performances this week of The City of Millions. Miss Girdlestone acts with dramatic power the rôle of Rosa De Valois, and Miss Agnes Verity is thoroughly natural throughout in her assumption of Jessie Townsend. Mr Vernon Sansbury's depiction of John Stacey is particularly pointed and good; as Captain Wilfred Dread Mr Martin Sabine is remarkably successful, his acting being imbued with the necessary force and emphasis; Mr Henry Nelson furnishes an excellent embodiment of John Townsend; the Hon. Benjamin Boodle is characteristically delineated by Mr Grahame Herington; and the parts of Bob Westwood and Joseph Smudgely are humorously rendered respectively by Mr Sam Wilkinson and Mr Claremont Gaskell. Clever sketches are submitted by Miss Gladys Vernon as Kitty Taylor and Miss Maud Stewart as Timothy Tippit. Little Audrey Sutherland displays ability as a child actress.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr Delno Fritz.—Here this week are presented pleasing items by Les-Bois, burlesque juggler; the Gartells (Sid and Will), eccentric musical comedians, patterers, and dancers; Charles Danton, character comedian; Neta Anderson, vocalist; and Tom O'Neil, character comedian. The Empire Cinématograph submits a new series of pictures.

PENTRE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Owners, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr Eugene Hardie.—This week a variety show of a high order is attracting large audiences. Topping the bill are the Marconis, whose electric act is a triumph of scientific display. Lord, Murray, and Lord, in their athletic speciality, are exceedingly clever; Burley and Burley are amusing in their comedy acrobatic feats; Ada Twibell, comedienne, deserves praise; the Two St. Johns are much appreciated in their musical act and double dance; Will Dalton is a droll comedian; and Condon and Preston create much laughter by their refined patter. Ted Young is a good character comedian.

PERTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile; Assistant-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—Mr Roy Jackson with his No. 1 company, including Miss Kittie Douglas, is engaged here for the week. On Monday and Tuesday the romantic drama, Quasimodo, was staged. Mr Roy Jackson assumes the title-rôle and displays considerable talent; Mr G. Lambton scores as Claude Frollo; Mr Percy B. Braithwaite is amusing as Jehan Frollo; Mr H. Storey Bates gains immediate popularity as Captain Phœbus; Mr Victor Vernon is responsible for a pleasing diversion from the dramatic element as Pierre Gringoire, poet and showman; Miss Inez Harman is seen to advantage as Fleur-de-Lys, a jealous lover; and Miss E. Benson proves an attentive Babette. Miss M. Taylor makes an admirable gossip as Oudarde; Miss B. Richardson is thoroughly amusing as Coucou; Miss E. Townsend is sympathetic as a sorrowing mother; and Miss Kittie Douglas is awarded quite an ovation for her exceptionally good acting, singing, and dancing, while her pet goat, Di Djali, is deserving of note. On Wednesday and Thursday Trilby was staged.

CITY HALL.—Mr George Grossmith gave a delightful humorous and musical recital here on Monday evening. The first part of the programme comprised a modern musical comedy, concluding with the possible fate of Hamlet and Ophelia; the second part included "Miserable Moments," and the concluding part consisted of selections from répertoire.

PLYMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—The Cingalee is proving a great attraction here this week. Miss Anna Hickish as Lady Patricia Vane captivates the audience, her vocalism and acting being much enjoyed. A charming Nanoya is Miss Florence Smithson, who uses an attractive voice in pleasing fashion. As Peggy Sabine Miss Eva Sandford makes a great hit, and in conjunction with Mr Danby she does exceedingly well. That versatile actor is at his best as Chambhuddy Ram; Mr Leedham Bantock provides another successful impersonation; and as Sir Peter Loftus Mr W. J. Manning is very entertaining; Mr Harold Thorley being capital as Harry Vereker.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Assistant-Manager, Mr Percy Williams.—Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr J. Leicester Jackson, supported by a capable company, are appearing here this week with much success in Her One Great Sin, an interesting drama. Mr Sam Arthur gives a robust and forcible rendering of Reuben Warhurst, and Mr Jackson carefully and ably portrays Arnold Thornhill. As Jerry Jumble Mr Fred Hodson does good work, and equally effective is Mr C. E. Lambert as Dan Hundle. In the part of Grace Warhurst Miss St. Albans misses no opportunity to win the full sympathy of the audience, her elocution calling for praise.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. Carlton.—The Sin of Her Childhood is being staged here this week by Mr J. A. Campbell's company, and is proving very attractive. Generally speaking, the acting merits commendation, the various characters being well placed. Mr Campbell, Mr Charles Fancourt, Miss Mary Fulton, Mr Austin Milroy, Mr Fred Elvin, and Miss May Pratt appear in important rôles and with conspicuous success, the play going with a swing from start to finish.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros; Manager, Mr J. Field.—A varied programme is attracting good business here this week. George Leyton, the popular actor-vocalist, tops the bill, and another good turn is provided by Zertho's dogs. Harry Clifford's songs take well; Mr and Mrs Finden appear in an amusing sketch; a sprightly comedienne is Miss Lillie Langtry; J. A. Wilson, the Negro comedian and dancer, is a warm favourite; and the Warlocks are funny to a degree. The Skandias, four Swedish gymnasts, execute some very clever and novel evolutions.

PRESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Stephen Pritt.—An Actor's Romance is a drama of strong emotional interest, and it is being most effectively presented here this week by Mr Cecil Barth's company. Mr Guy Hastings proves himself a talented actor in the rôle of Harold Davenport. Mr Ernest Rushton is thoroughly capable as Robert Livingstone; and much praise is due to Mr F. H. Dobell for his clever and amusing delineation of Charlie Cummings. Jack Woodford has an excellent representative in Mr Percy Marmont. Miss Bertha Northam gives a sympathetic portrayal of Louise Davenport. Little Marie Ada Dowsing acts pleasingly as Phyllis Davenport. Miss May Charteris is a vivacious and charming Dottie Dillingham. The Sal Wiggins of Miss Louise L'Estrange is a realistic embodiment; and Miss Constance Elgin displays genuine dramatic ability in the part of Florence. The special songs and dances of the Pansy Quartet are an enjoyable feature in the performance.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Sawyer and Woodruff.—Miss Cissie Moxon's company is appearing here this week in the musical comedy A Trip to Rum-Fum.

PONTYPOOL.

Royal Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; General Manager, Mr J. H. Stephens.—Mr Morton's powerful company, under the direction of Mr Fred Moule, opened here on Monday with a successful representation of a new play, Bigamy. Miss Alwynne Ormon's acting as the bigamist is a feature of the play. Mr Colin Hazlewood gives a capable exposition of Sir Charles Dresden; Mr E. Earle and Mr Ernest Fare are particularly effective as the twin brothers: Miss Elsie Capell portrays Sylvia Dresden with much pathos; and other parts deserving special mention are the Frank Merrivale of Mr Charles Burdon, the Rufus Cherrybull of Mr Fred Moule, and the ubiquitous Frenchman of Mr Francis Serle. The piece is picturesquely staged.

PONTYPRIDD.

Royal Clarence Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr Rex Dooley.—Mr W. H. Hallatt and company are paying a welcome return visit to the above theatre this week with Two Little Sailor Boys. Chief honours were appropriated by Mr W. H. Hallatt as Commander Noel Tregarthen; Mr Leonard Booker well portrays Lieut. Redstone; Captain Tom Yorke is most ably taken by Mr Ed. Warden; Mr Geo. Cecil Murray is a typical retired Admiral; Mr Oscar Power a breezy Jack Jolly; and Mr Sid Cotterell a highly diverting Ben Baxter. Miss Marie Daventry interprets the part of Mildred Grey with great ability, Miss Blanche Steele is admirably suited as Lolo Yorke, and great praise is due to Miss Hilda Taylor as Lucy Wilson. Miss May Day and Miss Ethel Frances are two fascinating little sailor boys.

PORTH.

Poole's Opera House.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—Mr W. H. Kirby's No. 1 company is here in the successful musical comedy entitled The New Mephisto, Mr W. H. Kirby is decidedly popular as Dick Pilgrim. Mr Fred Lyne scores a distinct success as Mephistopheles and also in various other characters. Mr Herbert St. John capitally portrays Lord Hummingtop. Miss Lily Gullick meets with much approval as Dolly Pilgrim. Miss Marian Armitage delights all by her amusing impersonation of Becky Pilgrim. Miss Dorothy Cecil is much admired as Mrs Gertie Gentle. Miss Leah Howard as Mrs Connie Gentle and Miss Marian Keeley as Mrs Prudie Gentle deserve mention. Captain Meredith is excellently played by Mr H. P. Carr. Mr Willie H. Vernon is particularly good as Major Bantam. The choruses are effectively rendered, and the Thalian Glee Singers are well received.

PORTSMOUTH.

Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—Mr George Dance's principal company is here this week presenting Three Little Maids. The play has been put on in a highly satisfactory manner. The Three Little Maids are personated by Miss Janet Reeve as Ada, Miss Gertrude Melville as Hilda, and Miss Nora Gay as Edna Branscombe in a charming and vivacious way. Lady St. Mallory is ably embodied by Miss Kate Forster. The Gretchen of Miss Laura Wright is a capable and clever performance, and, with Mr Gus Oxley as Cupid, provokes great merriment. Mr Arthur Langley as Lord Cheyne is happily suited with the part. Brian Molyneux and M. De L'Orme are respectively in the hands of Mr Haddon Cave and Mr Alec Chentrens, and both do good work.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—Messrs Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little's company is here this week in the musical comedy drama On the Stroke of Twelve. Mr Fred Rivers is clever and painstaking as Jack Rutledge. Mr H. Creagh Hunt as James Hoxton is successful, Mr Harry C. Robinson does well as Henry Rutledge, and the same may be said of Mr Karl H. Edwards as Moses Levi. Miss Elma C. Turner's impersonation of Marie Bergerre is very good. Miss Bertha S. Ruth as Doris Rutledge and Miss Nellie Moore as Jess Bainbridge are commendable.

Empire Palace.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—The management of this house has provided a rattling good programme, which includes George Bastow, with new songs; the Norman-Leonard Trio of excellent musicians in their musical sketch The Itinerant; Fred Carey, eccentric comedian; the Mayvilles, Lilliputian novelty artists; George Formby, the man from Lancashire; Spry and Monti, speciality artistes; the Summersons, comedy artists; the Sisters Hula, duettists and expert dancers; Georgina Leonard, burlesque actress; and Walter Sevetto, high pedestal dancer.

RAMSGATE.

Sanger's Amphitheatre. — Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr H. Bowman.—The powerful drama, The Life that Kills, has been staged here this week by Messrs Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls's company. Mr Hugh Metcalf is a capital Hector Rodney, while the part of Laurie Linden is effectively filled by Miss Vyvyan Montgomery. As Kendal Croat Mr Herbert Sidney plays admirably; and as the Rev. Theodore Rodney, an old English gentleman, Mr E. D. Nicholls is extremely popular. Mr Morris Maud as the scapegrace, Valentine Telford, gives an excellent representation. Miss Cathleen Cavanagh as the adventuress, Brenda Croat, submits a capable impersonation; and the dual part of Tom Dicks and Johanna Dicks is handled with skill by Miss Mabel Kessler, who incidentally introduces "specialities" in playing in first-class style upon the bugle, cornet, and posthorn. A clever child actress is Little Mabel, who sustains the rôle of the cripple, May Linden.

ROCHDALE.

New Theatre Royal, Limited. — Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Resident Manager, Mr Charles Clucas.—A Woman's Pluck is in possession of the boards here this week. Mr James Willard is a host in himself as Dick Darrell, Mr Charles P. Wentworth makes the most of Sir Noel Fordyce, Mr Edward E. Ashby portrays with earnest feeling Winston Dale, Mr J. P. Dryden cleverly enacts the dual-rôle of Mark Scanlan and Jim Daremont, and Mr Cecil Raymond is amusing as Sir John Daredevil. Miss Tina Shaw is lively as the incorrigible Bertie Daredevil, Miss Jessie Yatman makes a winsome Jessie Pope, Miss Helen Elmar acts with becoming dignity as Lady Daredevil, and Miss East Robertson admirably fills the rôle of Grace Daremont.

Circus of Varieties. — Proprietors, Messrs Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr S. L. Lee.—O'Connor and Brady's combination of artistes have had a gratifying reception here. As comedians Messrs O'Connor and Brady submit a turn which evokes irresistible laughter; the Jackley Wonders, acrobats, display clever agility; Mansell Fane, actor-vocalist, sings some stirring songs; W. A. Kay amuses with his living marionettes; Miss Gertie Gitana, comedienne, is a popular artiste here, and sings and dances with great success; and Signor Bandoni, the one-man band; Bob Gardner, vocalist; and Will Saunders, comedian, complete the list.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Hargreaves.—Park's Lion Boys head the bill here this week; their vocalism is of a high quality and secures well-earned applause; Harry Morgan sings coon songs and dances with acrobatic agility; Florence Leonard is a pleasing vocalist, with well-chosen songs; Edna Cragge, prettily attired, vocalises with power and effect; Young Igo is a clog dancer and comedian of much promise; and Lucretia, burlesque artist and speciality dancer; the Empire Bioscope; and E. J. Wilkes, comedian, with his dog Woof, contribute to an entertainment well worth seeing.

MISS DOROTHY FIRMIN.

Miss Dorothy Firmin made her first appearance on the real stage at the age of eleven at the Crown, Peckham, in Mr Isaac Cohen's pantomime of Cinderella, in 1899. She was next engaged for small parts, including the Bad Girl with Mr Austin Melford, in The Silver King, and Little Lucy, in Mr Henry Dundas's East Lynne, and following which she played Little Willy, in Mr Harold Davidson't production of East Lynne. Miss Firmin was then engaged by Mr Fred L. Connyngbame to create the part of Marjory Wingate, in A Mother's Love, which she played with great success for over twelve months. Mr James Willard next engaged her to create the part of Lord Arthur Selwood, in A Woman of Pleasure. She next created the part of Stella, in Mr Hill-Mitchelson's When the Lights are Low. Afterwards Mr Trevor Lowe secured her for the title rôle in Alice in Wonderland, in which part she greatly added to her reputation by her natural acting, charming singing, and dainty dancing. Miss Firmin's next venture was to leave the "legitimate" to play Shakespearian sketches in the London halls. Her répertoire included the following:—Prince Arthur, in King John, and Portia, in The Merchant of Venice, which she played with such marked success that she was engaged by Mr J. H. Leigh to play the part of Ariel, in his production of The Tempest, at the Royal Court Theatre, London. The revival had a most successful run, and Miss Firmin had eulogistic descriptions of her performances in the London papers, and was a great success. Miss Firmin was then re-engaged by Mr Trevor Lowe to play Tom, in The Water Babies, at Brighton, Christmas, 1903 4, where she again distinguished herself. Miss Firmin is now engaged by Mr Robert Arthur, for one of his London pantomime productions the coming season.

MISS NELL OLIVER.

MISS NELL OLIVER.

Previously to entering the profession Miss Oliver recited at concerts a great deal, her first appearance as a reciter being at the age of seven. A few months before her professional début she joined an amateur society, playing such parts as Lady Chichele, in The Princess and the Butterfly; Ferdinand, in The Tempest; the part of the Mother, in My Son and I; &c. After successfully undergoing the ordeal of two Academy examinations, Miss Oliver made her first professional appearance in Frocks and Frills, at the Haymarket Theatre, under the management of Messrs Harrison and Maude; then she played the part of the Comtesse De Blaire, in Sapho, at the Adelphi Theatre, under Miss Olga Nethersole's management. She was next engaged by Mr Henry Dundas to sustain the rôle of the Countess Fahfield, in the Drury-lane drama Hearts are Trumps; and was re-engaged for the following spring for Honourable Blanche Rossitter, in White Heather. One evening she played at only a quarter of an hour's notice the heavy lead, Lady Hermione De Vaux, which led to being re-engaged for that part for the following autumn. Between the spring and autumn tours Miss Oliver joined a stock company, which, in her opinion, is the best possible experience for all young actors and actresses. She played such parts as Henriette, in The Two Orphans; Anne Chute, in The Colleen Bawn; Marian Beryl, in the old Lancashire drama Grelley's Money; &c. Last spring she went on tour with Mr Douglas Bruce's company, playing the lead, Barbara Wade, in Walter Melville's play A Girl's Cross Roads, in which she made a marked success.

MR. PERCY MARSHALL.

Mr Percy Marshall left the Civil Service to enter on a stage career in April, 1883, when he joined Mr Edward Compton's well-known comedy company. Playing a variety of parts in all the old comedies, he remained under this management until the summer of 1887, including a six months' season at the Strand Theatre, and then started on a lengthy list of farcical comedies, which has continued almost unbroken up to the present time. Nancy and Co. and Our Regiment, Modern Wives (with Lal Brough), Turned Up (with Ramsey Danvers), Paper Chase (again with Mr Lal Brough), and The Barrister, in all of which Mr Marshall played the leading light comedy parts, being his career up to the end of 1889. The successful Our Flat was then sent on its first tour, and the choice of Mr Marshall for the part of Reginald Sylvester, was the commencement of an association with Mr Willie Edouin of a long and most agreeable nature. After eighteen months with Our Flat, brief spells of Our Daughters and A Night's Frolic at the Strand Theatre intervened, and Mr Marshall performed the somewhat uncommon feat of appearing at a matinée at the Strand Theatre in Our Daughters and the same night at Leicester in Our Flat. After a ten months' engagement with Sir Augustus Harris in the original tour of The Late Lamented (playing Stuart Crosse), and a short stock season at Newcastle under the same management, Mr Marshall again enlisted under Mr Edouin's banner, and played Corney, in a long tour of Niobe, and principal light comedy part in the production of Trooper Clairette, at the Opera Comique, in December, 1892. Two London productions engaged Mr Marshall's appearance as a reciter being at the age of seven. A few months before her professional début she joined an amateur society, playing such parts as Lady Chichele, in The Princess and the Butterfly; Ferdinand, in The Tempest; the part of the Mother, in My Son and I; &c. After successfully undergoing the ordeal of two Academy examinations, Miss Oliver made her first professional appearance in Frocks and Frills, at the Haymarket Theatre, under the management of Messrs Harrison and Maude; then she played the part of the Comtesse De Blaire, in Sapho, at the Adelphi Theatre, under Miss Olga Nethersole's management. She was next engaged by Mr Henry Dundas to sustain the rôle of the Countess Fahfield, in the Drury-lane drama Hearts are Trumps; and was re-engaged for the following spring for Honourable Blanche Rossitter, in White Heather. One evening she played at only a quarter of an hour's notice the heavy lead, Lady Hermione De Vaux, which led to being re-engaged for that part for the following autumn. attention in 1893—the ill-fated Two Johnnies, at the Trafalgar Theatre, and the more successful Mrs Othello at Toole's and, subsequently, the Vaudeville. In March, 1894, Mr Marshall entered the ranks of managers and toured The Late Lamented in the principal provincial towns. An engagement to play the Judge, in A Gaiety Girl, under Mr Augustin Daly's management, gave Mr Marshall his first opportunity of visiting the United States of America, the tour lasting six months. On returning to England Mr George Edwardes offered him a provincial tour of An Artist's Model, and six months after landing from America Mr Marshall was on his way back with the Daly's Theatre company on a long and successful trip with that production. The company included Miss Marie Studholme, Miss Gladys Homfrey, Miss Louie Pounds, and Messrs John Coates, Lawrence D'Orsay, Fred Wright, jun., Maurice Farkoa, E. W. Garden, and Harry Eversfield, the last-named dying at the close of the New York run of the piece. On returning, Mr George Edwardes engaged Mr Marshall for a tour of My Girl. In 1897 came a long tour as Pinglet, in A Night Out. In 1898 he appeared as Tom, in The J.P., at the Strand, and also as the Physician, in Macbeth, at the Lyceum. In 1899 Mr Marshall joined the Vaudeville company, and after playing Mr George Giddens's part of George Godfray, in On and Off, for a month during his absence, commenced a tour in the autumn in the same piece. Taking over the comedy under his own management, Mr Marshall toured the whole of 1900. After a brief rest he joined Mr Lawrence Brough's company in April, 1901, and in addition to Carbury, in The Lady of Ostend, and Jack Buncombe, in Saucy Sally, has lately played in Guy Boothby's new farce In Sunny Ceylon, creating the part of Sir Benjamin Bangle. Mr Marshall married a daughter of the late Godfrey Turner, the well-known journalist.

MR. PERCY MARMONT.

Mr Marmont's first professional engagement was with Mr F. Rawson Buckley in 1899, playing the Viscomte De St. Evremond and M. De Maury in The Only Way. It lasted three months, then followed his first engagement with Mr Ben Greet, with whom he has been for some years, on and off. He started under that management, playing small parts in The White Heather and understudying Dick Beach, which he was fortunate enough to have the opportunity of playing for several nights. He was then re-engaged by Mr Greet for the tour of With Flying Colours, followed by The Second in Command, in which he played Medenham, that led to an offer from the Haymarket Theatre, but being under contract with Mr Greet he was unable to accept it. He made use of it, however, some twelve months later, after the tour of Sherlock Holmes, and went thence for the run of There's Many a Slip, playing a small part and understudying in that play, also in The Ghost of Jerry Bundler. He was re-engaged by Mr Cyril Maude to understudy in The Unforeseen, but, having an offer from the late Mr George Walton, left the Haymarket and set sail for South Africa, where he played such parts as Gussie Stilton, in Little Miss Nobody; Bertie Milton in Bilberry of Tilbury; John Smith, in Mr Wix of Wickham; Hon. James Fitz-James, in The American Heiress; Prince Sing Sing, in The Handy Man, and many other rôles in musical comedy. He had a very successful tour lasting about nine months, and everything went well with the exception of a slight mishap in the shape of a shipwreck. It was not, however, an unpleasant experience, for he and his fellow-travellers spent a very delightful week in the Grand Canary Islands whilst awaiting the arrival of the next boat to pick them up. On his return from Africa he was engaged by Mr J. Bannister Howard to play David Rossiin The Eternal City, which part he has played since Christmas. Mr Marmont sustained many Shakespearian parts during Mr Greet's répertoire tour, and also with Mr Kenyon Musgrave, a few being Sylvius, Nym, Rosencrantz, and Borachio. Gilbert Vaughan, in Called Back, which was originally produced at the Haymarket Theatre with Mr Tree as Macari; Colonel Trevanion, in Mr Sydney Grundy's play The Glass of Fashion, and Bamfield, in Sunlight and Shadow have recently been added to his gradually growing list.

THE GERMAN THEATRE.

On Monday, November 14, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Gerhart Hauptmann entitled "Einsame Menschen."

Vockerat	Max Behrend
Frau Vockerat	Betty L'Arronge
Johannes Vockerat	Hans Andresen
Käthe Vockerat	Else Gademann
Braun	Hans Stock
Anna Mahr	Camilla Dalberg
Pastor Kollin	Hugo Rogall
Frau Lehmann	Ida Weiss
Amme	Adele Meysel
Hausmädchen	Grete Langfried
Wagenschieber von der Bahn	Phil Lesing

Einsame Menschen (Lonely Souls) was, as will be remembered, first produced in this country by the Stage Society. It was then generally voted a work of great depth, but little theatrical effectiveness. Now that we have seen the play in its original version we are inclined to think that the translation and performance may have had something to do with the lukewarm praise of this superb, though very depressing, tragedy. It seems to us that Hauptmann, inspired not so much by Ibsen as by his own domestic unhappiness, set himself to describe the terrible fate of men who marry women beneath their intellectual level, and whose sensitiveness and activity are constantly played havoc with by those whom they expected to turn to as sympathetic collaborators and congenial comrades. This conception of the drama was fully borne out by Herr Andresen's subtle yet intensely impressive and convincing rendering of the principal part. It is not too much to say that anything finer than his acting we have not seen for many a day, and that it would be hard to find his rival in naturalness and versatility. Herr Andresen is undoubtedly an amazingly fine artist. High praise is also due to Fräulein Gademann, L'Arronge, and Weiss, and to Herr Stock for their consummate and realistic impersonations of their difficult parts. Fräulein Dalberg and Herr Behrend, on the other hand, albeit satisfactory, did not completely realise the possibilities of their respective parts.

A more delightful one-act comedy than Der Herrscher (The Ruler) it would indeed be difficult to find. Annie Neumann-Hofer is an American by birth, but a German by marriage with the well-known dramatic critic and theatrical impresario. Writing under the nom de plume Annie Bock, her maiden-name, she made her mark as an exceptionally prolific novelist. Her novels, "Simson und Delila," "Gräfin Sofie," "Ellen," "Dora Peters," "Einsamkeit," and "Familie Rizzoni," have, one and all, achieved notable success, testifying, as they undoubtedly do, to the authoress's keen imagination and admirable descriptive talent. Of the various plays which the versatile authoress has given to the stage (Dora Peters, The Prodigy, &c) none, perhaps, has met with a larger measure of success than that altogether delightful skit on Bohemian life and the varying moods of musicians, namely, Kollegen (Colleagues), which, it will be remembered, was one of last season's successes. At present Frau Neumann-Hofer is at work on a new version of the Marie Antoinette tragedy, to be performed shortly at the Berliner Theatre, and upon a modern play, written in English, and destined for production in London.

Paul Berstroem, upon his return from a brief holiday, is greatly surprised at finding a radical change in the appearance of his flat, and at the cold welcome extended to him by his hitherto devoted wife Rosa. The latter is much concerned about what she considers the dangerous illness of their ten-weeks-old baby. She has no eyes for her husband or for his friend, Robert Wilson, who has come on a visit to Paul. The latter quickly perceives that there is not the slightest cause for Rosa's anxiety, and further, that she does not any longer regard him as her ruler, being entirely absorbed by baby's and nurse's moods. Nurse, in particular, seems to be a special favourite of Rosa, and Paul, feeling himself powerless to combat the latter's despotism and to put an end to the quarrel between her and the parlourmaid (who finds an eloquent advocate in Robert), yields to the sway which the baby has over the whole household; thus forgetful of his dignity, he assists his wife in searching for baby's lost toy, and is happy that its discovery procures for him his wife's first kiss since his return. The discord ends in perfect harmony, and happiness reigns supreme when the new ruler is brought in to receive homage from his humble and loving subjects.

The plot is original, the dialogue crisp and full of sly humour, the characterisation consistent and fascinating, and it is thus small wonder that the whole play proved a notable success. Like Colleagues, it does its authoress, Annie Neumann-Hofer, the utmost credit, and would no doubt be welcome in an English adaptation. The acting, too, was of the highest order, Fräuleins Dalberg and L'Arronge and Herren Stock and Walter carrying off the chief honours. Sein Prinzesschen had at the last moment to be replaced by Jugendfreunde, owing to the indisposition of Herr Andresen. It is unnecessary to say more about Fulda's clever and original comedy than that it created an even more favourable impression than upon its first performance in this country at the Comedy three years ago.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The students' concert at the Guildhall School of Music on Wednesday attracted a very large audience, a display of fencing adding greatly to the interest of the programme. The musical portion was given first, and opened with a selection by the mandoline orchestra pupils of Madame Waldahoff, who played brightly, assisted by Miss Amy Parsons at the pianoforte. Miss Hilda Davies sang with much taste, but not quite sufficient volume of tone, Gounod's "O Divine Redeemer." Mr Frank Desprez's recitation, "Lasca," was gracefully delivered by Miss Gertrude Hill, a clever student of Mr Chapuy, who did herself and her teacher credit. Miss Minnie Jones acquitted herself well in Sullivan's "Orpheus with his lute.' The Misses Malenoir and Sapey sang duets by Dvorák with refinement and grace. The only fault of Mr Dunstall was in choosing a difficult operatic solo only fitted for the stage. "Fille des Rois," from Meyerbeer's opera L'Africaine, could not possibly prove a complete success in the concert-room, and, if Mr Dunstall was overweighted in the air, it can easily be understood, and next time he will do well to make choice of a less exacting composition. The instrumental solos in the concert were of considerable merit. Mr Wallis Bandey played solos of Schumann and Moszkowski on the pianoforte effectively. He is the winner of the Lady Mayoress's prize of 1904. On the 'cello Miss Ethel Thompson played Godard's "Sur le lac" elegantly. After the concert the fencing by pupils of Mr Mortlake Mann greatly delighted the visitors, and when the sparks flew briskly in the rapier and dagger contest no doubt many were reminded of the scene so vividly described by Dickens in "Nicholas Nickleby," where the provincial manager, Mr Crummles, is so excited over the broadsword combat. Other fencing bouts were equally successful; for instance, the rapier and buckler of Messrs Stevens and Stanley Vine. The graceful attitudes of the young ladies were much admired, and the grand salute at the conclusion was greeted with hearty applause, Mr Mann's success with his pupils being universally recognised. Among the lady students who greatly distinguished themselves may be named Miss Margaret Smith, Miss Letty Gordon, and Miss Gladys Hope. The services of Mrs Charles P. Smith, in charge of the young ladies, were as efficient as usual. Gounod's opera Romeo and Juliet is in rehearsal, under the direction of M. Jacobi, for performance in English.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Madame Gabrielle Réjane, supported by her own company of French players, from the Vaudeville Theatre, in Paris, began an engagement at the Lyric Theatre last Monday that will last four weeks. Madame Réjane's previous visit to this country was made in 1894, when Abbey Schoeffel and Grau paid her 200 000f. for 100 performances. This season her American tour is under the management of Messrs Liebler and Co. On the first three nights of this week Madame Réjane appears in a double bill, consisting of Lolotte, a farcical playlet, by MM. Meilhac and Halévy, which gives opportunity for the display of her light comedy powers; and Amourette, a three-act play, by M. Georges De Porto-Riche, originally produced at the Paris Odéon, the story of which deals with the love affairs of Etienne Feriand, a distinguished scientist, who, having found reasonable comfort in an affair with a courtesan named Catherine Villiers, decides that he would be happier if the woman were respectable. He looks upon his liaison as a sort of novitiate for the state of marriage, and believes he will find in the latter state complete comfort and happiness; therefore, when at the age of thirty-five he marries Mdlle. Germaine (Madame Réjane), eighteen and pretty, he is prepared to settle down and get out of life all there is in it. But he gets an overdose of real love, and for eight years is caressed and hampered in his work by it. Eventually he is almost driven mad by Germaine's tender tyranny. The quarrel, impossible to avoid for ever, comes at length, and in a moment of anger Fériand turns upon his dutiful wife, declares he cannot love her longer, and throws her into the arms of Pascal Delannoy, an old lover of the woman, who has been content to live in the pure atmosphere of her smiles. In the end the horror-stricken girl goes to Pascal, and the husband returns to his old life. But this proves more trying than an over-affectionate wife, and eventually he craves forgiveness, pardons Germaine in turn, and intimates that he will forgive Pascal, although he has threatened to kill him.

Madame Réjane's reception on the opening night showed that she had not been forgotten during her ten years' absence. Society was out in force, and there was a large and brilliant attendance. Madame Régane was delightful in both pieces, her finesse and versatility moving the audience to frequent laughter and applause. M. Dumeny gave a fine portrayal of the selfishness and inconsistency of the husband, and M. Gorieux, as the interloper, Pascal, played with admirable tact and strength. Madame Suzanne Avril, Madame Clery, and Madame Rose Lyon gave excellent impersonations of minor characters. Madame Réjane will appear during the latter part of the week in La Passerelle, which was presented here last season by Miss Marie Tempest under the title of The Marriage of Kitty.

MISS MAY IRWIN, jolliest of American comediennes, has returned to the metropolitan stage after two years' absence, and large audiences are gathering nightly at the Bijou Theatre, the scene of her many triumphs, to enjoy the performances of Mrs Black is Back, an amusing comedy, by George V. Hobart, some particulars of which were recently given. Mrs Black, whom Miss Irwin impersonates, exercises the feminine prerogative of being untruthful about her age when she marries her second husband, and is nearly "found out" when her grown-up son, Johnny (Mr Edgar Atchison-Ely), who has been attending school in England, and is supposed to be ten years old, suddenly appears on the scene. Johnny, a big, healthy-looking Englishman with a bull dog pipe in his mouth, dashes in and folds his mother in his arms. Professor Black, the second husband, enters unexpectedly and asks: "Who is this man?" Mrs Black, of course, is greatly confused, but she manages to summon sufficient presence of mind to introduce her son as the physical culture instructor whom her husband has engaged to put him through a course of exercise. The rest of the play is consumed in unravelling the resulting complications, Miss Irwin is irresistibly funny as usual, and when she sings her "coon" songs the audience is "just tickled to death."

ANDREW MACK, the Irish singing comedian, has a new play entitled The Way to Kenmare, by Edward E. Rose, and has just produced it at the Fourteenth-street Theatre. There are four acts, the scenes being laid in a Fifth-avenue mansion, a road-side inn at Ballyscanlan, in Ireland, a ruined church at Kenmare, and the Castle of Kenmare. Except for the absence of the customary red coats, the story runs along popular lines, affording Mr Mack—this time called Dan Maguire—abundant opportunity to display his valour, fidelity, and other virtues, and finally to develop into an Earl. Dan has been working in the Colorado mines and has fallen in love, his rival being an English officer, Capt. Clement Fairley (Mr Hugo Toland). Dan visits his native Ireland in order to prove his mother's marriage to his father, and this being done, he establishes his identity as the grandson of the Earl of Kenmare, inherits a fortune, and wins the girl of his choice. Whilst the plot is being unfolded Mr Mack sings "The Legend of the Maguires," "The Rose of Kenmare," and other songs, and easily maintains his popularity.

GEORGE M. COHAN, a clever young comedian, who has written numerous songs and vaudeville sketches, is appearing this week at the new Liberty Theatre in his new musical play, Little Johnny Jones, in which he plays tht part of a jockey who has been ruled off the course in England on false charges. His accuser is a gambler. Johnny Jones leaves England for San Francisco, where he learns that his sweetheart has been kidnapped and taken to Chinatown. He eventually finds the distressed maiden, exposes the gambler, and clears his own reputation. The scenes represent the Exterior of the Hotel Cecil in London, the Pier of the American Line at Southampton, and a Street in Chinatown, San Francisco. The company includes Jerry J. Cohen Helen F. Cohan, Ethel Levey, Truly Shattuck, Sam J. Ryan, and Tom Lewis, all of whom have made their mark at the vaudeville houses. The music is catchy and the numerous "specialities" are highly diverting. George M. Cohan, as usual, does some clever dancing, which is full of acrobatic surprises. Ethel Levey impersonates Rosario Fanchette, a French music hall artiste, and also the Earl of Bloomsbury, a fortune-hunter. Tom Lewis makes a big hit as a good-natured heavy weight, called "the Unknown," in a chronic state of inebriation, who goes abroad by mistake in one of his "trances."

DAVID HIGGINS is the "star" of another play of the turf produced last Monday at the American Theatre, under the title of His Last Dollar. The action takes place on Long Island, and at the Sheepshead Bay race track. The chief characters are a rich Kentuckian, Joseph Braxton (Mr Higgins), who comes to New York to speculate on the Stock Exchange; Tom Linson, the villain; and Eleanor Downs, a young Kentucky girl, who enters her horse, Mongrel, in the Futurity Race. The remnant of Braxton's fortune is staked on Mongrel, and at the last moment the jockey, having been disabled, Braxton rides him to victory. Eleanor has been obliged to sell her horse to the lucky rider through poverty, but Mongrel is not lost to her, as she falls in love with Braxton and accepts him as her husband. The Futurity scene is well managed and proves very exciting.

Josiah Belsack	Mr JOHN LOVEYS
Captain Donaldson	Mr VINCENT REAY
Lord Carlton	Mr EDWIN H. MEEK
Lord Beverley	Mr BASIL DEAN
Oswald Harcourt	Mr F. OSWALD SMITH
Jim Trevor	Mr W. PERCY MIERS
First Fisherman	Mr LAUNCELOT O. KING
First Villager	Mr ALFRED J. OFFEN
Molly	Miss EDITH FENTON
Gladys	Miss JENNIE MORTON
Una	Miss DOROTHY DAY
Dorcas	Miss HILDA GUDGEON
Ruth	Miss WINNIE MAITLAND
Salome	Miss WINNIE RELTON
Deborah	Miss ETHEL BRISCOE
Rebecca	Miss LILLIAN DAY
Zara	Miss JENNY LOVEYS
Eileen	Miss MILDRED M. REAY

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A large audience witnessed the first production of A Fisher-Maiden, and gave it a good send-off. The play opens in a fishing village, which is visited by Sir Esmond Branscombe incognito, in search of the heiress to the Glendale Hall and estates. She was stolen by gipsies when a child, and was last heard of in this out-of-the-way village. The missing girl is the only one who stands between Sir Esmond and the estates, but he is an honourable man, and is anxious to find the rightful owner. He is assisted in his search by a gipsy woman named Zara, but in the meantime he has come across a charming fisher maiden called Eileen, the adopted daughter of Josiah Belsack, the village coastguard. It is a case of mutual love, and Sir Esmond and Eileen are evidently intended for each other. Jeremiah Hapgood, the landlord of the Angler's Arms, has two wards, Gladys and Una, who are firm friends. Gladys is full of ambition, and aspires to be a lady. Whilst in this mood her guardian induces her to pass herself off as the missing heiress. At first she consents, but upon further reflection Gladys proves herself to be possessed of more sterling qualities, and refuses to take part in the fraud. In the end Zara proves by certain birthmarks that Eileen is the rightful heiress to the Glendale estates, and all is happy for her marriage to Sir Esmond. Dovetailed into this brief plot we have minor characters in a midshipman, Jim Trevor, and his sweetheart Molly, who considerably brighten the first act; Capt. Donaldson, Lord Carlton, and Lord Beverley, friends of Sir Esmond, who are in the village for a holiday, and cause amusement by masquerading as smugglers; and Oswald Harcourt, bailiff at the Hall, at first in love with Eilleen, but who transfers his affections to Gladys. Amongst the musical numbers we can select for special mention "Jack the Love of All" (Jim Trevor); a song and dance by Jim and Molly; "Down by the Shore" (Sir Esmond); "Honey, my Honey," with baby coon dancers; "Meet Me" (Eileen), with dance; and a minuet danced by Mr Launcelot O. King and Miss Hilda G. King. Other items of note are "Scorn not my Love," "That Happy Day," "The Smugglers," "Pride of the Village," and "I only want you dear." Miss Mildred M. Reay made a winsome and enchanting Eileen, and her musical voice stood her in good stead. Her love scenes were interesting and natural, and altogether she may be congratulated upon an artistic performance. Miss Jennie Morton's neat little style and method admirably suited the rôle of Gladys. She danced very nicely, delivered her lines with good elocutionary effect, and was both fascinating and agreeable. Miss Edith Fenton's merry presence in the character of Molly was always welcome; Miss Jenny Loveys spoke her lines with histrionic ability as the gipsy Zara; and Miss Dorothy Day was a charming Una. Mr Frank Maguire was commendable in the part of Sir Esmond Branscombe; Mr W. Percy Miers made the utmost of scanty opportunities as Jim Trevor; Messrs Vincent Reay, Edwin H. Meek, and Basil Dean played well together as Captain Donaldson, Lord Carlton, and Lord Beverley. Mr John Loveys, with the aid of a trick telescope, caused laughter as Josiah Belsack, the coastguard; and useful aid was given by Mr Sydney De Burgh as Jeremiah Hopgood, and Mr H. Oswald Smith as Oswald Harcourt. Misses Hilda Gudgeon, Winnie Maitland, Winnie Relton, Ethel Briscoe, and Lilian Day looked entrancing as lady friends of Gladys and Una. A full chorus, with well balanced voices, and the picturesque dresses were noteworty features. The large orchestra was under the bâton of the composer, and the opera was staged under the direction of Mr Arthur Phillips. We can compliment Mr Geoffrey Blackmore upon an opera which has many good points and is full of melody.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

On Saturday evening the Alexandra Palace Choral and Orchestral Society, under the conductorship of Mr Allen Gill, gave a performance of Edward Elgar's "Dream of Gerontius." The principal violin was Mr George Wilby; organist, Mr G. D. Cunningham. The words are from the poem by Cardinal Newman. Briefly, the argument represents Gerontius lying at the point of death, and he sees, as in a dream, the passing of his soul from earth towards the judgment seat of the Almighty. Mr William Green represented Gerontius, and his fine, well-trained voice was heard to advantage. The part of the Priest in part one and the Angel of the Agony in part two was entrusted to Mr Frederic Austin, whose efforts were worthy of commendation. Miss Edna Thornton's sweet voice as the Guardian Angel was duly recognised, and the solo, "Softly and gently, dearly ransomed soul," was much appreciated. Perhaps the most meritorious effort of the choir was the Chorus of Angelicals, "Praise to the Holiest in the height." Never has this well-known choir been heard to greater advantage, and the whole performance redounds highly to the credit of the painstaking conductor, Mr Allen Gill.

THE NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LOUGHBOROUGH.

This handsome new brick and stone theatre, which is now nearing completion, is being built by Messrs Payne Seddon and George Robertson, who have for four years been lessees of the Town Hall. It will seat 850 and hold 1,200 persons. The architect is Mr Albert E. King, of Loughborough and Leicester; the contractor, Mr A. Faulks; the decorator, Mr G. H. Cox, of Leicester; the furnishing is by Armstrong's, Loughborough; and the heating by Messenger and Co. The building is situated in Mill-street, with five exits and early-door exit in Packe-street, within one minute of the Market-square. It is lighted and ventilated throughout by electricity, and full dramatic and excise licences have been granted. The stage is 56ft. by 36ft. 6in., and will accommodate any size scenery. It is 32ft. from fly-rail to fly-rail. The dressing-room accommodation is very ample. The theatre will be opened in January next.

THE NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LOUGHBOROUGH.

PROPRIETOR, MR. W. PAYNE SEDDON. ARCHITECT, MR ALBERT E. KING.

IN Messrs Sotheby, Wilkinson, and Hodge's three days' sale, opening on Monday, the "lot" which attracted most attention was an imperfect copy of the Bible of 1613, with the New Testament of 1611. This volume, with the signature "William Shakespere, 1614" on the reverse of the title to the New Testament, and again on the end cover, "Willm. Shakespeare Off S O.A. (i.e., of Stratford-on-Avon), His Bible, 1613," was discovered near Manchester, about 1850, by the vendor's grandfather, Mr William Sharp, a well-known book and print collector; at his death, in 1881, it was inherited by his only daughter, the mother of the vendor. The volume contains, in addition to the alleged Shakespeare signatures, a number of other inscriptions by its successive owners, and one of these proves that the book was in Shakespeare's county seventeen years after his death. The bidding began at £105, and at £210 the volume become the property of Messrs Pearson and Co., the well-known booksellers, who were buying for an American collector. On Tuesday "The Most Excellent and Lamentable Tragiedie of Romeo and Juliet," 1637, an excellent copy of the fifth edition in quarto, and the last of the early quartos—went for £119 (Pickering); and "A Collection of the Vocal Music in Shakespeare's Plays, including the whole of the Songs, Duets, Gleas, Choruses, &c.," chiefly from the collection of W. Kitchener, M.D., 1815, revised and arranged by John Caulfield, a scarce volume containing the first collected form of Shakespearian music, fetched £9 15s. (Pearson).

NEW ENGLISH & FOREIGN PLAYS.

In order to assist managers and others in the selection of pieces for production and adaptation, we shall publish from time to time synopses of likely English and Continental plays, so that dramatic speculators may judge for themselves of the suitability of the plots for their purposes. Authors wishing for this publicity should forward synopses to "Playrights," care of The Era, from whom further particulars can be obtained.

"HANNELE'S ASCENSION."

Play, in Two Parts, by Gerhart Hauptmann.

PART I.

Scene 1.—Tulpe, Hedwig, and Hanke, in an almshouse in a small village in Silesia, gather round Pleschke, a pauper like themselves, and are quarelling over the division of the booty which the latter has brought home from his day's begging. Scene 2.—Enter Gottwald, the local schoolmaster, and Seidel, a wood-cutter. They are carrying Hannele Mattern, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Mattern, a villager known for brutality and heavy drinking. Hannele is gradually recovering consciousness; her mother's recent death and her father's heartless cruelty have caused her to endeavour to end her pitiable existence in the river. She has been dragged out of the water by Seidel. Gottwald, beloved by all for his humanity, has assisted Seidel in bringing her here. Both have the utmost difficulty in pacifying Hannele, who is in constant fear lest her father may come. Scene 3.—Berger, the magistrate, arrives to question Hannele and to probe the mystery of her attempt at suicide. His kindly words do not, however, prevail upon Hannele to answer. Gottwald, whose every word produces a look of ecstasy on the girl's face, asks her why she did not stay at home, Timorously and mysteriously Hannele replies that "the Lord bade her come." Berger leaves, intimating that he will issue a warrant for the arrest of Mattern, and promises to send a doctor and a sister. Scene 4.—Doctor Wachler enters. He expresses the fear that the hours of Hannele's life are numbered; her whole body is covered with scars and cuts, and her mind starts wandering again. She murmurs half-uttered words expressing a fervent desire to join her poor mother. Her features brighten when Sister Martha enters; she takes her for her mother. For a moment Hannele regains consciousness, entreating Sister Martha to forgive her all her sins. Then, however, fear that her father is approaching her sick-bed takes hold of her. Sister Martha succeeds in calming her, and asks her to rest quietly for a few minutes whilst she goes next door to fetch some cold water. Scene 5.—During her absence the hallucinations of the girl's mind are given real existence. The first vision is that of her father. She unconsciously hears him command her in coarse words to light the fire, and she is found by the fireside when Sister Martha returns. Scene 6.—With the pauper's help she succeeds in bringing Hannele back to life; in feverish words Hannele assures Sister Martha that Herr Gottwald, whom she speaks of in words of deepest reverence—believing him to be the mouthpiece of the Almighty—has promised her to be soon relieved of all bodily and mental agonies and that her soul will find perfect rest in Heaven. Her ecstasy increasing, she imagines she sees angels, and devoutly entreats Sister Martha, whom she calls "beloved mother," to sing the cradle-song which shall lull her into eternal sleep. Sister Martha calms her, and turning out the light asks Hannele to try and sleep. All the following scenes of the first act are filled by Hannele's dream.

It is dusk. At the edge of the bed is seated a deadly pale, ghost-like apparition; a "Frauengestalt." It is the vision of Hannele's mother, driven like Hannele unto death by Mattern's cruelty. Hannele asks her: "Mother, dost thou bring me glad tidings?" The "Frauengestalt" answers "Yes!" "Whence dost thou come?" asks Hannele. Whereupon the apparition answers "A hundred thousand miles through the darkness!" Hannele raves about her mother's beauty and eagerly listens to her description of the happiness that awaits her in Heaven (Hauptmann has imbued this scene with the great depth of sentiment and with poetical charm of language hardly equalled even by him in any other poetical play). The "Frauengestalt" vanishes, and to Hannele's exultant joy angels appear, lulling her into sleep and alluding in allegorical words to Hannele's past "autumn (misery) and imminent "spring" (happiness).

PART II.

Hannel's delirium now passes momentarily. Her features still bear the expression of ethereal joy. She ardently confides to Sister Martha that her mother and angels have visited her. Falling again into unconsciousness, Hannele in her dream (which fills all the remaining scenes but the last) addresses an angel attired in black, and Martha, thinking her asleep, slowly leaves the room. This vision is the "Diakonissin." Although younger and more beautiful than the "Frauengestalt" she is again regarded by Hannele as her mother. Hannele tells the Diakonissin to help her; for she is afraid of the figure she sees approaching. The vision replies that Hannele need not fear, the figure being her friend so eagerly desired—Death. Hannele, to the figure of Death: "I have often longed for you. Now I am afraid of you." The Diakonissin: "Get ready." Hannele: "For death?" Diakonissin: "Yes." Hannele (after a while, with childish timidity): "Shall I lie in the coffin in my torn and tattered rags?" Diakonissin: "The Lord will clothe you." A small hunch-backed tailor appears, carrying a bridal dress, veil, garland, and (glassy) slippers. The Diakonissin dresses Hannele, who is overwhelmed with joy at this great good fortune, and tells the Diakonissin that now she awaits death with gladness. But hardly has the vision of the tailor disappeared when Hannele is once more seized with terror at the thought of death. The Diakonissin, moved by Hannele's agonising entreaties, bids the "black angel" disappear. The strain of the funeral-march is heard, and Gottwald, followed by Hannele's fellow pupils and attired in mourning, appears. The Diakonissin: "Why are you so sad?" Gottwald: "Because she is dead." The Diakonissin: "We need not grieve; she has entered the Dominion of Eternal Peace; let us not begrudge her bliss." Gottwald asks the children to come with him into the death-chamber, and in eloquent and affecting words tells them that Hannele, in life the poorest, is now the richest and happiest of them all. He makes them obtain Hannele's forgiveness for all the wrong they have done her in life. Gottwald being left alone cannot any longer suppress his terrible grief and bids the dead Hannele farewell in heartrending, deeply religious words. Some mourners, villagers, and paupers now enter; they feel sure Hannele is a saint upon seeing four "white angels" approach with a coffin of glass. They give vent to their indignation at Mattern not attending the funeral of his child whom he has murdered. Mattern, however, now puts in an appearance; he is inebriate and fails to understand the reason for the villagers' presence. He is on the point of assaulting them when a "Stranger" ("Der Fremde") enters and humbly supplicates Mattern to take from him his pain and relieve his hunger and thirst. Mattern scorns the idea, but the "Stranger," with kind and impressive words, asks him to remember that he himself may one day require relief and then shows him the dead child's body. Mattern, who knew nothing of Hannele's death, is at first terrified thereby and by the general cry of "Murderer!" but after a moment he insolently replies to the "Stranger's" earnest but stern question that he is not responsible for the death. He is swearing his innocence when a miracle happens: Hannele raises her hand holding up a primrose. Mattern stares at the apparition like a madman, trembling from head to foot. The "Stranger": "Mattern, thou liest!" The villagers: "A miracle, a miracle!" Mattern cries "I will hang myself," and rushes off as if followed by the Furies. The "Stranger" implores the villagers not to be afraid of Hannele, who, he says, is not dead, but merely asleep. He calls on Hannele to rise; she opens her eyes, looks at the "Stranger," recognises in Him the "Great Saviour"—whom in life she knew as Gottwald—and steps out of the coffin. The villagers are seized with horror and hasten out of the room. Hannele, overcome with joyful emotion, kneels down before Him, and in a voice choked with tears humbly beseeches the "Stranger" to cleanse her soul as white as snow. The "Stranger": "With thy tears I cleanse thy soul of the dust and woe of terrestrial life. I will gather thee unto the fold!" The "Stranger" and angels now guide the poor troubled soul of Hannele Mattern into the "Celestial Realm!"

Hannele lies on the bed, poorly dressed as before. Dr. Wachler bends over her. Sister Martha holds the candle, and looking anxiously at the doctor, asks: "Dead?" The doctor nods sadly: "Yes; dead!"

COVENT-GARDEN BALL.

The fancy dress balls at Covent-garden, under the admirable management of Messrs Frank Rendle and Niel Forsyth, have proved as successful as in any previous season, and on the night of the 11th inst. there was again a large attendance. Among the dresses which appealed to the imagination was one entitled "The Poet's Dream of Fame." This was a white satin dress picturing a poet falling asleep on the doorstep of the workhouse, and setting forth in a pictorial manner the visions of his dreams of fame. "The Elements" was another dress that was beautiful in its suggestiveness, and gained for Mr W. Clarkson a first prize (lady's). The well-known perruquier also won a first (gents.) for a novel costume entitled "Madame Batavier's Brother," a second prize for "The Poet's Dream of Fame" already mentioned, and several other smaller prizes. Other special prize winners were "The Autumn Exodus," "Cupid's Corner," "My Canadian Home," and "Winter Roses." One of the features of the evening was the impersonation of a great bear, escorted by Signor B. Volpi, of the Royal Italian Circus. Many of the dancers were quite nervous as the huge brute approached them, and were under the impression that it was the renowned Madame Batavia, "the bear that looks like a woman," of Stock Exchange fame. Madame Batavia, however, was prevented from dancing owing to a chill contracted on the previous day, but early in the evening she drove to Covent-garden and surveyed the merry throng for a short time. The march past at two o'clock was, as usual, an exceedingly pretty sight. The platform was transformed into an Italian garden, in the centre of which Mr Dan Godfrey's band was placed, and the programme of music gave complete satisfaction. The "Centenary" ball will take place on Friday, Dec. 2 next. The theatre is to be redecorated, and the stage will once more be available for "sitting out." The first prize is to be a diamond, ruby, and sapphire butterfly brooch, and a souvenir will be given to every lady visitor.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.

On Tuesday Afternoon, Nov. 15, for the First Time in England, the Play in Five Acts, by Maurice Maeterlinck, translated by Alfred Sutro, entitled

"AGLAVAINE AND SELYSETTE."

Selysette	Miss THYRZA NORMAN
Yssaline	Miss MARION PLARR
Meilgraine	Miss FLORENCE FARR
Meleander	Mr WALTER HAMPDEN

The one clear impression made upon most people after witnessing such a play as Aglavaine and Selysette is that it is for the study rather than for the stage. The want of action, the long speeches, and the certainty as to the ending of the slight story, all combine to make the piece unsuitable for the stage. It is of too fragile and delicate a nature to bear the glare of the footlight; and the dialogue, beautiful as many of the ideas and suggestions unquestionably are, does not possess the directness and vigour essential to the making of a successful play—successful in the sense that it wins the favourable verdict of the vast majority of the audience. The characters are shadowy creatures of strange moods; there is an air of unreality about their actions and their surroundings; and one seems to listen to them and to watch their movements as in a dream. Mr Alfred Sutro, who has translated several of Maeterlinck's plays, may be accepted as an excellent authority when judging of their merits—and their meaning. Writing of one particular series of the Belgian poet-dramatist's published plays, he remarks in his interesting introduction to the volume:—"A curious fatalism runs through them all; we feel that the men and women before us are merely unravelling the web that destiny has spun round their lives—destiny being a mysterious and inexorable force whose behests they must blindly obey. They are the slaves of their passions, slaves of the events which befall them; they are primitive beings, the mainspring of whose action lies for ever exposed on the surface; they are creatures in whom deed follows instinctively on thought—and yet are we curiously conscious the while of the struggle in their soul, of their vague and helpless desire, as fate hurries them swiftly along to their doom." Referring to the much-discussed question of the symbolic significance of the plays and the probably mistaken assumption that there is scarcely a line in Maeterlinck's writings but has its "special cryptic meaning," Mr Sutro says:—"Symbolism there certainly is, but it is broad and general; one central idea, or set of ideas, will govern the whole; the plays, however, are invariably simple and direct, and by no means underlined with constant symbolic suggestion. The air, it may be, is charged with mystery, but only such as pertains to the shadowy twilight in which the characters move and have being." The story of Aglavaine and Selysette is so extremely simple that it can be told in a few lines. The trouble and difficulties which arise when two women are in love with the same man is the foundation of the plot. One of them resolves to sacrifice herself and commit suicide to secure the happiness of those she loves. It is a situation that is as old as the hills, only Maeterlinck has his own peculiar method of presenting the characters and working out the details. As an instance of what we mean we may take the curious incident of the strange green bird. Poor Selysette, accompanied by her little sister Yssaline, betakes herself to a lonely tower, which looks upon the placid sea. Yssaline goes with her because she is devoured by curiosity to see the bird, which, according to her sister, never seems tired of flying round and round the tower and has wings of "a strange pale green, inconceivably strange and pale." But the child is disappointed, for the bird never appears; and Selysette throws herself off the tower though she takes precautions to make it appear an accident. Alighting on a sandbank she is fatally injured, and being found she is carried home to die. The players responsible for the representation were well fitted for their by no means easy task. Miss Edyth Olive deserves every credit for her admirable embodiment of Aglavaine. She spoke her lines in such a manner as to impart to them their utmost significance, and her utterance was always delightfully distinct and clear. Miss Thyrza Norman was also successful in her treatment of the part of Selysette. The character presents formidable difficulties, which might have daunted an actress of far greater experience. Miss Norman won sympathy, and admiration as well, by her clever portrayal of the weaker—physically and mentally—of the two women, and the natural irresolution of the one who intends to take her own life. Mr Walter Hampden played well as Meleander, a part that does not afford its exponent many opportunities. Miss Florence Farr was duly impressive as the aged, paralysed grandmother, and little Miss Marion Plarr greatly distinguished herself as Selysette's little sister, Yssaline. A more natural and intelligent child performance we have seldom witnessed. The scenery was quite in keeping with the mystic nature of the play, though the frequent changes were somewhat tiresome. The incidental music was expressly composed for the production by Mr Donald Tovey. It was for strings only, and fairly reflected the spirit of the poem-play.

On Wednesday a special matinée performance of Othello, under the direction of Mr F. J. Nettlefold, with the following cast:—

Brabantio	Mr FRANKLIN WALFORD
Gratiano	Mr FRANK ROYD

Emilia	Miss AGNES INGREVILLE

Wednesday's matinée was in the nature of an experiment. It is proposed by the management to institute a course of morning performances (under the auspices of a society to be formed), at which English plays, both modern and classical, shall be presented in a manner worthy of their merits. The matinée on Wednesday proved so successful that we may look forward to a series of similar performances. They are deserving of liberal patronage, as they will, we may assume, afford opportunities to young actors and actresses which they would not otherwise obtain. We cannot say whether the scheme includes the production of entirely new plays; if it does the great unacted would also have a chance of getting their dramas produced; and the Court Theatre matinées would serve a double useful purpose.

Wednesday's representation of Othello was interesting, and if it did not actually result in the discovery of a new and brilliant star in the theatrical firmament, there was much to commend in the acting of the principals. The Moor himself had a worthy representative in Mr F. J. Nettlefold, who gave a bold and vigorous portrayal of one of the best known of Shakespearian characters. Young, manly, and dignified in appearance, Mr Nettlefold quite realised one's conception of the brave soldier who, as a commentator puts it, "is too magnanimous, too self-confident, and too devoid of penetrating subtlety of brain to grapple successfully with a difficult situation." The savage desperation born of suspicion of his wife's infidelity was depicted with power and conviction; and, generally speaking, the embodiment was, if not a strikingly brilliant effort, at least a thoroughly sound one, which did infinite credit to the actor. Mr Gilbert Hudson presented a careful study of the character of Iago, who, although the most clear-sighted person of the play, shares the tragic blindness which befalls his victims and becomes a tragic figure too. Mr Hudson forcibly expressed the hatred and envy which prompt the Ancient to plot against Othello's peace of mind. Mr Norman Partriege greatly distinguished himself in the part of Cassio. He was the gallant, light-hearted soldier to the life, and his assumption of drunkenness was excellent, without being in the least overdone, while the lieutenant's subsequent feelings of shame and remorse after the fight with Montano were admirably expressed. Mr Esmonde Bramley did good work as Roderigo; Mr Alfred Heath as the Duke of Venice spoke his lines with dignity and effect; and Mr Franklin Walford scored in the part of Brabantio. Mr Cecil Duncan as Montano, Mr Frank Royd as Gratiano, and Mr Perry Kynaston as Lodovico lent able assistance. Miss Millie Ford was a girlish and graceful Desdemona, her performance winning the favourable verdict of the audience. Miss Agnes Ingreville was seen to considerable advantage in the rôle of Emilia, and all the minor rôles were satisfactorily sustained.

THE GRAND.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Geo. R. Sims and Henry Pettitt, entitled
"THE SILVER FALLS."

Mr George Davey has revived this Adelphi drama, the interpretation being again entrusted to the stock company. The drama, with its western flavour, lends itself strongly to picturesque mounting, and Mr Oswald Brand has availed himself of the opportunity with good results. Mr Ernest Leicester as Eric Normanhurst played in his usually easy and effective manner, and added another laurel to the many he has gained here. Mr Arthur Estcourt as Marcus Valles played an intense rôle with his experienced touch and skill. Mr Hal Collier as Jack Slingsby once again brought his amusing personality to bear on his performance with happy results. Mr Frank Stone as Maquire was the typical Irishman to the life, and he is to be complimented on his brogue. Mr Joynson Powell as Dick Redmayne was again excellent, giving a very clever reading; Mr J. Dudley as Lord Avondale was dignified and effective; Mr George Elliston as Tennesee Bill was amusing; and Mr H. Trevor as Yokohama Joe was commendable. Messrs H. Baines and H. Jelly as the Sheriff and the Inspector were both adequate in their respective parts. Miss Kate Brand as Primrose Easterbooke did well. Miss Helen Bancroft, too, as Lola deserves warm praise for a signally good performance. Miss Winnie Leeson as Nora O'Reilly was humorous in a rather poor part; and Miss Winnie Wood deserves mention for her performance. The drama was received with every indication of approval. Mr Davey's early-door attractions this week include, besides the Bioscope, Judge's famous cockatoos and Kier and Kempton. Mr C. W. O'Connor, the courteous Press representative here, discharges his duties with his accustomed urbanity.

THE PAVILION

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, by Martyn Field and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"HOW LONDON LIVES."

The favourite Princess's drama, How London Lives, by Messrs Martyn Field and Arthur Shirley, is being cordially received at the Pavilion this week. Mr Ashley Page submits a capital study of Jack Ferrers, acting throughout with earnestness and vigour. The embodiment of the unscrupulous Stephen Grainger by Mr Frank Harding is convincing and praiseworthy, and Mr J. C. Aubrey acts Colonel Sir George Ferrers with great ability and power. Mr Harry Barford is satisfactory as Lieut. Harry Maxwell, and Mr Wilfred E. Shine is well to the fore as the Microbe, while Mr Harry Bristow plays neatly as Bertie. Mr Fred Boustead, well made up, is thoroughly efficient as the Pawnbroker, and Mr Roland Riley is a capable Sandy M'Grab. Miss Marion Denvil as Gladys gives a sweet and sympathetic reading of the character, being especially good in the garret scene. Miss Valerie Crespin, although somewhat nervous, scored as Lady Ferrars; and Miss Tina Mavro is a pleasing representative of Molly Crockett; while Maudie finds in Miss Kitty Cardigan a vivacious exponent. Miss Sara Besant makes a charming Katie; while Miss Milly Murray as Mrs Delaney, Miss Beaumont as Janet, Mr F. Withers as Billy Tigser, Mr Johnson as Snitch, Mr Godfrey as Crumpets, and Mr Gibbs as Benson render adequate support. The remaining characters are well filled by Messrs Charles Fisher, F. J. Hood, J. Black, Sewell, and Master Joe Conn. The piece is mounted and staged in admirable style, due to the excellent management of the stage by Mr Fred Boustead. The fine playing of the Pavilion orchestra, under the direction of Mr Charles Aves, is still a source of great satisfaction; while this week great praise must be given to Mr F. W. Oliver, late Sergeant R.A, for the gratifying success he achieved by his brilliantly executed cornet solo "The Lost Chord."

THE BRITANNIA.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Paul Meritt and George Conquest, entitled "MANKIND."

Mr Sydney Hyman and Mr John M. East, in pursuance of their policy of reviving the taste for melodrama among the staunch lovers of the theatre to be found in Hoxton and its neighbourhood, are reproducing this week at the big theatre the Surrey drama entitled Mankind, written for that famous transpontine house in the palmy days of the Conquest régime by the late Paul Meritt and George Conquest. The collaboration of these two experienced playwrights had secured many dramatic triumphs at the old Grecian Theatre in the City-road, and the Surrey-side playgoers found very palatable fare in Mankind, which, when it originally saw the footlights, on Oct. 3, 1881, was divided into no less than seven acts. It was then considered one of the most marvellously constructed plays imaginable. The spectator is kept in a state of the utmost interest and keenest excitement as the piece progresses and develops, showing the handiwork of a master craftsman in construction and a skilled writer. Mr George Conquest originally played the principal part, Daniel Groodge, a hoary-headed scoundrel, aged 101, and at the Britannia the son of the deceased author-actor is playing his father's character on the lines laid down by his sire. Groodge boasts that he shook hands with Nelson after the battle of the Nile, and he strongly objects to washing the hand the hero pressed, its griminess being sacred. But though he has a pretty wit and a nice sense of sarcasm at the expense of a younger generation he is a very savage when roused. One of the strongest scenes of the play is his murder of Peter Sharpley, his partner. It is a terrible exhibition of human malevolence and passion, and creates immense excitement among the Hoxton Britons. The wheedling hypocrisy and benevolent cant of the old humbug are very amusingly emphasized by Mr Conquest, and he is extremely powerful in the scene to which we have just referred. Mr Charles A. East lends most admirable support as Peter Sharpley, the crafty money-lender, whose schemes are so sensationally terminated by his aged partner in usury and villainy. Mr H. Hamilton Stewart as Edmund Sharpley makes a callous-hearted man of the world; and Edmund's hypocritical reconciliation in the first act with the wife he has deserted evokes cynical comments from gallery and pit—tributes that are decidedly complimentary to the actor. Mr W. S. Hartford, an old Britannia favourite, who has been globe-trotting since he last held an engagement in Hoxton, shows all his old power in the part of the virtuous and cheery Philip Warren; Mr Charles Langley is responsible for good work as George Melton; and the cruelty of Joshua Monkeytrick—a distinct libel on the showman class—is well emphasised by Mr H. H. Barrington. The adventures of Barnaby and Arabella Bright are a continual source of amusement, and the loving couple's plight when they take a voyage on the wrong steamer causes shouts of laughter. Mr Sydney Harcourt's Barnaby is a refreshing piece of low comedy, and from his pearlied "round-me-houses" to his saucy-looking "kadi" he is the very type of a good-humoured coster. Barnaby's continual references to his moke and the twins have just the touch of nature that is demanded in domestic stage scenes, and Hoxtonites are immensely tickled thereby. Miss Marie Wright is also genuinely funny as Arabella, and the affectionate nature and the warm-heartedness of the faithful spouse of the coster are brought into strong relief by this capable actress. Miss Rose Ralph is pathetic in the tear-compelling part of Alice Maitland; Miss V. Temple is adequate to her responsibilities in the part of Keziah Bickerton; Miss D. Cacey is effective as Constance Melton; Miss Marshall is amusing as Jane Agnes Frisby, the parlourmaid; and Miss C. Bezant begets sympathy for the sorrows and hardships of Jessie. Messrs Brian Daly, Fred Groves, Charles Groves, J. Thomas, and C. Seaton also lend adequate aid in the other characters. The piece, which is mounted with great care and elaboration, is followed by a variety entertainment, in which Mr Jake Friedman makes a hit in an operatic burlesque. Other turns include Miss Lily Stewart, serio and dancer; Herbert Rule, with quaint songs; and an interesting series of animated pictures. The programme winds up with the farce Paddy Miles's Boy.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Nov. 14,
"THE DARLING OF THE GODS."

Mr H. Beerbohm Tree's carefully selected company holds the boards this week at the pretty Coronet theatre with David Belasco's picturesque and stirring drama The Darling of the Gods. The effective tableaux consisting of the garden within the yashiki of Prince Tosan, and the first celestial heaven (in the clouds), are splendidly set forth in a manner well worthy of the traditions of His Majesty's Theatre, and a most finished and artistic performance is given by Mr Tree's clever company. With the war-cloud in the east hanging over the whole of Europe, and the fateful happenings in the Orient, any play that gives us a peep into lotus-land is specially interesting, appropriate, and instructive. This drama shows us the semi-barbaric splendour and superstition out of which the present progressive and powerful nation has sprung, and it helps us to understand the contempt of danger and death which possesses the patriots in the Far East. The part of the grim, saturnine, omnipotent, far-seeing, relentless Zakkuri is most forcibly rendered by Mr Robert Pateman, who makes of him a far more bestial, licentious being than Mr Tree did. He is a veritable Caliban among men, a monster full of unbridled passions, while equally relentless, and full of vaulting ambition as the crafty minister of state. Miss Frances Dillon gives a very sweet and charming performance as Yo-San (the Darling of the Gods), who opines that she was "not created to suffer." Mr Douglas Gerrard creates a good impression as Kara, the fearless outlaw prince and leader of the Samurai. He has just the air of quiet dignity and dauntless resolution necessary for the part, besides being an excellent elocutionist. Mr Arthur Vezin is good in the small part of Tonda-Tanji, Zakkuri's "highly-scented" nephew. Miss Eve Muriel is bright and attractive as Rosey Sky (a dweller in the "city without nights"), and she acts with verve and spirit in the closing scenes of the geisha's downfall. Miss Rhoda Ray dances well and looks nice as Madame Asani, the war minister's passing fancy; Miss Edith Deverell contributes a pleasing picture of Yo-San's maid, Setsu; and Miss Maud Ruthven as Niji Oana, Rosey Sky's maid, and Miss Dorothy Brunt as Nu (a singing girl) are eminently satisfactory. Mr Douglas Payne is excellent as Inu (Yo-San's dumb servitor), and he makes his mark by a most finished performance of this difficult part. Mr Hubert Druce does well in the rôle of Kato, the fisher by the inland seas, and he also fulfils the duties of stage-manager most creditably. In a long cast Mr Alexander Haviland as a noble, Mr Ivan F. Simpson as the Prince of Tosan, and Messrs Harry Wallace, George Harrison, W. J. Robertson, Arthur Lyons, Allestone, and A. Sherridan as Zakkura's creatures deserve favourable mention. Mr Horace Cole assists Mr Edward Lytton at the front of the house.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled "A DISGRACE TO HER SEX."

Written in quite his happiest vein, this realistic drama of Mr Walter Melville's has quickly secured a hold on the feelings of the susceptible Marylebone playgoers, who dearly love their plays packed with sensational and emotional scenes. Needless to say, A Disgrace to Her Sex in no way disappointed them. The chief honours were easily carried off by Mr Augustine Knight, whose Jules Delarnet was the hit of the evening. No more competent actor than Mr Knight could be found to play the fawning, obsequious Frenchman, and his success was most marked. Mr Phil Harper enacted Jack Dawes in a spirited, manly way, making a good impression; Mr Arthur Chisholme was quietly effective as Dexter; Mr Eugene Santley praiseworthy as David Carrington; and Mr David G. Noble as Arnold Travers acted with much ability. The comedy powers of Mr Arthur Byron found ample scope in the part of the dog fancier, Barnaby Muggs, and he quickly became a warm favourite, as did Miss Madge Yates as Bella Muggs, she playing up to Mr Byron in capital style. Miss Winnie Tempest was exceedingly graceful and charming as the unfortunate Mabel Valley, and Miss Nellie Lucas was equally winsome and delightful as the more fortunate Mildred Carrington. The trying rôle of Hilda Valley was sustained by Miss Grace Heywood in forcible fashion, her acting at times rising to a high level. All the minor characters were carefully played, and the mounting and staging were up to the usual high standard that one associates with Mr Walter Melville's productions.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

"WOMEN AND WINE."

Mr Milton Bode's company is here in Messrs Ben Landeck and Arthur Shirley's realistic drama, Women and Wine, and the play is presented in admirable style by a capable company. Miss Edith Blande in the character of Marcel Rigadout gives a powerful rendering of the part of a French demi-monde, who lures Dick Seymour away from his home and happiness. Miss Ernestine Holker acts sympathetically as the heroine Mary Andrews, who remains true to her first love, in spite of his many faults. La Colombe has a capital representative in Miss Nellie Lauraine, and in the fight to the death with Marcel these two artists are seen to advantage. Mr F. Robertson as Dick Seymour, the spendthrift, acts exceedingly well. Mr Fred Mace is pathetic in the part of the blind father, who believes in his boy to the end. Mr F. Eaglesfield as Phineas Collins and Mr E. R. Beaumont as Mark Perkins, the two scoundrels who assist Marcel in her treachery, act well. A clever study of Pierre Crucru, who is never so happy as when gloating over the prospect of bloodshed, is given by Mr Herbert Landeck. Mr Tom Tindall as Professor Sawter, Mr Percy Dawsone as Charlie Sawter, his son, and Miss Muriel Vox as Janet Marlowe are very funny in their respective parts, and cause the audience to roar with laughter whenever they were on the stage. Mr Walter Thornton as Alphonse Beaudet does well as the lover of La Colombe. Mr H. Compton as Duc D'Arnac and Mr R. Lynn as Bob Tipton give a good account of themselves. Mr Fred Harcourt as President of the Court; Mr A. Mitchell, Foreman of the Jury; Mr A. V. Webster as Joseph; Mr H. Wheatley, an Advocate; Mr Percy Cooper as Carlo; Miss Rose Galloway as Madame Perinet; and Miss Lucy Langley as Suzanne lend their valuable assistance to make the play successful. The Edène Troupe of lady dancers deserve a word of praise for their speciality dances in "Le Bal Japonais." The paly was mounted in lavish style, and the dresses were magnificent.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Nov. 14,
the Musical Play, in Two Acts, by George Dance, Composed by Howard Talbot, entitled
"A CHINESE HONEYMOON."

Mr George Dance's company are paying another visit here this week with the phenomenally successful play, A Chinese Honeymoon, the vitality of which seems inexhaustible. Mr Martin Adeson is still very much to the fore as Mr Pineapple, and his performance has lost none of its vigour by frequent repetition. Miss Madge Temple is a charming exponent of the Princess Soo-Soo, and her singing is one of the most enjoyable features of the production. She has a capital song in "Egypt," but the liberal allowance of encores that is given becomes a little irksome. A very alert and active Fifi is found in Miss Vera Vere, and her amusing and entertaining performance of the impossible little waitress in provocative of incessant laughter in every scene in which she is concerned. An imposing Emperor of Ylang-Ylang is Mr Philip Hayden, who contrives to invest the part with no little humour; and the Chippie Chop of Mr Ernest Laws and the Admiral Hi Lung of Mr Fred Payne are both in their way excellent performances. Mr Frank Crimp is a breezy and vivacious Tom Atherton, and scores heavily with his topical song in the second act. A clever sketch of the official mother-in-law, Mrs Brown, comes from Mrs Holford Beringer, and Miss Eva Bevington makes the very most of the many excellent opportunities the part of Mrs Pineapple affords her. The good work done by the chorus deserves recognition, and the mounting and dressing of the piece leave nothing to be desired. Mr A. Romilli is the musical conductor.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Musical Comedy, by Malcolm Watson, entitled "WINNIE BROOKE, WIDOW."

Mr Purcell is again to be congratulated on the fare he has provided for his patrons this week, for the verdict of the house each night has been unanimous; and Miss Ada Reeve cannot but feel highly gratified at the heartiness of the welcome that has been accorded her in Holloway. A load of responsibility rests upon the shoulders of Miss Reeve, and at the end of each act, even to the last, she receives an ovation for her piquant and resourceful acting, and more especially, perhaps, for her singing which is greatly admired. Her songs, "Woman," "Something to learn," and "Born, not made," meet with warm recognition; and her duet, "If you were a schoolboy," with Mr Edgar Steevens as Reginald Frampton is one of the hits of the evening. Mr Henry Vibart must come in for high commendation for his Dudley Mayne, a part he fills in a most capable manner. Mr Edgar Steevens, as before mentioned, essays the rôle of Reginald Frampton, and gives a manly and hearty impersonation. He scores an early success with his rendering of "Love is sweet," and also shares honours with Miss Reeve in the duet referred to above. Mr Leon Ashton-Jarry gives a capital interpretation of Julian Croft, one of Mayne's Brotherhood; and Mr Stephen Adeson meets with warm recognition for the clever representation he gives of the solicitor, Montague Brent, causing much mirth with his song, "The popular roundabout way." Mr James Stephenson is responsible for a large amount of fun as the Rev. Elihu Garside, and Mrs Garside has an admirable representative in Miss Janet Hodson. A very clever impersonation is that of Mr Edward Rigby as the odd boy, Hercules Grant. He has a quiet but particularly humorous manner, which keeps the audience highly amused. Miss Drusilla Wills very ably supports Mr Rigby as Eustacia Eglantine Honoria Brown, and wins golden opinions for her impersonation. Mr Frederick B. Sharp, in addition to the heavy duties of stage-management, is especially worthy of praise for his thoroughly able portrayal of Toby Blossom, porter at Mr Mayne's. His performance is a strikingly marked feature, and his clever acting is greeted with applause. The parts of Gracie Hampton and Nora Caswell are capably filled by Miss Lucie Caine and Miss Ruth Hazlewood. We must not forget to compliment Mrs Charles Maltby on her very clever contribution to the success of the play in the part of Hannah, the mild humour of the character being skilfully carried out. The remaining members of the cast, and the chorus in particular, work well, and the Marlborough orchestra, under the direction of Mr J. A. Robertson, deserves credit for its admirable work.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 14, for the First Time in London, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Max Goldberg, entitled
"THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE."

Barry Phelps	Mr JOHN F. PRESTON
Rev. Walter Meredith	Mr ERNEST R. ALLEN
Adolphus Green	Mr C. H. PULLEN
Morris Morris	Mr ARTHUR HARTLEY
Steve Morris	Mr GEO. R. MONTFORD
Captain Goodman	Mr JAMES PAGE
Tim Toosh	Mr HARRY BENSON
Jem Butterworth	Mr FRANK A. OSBORNE
Mr Movington	Mr HARDY MACRO
Sanitary Inspector	Mr ERNEST WAGHORNE
Superintendent of Police	Mr ALBERT WADE
Lady Longthorpe	Miss GEORGIE WALTON
Sal Jenkins	Miss POLLY TAYLOR
Maggie Miggs	Miss MABELLE F. BARLOW
Mary Maynard	Miss HILDA SHIRLEY
Liz	Miss GERTRUDE GODART

A play which exposes the iniquitous methods of men who gain wealth at the cost of their fellow creatures' health and even lives serves a good purpose, inasmuch as it must of necessity tend to create a strong feeling that such glaring abuses in our social system should be got rid of as speedily as possible. Indeed, Mr Max Goldberg's drama (which was first seen at the Star Theatre, Liverpool, last May) teaches a wholesome lesson which may profitably engage the attention of the social reformer. It reveals in a vivid light the detestable ways of the sordid sweater of labour; and the deplorable results of his hateful money-making system. Ministers of religion are not always popular characters on the stage—they are too often of the type of the Rev. Robert Spalding—but in The Voice of the People we have a "fighting parson" of the right sort, who preaches and practices true Christianity. His stand up fight with a bully is one of the most effective scenes in the play. This fine example of the muscular Christian is the Rev. Walter Meredith, who brings to the work of social reform much enthusiasm and the hopefulness of youth. In the miserable sweater's den are seen young women employed at sewing machines making shirts for 1½d. each, under the eagle eye of a cruel taskmaster, who haggles over their work with the pitiful object of reducing the miserable pittance he offers them. Morris Morris, who has became wealthy by enforcing in his workshops the sweating system, is tackled by the young clergyman, who in solemn tones warns him that the "voice of the people" will bring about a righteous retribution. His son and heir Steve Morris, is leading a gay, reckless life, and of course is in need of money to spend on his pleasures. Father and son have a quarrel, and Steve murders the old man. Then, imitating the voice of his deceased parent, he telephones to the nearest police station informing the authorities that he is being murdered in his own house by the clergyman Meredith. The accused is arrested, but he is fortunately able to prove an alibi, and so defeat Steve's vile plot. Nor does the parricide attain his purpose of securing the newly made will, which is seized by Steve's property agent, Barry Phelps, a broken-down actor who has been a witness of the crime. Steve, fearing that Barry may betray him, contrives to get him placed in an asylum, but he does not remain an inmate very long. Happening to meet a girl named Liz, who was formerly employed in the sweater's den, he makes the discovery by means of a portrait locket that she is his own daughter. He, it appears, deserted her mother soon after Liz was born. The friendless girl is heiress to a fortune bequeathed to her deceased mother, who had wealthy relatives, a friend of whom, Captain Goodman, at last discovers the whereabouts of Liz. He had been searching for years for the missing heiress. In the third act there is presented a realistic street scene—the Exterior of the Craven Arms. The mob make an attack upon the public house, smashing the large plate-glass windows with stones. This is one of the most sensational scenes in the play. Before the curtain falls for the last time Steve and his accomplice Jem Butterworth are arrested whilst engaged in an attempt to rob Walter Meredith, the police having received a timely warning from Barry. The clergyman marries Mary Maynard, a work-girl who becomes a nurse; and he is enabled to improve the condition of the poor work-people, whose cause he has so nobly taken up. Mr Ernest R. Allen was well placed as the zealous and sturdy clerical reformer, the Rev. Walter Meredith, and his fistic encounter with the bully arouses the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Mr G. R. Montford carefully and effectively portrayed the unprincipled scheming Steve Morris, who comes to an ignominious end. Mr Arthur Hartley made good use of his opportunities as the repentant sweater, Morris Morris. Mr John F. Preston (otherwise Max Goldberg, the author of the play) has a capital character in the broken-down actor, and his presence on the stage was always welcome. The fallen star has a habit of quoting Shakespeare, but the passages are often altered just to suit the situation. Mr Preston secured by his happy rendering of the part a large share of the honours of the evening. Mr Frank A. Osborne was excellent as Jem Butterworth, the tool of Steve Morris; and Mr James Page was satisfactory as Captain Goodman. Mr C. H. Pullen was amusing as Adolphus Green, Lady Longthorpe's nephew, a dude; Miss Gertrude Walton won the sympathy of the audience by her admirable embodiment of Liz; Miss Hilda Shirley did well as Mary Maynard; Miss Georgie Walton was sufficiently dignified as the wealthy but narrow-minded Lady Longthorpe; and Miss Mabelle F. Barlow showed a keen sense of humour as the servant Maggie Miggs. Miss Polly Taylor as Sol Jenkins, a loafer, Mr Albert Wade as Superintendent of Police, Mr Harry Benson as Tim Toosh, Mr Hardy Macro as Mr Movington lent able assistance. The drama was staged in a manner that gave complete satisfaction.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, by Messrs Paul Merritt and George Conquest, entitled "FOR EVER."

The autumn stock company, organised by Mr. Ernest E. Norris, the enterprising manager of this popular suburban playhouse, is rendering a good account of itself this week in the exciting and interesting drama For Ever. Mr Fred Conquest is responsible for the principal character, Zacky, the man-monkey, and his representation of the part is highly efficient. He speedily gains the close attention of the house by his thorough and earnest acting, and his efforts are greeted with enthusiastic appreciation. Mr Ernest E. Norris essays the rôle of Captain Jasper Daremont with great success, and his virile and forcible impersonation is quite to the liking of the onlookers. As Abel Rockley Mr Jo Monkhouse is eminently suited, whilst Mr Harry Paulton, jun., creates much amusement in the part of Tim Tifany. Mr Edwin Bennett is aristocratic and dignified as Sir Philip Daremont. Potkins is capably played by Mr Howard Templeton, and Mr Ernest Percy gives a good study of a polished and unscrupulous scoundrel. Mr Paige Lawrence looks austere as Mr Justice Wigney, and Mr A. Davis is efficient as Dorkins. Mrs Bennett acts with all her accustomed sincerity in the part of Phillis, and conveys a true insight into the character of a much-injured and falsely accused wife. Miss Judith Kyrle deserves a full meed of praise for a convincing rendering of a difficult rôle, that of Abel Rockley's daughter. Her performance is a most finished one, and she thoroughly earns the warm encomiums showered upon her. Miss Agnes Paulton is distinctly bright and pleasing in the part of Polly Patcham. The numerous minor characters are all intelligently interpreted, and the general mounting of the drama is in every way excellent.

NEW EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Comedy, in Three Acts, by F. Fenn and R. Price, entitled
"SATURDAY TO MONDAY."

Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's excellent company is occupying this pretty theatre with Saturday to Monday, being the first appearance here of this successful comedy, which is drawing good business. Miss Moyra Creegan, the fascinating Mrs Wendover, is the life and soul of every scene in which she appears, and her finished performance is of the utmost value. Mr Stuart Champion is a favourite as Lord Culvert. His acting is as natural as it is effective, and his efforts meet with general appreciation. Mr Dallas Welford has appeared here before, and his interpretation of Stanley Pidding is up to his usual mark, and Miss Madeline L'Estrange as the eccentric Lady Porchester, is all that could be desired. Able support comes from pretty Miss Nancy Beresford as Angelis, Mr Thomas Sidney commendably plays the rôle of Rev. Lemuel Toop and Miss Joseph Kaye makes the most of her opportunities as Miss Ursula Toop. Miss Ida Laurie is quietly effective as Miss Skeet, and a word of praise is due to Mr Thomas A. Braidon as Probyn Dyke. The comedy is preceded by Judged by Appearances, in which the following take part:—Mr Dallas Welford as Arthur Denison, Miss Nancy Beresford, Helen; Mr Thomas Sydney and James Wyche as Burglar and Constable respectively.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Musical Comedy-Drama entitled
"ONE WOMAN'S WICKEDNESS."

Mr Sharp has made an excellent engagement for this week in arranging for the appearance of Mr Charles H. Phelps and company in One Woman's Wickedness, of which drama Mr Phelps is the author and representative of the leading male part, Jem Craggs, which he plays with considerable power and ability. Mr Lawrence Brian is a capital representative of Philip Beaufort. Mr Hubert Humphreys is excellent as Paul Roque, and also as Justice Hotpot. Mr Arthur Ferris makes a very good impression as Lord Algernon Fitznoodle; Mr Howard Ward plays Limpy Larry characteristically; Miss Frances Jessop is good as Marrienne Beaufort; Miss Florence Lloyd is a pleasing Janet Raymond; Miss Florence M. Daly is excellent as Aunt Crasy; Miss Ethel Ashbury is bright and smart as Jenny Jiggles; and Miss Louie Davis is very successful as Lillian Craggs.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Nov. 14, Shakespeare's Tragedy,
"JULIUS CÆSAR."

Local Shakespearian admirers are receiving with delight and meet appreciation the visit of Mr Tree's répertoire company, which is fulfilling a week's engagement at the Borough Theatre. On Monday night Julius Cæsar was presented to an enthusiastic audience, eloquent testimony that Mr Tree's laudable desire to familiarise stage representations of Shakespeare's works with suburban and provincial audiences, maintained in such style as to add true locale and atmosphere and interpreted by artists who speak Shakespeare properly, is reaping its due reward. Mr Wm. Haviland's interpretation of Mark Antony is a skilful and artistic performance, and his speech to the people quite a triumph in elocution. Mr E. A. Warburton plays with virility, directness of method, and deep feeling as Marcus Brutus, and Mr Herbert Bunston contributes a well defined and tactful reading of Cassius. Casca receives admirable treatment from Mr Charles Bibby; Mr Reginald Ian Penny makes up well and acts with distinction as Julius Cæsar; and Mr V. L. Granville is an excellent Octavius Cæsar. Mr V. Leslie plays with judgment as Cinna; Mr George Robertson is an able and efficient Publius; and the three minor conspirators receive careful treatment at the hands of Mr Allan Wilkie, Mr Arthur Bruce, and Mr A. E. Anson. Miss Constance Collier is a handsome and stately Portia, and gives an admirable rendering of the character. Miss Margaret Halstan makes the most of her opportunities in the part of Calphurnia, and is highly successful. The crowds show the result of much careful training, and Mr Eardley Turner as the First Citizen and Mr Arthur Machen as the Second Citizen play their respective rôles in just the right vein. Other parts all receive sound renderings. At Wednesday's matinée and on Thursday evening The Merry Wives of Windsor was the attraction, and on Friday Twelfth Night was performed.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Malcolm Douglas, entitled "A FIGHT FOR MILLIONS."

The patrons of Mrs Ellis-Fredericks's comfortable melodrama theatre made acquaintance with A Fight for Millions on Monday night, and their opinion of the piece was entirely favourable. Although the drama, which comes from "the other side," cannot lay claim to much literary merit, it teems with sensational effects, the introduction of a wireless telephone capable of being heard a thousand miles off, and the incidents in which the somewhat ambitiously described submarine boat is utilised, being the more prominent. The members of Mr Robert Perris's company acquit themselves very creditably, Mr Perris himself portraying the hero, Tom Manley, in buoyant and pleasing manner. Mr Horace Booth as the rascally Richard Dudley plays in forcible style, and as the pawnbroker, Solomon Moses, Mr Fred Acton presents the accepted type of heavy comedian stage Jew with excellent effect. Mr Larry Clements is decidly amusing as Willie Neverwork, and Mr J. Newton Cowling plays appropriately as Hudson Rivers. Pearl Rivers is charmingly delineated by Miss Eva Purcell, and Miss Fanny Williams is a natural Mrs Hudson Rivers. Miss Kathryn Eckart makes a sympathetic Helen Dudley, and Miss Gertie Douglas plays with considerable vivacity and piquancy the dual rôle of Betty and Mag Brady, besides contributing an enjoyable vocal item. Other parts are rendered with intelligence and care.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM-JUNCTION.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, entitled "THE TWO ORPHANS."

This favourite old drama has been drawing good houses here this week. Mr Henry Neville plays his original part of Pierre with his usual skill, his grip of the character being as strong as ever. The two orphans have sympathetic exponents in Misses Evelyn Weeden and May Congdon. The former as the blind girl acted with fine pathos, and the latter obtained much applause by the dramatic force she displayed. The meeting of the two sisters in the last act has moved the house to tears. Miss Emma Victor is so realistic as the drunken old mother of Jacques and Pierre as to excite the gallery to hisses and shouts of disapproval. Mr William Devereux gives a good rendering of Armand; the Jacques of Mr L. Cory Thomas is a bold and dashing performance; the Count De Linière of Mr William Dexter is satisfactory; Mr William Mallalieu as the Doctor is excellent; and Mr F. G. Thurstans gives a comical rendering of Picard. Miss Cahill as the Countess De Linière is most sympathetic; Mrs Mason makes an interesting Mother Superior; and the other parts are well sustained, Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company being highly capable. The scenery is appropriate and effective, the dresses are picturesque, and the play is well mounted. At the Wednesday matinée and on Thursday evening Mr Henry Neville and the company gave excellent representations of The Ticket-of-Leave Man, which goes as well as ever.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, by James T. Tanner, Music by Lionel Monckton, entitled "A COUNTRY GIRL."

Attracted by that charming production A Country Girl, bumping houses have been the rule at the Kingston playhouse this week. Mr George Dance's company includes Miss Kathryn Comber in the part of Marjory Joy, who quite captivated her auditors by a charming impersonation of the part, in which she disclosed the possession of a voice of rare power and sweetness. She was ably assisted by Mr Francis Ludlow, who invested the part of the naval officer, Geoffrey Chaloner, with a breezy hilarity. Mr Harry Buss appeared once more as the amusing midshipman, Barry, and by his characteristic drolleries never failed to keep the audience in good humour when he was on the stage. An attractive piquancy was thrown into the part of Madame Sophie by Miss Rose Begarnie, a young actress who has won favour at Kingston before, and Mr Arthur Hayter acquitted himself well as the aged Granfer Mummery. A clever piece of character acting was that of Miss Rosa Robey as Mrs St. Quentin. Others who deserve particular mention are Mr H. C. Morton as Sir Joseph Verity, Mr Fred W. Pattrick as the Rajah of Bhong, and Miss Ernestine Desborough as Princess Melaneh. The comedy was produced under the direction of Mr Austen Hurgon, and Mr Otto Manns had charge of an augmented orchestra. The excellent scenery is painted by Mr Joseph Harker and Mr Ernest Howard.

PRINCE OF WALES'S, RICHMOND.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Comic Opera entitled "THE DUCHESS OF DANTZIC."

Mr George Dance's company in the exceedingly popular comic opera, The Duchess of Dantzic, has drawn crowded houses here this week. Miss Rita Presano as Catherine Upscher (known as Sans-Gêne) follows worthily in the footsteps of Miss Evie Greene, the clever creator of the rôle. Miss Presano is possessed of a fine voice, which she uses with the greatest effect in rendering the music allotted to her, and she is, in addition, endowed with more than ordinary capabilities as an emotional actress. Miss Amy Burton is an effective Lizette. Mr Thomas Maxwell is very good, first as Philippe, Viscomte De Bethune, and afterwards as Adhemar, Viscomte De Bethune, his fine voice being of great assistance in the concerted numbers in which he took part. Mr Albert Chapman has also proved himself a singer of much capability, and gives a capital rendering of the part of Sergeant François Lefebvre (afterwards Duke of Dantzic). The Court milliner, Papillon, is humorously played by Mr Colin Mackay, who gains one of the successes of the evening with his "Milliner" song in the second act and his quaint, but most effective, dance at the end of it. Miss Alice Coverick is a pretty and dainty Renée De Saint-Mezard, and sings and acts tunefully and neatly. The part of Napoleon is effectively rendered by Mr Frederick Moyes, who thoroughly grasps the idea of the character. The masterly way in which Mr Moyes depicts the hard, unflinching, and unbending spirit of the famous Emperor does him infinite credit. The chorus was extremely good, and the dresses and scenery were of the high standard usually associated with Mr Dance's productions. A special word of praise should be given to Mr B. J. Paterson for the able manner in which he conducted throughout the evening.

THERE was produced, for copyright purposes, at the King's Theatre, Nottingham, on Saturday, a one-act scena, by Herbert Fuller, entitled A Burglar's Darling.

Ugliest Woman on Earth Miss HENRIETTA WATSON

The "women" of the brothers Melville have been beautiful though bad, but the heroine of the latest drama of Mr Frederick Melville, produced on Monday at the Terriss, Rotherhithe, with every sign of success, is exactly the reverse. Except that she has shot at a man in defence of her honour, her life is in every respect a blameless one, but her ugliness is so pronounced that through the four acts of a stirring melodrama she is compelled to hide her face. The action opens in Naples, where a young artist, Tom Redvers, is discovered endeavouring to put on canvas the beautiful scene on which he is privileged to gaze. He is interrupted by the fair Morita, a young Italian girl who passionately loves him, and who implores him to give up gambling and keep his promise to marry her. He has apparently tired of her, and soon bids her depart, and meeting the villain, Hubert Gold, readily assents to again try his luck at the cards. Much against his inclination, the hero, Jack Merriman, also consents to play, and is accused by Redvers of cheating, Gold, of course, being the guilty party. Blows follow words, and while Merriman goes to seek Morita, Redvers is stabbed by Gold, Jack being accused of the murder on his return. Previous to this it is understood that Jack is engaged to Rose Courtenay. By the terms of a will it is to the advantage of both that they shall marry, but it is soon apparent there is no real love between them. Indeed, Rose promises Gold that when once she has become Jack's wife she will leave him and live with Gold. We first see the Ugliest Woman—her name is not mentioned in the play—in her apartments at an hotel at Nice. She is travelling with a scientist, Doctor Carr, and is heavily veiled, and whilst lamenting the fact that she is friendless and alone, and never likely to become a wife or a mother, Jack enters her room in order to escape the gend'armes. After a little explanation the veiled lady allows him to remain, and when his pursuers knock at the door for admittance she hides him in her bedroom. Morita, however, who has taken the oath of the vendetta, and imagines Jack to be the murderer of her lover, sees his hat on the table, and insists on the room being searched. Morita almost succeeds in stabbing Jack when he comes from the apartment, but the veiled lady stays her hand, and Jack is enabled to escape by a window. In the next act all the principals are on board the steamship Osprey, en route for England. Jack has fallen deeply in love with the veiled lady, and his attentions to her have aroused the jealousy of Rose, who is now more determined than ever on marrying him. She and Gold concoct a scheme to obtain £10,000, and also endeavour to have the boat stopped at a port and Jack given in charge, but they are frustrated by the comedy couple, Jasper Herrick and his sweetheart Aggie. Morita, disguised as a boy, is also still determined to have a life for a life; and, meeting the veiled lady at the landing-stage at Tilbury, obtains Jack's address. At his rooms, where the next scene takes place, she learns who the real murderer is; and the veiled lady also becomes conscious of her love for Jack, but tells him she can never become his wife. While Jack is anxiously awaiting the arrival of Doctor Carr, who is attending him for some trouble with his eyes, he is attacked by a hooligan named Raggles, in the pay of Gold, and when assistance arrives it is found that he is totally blind. Now that he cannot see, the veiled lady no longer repulses him; and when he is taunted by Rose on never having seen her—the veiled lady's—face, he declares that he would continue to love her were she the "ugliest woman on earth." When he has gone and she is left alone, the veiled lady goes to the back of the stage where there is a mirror, and, raising the covering from her face, gazes in the glass. The sight so horrifies her that she smashes the mirror, and falls sobbing to the ground. We learn in the last act the cause of her unsightliness, and Jack, who recovers his vision, will marry her without having once gazed on her face. Vengeance is, of course, also meted out to the wicked ere the final descent of the curtain.

The company presenting the play is in every instance praiseworthy, specially to be commended being Miss Henrietta Watson, the clever and experienced actress, who created the title-rôle. It must have been a unique experience to play through four acts with her face hidden from view, and scarcely an enviable one. The difficulty of her task, however, was cleverly overcome, and her impersonation throughout was dignified and impressive, especially pathetic being her acting in the scene where she raises her veil and looks in the mirror. A more finished or sympathetic rendering of the part could not be imagined, and Miss Watson is to be warmly complimented on her portrayal of a character which, in less experienced or gifted hands, could easily have been made ludicrous. Mr Stanley Bedwell contributed an easy and in every respect praiseworthy enactment of Jack Merriman; and the scoundrelly Hubert Gold was undertaken quite satisfactorily by Mr Leyton Cancellor. His "tool," Antonio Luchesi, was capably played by Mr Henry St. Leger, a versatile and painstaking actor; and Mr Billesden Clarke was convincing as the young artist, Tom Redvers. A clever and entertaining study of the London hooligan, Raggles, came from Mr Fred De Vere; Mr Andrew Money gave a neat little sketch of the elderly scientist, Dr. Carr; and Mr W. A. Maltby was quite capable as Griffiths. Most of the laughter heard during the evening was the outcome of the many humorous antics and funny lines of Jasper Herrick, played with much success and apparently great enjoyment by Mr Newman Maurice, the popular acting-manager. He had a smart and hard-working little partner in Miss Nellie Jackson, who played Jasper's sweetheart, Aggie Brown, and the pair were immense favourites from their first entrance. The passionate and revengeful Italian girl, Morita, was realistically and cleverly undertaken by Miss Margaret Watson, and Miss Beatrix De Burgh is entitled to praise for her careful and capable enactment of Rose Courtenay. The numerous minor rôles were all efficiently undertaken. Mention should be made of the magnificent scenery and effects, for which Messrs F. B. Mullen, Richard Douglas, George Tweddell, and Thos. Rees are responsible, and the piece, which went very smoothly for a first performance, was produced by the author.

THE death is announced of Mr Garnet Wolseley Cox, a young composer, who was educated at the Royal Academy of Music. He wrote many successful songs, and his overture "Pelléas et Mélisande" was played at the Philharmonic Concert of 1903.

MR LESLIE NORMAN has made a genuine revival of A Trip to Chinatown, the result being that his company rebooked at all the important theatres which it has visited.

A BLIND ACTOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—An exceedingly sad case of distress in our profession has been brought to my notice by my old friend and brother actor, Mr E. M. Robson. It is that of Mr Henry Crisp, who, being fifty-one years of age, and having been an actor for thirty years, is now totally blind, and has been so from the end of October, 1903. He acted up to the last, and played for two years with the vision of one eye quite gone, while that of the other was gradually going. Out of his thirty years' experience he has held engagements as follows:—With Mrs Scott Siddons, three consecutive engagements; with Miss Jennie Lee, five consecutive years; with Mrs Langtry, four consecutive years; with Mr Penley, twelve consecutive years; with Mr Willard, three tours; and as stage-manager with Mr Tree (Captain Swift, Company 1). This makes very nearly thirty years, and shows that he must have been reliable and steady to have secured so many re-engagements. His salaries have always been small—£3 to £4 per week—once only reaching £8, so it is not surprising that he has no savings to fall back upon. He has a slender private income derived from the rents of three small houses. The property is mortgaged, and is in the hands of the mortgagees, who work it and allow him 15s. per week. His rent for a top room in the Kennington-road is 8s. per week, and the 7s. left has to find all the necessaries for himself and his wife, and he is not in arrears with his rent. Two years ago he was six months idle on account of illness, chiefly connected with his affliction. The expenses incurred by this, added to fees paid to various doctors in the different towns he visited on tours, reduced his income and savings considerably. He has been an inmate of the Westminster and Ophthalmic Hospitals, but with no benefit, though he speaks gratefully of the kindness shown him by a certain well-known doctor, who treated him gratuitously and secured his admission into the hospitals. There is no hope of his ever seeing again. One eye is quite gone, and is replaced by an artificial one, and the other is past being operated upon. His debts are very few and small; I have a list of them. His address is 145, Kennington-road, S.E.

I have spoken about his case to Mr Beerbohm Tree, Mr Pinero, Captain Marshall, Mr Alexander, Mr Bourchier, and Sir Squire Bancroft, all of whom are deeply interested in the case, and express their willingness to help him. I have every hope eventually of organising a concert for his benefit at the Queen's Hall. In the meantime may I ask for the kind consideration which you have always shown for cases of distress in our profession, and beg you to open a subscription list on his behalf, kindly putting me down for £5?

Yours faithfully, CYRIL MAUDE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—The case of Mr Henry Crisp is too sad for words. I enclose cheque for £10 10s. (from Mr and Mrs Kendal) with only too much pleasure to so deserving a fund.

Yours faithfully, W. H. KENDAL.
North-Western Hotel, Liverpool, Oct. 18, 1904.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Mr Crisp's case is certainly a very sad one, and I am very glad to enclose my mite towards his assistance.

Yours faithfully, CHARLES WYNDHAM.
Midland Hotel, Manchester, Oct. 11, 1904.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Please accept the enclosed amount (£1 17s.) as a small donation to Mr Henry Crisp's Benefit Fund in token of the great sympathy which every member of this company bears for Mr Crisp in his terrible misfortune.—Yours faithfully,

NORMAN V. NORMAN.
Theatre Royal, Limerick.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Will you add the enclosed cheque to the fund you have opened for Mr H. Crisp? His case is, indeed, terribly sad.

Yours faithfully, SABA RALEIGH.
Grand Hotel, Middlesbrough, Oct. 26, 1904.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Sir Henry Irving asks me to send you the enclosed cheque for £5 as his donation to the Henry Crisp Fund. He sends all good wishes for its success. Yours faithfully, BRAM STOKER.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR HENRY IRVING has, by his kind offer to co-operate, shown his approval of and interest in the removal, initiated by Mr H. M. Cundall, F.S.A., of the memorial tablet to Edmund Kean from the exterior to the interior wall of the parish church at Richmond. Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr Lewis Waller, Mr and Mrs F. M. Paget, and others connected with the profession have subscribed to a fund to meet the cost of the re-erection, which will ensure the preservation of the tablet from injury and decay.

MR HAYDEN COFFIN is an excellent judge of what suits him and what does not; and, after carefully studying the part of Florestan De Valiancourt in Veronique, he has decided not to take Mr Lawrence Rea's place in the cast of that opera after all. An important change will, however, soon be made in the company; for Mr Willie Edouin is hard at work rehearsing the character of M. Coquenard, which was so cleverly performed by Mr George Graves when the piece was produced in its English form at the Apollo on May 18 last. Mr Edouin will take Mr Graves's place when that gentleman is called away to fulfil his engagement in pantomime at Manchester.

MR W. S. GILBERT, in his capacity as Justice of the Peace, heard an interesting case at Edgware on Wednesday, when Miss Gertrude Ayto, assistant mistress at the Hendon Council's schools, summoned one Caroline Smith for assault. Mabel Simpkins, one of the scholars, in giving evidence, stated that a blow was struck. "Was it a blow with the fist or merely a touch with the open hand?" asked Mr Gilbert. When the girl said that it was a deliberate blow, Mr Gilbert invited her to come up on the bench and show him what she meant. The juvenile witness did so, dealing Mr Gilbert a light blow on the back. "No harder than that?" said he; and then he merely bound Mrs Smith over to keep the peace and ordered her to pay costs.

THE president of the Smith College for Girls at Northampton, Massachusetts, recently issued orders forbidding the students to attend a performance of Mr Pinero's Letty, which he declared to be unfit for decent people to witness. As they could not get the money returned for tickets they had bought, one hundred of the girls went to the local theatre, preferring the risk of being horrified to the certainty of losing their cash.

THE command performance of A Man's Shadow which was given by Mr Beerbohm Tree and his company in the Waterloo Chamber, Windsor Castle, on Thursday night, was a great success. A special stage had been erected by the staff of His Majesty's Theatre, working under the direction of the heads of departments, and the Waterloo Chamber was provided with seats to accommodate about 130, the music being supplied by Herr Gottlieb's band, under the leadership of Mr Adolf Schmid, from His Majesty's. In addition to the programme, an epitomised version of the story of A Man's Shadow was prepared in French for the King and Queen of Portugal and their suite. The cast included Mr Tree, Mr James Fernandez, Mr Clarence Blakiston, Mr Lionel Brough, Mr E. M. Robson, Mr Gerald Du Maurier, Mr Charles G. Allan, Mr Gayer Mackay, Mr F. Perceval Stevens, Mr Robb Harwood, Mr J. B. Fraser, Mrs Tree, Miss Geraldine Wilson, Miss Kate Cutler, and Mrs Brown-Potter, the stage-manager being Mr Cecil King, and Mr Henry Dana being the general manager. The general arrangements, under Mr George Ashton's personal supervision, were excellent; and after the performance Mr and Mrs Tree and the members of the company had supper at the Castle, and returned to London by special train at an early hour on Friday morning.

AT the reception which Mrs George Alexander, Mrs Kendal, Mrs Beerbohm Tree, Miss Winifred Emery, Miss Alice Nielsen, and Mrs Hubert Roberts are giving at the St. James's Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, in aid of the special appeal fund for the Samaritan Hospital for Women, the auditorium will be transformed into a delightful salon. The six lady hostesses will entertain the guests at tea on the stage, which will be decorated with real flowers, palms, and an "old-world" sun-dial. The musical arrangements are in the hands of Mr Henry Russell, director of the Opera, Covent-garden, who has most generously given his services, as have also five members of the San Carlo opera company. There will be a distribution of coupons of the value of £10 each among the guinea ticket holders. These coupons are presented by a number of first-class West-end firms, and each coupon will entitle the possessor to select goods to the amount of £10 free of charge at the particular establishment named on the ticket.

MR MAURICE BARRYMORE, the once-celebrated American actor, is dying in a lunatic asylum. By the side of his bed is a pack of cards, and with these he builds a theatre; and then, standing up, repeats for hours the lines of his old parts. It was in Captain Swift that Barrymore made one of his greatest hits, and it is as Wilding that he thrills his fellow-patients, who crowd round the door of his cell and burst into tumultuous applause at the climax of the adventurer's suicide.

MRS BEERBOHM TREE on Monday night gave an interesting recital to the members of the Sutton Coldfield Institute. She read the Forum scene from Julius Cæsar, and followed this with the Mad scene from Hamlet, the Trial scene from The Merchant of Venice, and the Sleep-walking scene from Macbeth. After reciting a couple of short poems by Kipling and Scott and a short humorous sketch, Mrs Tree concluded with the dispute between Sir Peter and Lady Teazle from The School for Scandal.

MISS MADGE LESSING, who is at present appearing as Aurora, in Sergeant Brue, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, is a thorough believer in Sandow's methods. She attributes her extreme youthful appearance of face and figure to judicious exercises and long walks, often extending to six and seven miles daily. She is an expert swimmer, and some time ago was nearly drowned in attempting the rescue of a lady who had been seized with sudden cramp. The incident in question occurred at Narragansett Pier, Rhode Island. One morning in August Miss Lessing repaired to the beach for her usual swim, and in company with two other ladies left the crowd of bathers sporting near the shore, and started for a long swim out to sea.

WHEN half a mile from shore, Miss Lessing, who was leading, heard a shriek, and looking round saw one of her companions disappear. The young actress, without a moment's hesitation, turned to assist her unfortunate companion, and by a few vigorous strokes got up in time to grasp her by her bathing-dress as she was sinking for the second time. Then ensued a struggle for life, the drowning girl, unheeding repeated commands to remain perfectly quiet, clutched her rescuer firmly in her arms, and in her endeavour to keep her own head as far as possible above water, forced Miss Lessing under. In the meantime, the other lady, who was a horrified witness of the struggle between life and death, made frantic efforts to attract the attention of some men in a boat not far away. They eventually rescued both ladies, but not before Miss Lessing was completely exhausted and the other lady had lost consciousness. When taken from the water Miss Lessing quickly recovered, but the other lady was only resuscitated after half an hour of anxious manipulation.

MR ARTHUR BOLTON has sent us a cheque for one guinea for the Actors' Benevolent Fund. We have forwarded the amount to Mr C. I. Coltson.

MR GEORGE DANCE will close the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Richmond, at the end of the autumn season, having run the house absolutely without profit for two years. When he announced his intention of giving there a high-class variety entertainment it was discovered that a clause in the deeds prevented this, and to remove the restriction he agreed to pay £750. The Surrey County Council granted the necessary licence, subject to the provision of an extra emergency exit. Mr Dance's plan for this alteration was rejected, and the county surveyor directed an opening to be made in the wall leading to an adjoining garden. This would have entailed the purchase of property at a cost of £7,000, and Mr Dance declined to go to that expense.

SIR EDWARD CLARKE, K.C., will preside at the annual dinner of that excellent institution the Actors' Benevolent Fund, which is to take place on Wednesday, Dec. 7, at the Whitehall Rooms, Hotel Metropole.

MISS STELLA BRERETON (Mrs Richard Douglass) is about to "bring out" another of her pupils, Miss Maude Lacy, who will make her first appearance at the Grand Theatre, Islington, on Tuesday next, playing the principal rôle in a new piece entitled Lady Hamilton; or, The Last Signal, by F. Wiber Wood. Mrs Douglass, who has served under the banner of Mr and Mrs Kendal and Mr Hare, Wilson Barrett, Sir Augustus Harris, and others, also Miss May Birch, a famous teacher of dancing and deportment, holds a very high position as an instructress, and is most fortunate with her pupils.

MISS ISIDORA RUSH, a well-known American actress, while bathing in the surf at San Diego, California, on Monday, was seized with heart failure, caused by a blow from a huge wave, which bore her into deep water. She was rescued, but was so badly frightened that she died when taken ashore.

THE green-room at the Bath Theatre, about which so much has been written of late, still exists, and is much valued by Mr Egbert Lewis, the lessee. Miss Ellen Terry, during her recent visit to Bath, expressed great delight at finding that this link with the past had been so carefully preserved by Mr Lewis.

THE theatregoers of Swansea missed the opportunity the other day of seeing Miss Ellen Terry and the majority of the members of her company, in the quaint Dutch dresses worn in The Good Hope, give a series of tableaux on the sea shore. The object of the posing was to obtain photographs with real rocks and waves for background; and it speaks well for the costumes, designed by Miss Edith Craig, that they looked as pretty and dainty in the sunshine as they do behind the footlights.

MISS HILDA JACOBSON, who plays the Hon. Honoria Bedford in The Catch of the Season at the Vaudeville, is first cousin of three other well-known actresses—Miss Lily Hanbury, Miss Julia Neilson, and Miss Nora Kerin. She herself has been on the stage for about five years, her first appearance, in Cupid and the Princess, at the Lyric, being the outcome of an amateur performance of The Home Secretary, in which she played so prettily that a friend advised her to enter the profession and introduced her to Mr Tom B. Davis, from whom she obtained her first engagement. Miss Jacobson leaves the cast of The Catch of the Season at Christmas to play Colin, in Mother Goose, at Manchester, returning to the Vaudeville next year. She always designs her own costumes for pantomime.

MISS JACOBSON was a member of the Savoy company, in London and on tour, after she left the Lyric, and she also played under Mr George Edwardes's management, appearing in The Toreador on the last night at the old Gaiety, and in The Orchid on the first night at the new Gaiety. She is an expert swimmer, but nearly lost her life in the water some time ago. Being seized with cramp when far out of her depth, she had the presence of mind to turn on her back and float, calling for help as quietly and calmly as possible, to prevent her mother, who was on shore, from being alarmed. Fortunately her cousin, Miss Hanbury, came to her assistance. Another of Miss Jacobson's most trying experiences was when she was staying in Edinburgh, and a fire broke out in the house. Her rooms were on the sixth floor, she had just returned from the theatre, and was the first person to give the alarm.

THE programme for the benefit to be given, by permission of Mr Tree, to Mrs Edmund Phelps at His Majesty's Theatre, next Friday, will include the names of Mr Hayden Coffin, Mr George Robey, Miss Ida Hamilton, and Miss Phyllis Broughton. Mr Tree himself will appear as Austin Limmason, in The Man Who Was; and Mr Cyril Maude will resume his old part in Mr W. W. Jacobs' Monkey's Paw. Those who did not see Mr W. J. Locke's pretty playlet The Flower o' the Rose when it was produced at a solitary matinée last season will have the pleasure of witnessing it at the Phelps benefit, when Mr George Alexander will play the Florentine merchant, Messer Simone Cambi. Mr Arthur Bourchier and Miss Jessie Bateman will be seen in Mr Alfred Austin's Lesson in Harmony. Miss Marie Studholme will sing "Little Blanche Marie," from The Orchid, assisted by the Misses Olive May, Minnie Baker, Doris Beresford, Ethel Olive, Gertie Glynn, and Kitty Mason. Mr Alfred Austin has generously given his fee for A Lesson in Harmony to the benefit, and Mr W. Clarkson is supplying all the wigs, &c., free of charge.

AN amusing incident occurred during the visit of The Convict's Daughter company to a provincial theatre. In the third act the heroine makes an impassioned entreaty to the villain, ending up by reminding him that she is an orphan. A woman in the pit was so moved by the pathetic appeal that she stood up and, in a loud voice, assured the girl of her sympathy, adding to her protestations that she (the speaker) was also an orphan herself.

MR JAMES WELCH will be the leading comedian in Mr Arthur Collins's forthcoming annual at Drury-lane. The versatile comedian may be trusted to be as successful in pantomime as he has been in comedy and farce.

GREAT preparations are being made for the Christmas pantomime at the New Ealing Theatre, which Mr Arthur Carlton will produce, entitled Aladdin, which will be the first he has undertaken, and will comprise 150 artists, most of them from the Hippodrome. No expense is being spared to make it a success.

THE last five weeks of Miss Eleanor Robson's appearance in Merely Mary Ann at the Duke of York's Theatre are announced, Miss Robson having to fulfil engagements to play the part throughout the United States.

IT having been announced that Sergeant Brue will return to the Strand Theatre on Dec. 3, Mr Owen Hall, the author of the "book," is applying for an injunction to restrain its transference by Mr Curzon to that house, contending that such a transfer would be in contravention of the agreement between himself and Mr Curzon relating to the play. He claims that under his contract Mr Curzon agreed to provide a first-class theatre to be approved by him—Mr Hall. He does not approve of the Strand.

MISS MADGE LESSING scored an instantaneous hit with her new song, "Lucy Linda, Lady," in Sergeant Brue, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM recalls an incident that occurred at Sandringham when the Prince of Wales, now King Edward, sent for him to play David Garrick at the little private theatre there. Sir Charles tells the story as follows:—"'What a lot of carpenters you have brought down,' said the Prince, while we were discussing matters in the afternoon. I explained that I had not only brought the full company, but the entire force of stage hands as well, that we might give the same performance we did in London, with all the quick changes, and so on. 'Oh, that's quite right,' said he; 'quite right. I am only wondering how I can take care of them. You see, I am more or less limited here. Sandringham is not Windsor, and I don't know where I can give them their supper,' I asked him not to bother about that, as we could easily find accommodation at some inn. 'Not at all. I would not think of it,' he replied. 'You know it would please them to stay here, and so they must.' Well, the upshot was he did arrange it somehow, and not only that, but he went down and visited them while they were at supper. They were a very proud lot of stage hands after that."

ON another occasion David Garrick was given at Windsor Castle. After the performance the King said, "Wyndham, when are you going to get a new play? I have seen this one seven times now." In Berlin, when David Garrick was presented there, the manager, being disappointed with the translation, made a public apology for the play in advance, and to make matters worse on the opening night the "curtain-raiser," performed by the German company, was hissed off the stage. "Imagine my feelings," says Sir Charles, "as I stood in the wings when that occurred and heard someone in the stalls say, 'Now we will get the English clowns.' Fortunately, Miss Moore was in her room and did not know of the bad start. However, by the end of the second act we had won them over, and they treated us most kindly. The critics sent us a joint note of congratulation."

AFTER that it will be remembered Sir Charles took the play to St. Petersburg and Moscow, and when he had returned to England the Czar sent him a ring which Sir Charles now wears. At first, though, he thought it was a joke and sent it back. "A little while before," says Sir Charles, "a friend and I arranged a practical joke on another actor to make him believe that the Tsar had sent him a jewel. We bothered the poor fellow almost out of his wits and kept it up for weeks. When the real ring came I thought our victim was paying us back. I was obliged to offer all sorts of apologies to the Russian Ambassador when I learned of my error."

SIR CHARLES knows of few promising actors among the younger members of the profession in England. There are, he says, no longer any schools for them; and long runs are fatal to the development of actors. The young actors sent out with a "road" company are told to copy the work of the originals in the metropolitan production, and imitation is a most deadly practice for an actor. As soon as he begins to copy it is all up with him. "Teach acting!" says Sir Charles, "Nonsense! You cannot teach acting. As well teach a man to be a poet or a humourist. The more a man is taught to act the less he will act. The graduates of the dramatic schools—machine-made actors, turned out by the gross—are apt to be a sorry lot. The only real school of acting is the stage, with frequent changes of bill."

IN the company now appearing in Old English plays at the Royalty Theatre are included several ex-University men. They are Mr Philip Carr, Winchester and Brasenose College, Oxford; Mr King Fordham, Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge; Mr Nigel Playfair, Harrow and University College, Oxford; and Mr Frank Lascelles, Keble College, Oxford.

MR CHARLES MANNERS, of the Moody-Manners opera company, recently offered, with the co-operation of musical friends, to amalgamate his two companies and visit Sheffield, any profits made to be devoted to the furtherance of the University movement in that city. A committee of local gentlemen was appointed to organise the "Festival," and every seat in the house was booked for this week, the repertory including Faust, Carmen, Wagner's Tristan and Isolde, Mignon, selections from Wagner's The Valkyrie, Siegfried, Lohengrin, and Tannhäuser. At two matinées, rendered necessary by the exceptional bookings, Pagliacci and Cavalleria Rusticana were performed. On Wednesday, owing to the indisposition of Mr Joseph O'Mara, Tristan had to be postponed, and Tannhäuser was given. Mr Manners' generosity and enterprise have created great enthusiasm.

MR BERNARD SHAW lectured on Monday afternoon to the pupils of the Academy of Dramatic Art on "Elementary Economics for Actors." After stating that he was not sure whether he liked the drama or political economy the better, he went on to divide actors into two classes—fields and strawberries. The first class were those out of which money could be made, those which "draw" the public; the second those who merely fill a part, and bring in no money to the manager who pays them. The salaries of the first class may be called rent, those of the second class are the current price for the article in the market at the moment; and salaries on both scales have to be reckoned on a severely economic basis. Passing from economics to the art of acting, Mr Shaw stated that what had most struck him in the acting of Italians, especially of Ristori and Salvini, was the artistic economy they practised. Unlike the emotional, hot-headed English, they kept their heads, and so husbanded their resources. Salvini, in particular, would go through half a play without beginning to use more more than a small part of his powers. In conclusion, Mr Shaw declared that he was especially interested in the academy as possibly the nursery of some actors and actresses who would produce and believe in his plays.

MR FELIX EDWARDES, who is now supporting Mr Nat. C. Goodwin on his American tour, in a strong character part in Mr Goodwin's new play The Usurper, has disposed of the American and Canadian rights of Mr George Rollit's farcical comedy The Money Makers to Mr Thos. W. Ryley. Mr Edwardes was stage-manager during the run at the Royalty Theatre, and will, by kind permission of his management, produce the play for Mr Ryley during Mr Goodwin's New York season. The piece will have a liberal production.

OVER ten tons of cut glass will be used in one scene in The Babes in the Wood at the Grand Theatre, Islington, this Christmas. Thousands of lustres will adorn the stage, and form a gigantic centre-piece representing the Prince of Wales's feathers. There will be more than 500 electric lights used in the spectacle.

AT the sale of the contents of the drawing-room at Anglesey Castle, on Tuesday, an album, containing an autograph letter from Sir Henry Irving, fetched six guineas.

THIS week the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, will have been open exactly twenty-one years. The house was opened to Birmingham playgoers on Wednesday, Nov. 14, 1883. The Grand then had upper boxes reserved in advance at the price of half-a-crown each, and there were also reserved pit seats at eighteenpence each. The first programme of the Grand, twenty-one years ago, included Good as Gold, Ici on Parle Français, and At the Seaside, a triple bill in which the late Mr Andrew Melville bore his full share under the readily-perceived disguise of "Mr A. Emm."

MR ISRAEL ZANGWILL, according to a New York interviewer, "is as serious as a coal bill, and at the same time as voluble as a phonograph." In expressing his opinions on the present condition of the American stage and theatrical affairs generally Mr Zangwill was pessimistic. He said: "The public is entirely to blame for the present wretched condition of the stage. It can have any kind of a dramatic condition it wants, and apparently at the present time it wants a very poor kind. Theatrical trash is popular and is lauded to the skies, while worth is apt to be ignored the moment the public realises that it is worth."

THIS low taste among theatregoers Mr Zangwill attributed to the "illogical, inconsequent, and meaningless musical plays that are so much in vogue now, and over which the public seems to have gone daft." He saw no prospect of a change for the better. The outlook for dramatic art was very gloomy. A national theatre would be a step in the right direction, and Mr Zangwill couldn't understand why the wealthy Americans did not subsidise a theatre and set the drama on its feet, where it belonged. He thought that Mr Carnegie, for instance, should do something for the stage. But another remedy was the curtailing of the present prodigality of expenditure for scenery and costumes. The picture should receive more attention than the frame. Mr Zangwill said that things were just as bad in London.

"COMMERCIALISM rules the theatre, and in the main art can go hang. It is nonsense to talk about art and theatrical management in the same breath. They have nothing to do with each other. Theatrical management is a business not an art. As such I respect it. When it poses as art my contempt is aroused. In this country it is not considered derogatory to be in business. Personally I do not consider it a degradation either. If a man wants to go into the business of making pork pies, very well and good. There is a public demand for pork pies and it must be supplied. At the same time the making of the pork pies is hardly as elevating an occupation as painting a masterpiece."

ANOTHER thing that Mr Zangwill did not believe in was the "star" system, for the reason that "it gives only the picture of one individual and forces all the other characters into a blurred, confused, and slovenly background. That is a condition which is true to neither life nor art. In consequence the play is likely to be top-heavy, one-sided, and generally awry. On the other hand the author's drawing of the star character is sure to be a better finished piece of work and fuller of detail."

MR ZANGWILL believed that long runs had a demoralising effect on actors, and made them indifferent and lazy. In the stock companies, where the bill was changed every week, things were different. He had found the Yiddish stage in New York in a very good condition. At a Yiddish theatre on the Bowery he had seen acting which would compare very favourably with what he had seen on Broadway. Mr Zangwill said he intended to write both plays and books in the future.

"THE secret of real enjoyment in your work," he said, "is to vary it. A play-writer should never be judged by what he has done before or by what others have done. Every play should be judged entirely by itself and without comparison of any kind. Each thing should stand or fall on its own merit. Because a writer turns out some light, frivolous trifle it is no sign that his next work will not be a thoughtful and studied effort. He quite likely wrote the trifle as a relaxation and to gratify a whim. Neither do I believe in a writer putting all that is best in him into one work. He should husband his genius and avoid that awful slough of despond known as 'writing oneself out.' It is a handicap that few can struggle under."

MR ZANGWILL says that his prime mission to America at this time is to interest the Jewish people there in the Zionist movement, but during his stay in New York he will attend to the producing of his one-act comedy, Six Persons, in which Miss Isabel Irving will appear. Mr Zangwill is anxious to try his hand as his own producer and stage-manager, as he has not always been satisfied with the production of his plays.

MR OGILVY KEITH'S brother has just been appointed by a large majority minister of the parish of Shotts, Lanarkshire, one of the finest livings in Scotland. His great-grandfather, grandfather, and father were in succession ministers of the Parish of Alyth, Perthshire. His uncle is the Rev. Dr. Ogilvy-Ramsay, of Closeburn, Dumfriesshire. Surely "Church and Stage" are in this case closely connected.

MR ARTHUR BOURCHIER, owing to the great demand for seats to see The Walls of Jericho, at the Garrick Theatre, has been unable to cope with the applications, and has, therefore, decided to give an extra matinée on Thursday, Dec. 1, in addition to the two on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

MR JOHN DENTON has decided to change the title of his drama, A Modern Judas, to that of Wealth, Women, and Wickedness. The drama has made for itself an excellent reputation, and the new title should certainly increase its attractiveness. Mr Trueman Towers is now booking a ten months' tour for 1905.

"THE SCILLY GIRL," a tale of the Scilly Isles, will be produced at the Grand Theatre, Woolwich, on Dec. 12. The book and lyrics are by Athol Mayher, and the music by William Neale. A good company has been engaged, and the tour is under the direction of Mr Frank Nelson.

A MUSICAL play entitled The Maid and the Minstrel, written by Mr Sydney Cubitt and composed by Mr Carl St. Anary, will be performed at the Lyric Theatre this afternoon for the benefit of the Princess Louise's Gordon League, and the charities of St. Saviour's, Pimlico.

MR EDWARD TERRY, who is sailing early in December for America to make his first appearance in the United States, will be entertained at a farewell dinner in his honour at the Savoy Hotel on Sunday evening, Dec. 4, under the presidency of his Grace the Duke of Abercorn, K.G. The committee, to which fresh names are being daily added, includes the Duke of Abercorn, K.G., Sir Henry Irving, Lord Glenesk, Sir Squire Bancroft, the Earl of Euston, Mr J. L. Toole, Sir Edward Carson, K.C., M.P., P.C. (Solicitor-General), Mr John Hare, Sir Bruce Seton, Bart., Mr W. H. Kendal, Mr Alfred De Rothschild, Mr H. Beerbohm Tree, Sir Reginald Hanson, Bart., Mr George Alexander, Sir Edward Letchworth, Mr W. S. Penley, Colonel Clifford Probyn, L.C.C., J.P., Mr Henry Neville, Mr W. R. M'Connell, K.C., D.L., Mr George Edwardes, Mr C. F. Gill, K.C., Mr A. W. Pinero, Mr Cyril Maude, Mr Henry Arthur Jones, Mr Arthur Bourchier, Mr Charles Mathews, K.C., Mr Lewis Waller, Mr John Strachan, K.C., Mr Arthur Collins, Mr W. F. Fladgate, Mr William Greet, Mr Louis N. Parker, Mr Frederic Harrison, Mr Comyns Carr, Mr Weedon Grossmith, Lord Rathmore, Sir Francis Burnand, Sir Douglas Straight, Mr Augustus F. M. Spalding, Mr Henry Evill, Mr C. J. Matier, Mr Frank Curzon, Dr. Clement Godson, Mr Arthur Chudleigh, Mr Walter Emden, Mr Malcolm Watson, Mr Otho Stuart, Mr Edward Ledger, Mr J. H. Leigh, Mr J. D. Langton, Mr Henry Times, and Mr Stanley J. Attenborough. Tickets, which are limited in number, may be obtained from the honorary secretaries, Messrs Charles J. Davies and E. B. Norman, at Terry's Theatre.

THE first performance of The Taming of the Shrew at the Adelphi Theatre will take place on Tuesday, Nov. 29. Mr Oscar Asche will enact Christopher Sly and Petruchio; and the cast will include Mr Alfred Brydone, Mr Roper Spyers, Mr Walter Hampden, Mr Herbert Grimwood, Mr H. R. Hignett, Mr C. Angelo, Mr E. Lyall Swete, Mr Charles Rock; Miss Constance Robertson, Miss Pamela Gaythorne, and Miss Lily Brayton. Messrs Joseph Harker and W. T. Hemsley have painted some pretty scenery for the production.

MR A. W. PINERO'S play, which he is writing for Mr George Alexander, will be of serious interest, and will be produced at the St. James's Theatre after Mr Alexander's provincial tour next autumn. In his absence the theatre will be occupied by Mr and Mrs Kendal.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM AND MISS MARY MOORE and company appeared at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, last Monday night, in David Garrick. Sir Charles was enthusiastically greeted by the fashionable audience.

MISS EVELYN MILLARD will open the annual exhibition of the Stage Needlework Guild, which will be held on the 29th inst. at 93, Eaton-square, by permission of Lord and Lady Armstrong, at 3·30. The speakers will include Mrs Craigie, Mrs E. Compton, and Miss Carlotta Addison.

THE new comic opera Ladyland, written by Eustace Ponsonby, with music by Frank Lambert, is in active rehearsal at the Avenue Theatre for production in December. The cast will include Messrs Richard Green, John Tresahar, E. Dagnall, H. Mansfield, and Geo. Giddens; Mesdames Aline May, Geraldine Ulmar, Nancy Girling, Gurney Delaporte, Margaret Cooper, Kitty Lindley, and Ethel Irving. The orchestra will be under the direction of Mr François Cellier, and the piece will be produced by Mr E. Dagnall.

MISS ADRIENNE AUGARDE will play the leading part in The Madcap, the new musical comedy by Colonel Newnham Davis and Mr Paul Rubens, which will be seen at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on Dec. 10. Mr G. P. Huntley, Mr Fred Emney, Mr George Carroll, Mr Denis Eadie, Mr Leedham Bantock, Mr Frank Danby, Mr Herbert Sparling, Mr Fraser, Miss Delia Mason, and Miss Madge Crichton will also be in the cast.

THE matinée of Trilby, kindly organised by Mr Beerbohm Tree for the benefit of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, will, we are pleased to announce, add to the funds of that institute over £300.

THE first night reception of Mrs Craigie's play, The Flute of Pan having excited controversy, Mr Sidney Dark will deliver to the O. P. Club, on Sunday evening, an address on "The Tyranny of the First Night." Mr Alfred F. Robbins will take the chair.

"THEODORA" will be revived early in the spring, 1905. The entire production will be new, and everything carried, including a den of lions. Miss Grace Hawthorne will again be seen in her great creation of Theodora; Mr Stanley Killby will play Andreas; and Mr Sydney T. Pease will renew the part of the Emperor, Justinian. Miss Hawthorne, pending her revival, will immediately commence a short tour with Camille, Poor Nance (a special version of "Oliver Twist"), Leah, the Forsaken, and two new plays adapted from the French—viz.: A Divorce, and Fanchon. The tour will be under the direction of Mr Stanley Killby, and the bookings and business management will be in the hands of Mr Sydney T. Pease, who will also play important parts.

THE Secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund asks us to acknowledge the receipt of 30s. autograph money, which he has just received from Mr James Welch.

MISS LILIAN HALLOWS will return at the end of the month from South Africa, where she has been playing lead with Mr Leonard Rayne in a répertoire of over twenty plays. In Cape Town her Juliet and Portia caused great enthusiasm, coming as those performances did after the successes Miss Hallows achieved in such widely different rôles as Sunday, Filiberta in The Cardinal, and Dolly Kershaw in A Snug Little Kingdom.

MR DAVID DAY, who is at present in New York, has secured the English rights of the latest American craze, "The Troubadour," by W. C. Powell, composer of "The Gondolier." It is arranged as an intermezzo, and in this form has caught on instantaneously in America. The vocal version, copies of which are now ready for pantomime, may be had from Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter. This charming composition, which is presented to the public, both in vocal and instrumental arrangements, is confidently expected to outrival "Hiawatha" in popularity.

CANON CRESSWELL STRANGE, preaching at Worcester Cathedral last Sunday, made some remarks which were suggested to him by the recent visit of The Sign of the Cross to the Worcester Theatre Royal. They must all agree, he said, that the stage was a magnificent agency under God for doing good, and he felt to some extent in sympathy with them when they introduced into their midst plays of a higher class, which inculcated sound morality. He was not a very frequent visitor at the theatre, but there were two plays which impressed themselves upon him. The one was The Sign of the Cross, and it made him pray, as he believed it did many another man, that he might be a faithful servant of the great Crucified. The other play he had in his mind was Shakespeare's splendid tragedy Julius Cæsar. This, the preacher said, speaking with all reverence, presented a type of Jesus Christ, and by means of the description of the wounds that killed Cæsar, as set forth in the oration of Mark Anthony, he metaphorically showed the effects of sin on "one who was greater than Cæsar."

MR R. H. DOUGLASS, the comedian, will read a paper to the members of the Playgoers' Club at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday evening on "Audiences from the Artist's Point of View." Mdlle. Adeline Genee, of the Empire Theatre, will take the chair.

MRS MAESMORE MORRIS has been interviewed on her return to Melbourne as a leading member of Mr George Musgrove's comedy company. Before coming to London she was one of Melbourne's fashionable beauties, and took part in amateur theatricals there. She made her first professional appearance in The Prisoner of Zenda, under the management of Mr J. C. Williamson.

AT the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday Colonel Rotton presented a petition from the Lord's Day Observance Society asking that the Council at its annual licensing meeting on the 25th inst. would require obedience to the Statute law as to Sunday opening of places of public entertainment, as set forth in the terms of the Council's own licence.

THE performances of Parsifal in English during the past week at the New York Theatre, New York, have won critical approval, and from an artistic point of view the production is an undoubted success. But the unusual length of the representations has militated somewhat against a large attendance, and it is certain that if the immense amount of money that has been sunk in this production is ever recovered it will be when it is taken "on the road," and not during its run in New York. The curtain now rises at 7·15 p.m., nearly two hours later than on the opening night.

"THE FREEDOM OF SUZANNE."

A Light Comedy, in Three Acts, by Cosmo Gordon Lennox, Produced at the Criterion Theatre on Tuesday, Nov. 15.

Suzanne Trevor	Miss MARIE TEMPEST
Charles Trevor	Mr ALLAN AYNESWORTH
Fitzroy Harding	Mr CHARLES SUGDEN
Sir Horace Hatton	Mr G. S. TITHERADGE
Lord Datchet	Mr E. HOLMAN CLARK
Captain Harry Cecil	Mr C. M. HALLARD
Tommy Keston	Mr A. E. MATTHEWS
Mason	Mr HORTON COOPER
Lady Charlotte Trevor	Miss ADA FERRAR
Miss Fanny Minching	Miss ALICE BEET
Lady Isobel Bury	Miss BEATRICE BECKLEY
Mrs Tunstall	Miss FLORENCE SINCLAIR
Mrs Putnam	Miss ALICE MANSFIELD
Mr Budd	Mr LEONARD CALVERT
Porter	Mr EDWARD Y. RAE

Mr Cosmo Gordon Lennox's piece is called "a light comedy," but it is really a comedy with a moral, logically deduced after the manner of the Gallic playwright. This is not surprising, considering that the piece is founded to a certain extent on a novel by the lively and "spicy" Gyp. Despite the glaring indecency of Divorçons, it had an ethical object, i.e., to show that a great deal of the grievances of the dissatisfied wife against her husbands are usually caused by his being the husband. His official position as le mari, said Sardou, is against him; and, while in reality he is no worse than any of the lady's bachelor friends, they seem to the lady to be a great deal better from the fact that she is not bound to them by any legal tie. When the husband has ceased to be the husband, and enters the competition unhandicapped, he appears to the released wife to be the pleasantest and most desirable of acquaintances. Of course, such a sermon could only be addressed with profit to a society in which Duty had been banished to an extent which would satisfy even Mr Bernard Shaw; and the charm of pieces like The Freedom of Suzanne is that they introduce us into a kind of "fairy tale" atmosphere. The heroine of Mr Lennox's piece is a giddy-pated but good-hearted little fool, who amuses us by her wit, startles us by her silliness, and keeps us in a constant state of expectation as to what she will do next. Suzanne Trevor is the wife of Mr Charles Trevor, a quiet but wise young man, who would be the raisonneur of the piece, only that we are "bored to death" by raisonneurs in England. Trevor does not say much, but his silences are as eloquent as Lord Burleigh's historical shakes of the head. Suzanne demands perfect freedom to flirt with whom she likes, to go where she likes, to wear risky costumes in public charity performances, and to rehearse impassioned scenes in private with seductive Frenchmen. Trevor endeavours to indulge her, but there are things that he cannot endure, and it is with one of these "freedoms" that the action of the play commences. We see Trevor, his stately mother, Lady Charlotte, Suzanne's uncle, Mr Fitzroy Harding, and others in a kind of family counsel discussing Suzanne's latest escapade—an absence of six hours, in the course of which she has involved herself in a succession of adventures, and has been very nearly kissed by a young man under the impression that she is no better than she should be. She has long talked of her intention of divorcing her husband, and her attempts to secure evidence of his cruelty by keeping at hand a witness in the person of her companion, Miss Minching, are all in the same "feather-headed," frivolous key. The first act ends with the little incident—her husband shaking her and seizing her by the wrists—which is to constitute the "cruelty" in the application for divorce.

This first act sparkles brightly with vivacity, life, and fun. After that the piece, by comparison, deteriorates. It is not easy, indeed, to imagine how, with such a brilliant beginning, the "pot could be kept boiling" for the rest of the evening. The initial section of Mr Lennox's play is a rare and precious example of artificial comedy. In the second and third acts, semi-philosophic seriousness "breaks in." It appears that Trevor is a masterful experimentalist, who has "colluded" with Suzanne in getting a divorce in order that she may realise her folly in jumping from the marital frying-pan into the celebatarian fire. When she has been sufficiently schooled, Trevor, who loves her quand même, will step in and receive back to his arms his now-repentant spouse. Thus we pass into the domain of philosophical comedy, mingled with some of the smart airs of the first act. Suzanne, "freed" by her divorce, soon finds her position quite uncomfortable. She is pestered with the attentions of three admirers, the most eligible of whom insults her by offering to make her his mistress. Disgusted with them, she is irritated, too, by the idea that her ex-husband is flirting outrageously with her most detested "friend," a Mrs Tunstall. Trevor encourages the idea, and lets her think that he is going up to town with the lady, to discuss a little supper—and other things—at his flat. Suzanne's unreasonable jealousy is thoroughly aroused; and one of the very cleverest scenes in the piece—a gem of comedy writing—is that in which she alternately snubs and kisses her utterly uncomprehending companion. Then she disguises herself in a man's motoring costume, and dashes up to town to spy on her ex-husband's doings.

The last act is devoted to the repentance of Suzanne and the reconciliation of the couple. She gives in her submission to matrimony, and confesses her mistake; he accepts her surrender, and, as the decree is not made absolute, and the King's Proctor's spy has seen enough to suggest collusion, it is simply a case of "as you were."

Though, unfortunately, the strength of The Freedom of Suzanne is at the wrong end of the piece, it is bright and smart, by flashes, throughout; and, above all, it supplies Miss Tempest with a rôle which shows her as one of the few gifted comediennes on the English stage at present. Throughout she was simply irresistible. Fun, malice, sadness, and "temper" were depicted by her by turns in the daintiest and most artistic way. Her Suzanne was the essence of airy caprice, a creation of a delicate and individual kind—deliciously droll, ever-animated and pirpant, with every point sharpened by the "cutest" and cleverest facial play and the most vivid gestic expression. The comedy is well worth seeing if only for her performance of the principal part, to which all the rest are distinctly subordinate. Thus, Mr Allan Aynesworth as Charles Trevor had to make most of his effect by inference, and the way he accomplished this—notably, his reserved force while "tinkering" with a Kodak in the second act—proved his ability very distinctly. The combined power and moderation of Mr Aynesworth's work were, indeed, remarkable. Mr Charles Sugden gave an unimpeachable performance of the part of Fitzroy Harding; Mr G. S. Titheradge was irreproachable as a family solicitor; and Mr E. Holman Clark, Mr C. M. Hallard, and Mr A. E. Mathews, with indifferent opportunities, did well as the three admirers. Miss Ada Ferrar was so superb as Lady Charlotte Trevor that one felt it a pity she could not have more to do with the action; and Miss Alice Beet was quaintly characteristic as Miss Fanny Minching, Miss Beatrice Beckley being an amiable Lady Isabel Bury, and Miss Florence Sinclair hitting off neatly the characteristics of Miss Tunstall. Miss Alice Mansfield as a charwoman and Mr Leonard Calvert as a King's Proctors' agent made the most of their rather poor opportunities. The first act of The Freedom of Suzanne was enthusiastically received on Tuesday, but the interest slackened as the performance proceeded, and the author did not appear. Judged critically, therefore, the comedy was not completely satisfactory; but the general public thinks more of persons than of plays, and we should not be surprised if the delightful acting and popular personality of Miss Marie Tempest more than answered all objections. The genuine humourist, Mr Frank Lincoln, gives his amusing entertainment as a prelude to the comedy.

"THE ACTORS' BENEVOLENT FUND."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I am fully in sympathy with the views expressed by you editorially, and by Mr Willard and Mr Moullot. I will join any movement to put the practical into practice. Yours faithfully,

HERBERT BEERBOHM TREE.

His Majesty's Theatre, Nov. 15.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I have read with great interest the letter addressed to you by Mr Willard re the Actors' Benevolent Fund and how to help it, and I should like to express my entire sympathy with his views of the case. For some time I had hopes that Mr Cecil Raleigh's scheme might be feasible, and that a day might be set apart in the year on which a performance might be given by every acting company for the benefit of the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Actors' Orphanage Fund, but such terrible difficulties had arisen with regard to the carrying out of this idea that I have come to the conclusion that the only possible scheme is, as Mr Willard suggests, to tax all the members of the companies and the managers of those companies, if the managers would all agree to deduct the salaries due on one specified night, and would, of course, also give a guarantee that they would contribute their own earnings on that evening. No doubt in a few years the Actors' Benevolent Fund will be self-supporting, and the charity dinner, which is so degrading to us all, will be a thing of the past.

Yours faithfully, CYRIL MAUDE.

New Theatre, Nov. 12.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I have read carefully the suggestions put forward by Mr E. S. Willard and Mr Frederick Mouillot in your last issue of The Era, and I agree with them thoroughly in every detail, and I have no doubt that every member of the profession, manager or artiste, will do likewise. It is not asking much from anyone to forego one night's salary in twelve months, when they are working, and the amount realised would, no doubt, be almost enough to make tht A.B.F. independent of outside help and in a position to relieve any deserving calls that may be made upon it. Of course, there are side issues. No manager would care to have the amount of his one night's salary-list published. Also there may be cases in a company where an artiste, although working, may be in very straitened circumstances, through having to support a large family, or other causes, and not in a position to forego even his one night's salary. This, no doubt, would be left to the discretion of the manager. These are only details, and could be easily adjusted; but I think the scheme itself ought to be commenced at once, and if a representative number of managers and artistes agree, I shall be only too pleased to insert the clause in all my contracts and give the movement my heartiest support.

Yours faithfully, CHARLES DRAYCOTT.

Theatre Royal, Sunderland, Nov. 16.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I fear that Mr Willard's scheme for benefitting the above would prove to be not only unpopular but unworkable and un-English, savouring somewhat of the "truck" system and the "sweating" at the stores. Few of us would, I am certain, refuse to give one night's salary to the fund. Few of us—even in these days of overcrowding and keen competition—would sign a contract containing a clause making that donation compulsory. Besides, let us see how it might work out. Mr A taxes his company for the A.B.F., Mr B does ditto for the Dogs' Home, Mrs C the Home for Stray Cats, and Mr E the Refuge for Escaped Poll Parrots. So that, if Mr Willard's idea became fact, I might, in the course of a year, serve under the four managers I have enumerated, and be taxed accordingly. I regret having no alternative to propose, but for one will, on next Actors' Saturday, give my salary for that night, or, if not acting, a sum pro rata on my present year's emoluments. Yours faithfully,

MARK A. KINGHORNE.

St. James's Theatre, S.W., Nov. 16.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—The idea of giving one performance throughout the entire country on one particular night in aid of the Actors' Benevolent Fund is decidedly a good one. Let the managers that are agreeable make a start, and let every manager grant the free use of his theatre; every author give his fees, and every actor and actress whose salary exceeds three pounds weekly give a seventh of his or her salary. I make this reservation because the pinch of living on three pounds weekly in the provinces is ofttimes great. Just such an appearance is necessary to a three pound man as for a ten pound man, and living expenses practically the same. Forty weeks per year is now rarely experienced; and let us consider the present everyday needs of our poorer real hard workers.

Yours faithfully, HENRY TWEEDIE,

Manager, Miss Olga Nethersole's "Sapho" Company.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I consider it an excellent scheme, and should only be too pleased to help to further it in any way.

Yours faithfully, E. CARTER LIVESEY.

Opera House, Radcliffe, Lancs., Nov. 16.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I think Mr Willard's and Mr Mouillot's suggestion for helping the Actors' Benevolent Fund an admirable one, and personally I should be very glad to give my salary one night a year to such an excellent institution.

Yours faithfully, GERTRUDE BURNETT,

Theatre Royal, Bournemouth, Nov. 12.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I think Mr E. S. Willard's suggestion of a deduction of one night's salary every year a most reasonable and excellent one, but why enforce it in a contract. Surely no artist would refuse a request such as this for so good a cause. I think that if every touring manager agreed to collect on a fixed day every year voluntary subscriptions from all the artists in his company, and those engaged in the theatre at which the company is playing, a very handsome return could be paid over to the Fund. Boxes could also be passed amongst the audience the same night, in the same way as "the Lifeboat" collections have been made.

Yours faithfully, F. SHAPLAND-DEE.

Theatre Royal, Cardiff.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Mr Mouillot's ideas are always excellent. I would heartily support any movement such as he suggests in aid of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, should the scheme be generally adopted.

Yours faithfully. PERCY HUTCHISON.

THE managers of the San Francisco Theatres have decided that "deadheads" in the future shall be taxed ten cents. each for the American Actors' Home. As the passes are presented at the box-office the tax is demanded and the stamp is affixed, without which it is not accepted at the door. The stamps are about the size of an ordinary postage stamp and are of two varieties, red for two persons and green for one. On them are the words, "Actors' Home Fund," and on the top and bottom is printed the value, ten or twenty cents. as the case may be. The Actors' Home is situated on Staten Island, and was dedicated about two years ago. Among the aged and infirm artists being cared for there now are Madame Janauschek and Mr James Ward.

MRS. EDMUND PHELPS.

Phelps! Samuel Phelps! What a name to conjure with in the fifties! Shades and glories of the stern, but illustrious, past. What scenes of triumph (to those who are old enough to remember) does it not bring back, back, we'll say, to 1852, when Phelps amused all playgoing London with his impersonation of Sir Pertinax Macsycophant, in the good old comedy, The Man of the World. Who that ever saw Phelps's James VI. will ever forget it? His command of the Scotch dialect, his walk, his look, his attitude were as palpable indications of character as the perfect Scotch dialect he employed. There was not a turn of his mouth or a leer of his eye that was not in harmony with the general design. His pride, terror, abasement, doubt, triumph, and final despair were all given with a marvellous versatility. It was a truly wonderful performance. The whole like a Dutch picture, laboriously minute in all its details and perfect as a finished whole. When we think of the great, the polished, the dignified Phelps we naturally think of the beloved histrionic home of many a dead genius—dear, quaint picturesque old Sadler's Wells. Ah! those were the days, indeed, when the playhouse was the playhouse, not a variety theatre without the compensating smoke. People went to see Phelps as Bottom, the weaver, James VI., Brutus, Falstaff, Macbeth, or Christopher Sly, as the case might be. They cared not about the setting being ornate, or even whether the dresses were "a dream." They wanted Phelps and the play. Those were not the days of problems, "smart sets," inuendos, and influential amateurs; they were the days of work, energy, powder, fire, and ability, and so may it please providence to keep green and revered the memory of Samuel Phelps, one of the giants of an age the loftiness of which but few playgoers, alas, can recall. Phelps had no equal in characters requiring the full force of rugged strength. He always upheld the nobleness of his calling. He gazed upon it as an art, not as a trade! He passed through a long and arduous career without a breath of scandal being whispered about him. He took little part in public or club life. His great delight when not acting was to go fishing. In a piscatory and histrionic way he could hold his own. In Scottish characters he was unrivalled. There was something dour and almost pragmatical about the man's nature that may account for his extraordinary success in such parts. It may be interesting to note that Phelps in 1853 published a scholarly edition of Shakespeare.

And now, "lest we forget," let us all tenderly think of the welfare of Samuel Phelps's daughter-in-law, Mrs Edmund Phelps, who in the late autumn of a strictly honourable, strenuous, and ever creditable career, finds thorns in a path which all true lovers of the drama would have had happily strewn with roses. Mrs Edmund Phelps, through no fault of her own, finds herself at the ripe age of sixty-seven face to face with the necessitous difficulties and cruelties attendant upon a brave semblance of exhausting gentility. Apart from the honoured name she bears, Mrs Phelps has for nearly fifty years served the stage with credit and distinction. She has played—and played well—with many of our great luminaries, and it would indeed be pleasant to think that the winter of her bravely, well-spent life will through the kindly efforts of her sister and brother professionals be passed in something like independence and simple comfort. Mrs Phelps is an object lesson in indomitable pluck; though weighed down with domestic affliction and accumulating responsibilities she is willing when occasion demands to once more face the music and show the public and managers that her well-known and delightful powers of comedy are undiminishing; therefore, must we all appreciate the kindly action of Messrs Tree, Henderson, Miss Warley, and other celebrities in organising a benefit in honour of Mrs Edmund Phelps. At this well-timed bespeak will be presented The Man Who Was (with Mr Tree in his original part), The Monkey's Paw (with Mr Cyril Maude, Mr Sydney Valentine, Mr Wilfred Fraser, and Miss Mary Rorke), Mr George Alexander, Miss Genevieve Ward, a scene from The Orchid by the Gaiety company, Miss Isabel Jay, Mr Maurice Farkoa, Miss Eva Moore, Miss Constance Collier, Mr Arthur Williams, Mr Hayden Coffin, Mr George Robey, and Mr Huntley Wright, also Mr Arthur Bourchier and Miss Jessie Bateman, who will give A Lesson in Harmony.

Mrs Edmund Phelps as an artiste is one of a quickly vanishing school. As a type of English feminity she is inestimable. In the society of Mrs Phelps one meets with an old-time fragrance and unaffected simplicity, rare as it is, refreshing and delightful.

The younger generation of playgoers will remember Mrs Phelps best by her excellent performances in Mrs John Wood's company at the Court Theatre. It was during this engagement that she played Lady M'Phail, in A. W. Pinero's Cabinet Minister, and the cook, in Mr Horner's Late Lamented. And now for a bit of retrogression. In 1862 Mrs Phelps appeared at Sadler's Wells under the management of her distinguished father-in-law, Samuel Phelps. After this followed an engagement with Madame Celeste at the Lyceum, and a season at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, then under the control of Mercer Simpson. At the London Lyceum Mrs Phelps met Lydia Thompson, George Vining, Henry Neville, and John Drew. The principal item was Paris and Pleasure, a piece interpreted by good artists, but lame in diction and construction.

When Mrs Phelps gets "warmed up," so to speak, she loves—bless her!—to speak of the happy, hopeful, bygone days when the heart was young, engagements plentiful, and ambition unfettered. Mrs Phelps will tell you with enviable lucidity how she started with Harry Rutley at the old Theatre Royal, Portsmouth. It was in this theatre she first met "Charley" Stephenson and his bright and clever wife. Stephenson, by the way, was the original Father Tom, in Boucicault's never-to-be-forgotten Colleen Bawn.

To give an exhaustive account of Mrs Phelps's interesting stage record would fill a fat volume. She toured America with Sir Charles Wyndham, appearing in Pink Dominos, Brighton, Naval Engagements, &c. At the Vaudeville Theatre those who remember the Night Out will think more than pleasantly of her performance in this amusing piece. Then as Lady Grey, in A Gaiety Girl, with John Hare at the Garrick, and in many other engagements entailing solid, wholesome, legitimate work.

Dear old Mrs Keeley, in writing Mrs Phelps and complimenting her upon a certain performance, expressed herself in these terms:—"You're a dear little woman and a clever little woman; as to Jimmy Fernandez, I have lost my heart to him, but don't expose me, for the sake of my family!"

A good many years ago Mrs Phelps toured with Mr H. B. Conway in "olde comedies." Miss Marie Illington, by the way, was a member of this company. The combination had a journey from Liverpool to Dover. The baggage went astray; lost on the line. 7·30 p.m., and nothing to wear. The house packed to see Harry Conway and company in The Rivals. Situation explained to audience, and offer made to return money at box-office. Audience said, "Get on with the play; never mind the costumes," and so the old play was performed in the strangest and most weird assortment of street garments ever seen on a modern stage.

The members of the profession (who are always so ready to assist any sister or brother artist who are less fortunate than they deserve to be) will gather together and help in making the matinée at His Majesty's Theatre on the 25th inst. into the brilliant success which Mrs Phelps so well deserves.

THE A.B.F. AT SEA.

A most enjoyable concert was given on board the Royal mail steamer Kenilworth Castle on her voyage to the Cape on the Oct. 15. The saloon provided seats for about three hundred passengers, but nearly as many more had to be contented with "standing-room only." The chief contributors to a most excellent programme were Miss Helen Charles, Mr and Mrs King (late of the Palace Theatre, London), and Mr William Gould, who will be remembered as one of the original Belle of New York company at the Shaftesbury Theatre. At the request of the chairman Mr J. G. Morrison made an appeal on behalf of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, and said:—Ladies and gentlemen, I have been asked by your chairman to say a few words on behalf of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, and I do so with much pleasure. As you are doubtless aware, it is usual to enlist the help of someone possessed of eloquence for a duty of this sort. I can lay no claim to that distinction, but when I tell you I have taken a keen interest in theatrical charities for many years, you will, I hope, grant that my knowledge of the good they do justifies my appeal, halting though it may be. If we leave out the outer circle of the theatrical profession, and by that I mean the friends who are much in sympathy with the actors' art, and are happy to subscribe to their charities, I think I can endorse the proud assertion that so far as the great public is concerned the profession never appeal to them without giving more than good value in return, and those of you who have seen the entertainments put forward in London and the large provincial cities of the United Kingdom when charitable institutions are sought to be benefited will bear out my assertion. Ladies and gentlemen, this is Saturday night and nine o'clock on this night, and at this hour on every sea and every ocean the lonely ones toast "Sweethearts and Wives." This is the time for kindly sentiments, and if there is one virtue more entitled to walk hand in hand with the tender thought expressed in the universal toast it is charity. Ladies and gentlemen, I can see by your happy, interested faces that you will respond to my appeal. To each of you I say, open your heart, open your purse, give what you can spare, help the Fund which day by day helps those who, unfortunately, cannot help themselves. Later in the evening Mr J. S. Morrison intimated that the collection amounted to £21 14s. 3d, but that some friends had made it up to twenty-five guineas.

THE O.P. Club's ladies' annual dinner will be held at the Criterion, on Sunday, Dec. 11, with Miss Lily Brayton in the chair.

MR VALENTINE CAMERON PRINSEP, R.A., died at Holland-park on Friday, the 11th inst., from the effects of an operation. He was born in 1838, the second of the three sons of Henry Thoby Prinsep, all of whom became distinguished men. His first work done in association with Rossetti and Morris was at Oxford, where he painted one of the compartments of the hall of the Oxford Union. A little later he spent some time in Paris, and it is no secret that he unconsciously sat for the portrait of the big Taffy in his friend Du Maurier's famous novel of "Trilby." After his time of training was over, Prinsep returned to London and began to exhibit with great success.

MR VAL PRINSEP, who was a man of varied talents, wrote for the stage. His earliest effort was a comedietta named Cousin Dick, produced by Mr John Hare at the Court Theatre—then under his management—in the spring of 1879. In this Miss Cissy Grahame and the late Mr Wenman appeared, and the piece was revived at the Criterion in the summer of 1886. His other dramatic production, Monsieur le Duc, was the opening work at the St. James's Theatre, when that house started its memorable Hare and Kendal season in the autumn of 1879. The play had previously been successfully tried in the provinces. Mr Hare appeared as the lady-killing Duc De Richelieu. The late Mr William Terriss, the late Mr R. Catheart, Mr Wilfred Draycott, Mr Albert Chevalier, and Miss Grahame were in the cast. Four years previously, when Mr Hare entered upon his management of the Court Theatre, Mr Val Prinsep designed a new act-drop, which he personally painted, in conjunction with Mr O'Connor. The funeral took place on Wednesday at Brompton Cemetery, and a memorial service was held in the morning at St. Paul's Cathedral.

Are we not making Royalty on the stage a little too cheap? The tendency to ridicule which was noticeable when the "pomp and circumstance" of a Court was elaborately reproduced in The Flute of Pan at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Saturday, suggested that, after Captain Marshall and others have done so much to knock down the reverent admiration that hangs about regal ceremony, it is not easy to set it up again. "John Oliver Hobbes" is not at her best in The Flute of Pan. It is a backbone-less, "talky" play, in which the two principal characters are tepidly moved by a cheaply constructed misunderstanding, in which the dialogue is dotted with many pretentious and puzzling epigrams, and in which the comedy business has rather an unsavoury twang.

Boris, Earl of Feldershey, is an eccentric nobleman who has adopted a certain physician's advice to live on sixpence a day and earn it. In the first act he is at work in his studio, where he has painted a picture celebrating the power of simple nature. His cousin, Princess Margaret, the reigning sovereign of Siguria, visits him; and, referring to her former refusal of his addresses, cancels it and invites him to become her consort and repress certain threatened rebellions in her domains. He consents, but, on their very wedding day, he conceives a jealous suspicion. A certain Baverstock, an Englishman who is on a diplomatic mission to the court of Siguria, is carrying on an intrigue with the wife of the Master of the Horse, Count Rixensart, a lady who, under the mask of idiotic simplicity, conceals a most "coming-on" disposition, and throws herself at the head of every man she meets. Thus, when Boris, like Fritz in The Grand Duchess, is hurried off to fight for his country on his very wedding-day, he takes ill-feeling with him; and, when he returns victorious, he is still unsatisfied. He asks the Princess what Baverstock is doing at the Court; but, as this is a State secret, she refuses to tell him. Ultimately, she decides to abdicate, and, in the presence of her whole Court, divests herself of the signs of her royalty. This scene is mounted and dressed with very costly elaboration. In the last act, the obvious explanation and reconciliation take place. Boris has returned to his studio; and there he is found by the Princess, who convinces him that he had no cause for jealousy, and no reason to resent her silence, which was caused by one of the sternest duties of her position.

The authoress of the piece may congratulate herself on the care and liberality which were devoted to the production of her work. Everyone concerned in the performance on Saturday night worked hard and well; and the fullest justice was done both to the dialogue and the situations. Miss Olga Nethersole's Princess Margaret of Siguria had the very valuable quality of queenliness. The spirit of regal artificiality was very skilfully introduced, and, in her dealings both with her lover and her Court, Her Royal Highness bore herself nobly and graciously. Unfortunately there was no strong dramatic scene to employ Miss Nethersole's fullest capacity; but she made the most of her materials, and, whenever there was the least chance of scoring, she was earnest, emotional and expressive. It is rather uphill work, however, to go on "queening it," through three acts; and it is a still greater test of an actress's aplomb and verve for her to be obliged, by the necessities of her part, to march solemnly and silently in, bearing the sceptre in one hand and the orb in the other. It was a warm tribute to Miss Nethersole's command over herself and her audience that, at this difficult point, she never flinched, and by her perfect serenity repressed the giggles of the unthinking and the jibes of the sarcastic. Her treatment of the love scenes between the Princess and the Earl was tactful, considerate, and clever; and she bore the burden of her part with an ease and authority that showed the practised and experienced artist. It was to be regretted that so earnest and powerful an actress had not more opportunities of distinction than were given her in the character of Princess Margaret. Mr Herbert Waring did all that was possible with the rôle of Boris, Earl of Feldershey, and sustained it with a stern directness and a virile energy which were most appreciated. He hit off the brusque obstinacy of the painter-warrior very spiritedly; and at times, by his bold and emphatic embodiment, infused serious interest into the performance.

The supporting artists were more generously provided for by the authoress, and consequently had less to complain of. Miss Annie Hughes endeavoured, by an assumption of artlessness, and by developing the comedy of the rôle, to obscure the decided unpleasantness of the cynically-drawn character of the Countess Bertha Rixensart; Miss Kate Phillips had some rather "trying" costumes to wear, and not many good lines to speak as the Baroness d'Albreuse; and Miss Adeline Bourne played carefully as that rather ill-defined personage Madame Von Rauser. Mr C. W. Somerset suggested with skill and confidence the impish amorosity and senile conceit of the Prince Adolph of Nymwegen; and Mr Dawson Milward's fine style and polish, tall figure, and well modulated voice made his Count Rixensart a most natural and "convincing" embodiment. Mr W. T. Lovell was quite thrown away on the part of Harry Baverstock, and this fine actor is much to be commiserated on the poorness of his chance. It need hardly be said that he acted unimpeachably; but he is capable of much better things, and we hope to see him soon entrusted with a task more worthy of his powers. Mr Farren depicted Count Marche with great sharpness and firmness and Mr Berte Thomas was excellent as Captain Bernstein. The Councillors and the domestics had sound and suitable representatives, the tall and handsome ladies who were engaged to embody the ladies of the Court doing their work creditably and carefully. The mounting was dazzling and sumptuous. Mr W. T. Hemaley's scenes made grand backgrounds for the stage pictures formed by the grouping of the grandees of both sexes in their costly costumes; and Miss Nethersole's robes and jewels were beautiful and brilliant.

At the conclusion, when she and the principal members of her company had been called again and again the audience endeavoured in vain to entice the authoress upon the stage; Mrs Craigie, with her accustomed tact and good taste, wisely refraining from putting in an appearance.

WAGNER IN NEW YORK.

Parsifal, in English, was performed for the first time in New York on the 31st ult. at the New York Theatre by a company organised by Mr Henry W. Savage. New York was indebted to Mr Savage for the excellent performances of the Castle-square opera company a few years ago, and his more recent undertakings in the light opera field have been conspicuously successful. The production of Wagner's sacred "festival play" in English is the culmination of one of his long-cherished plans and an earnest of similar undertakings in the future, his intention being to present the master works of the operatic stage in a manner comparable with the best achievements of the opera houses on the Continent. The representations at the New York Theatre are praiseworthy in every respect, and are drawing overflowing audiences. The evening performances begin at six o'clock. Between the first and second acts there is an intermission of one hour, the curtain rising again at nine o'clock. Two matinées are to be given each week, these beginning at eleven o'clock. The company is composed entirely of young singers, selected by Mr Savage during his recent visit to Europe. The choruses have been admirably trained, and the scenery, lighting, and mechanical effects show care, imagination, and due regard for the intentions of the great composer. Three artistes appear alternately in the title-rôles, viz., Allois Pennarini, principal tenor of the Hamburg Opera House; Francis M'Lellan, a pupil of Georg Henschel; and Christian De Voss, principal dramatic tenor of the Royal Netherlands Opera House at Amsterdam. The three singers engaged for the rôle of Kundry are Madame Kirkby-Lunn, who appeared last year at the Metropolitan Opera House; Madame Hannah Mara, leading dramatic soprano of the Breslau Opera House; and Miss Florence Wickham, a young American, who made a success at the Court Theatre in Munich. For the rôle of Amfortas, Mr Savage has engaged Johannes Bischoff, a successful baritone from Cologne, and Franz Egenieff, from the Theater des Westens in Berlin. For the Gurnemanz, there are Putnam Griswold, a young American, from the Frankfort Opera House, and Ottley Cranston, an English singer of reputation. The part of Klingsor is sung by Homer Lind, formerly a member of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, and J. Parker Coombs, an American, who has been popular in concert work. The conductors of the orchestra, which is seventy strong, are Walter H. Rothwell, a Londoner, from the Hamburg and Amsterdam Opera House, and Moritz Grimm, a young musician who is regarded as a Wagnerian conductor of promise. The stage director is Joseph Engel, who made a reputation at Kroll's Opera House in Berlin, and the Stadt Theatre in Strasburg.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

COX.—Nov. 11, at Cranham Lodge, Stroud, Garnet Wolseley Cox, only child of Colonel C. Wolseley Cox, J.P., of Clare, King's County, Ireland, musical composer, aged thirty-two.

MORRELL.—Nov. 8, Millie Morrell, late Sisters Morrell (Mrs Walter Scott). Deeply loved and sincerely mourned by her sister Lilly (Mrs M. H. Lindon). Her end was peace.

PRINSEP.—Nov. 11, at Holland-park, Valentine Cameron Prinsep, R.A., Royal Academician and dramatic author.

RAINBIRD.—Nov. 9, suddenly, at Beckett's Hospital, Barnsley, Marie Rainbird, the beloved wife of Fred Danvers, aged thirty years. Rest, dear heart; rest, till we meet again.

THE Theatre Royal, Margate, being one of the comparatively few patented theatres in the country, is under the direct control of the Lord Chamberlain, who has recently insisted upon some very expensive alterations being carried out. These have just been completed; and among other things this work has involved the complete cutting off of the stage from the auditorium by new brickwork, iron safety doors, and an iron fire-proof curtain. The stage has been practically remodelled, and all the scenery treated with non-combustible solution. The dressing-rooms are shut off from the stage, and everything has been done that ingenuity can suggest and money provide to ensure the greatest safety for both audience, artistes, and staff. The theatre from the wings and the front of the house has been fitted with direct telephonic communication with the Central Fire Station, which is only a short distance away, the breaking of a square of glass being sufficient to ring the alarm, whilst Borough firemen are always on duty at each performance with a complete system of hydrants and fire appliances at command.

AUSTRALIA'S only municipally owned theatre—Her Majesty's, in the town of Geelong—which is about fifty miles from Melbourne, is the subject of a sketch in a Melbourne weekly by a recent visitor. He found a gory melodrama of the old transpontine type, The Russian Spy, in progress. The theatre he describes as handsome and well-appointed, and he naturally wonders why the ratepayers, who find the money to keep it going, do not put it to better dramatic uses.

MR SANDON PERKINS has been engaged by Mr Robt. Arthur to succeed Mr Eadie Montefiore as manager of Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee. Though Mr Perkins has only been in England for about seven years, having before that lived in America, he is well known throughout the provinces, having been resident at the Royal, Sunderland, for a couple of years, and since then being identified with the management of Miss Emma Hutchison and Sir Chas. Wyndham's touring companies. Mr Perkins has been specially released by Mr Percy Hutchison, in the middle of a most successful tour of Cousin Kate, in order to accept this appointment.

AT the Broadway Theatre this week, Mr George Dance's company has appeared in A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr Helier Le Maistre is enthusiastically applauded as the Emperor Hang-Chow; Mr Rudolph Kloss is very successful as the Lord High Chancellor; Mr Lennox Barry is excellent as the Lord High Admiral, Hi-Lung; Mr J. Warren Foster is an earnest and manly Tom Hatherton, and Mr Gus Wheatman wins marked favour in the character of Mr Pineapple. Miss Elsie Carew gives a good representation of Mrs Brown, Miss Eva Weigh is an attractive Mi-Mi, Miss Nellie Wigley is a charming Soo-Soo, Miss Dot Stephens is a delightfully vivacious Mrs Pineapple, and Miss Gwennie Harcourt gives a quaint and enjoyable performance as Fi-Fi.

MR E. H. SOTHERN and Miss JULIA MARLOWE are appearing at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, in Much Ado About Nothing. It is a long time since Shakespeare's comedy was so handsomely mounted and so well acted in that city. Mr Sothern's Benedict has found more favour with the critics than did his Romeo; in fact, it has received high praise as an interpretation of keen intelligence and delightful humour. His acting in the church scene with Beatrice wins hearty and prolonged applause, and in the quarrel scene with Claudio he again scores. Miss Marlowe is a captivating Beatrice, and her impersonation of this character will be classed among her finest achievements. Mr Rowland Buckstone gives a capital representation of Dogberry; Mr Norman Hackett is an excellent Claudio; and Messrs Sydney Mather, William Harris, and W. H. Crompton distinguished themselves in prominent rôles.

MR ERNIE LEECH wishes to thank Messrs Sylvester and Bale, Coventry, for their kindness in releasing him on account of the serious illness of his mother.

FAMOUS SCENIC ARTISTS.

MR. RICHARD DOUGLASS.

MR RICHARD DOUGLASS, who is the second son of the late John Douglass, the well-known manager, was articled early in life to Mr William Telbin, father of the present artist of that name, and, under the direction of his distinguished master, his first work with the brush was assisting in the original production of The Ticket-of-Leave Man at the Olympic Theatre. The panorama of The Holy Land for Mr J. B. Buckstone was at this time being prepared for the Haymarket Theatre, whilst the pantomime at Dublin, Hercules and Omphale, burlesque, for Miss Herbert, of the St. James's Theatre, quickly followed. The New Year saw Manfred staged at Drury-lane, and one year later Time and Tide at the Surrey and The Antipodes at the Holborn, to all of which Mr Douglass contributed.

Soon after this Mr Richard Douglass began working on his own account at the Standard Theatre, then under his father's management, although he continued occasionally to assist his old master when required. At the well-known National Standard Theatre for twenty consecutive seasons his charming pantomime scenery was universally admired. In the meantime he was gaining a vast experience through the number of "stars" appearing at this theatre, for whom productions were made from time to time of such plays as Othello, Hamlet, Macbeth, King Lear, King John, Henry IV., Henry V., Julius Cæsar, Cymbeline, Richard III., A Winter's Tale, Twelfth Night, Merchant of Venice, The Tempest, Merry Wives of Windsor, Antony and Cleopatra, Romeo and Juliet, The Bridal, Duchess of Malfi, Richelieu, Manfred, Man of the World, Guy Mannering, Rob Roy, and the whole répertoire of English opera. As if this amount of work were insufficient, there were the several spring and autumn productions at the Standard Theatre, which were, year after year, staged with a perfection of detail and realistic effects unprecedented even at the West-end of London. Many of these dramas added greatly to the artist's fame. Such stage pictures as the Wynd and the Highlands, in Hal o' the Wynd; Rotten Row, Glad Tidings; the Derby Racecourse and the Cock at Sutton, Daybreak; and the beautiful representation of Windsor Park and the Hunting Country, in The Silver Wedding, were really gems. But the biggest coup was yet to come, for in October, 1886, London was startled by the enthusiastic praise bestowed by all sections of the press on the lovely painting, Henley Regatta, in The Dark Secret. The next year, in The Royal Mail, came the still more wonderful sets, The Irrawaddy and the Mumbles Head, which effectually set the seal on the artist's renown. During the time he was thus employed he became interested, in 1880 and 1881, in the Park Theatre, Camden-town, where some notable scenic triumphs were achieved. And Mr Douglass's contributions to Little Em'ly, Amy Robsart, 'Twixt Axe and Crown,

MR. RICHARD DOUGLASS.

Delilah, Poor Relations, True till Death, The Power of Love, and other dramas, will always be pleasantly remembered.

After the Naval Exhibition at Chelsea in 1891 (for which Mr Douglass furnished the stage) he speedily made himself a reputation for the mammoth canvasses, which have delighted thousands of visitors to the Earl's-court exhibitions during the last eleven years. The gigantic paintings "A View in Surrey," "Rock Temples of India," "Windsor Castle—from the River," "Gibraltar," "Richmond Hill," "Balmoral Castle," "Warwick Castle," and "Lago Maggiore," bear witness to his success in this department of art. His latest work has been three scenes for Mr Tree's present production of The Tempest at Her Majesty's Theatre. Many act drops in London and the provinces, and the scenery of many touring companies, bear the signature of Richard Douglass on the canvas—at once the hall mark of efficiency and artistic excellence. With reference to the production of The Duchess of Malfi, mentioned earlier in this article, a very humorous incident occurred to the artist. Mr Douglass, being very young in his profession, and naturally ambitious of pleasing the "star" (in this instance the well-known Miss Glyn), he painted a splendid set of the Castle by the River at Night, and had a large moon and a mechanical reflection—or ripple—below, to give additional effect.

When the scene was being set he noticed, with horror, that the reflection of the moon (the ripple) was brilliantly lighted, but the moon was black as pitch. Running round behind to learn the cause, the following dialogue took place between the artist and the man in charge of the limelight:—

THE ARTIST.—Hullos, where's the moon?
THE LIMELIGHT MAN.—There it is, guv'nor, up there.
ARTIST.—But light it up, man. Light it up.
L. L. MAN.—Beg pardon, sir, but father hasn't come yet with the limes, and I've only got one here. So I thought I'd light up the ripple as it's prettiest, and we can do without the moon.

This amusing incident illustrates what artists have sometimes to put up with.

AT the committee meeting of the Scenic Artists' Association, held at the offices, 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, on Monday evening, with Mr Walter Hann in the chair, there were present Messrs Edmund G. Banks, William Harford, H. W. Owen, Harry Potts, and W. B. Spong, and Sir Philip Burne-Jones, Bart. Mr Hedley Churchward and Mr H. Lyneham were duly elected members of the Association. It was resolved to adopt the report of the Exhibition Sub-committee, and to convene an extraordinary general meeting of the members at the Caledonian Hotel, Adelphi, at 8·0 p.m. on Monday evening next, the 21st inst., to receive the report of the committee for the past six months, and to approve the proposed arrangements for an exhibition of scenic art, the week of Feb. 20 to 25, and to increase the Exhibition Guarantee Fund. The chairman announced that Mr Richard Douglas and Mr Harry Potts had subscribed £5 5s. each to the Guarantee Fund.

RADCLIFFE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company is here with A Traitor Prince. Mr Henry Lonsdale fills with credit the important part of Prince Rae Dalmierez; Alexander Temple is very good as Lieut. Frank Derrick; Mr E. Carter Livesey is well placed as Billy Bright; and Mr Austin Mortimer is a good Hon. Bobby. Mr A. H. Longford is acceptable as Col. Vane, and Miss Lilian Rosebery is a dainty Lola Vane. Miss B. Western ably assists as Vashti.

RAWTENSTALL.

GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr J. Ellis Miller.—The stage here is this week occupied by Messrs H. B. Levey and J. Walter's juvenile company in the extravaganza, Beauty and the Beast, which opened on Monday to a highly delighted and enthusiastic audience. The piece goes exceedingly well. Miss May Gibson as Spirit of Good sings delightfully and acts gracefully; as also does Miss Mary Hardacre as Prince Charming. As the "knockabouts" Masters Paddy Mills and Charles Elbon are screamingly funny. La Petite La Ray as Will Scarlett, Miss Lottie Harper as Maid Marion, Miss Kitty Trewhit as Tommy Tucker, Miss Isa Gibson as Marjory Daw, Miss Dorothy Milnthorpe as Billy Buttons, and Master T. Halton as Baron Smallcash are all thoroughly capable.

ROTHERHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. Manning.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company is here this week with The King of Crime. Mr William Clayton gives a powerful portrayal of the part of Ronjarre, and Mr W. H. Porter is successful as Simon Gandelu. Messrs Herbert Evelyn and Val W. Gully as Louis Mascorot and Toto Chapin are able accessories to Ronjarre. Mr Walter Dale is amusing as Mick Maloney, and Mr Edwin Maydew scores as Perpignan, and Mr Will R. Percival gives a careful rendition of the part of Tabaret. Miss Marion Turner submits a sympathetic representation of the rôle Henrietta Lemaire, and Miss Elizabeth Turner-Elliott is pleasing as Matilde. Miss Kitty Russell is a sprightly Clarisse, and Miss Ada King deserves mention as Mère Crouchard.

RUNCORN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr H. W. Caddick.—Miss Rose Faith's company is here in the drama entitled No Cross, No Crown. Mr J. P. M'Bride commands unstinted praise for his clever portrayal of Sir Francis Luttrell; Mr Logan Darra is an equally pronounced success in the heavy work of Austin Blake; Mr C. George is a leading feature as Rawson Haines; Mr Frank Hudspeth is highly elevating and much to the fore as Dr. Ashby; Miss Gwen Stewart provides a study of really exceptional merit as Margaret; and Miss Rose Faith does sterling work as Clare. Miss Kate Carnegie is suited as Annabel Sylvester, and the juvenile efforts of Miss May Warden as Doris and Miss Dolly Turner as Plato attract much attention.

SALFORD.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr Harold Goulden.—Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company on Monday presented to a large house the many stirring incidents forming the well-known drama, Why Men Love Women, which was well received. Mr Alfred Paumier did full justice to the character of the falsely accused Gerald Fielding; Serge Staniloff was well sustained by Mr S. Herbert Humber; Miss Annie Saker made a favourable impression as Violet Livingstone; and Mr Harwood Roberts as Orlando Figgins. Miss Q Nigel as Birdie Summertop, Miss V. Godfrey as Baby Winterbottom, and Miss Marie Glynne as Matilda Figgins combined to keep the audience highly amused. Mr W. S. Hardy as Tommy Fitzherbert, Mr Edwin Levey as the Maharajah, and Miss Beatrice Sinclair also sustained their several characters with care and ability.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Licensee, Mr James M. Hardie; Secretary and Manager, Mr C. Shayler.—Good houses find plenty of sterling amusement this week. Vesta Victoria is not allowed to rest until she has come on for the fourth time. Roars of laughter are caused by Horace Mills and W. H. Rawlins and company in the oddity Mashing the Missus. Amy Augarde pleases with her songs. The other excellent turns include the Waldrons, burlesque adepts; H. A. Zetto, comic juggler; the Kyaskas, athletic marvels; the Legay Quartette, amazing Parisian acrobatic dancers; Madeleine May, versatile comedienne; Cissy Cutler, comedienne; and Albert Whelan, Australian entertainer and mimic.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy B. Broadhead.—There is a good company here this week. The novel Azra does some clever juggling with billiard balls, &c.; Amy Anderson and company do good business in the novelty A Costly Incident; the marvellous Winona is an expert lady rifle shot; and Tony Iveson, the musical tramp, is duly appreciated. Very good performances are also given by the Crown Trio of clever speciality vocalists; Geo. Rapley, versatile comedian; Rivington and Gordyn, high-class comedy duettists; the Rozells, in a comedy bar act; Lily Jackson, male impersonator; Bliss and Bliss, refined patter comedians and dancers; and Mark Lane, comedian.

SHEERNESS.

VICTORIA PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr T. C. Dorling.—Mr T. Morton Powell's company opened here on Monday with The Greed of Gold. Mr B. Fox plays with ability the important part of Tom Wolstead. Mr Carthage Caldcleugh is excellent as the villain, Harry Hood; and Mr Brightstone, K.C., is capably represented by Mr T. G. Warry.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr P. Reymond.—An enjoyable programme here includes the Calden company in the dramatic sketch, Bound to Win. Mr Fred Langley, comedian and patter vocalist, and Miss Minnie Ransome, comedienne and dancer, are both deserving of special mention. Mr Jack Foley, eccentric comedian; and Miss Louie Hurman, burlesque actress, are also remaining for this week. The programme concludes with the comedy sketch, Irish Aristocracy.

SHREWSBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr W. C. Dornton.—Miss Grace Warner, supported by a large company, is here this week with The New Commander. Miss Warner worked and sang effectively as Violet Flintheart; Mr George Gordon was a capital Lieut. Frank Harding; Mr George Handel acted capably as Lieut. Jack Tremingway; Mr St. Bernard Wyntour was droll as the Sultan of Ramjamjah; Mr Townley Searle contributed some good songs as Matthew Flintheart; Mr Miller Anderson was an amusing waiter; Miss May Dallas was particularly smart and pleasing as Vivette, and numerous other parts were in capable hands. The Primrose Quartet of dancers were agile and successful.

SLIGO.

TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, Corporation.—The Ben Greet company opened here on Monday with A Fatal Wedding. Mr J. E. Clive was popular as Howard Wilson; Miss Eva Moss was successful as Mabel Wilson; as Jessie Miss Maisie Richardson was exceptionally good; Mr L. Shirley created much amusement as Lota; Miss Carrie Fenton made a capital Irish cook; the parts of Peter Schwartz and Constable O'Reilly were ably duplicated by Mr Sharley Lea; and Mr C. A. Cullens as Robert Curtis and Miss Beatrice Whitney as Cora Williams were both successful.

SCARBOROUGH.

SPA.—Manager, Mr Fras. Goodricke.—The company's orchestra plays each evening under the direction of Mr Charles Godfrey, junior. Mr John Child is the vocalist this week.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Henry Mayhew.—The sensational drama Honour Thy Father is being played here by Mr Morton Powell's company. Mr J. W. Evelyn is good as Gabriel Garth; Jack Halyard finds a manly representative in Mr Douglas Watson; the villain is ably played by Mr Ernest Hartington; Mr W. H. Coombes causes amusement as Dicky Dobbs; Miss Mabel Coleman wins the sympathy of the audience as Lilian Garth.

PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing Director, Mr W. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr Wm. Kitchingman.—Mr Frank Curzon's company is appearing with much success in the farce Glittering Gloria. Both the company and the play are a long way above the average. Mr John Campbell is an excellent Jack James; Mr Stanley Arthur acts well as Archie Toddleby; Mr Haughton Macauley creates much laughter by his eccentricities as Zebedee Posket; Mr Wordley Hulse puts in good work as Colonel Gallegher; Mr Gerald Clark as Algernon Entwistle ably seconds his efforts; Mr Charles Williams as Mr Griddletop succeeds in making things lively as the assistant Superintendant of Luggage; Miss Lillian Williams is a refined Mrs James James; and Gloria finds a pleasing representative in Miss Stanley Ronalds.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr Quinton Gibson.—One of the most popular items on the programme here is the reappearance of Mr Quinton Gibson in his lady impersonations; Mr P. Clements, the navvy reciter, has had a cordial reception; the Three Tudors give a good turn in their cycle act; Harry Bennet, comedian; Queenie Snow, dancer; the Two Vervains, vocalists and dancers; and the Franko Midgets are amongst the good things included in the programme.

SEACOMBE.

IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Kiernan.—A strong variety company here this week includes Woolford's Grand Continental Circus, with a clever stud of trained animals, and a novel horse riding machine which renders accidents to learners practically impossible. The Two Eltons, a clever pair of knockabout comedians on the triple horizontals; the Royal Victorian Troupe of international dancers; Leon and Leoni, musical eccentrics, in a smart musical act; Joe Hennessey, Scottish athletic club juggler and manipulator; the Vyponds (Fred and Maude), in a bright little patter absurdity, Engaging the Servant; Sisters Marion, dashing duettists; the Marbleque Trio, in their classical and descriptive statuary tableaux; Carlo Borrello, artistic comedy juggler; and Clayton Twins and company in their sketch, Pepper and Salt. The Irving Bioscope also presents each evening the latest series of animated pictures.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr A. C. Harrison.—Lost in Paris forms an admirable attraction here this week, the drama being played by Mr Henry Furnival's company. Mr W. J. Butler portrays the Count De Linieres in good style. Adrien finds a capital exponent in Mr A. V. Dixon. Mr Furnival delineates the cripple, Pierre, with consummate skill. Jacques is played to the life by Mr Edward Valentine. Miss Louisa Peach gives a highly meritorious portrayal of Henriette. Miss K. Willoughby invests the part of Louise with much charm. La Frochard is realistically played by Miss Pattie Hastings. The Countess De Linieres is given in finished style by Miss Alice Oliver. Mr H. Charles as the Marquis De Presles, Mr J. Fulton-Millar as Picard, Mr W. Garrett as Doctor Duvals, and Mr Leo Harrison as Lafleur successfully portray their parts.

SHEFFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr F. W. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr T. S. Carter.—The great event here has been the brilliant performances by the Moody-Manners opera company, in connection with the University College. Mr Manners has pleased all sections of the community by his generous action in devoting the profits of the festival to the funds of the Sheffield University College. For the purposes of the festival the two principal Moody-Manners troupes were amalgamated. On Monday Gounod's Faust was given, Miss Fanny Moody received a thoroughly Yorkshire greeting on her appearance as Marguerite, and the well-known music of the part was rendered by her with all the sympathetic ability of the finished artiste. Mr Charles Manners' fine representation of Mephistopheles is well known to opera-goers. He again made a striking picture in the traditional scarlet dress, and the sardonic humour of the fiend was admirably expressed. Mr Manners sang "The Calf of Gold" and the Serenade in a magnificent manner. The Faust of Mr Wilson Pembroke was an excellent performance, and his singing gave universal pleasure. Mr F. H. Erle possesses the keen dramatic insight and vocal talent requisite for the part of Valentine, and he acted and sang with great emotional power. Mr W. Barrett's Wagner was good; Miss J. M'Carthy was a comely and humorous Martha; and Miss Rosina Beynon was the Siebel. On Tuesday there was again a crowded and representative audience, and Bizet's Carmen, superbly staged, was received with every demonstration of delighted approval. On Wednesday, Tristan and Isolda was performed; on Thursday (matinée), Pagliacci and Cavalleria Rusticana and (evening) Mignon; on Friday, acts from Valkyrie, Seigfried, and Lohengrin. It is worthy of mention that the use of the theatre was granted free by Mr Purcell for the Thursday matinée, as were the services of Mr Manners' company. The heavy bookings assured a financial success before the opening night.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager and Treasurer, Mr J. E. B. Beaumont.—On Monday Mr William Greet's company opened to a delighted house in the lively and tuneful musical comedy The Earl and the Girl. The scenery and dresses were artistic and beautiful, and the acting, singing, and dancing were first-rate. Mr William Stephens kept the audience in roars of laughter as Jim Cheese, and his coster business was replete with characteristic humour. As the Earl Mr Percy Carr wes decidedly successful, and his fine baritone voice was heard to great advantage. Mr W. Hindson acted cleverly as the solicitor, and the fun was kept going by Mr. J. C. Graves as Mr Talk and Mr Tom Redmond as the landlord of the inn. Miss Aimee Grey made a pretty and captivating American heiress; Miss Dot Carey was a bright and vivacious representative of the light-hearted Lena Shoddem; Miss Gladys Fontaine caused much amusement as the strong woman; and that big local favourite Miss Florence Imeson was a graceful and chic Daisy Fallowfield.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr C. W. Ramsay.—Mr Walter Melville's interesting and powerful English drama of modern life, A Girl's Cross Roads, was acted for the first time in Sheffield on Monday to a large and evidently well-pleased audience. The stirring episodes were watched with rapt attention, and the applause had the true ring about it so sweet to the ears of dramatist and player. Miss Beatrice Homer submitted a fine study of feminine character as Barbara Wade; Miss Octavia Noel made a prepossessing and energetic Nellie Meadows; Miss Violet Barton-Astor was a naïve, pleasing, and natural Constance, and the Tilly Vane of Miss Emily Custance was a merry and spirited comic creation. A fine performance was the Jack Livingstone of Mr Wingold Lawrence, and that sound actor, Mr Edwin Wilde, did effective work as Mr Meadows. Mr John Hitchens furnished cause for abundant mirth as Topsy-Turvy; a well-considered impersonation was the Dr. Weston of Mr Charles Terry; Mr John Brookes was suitably cast in the part of Ramsden; Mr Leonard did well as Lumley; and Mr Charles Dawe as a thief and Mr Richard Zan as a police officer were in the picture. The mounting was quite in accordance with the high standard set by Mr Walter Melville's former productions.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. W. Young.—The following well-known artistes are contributing to the programme this week:—Charles R. Sweet, the original "musical burglar;" Ben Brown and George Le Clerq, in the time-honoured but always laughter-compelling Nigger interlude, Black Justice; Hal Forde, a new candidate for honours as a vocal comedian; the Sisters Mascotte, three charming lady gymnasts; Ruth Lytton, dialectic vocalist; Edie King, comedienne and dancer; Collins' Six Lancashire Lasses, in a smart and novel act; the Aurora Troupe of acrobatic cyclists; G. W. Hunter, the Mark Twain-like humourist; and that big Sheffield favourite for over a quarter of a century's duration, Mr. J. H. Milburn, in new songs and familiar character impersonations.

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—The clever Leggett combination opened on Monday in their laughter-provoking sketch; and other artistes who appeared were Ruby Bijou, comedienne; Belle Meredith, serio; Captain Holt, George Kuper and his talented children, in a novel act; the Cecils, and Mons. Friscari.

ALBERT HALL.—Manager, Mr Auguste Lyons.—The popular concerts continue successful here. The Merrions, comic sketch artistes; Dick Geldard, comedian; and other performers delighted the audience last Saturday.

SMETHWICK.

ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr C. Barnard; Manager, Mr E. Hewitson.—The production here this week is the well-known drama When London Sleeps, which is being presented by Mr Lester Collingwood's capable company. Monday's performance was witnessed by a large and appreciative audience. Mr Franklyn Graham as Captain Rodney Haynes plays his sinister rôle with a force that counts for one of the successes of the play. Mr William H. Sams as David Engleheart, the hero, does credit to the character. Mr Victor Mason is very amusing as Sammy Blyth. Mr Frank Eden scores as Bertie Broomhead. Mr Fred J. Waller is well suited to the part of Mark Blackwood, waiter and attendant. Miss Maud Hastings is quite a success in the sympathetic part of Queenie Carruthers, and she obtains much applause and sympathy as the wire-walking heroine. Miss Mary Brammer as Hilda Carode again compels admiration. The character of Carrie Jones, a circus rider, is cleverly sustained by Miss Effie Mackintosh. Other parts that are well filled are those of Maudie De Frere (Miss E. M. France), Mrs Jones (Miss Bella Power), while little Dora Haslewood, the child actress, showed considerable promise by the engaging way she interpreted the part of Lella. It is interesting to note that Miss Haslewood is a Smethwick girl, and she met with a very hearty reception.

SOUTHAMPTON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Mr W. W. Kelly's company is here in A Royal Divorce. Mr Frederick Victor scores successfully as Napoleon, his acting being remarkably fine. Miss Edith Cole gives a good portrayal of the Empress Josephine. Mr Claude Agnew is a striking Talleyrand, and Mr Trevor Lowe is impressive as the Marquis De Beaumont. Mr Alfred Grenville displays humour as General Augereau, and Miss Helen Richmond as Stephanie acts ably. Miss Ethyle Murray does well as Marie Louise, and Miss Violet Agnew is efficient as Blanche. The remaining parts are all in good hands, and the scenery and appointments are excellent.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—An excellent all-round company is here this week with The Beautiful Avenger. Mr Algernon Syms plays Cyrus Telford with effective dignity. Mr Lionel Gillet and Mr W. Diamond as the two Foxbanes are equally successful. Miss Nannie Meade as Vashti Volta acts with great charm, Miss Mabel Scudamore is extremely successful as Edna Volta, and the other parts are all well played.

PALACE.—The Vernon Troupe excel here as xylophone experts, and win loud applause. Queenie Leighton is popular in her latest success "On and Off the Stage," and the Venola Bros. score as comedy gymnasts. Wal Pink and company cause great hilarity in a sketch Uncle's Wife, and Slippere, the blind pianist, does a capital musical turn. The Autos, Woodhouse and Wells, and Nina Elmo complete an attractive company.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—The audiences this week are large, and liberal in their appreciation of the many commanding features of the merry musical comedy entitled Miss Mischief, represented by Mr Godfrey Lamplugh's company. Mr Cecil Curtis as Captain Jack Bethune causes admiration by his capital rendering of his musical numbers. Miss Evelyn Hughes in the title-rôle displays much ability. Her acting and singing are dainty, and her dancing is greatly admired. Mr Fred Eastman is prominent as the new croupier Private Harris, V.C. Mr J. C. Bland is a quaint Hiram Q. Pegg. Mr T. E. Conover as the breezy old sea-dog Admiral Sir Hannibal Bethune and Mr G. H. Liot as the foppish Lord Percy Fitz-Sherry are acceptable. Mr H. Ellesmere does well as the knowing Count Von Hummelblan. The impecunious Lady Orrery of Miss Eileen Guilbert is a charming performance, and Miss Crissie Francess is amusing as the illiterate cockney, Mary Anne Smith. The well-balanced full chorus and orchestra, owing to the indisposition of the musical director, Mr T. F. Maver, is under the able bâton of the composer, Dr F. Osmond Carr.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—Selma Braatz, lady juggler, who furnishes the chief turn this week, is decidedly dexterous. Minnie Cunningham is a pleasing comedienne, and her ability is readily acknowledged here. Edie Gray and Coons appear in a bright entertainment. The American Bioscope, showing the funeral of the late Dan Leno, is an up-to-date film. Brooks Brothers are funny comedians and speciality dancers; Sisters Brand are expert dancers; and Johnny Dwyer, eccentric comedian, is an old favourite; and others in the programme are Flo Burris, comedienne, and G. W. Foster, comedian.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr Jos. Sweeney.—The New York Comedy Four are a striking principal attraction. The Itrams, gymnasts and jugglers, are given a good reception, and Gus Balsiger, comedian and trick musician, is smart. Vera Mayne, comedienne, scores a signal success with "Oh, what a shame." Flo Atkins, in a good musical entertainment; Lilian Levey, comedienne; Arthur Richards, character vocalist; and Renee Wallon, comedienne and dancer, also appear.

THE usual weekly meeting of the council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last. The secretary referred to complaint made as to the condition of a dressing-room in a provincial theatre and read the reply of the management to such complaint. The council were well satisfied with the explanation given by the management and directed the secretary to thank them for their attention to the matter. The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members and were requested to demand payment of certain monies due to a member for arrears of salary, &c.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.
49, Wellington-street, Strand. W.C.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 23th, 1901
Those who are interested in "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" will derive much valuable intelligence by reading Mr Albert Strong's book bearing the above title, published at "The Era" Office.—Pelican, Aug. 3d, 1901.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Published at "The Era" Offices, 49, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer, by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st, 1901

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual for the current year preserves all the features which have made it popular among actors and actresses in the past—short stories, some of them very good and some of them not so good, by well-known entertainers, countless photographs, and a list of plays produced during the year which should make it useful to students of stage history. It is a sign of the times that Omar Khayyam should be quoted on the first page of the almanack.—Morning Post, Jan. 23d.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual, 1904, contains, as usual, many items and statistics of use and interest to all connected with the stage, and, in addition, a number of sketches and short stories by leading artistes, managers, and others. Among the contributors are J. L. Toole, Dan Leno, George R. Sims, George Robey, Huntley Wright, Harry Randall, Bransby Williams, A. W. Pinero, Louie Freear, Little Tich, George Mozart, and Douglas Crichton. The publication is cheap at a shilling.—Birmingham Daily Gazette, Jan. 16th, 1904

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904.
"The Era" Annual, 1904, reappears with all the features that to metropolitan and provincial playgoers make it invaluable as a work of reference. It again contains a list of new plays and important revivals at the London and suburban theatres, with dates of production to the end of November; new plays submitted in the provinces; the theatrical, musical, and equestrian obituary for the year; and other stage matters concerning which information is often desired. Each branch is excellently classified. What may, for convenience sake, be termed the "useful" portions of the "Annual" are sandwiched by forty short stories by popular actors and entertainers, the interest of these contributions being increased by autographs and portraits.—Daily Chronicle, Jan. 16th, 1904

GEORGE ALEXANDER'S EXPERIMENT.

We often see it stated that the actor-manager—to whose existence the alleged degraded condition of the English stage is, in certain quarters, attributed—has no ambitions outside those of making money, and appearing in parts which give him opportunities of distinction. Again and again is the calumny repeated; and again and again have the actor-managers quietly refuted it by their deeds. Who was it that produced play after play by TENNYSON? Sir HENRY IRVING. Who introduced HENLEY and STEVENSON'S Beau Austin to a London audience? Mr BEERBOHM TREE. Who gave Mr HENRY JAMES his theatrical chance in the shape of a one-act piece—it was an absolute failure—at the St. James's Theatre? Mr GEORGE ALEXANDER. Who have done most to increase appreciation of MAETERLINCK in London? An actress-manageress, Mrs PATRICK CAMPBELL, and an actor-manager, Mr MARTIN HARVEY. We might go on multiplying instances, including Mr TREE'S and Mr ALEXANDER'S bold experiments with Mr STEPHEN PHILLIPS'S works; but nothing will satisfy the critical malcontents but an institution where a committee of "cranks" could play ducks and drakes with the taxpayers' money and present irrational plays to half-empty benches.

Obviously, all national theatres, endowed theatres, and subsidised theatres must be impotent to inspire or create high art. For the theatre is not supported by a few rich patrons, but by the public at large. If, therefore, the art offered at the endowed theatre is more elevated than that submitted at the ordinary playhouses, the public will not support it; otherwise the ordinary managers, who are always on the alert for what is attractive, and are excellent judges of the same, would have offered it already; and if it is merely the same art, it is unnecessary to tax the ratepayers to supply wares which are already manufactured by private enterprise and which sell readily.

On the other hand, there is the plea for the representation of the playgoing minority, however small and "select" it may be. It would certainly be a defect in arrangement if, though we had a Royal Academy for the general public, we had no New Gallery and no private "shows" of the works of the originals and the eccentrics. But while the idealogues have been agitating for the establishment of an endowed theatre, practical persons with peculiar palates have been doing something for themselves. With the Mermaid Society, the Stage Society, and the experimental performances which have been recently given at several theatre, all tastes, it would seem, must be suited. A characteristic symptom is the following notice printed on the programmes of the Othello matinée at the Court on Wednesday. "Should this matinée prove successful financially, an endeavour will be made to form a society, the members of which will be entitled, on payment of a moderate subscription, to a certain number of seats annually, at performances that will be given of English plays, both modern and classical. It is hoped in this way to introduce many good plays that are too little known, and to afford opportunities to young artistes and authors which the present system of long runs makes it difficult for them to obtain."

There is, however, one thing left to be desired. The Philistine majority is not altogether unconvertible. There are many in it who, dimly conscious of a yearning for the fantastic, the poetical, the eccentric, and the literary in dramatic art, are practically waiting for these to be "put under their noses." The ordinary member of the public is scarcely cognisant of what goes on amidst The Mermaids and the MAETERLINCK-ians. Amongst the large "following" of each actor-manager there must be many who, once having tasted the roast pig of the rare, the odd, and the "advanced" in drama, would become enthusiastic pork-eaters. Thus reasons Mr GEORGE ALEXANDER, and he reasons soundly; and, keen and energetic as he ever is, he is about to put his ideas into practical form. They will take the shape of matinées at the St. James's Theatre of an experimental and unconventional kind. The great advantage of such entertainments will be that they will not seriously affect the prosperity of the theatre one way or the other. Mr ALEXANDER has, so to speak, the "plant" for the experiment ready to hand. There is a vast difference between taking a playhouse and offering an eccentric play to the public for a run, and merely using a house, already rented, for a series of afternoon entertainments. And then there is the advantage of the "vogue" and the position. People will not go, unless there be a very strong attraction, to unfamiliar or distant theatres. The Court Theatre certainly has the great advantage for experimental entertainments that it is in the heart of the West End; but the St. James's, with all its associations, is the very place for a "repertory" entertainment. Mr ALEXANDER will give a series of special Wednesday matinées, presenting at them a large number of pieces that for one reason or another he cannot put into his evening bill. He will stage no play that he is not convinced will appeal strongly to the playgoer's artistic sense, although the list will be as varied as he can make it. He will produce both English and foreign plays, the latter, of course, translated, and will specially select "pieces that smack of masterpiece." "Many pieces," says Mr ALEXANDER, "would interest a few thousand Londoners, but would be hopeless to put up for a West-end run. Some plays are unsuited to a London evening bill by their awkward length or their brevity that one would yet like to stage. Others are open to other technical objections. As things are one has to pass by every year quite a lot of pieces that, under my Wednesday afternoon scheme, I shall be quite willing to risk a few hundred pounds apiece upon." His first matinée will present to the London public Dr. GEORGE HENRIOT'S two-act play L'Enquête, with which Antoine recently startled Paris. It has been translated by Mr DU CANE, and it deals with the case of a French police official who, having unconsciously committed a crime, is entrusted with the task of investigating the case. Then there will be a revival of Mr FREDERICK FENN'S amusing little piece Judged by Appearances, which Mr WELCH produced some time since. The idea is quite in accordance with Mr ALEXANDER'S high reputation for enterprise and artistic ambition, and we wish him every success in carrying it out.

GRAND, WOOLWICH

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Play, in Five Acts, entitled
"THE DARLING OF THE GODS."

The Darling of the Gods has been here this week, and has proved a good attraction. This, indeed, was to be expected, for at a time when everything Japanese is receiving so much attention, this drama of elder Japan, capably interpreted as it was by the excellent company got together by Mr Tree, was bound to excite great interest. The somewhat difficult part of Yo-San was entrusted to Miss Lilian Stafford, whose fine performance fully justified her selection for this important rôle, for while following fairly closely the methods of Miss Lena Ashwell, the original exponent of the part, she was by no means content to give a slavish imitation, but allowed her own individuality and talent full play. The girlish simplicity of the opening scenes and the tenderness of the love-making were admirably contrasted with the strong scene in the fourth act, when Miss Stafford's impassioned acting fairly held her audience spellbound; indeed, she played with such force, and, withal, such charm, that she may well be said to have been the "darling" not only of the "gods" but of the whole house. Mr G. W. Anson gave a performance of Zakkuri which proved that he had made a careful and thoughtful study of the character, for his impersonation was full of subtle touches reminiscent—but by no means imitative—of Mr Tree at his best. As Kara Mr Gerald Kay Souper gave a strong and clearly defined portrayal of the last of the Samurai, being equally good as a lover and as a warrior. His finest chance came in the scene where Kara discovers that Yo-San has been deceiving him, and Mr Souper played it for all it was worth. Mr A. P. Kaye submitted a clever sketch of Saigon, Prince of Tasan; he, too, has a good chance in the third act, and his passionate command to Kara to "fight to kill" rang in one's ears for some time. The remaining characters were admirably undertaken by a cast much too lengthy for individual mention, though a word must be spared to Mr E. Stallard's earnest impersonation of the Fisher of Carp and Miss Sybil Glynne's strong rendering of the Geisha. The play was mounted and staged with an elaborateness which one would have hardly thought practicable in the case of a touring company, especially worthy of mention in this direction being the scene showing the Old Sword-room in Zakkuri's Palace.

APPROPRIATENESS of surroundings is now universally recognised as a necessary detail in the presentation of a play. Nowadays it is an unwritten law, observed by all wise managers, that the simplicity of a cottage or the elegance of a palace shall be represented with equal completeness. Sumptuous elegance is the distinguishing note of the new comedy, The Flute of Pan, at the Shaftesbury Theatre. Messrs Oetzmann and Co., of 62-79, Hampstead-road, have supplied a magnificent Louis XVI. suite in carved and gilt wood covered in softly rich red silk bearing the Royal crown and cypher; some elegant and console writing tables, and a lovely red silk screen of the same period; some fine high-backed carved antique chairs, and a wonderful old oak coffer with repousse panels, all marvellously picturesque and artistic.

MR AND MRS KENDAL will produce on Nov. 29, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, for the first time on any stage, a new piece entitled The Housekeeper.

"FOR CHURCH OR STAGE."

A Play, in Three Acts, by the Rev. Forbes Phillips, Vicar of Gorleston, Played for the First Time in London at the Savoy Theatre, on Saturday Afternoon, Nov. 12.

Right Rev. the Bishop of Nunchester	Mr RICHARD BOLEYN
Rev. Noel Faber	Mr W. LAWSON BUTT
Captain Gerald York	Mr JERROLD ROBERTSHAW
Mr Mortimer	Mr SPENCER TREVOR
Sir George Wilmot	Mr A. G CRAIG
Mr Elmsdale	Mr HERBERT GRENVILLE
Rev. Everard Little	Mr HERBERT COURT

Stella	Mrs BROWN-POTTER

Not much need be written concerning the Rev. Forbes Phillips's play For Church or Stage, which was first performed at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on April 21, and was presented at the Savoy Theatre on Saturday afternoon last, as a preliminary to Cavalleria Rusticana. The Rev. gentleman has chosen a theme which, in the hands of a skilful dramatist, might have developed into a strong piece. He is, however, evidently inexperienced in the art and practice of writing for the theatre; and his main plot is certainly not strong enough to atone for the ineptitude of his construction and arrangement. The story is that of the fascination of a married clergyman by a lady, who, though she isn't wedded to a certain Captain Gerald York, "ought to be." The Rev. Noel Faber falls deeply and most reprehensibly in love with one of his parishioners, the beautiful Stella, who passes as Mrs York; and she gradually comes to reciprocate his passion. The influence of the poetical priest inspires Stella with a desire for respectability; and she asks York to marry her. He refuses. She then comes to the conclusion that she loves the parson, and soon learns from his own lips, in a moment of infatuated expansion, that he adores her. Mastering his feelings by a superhuman effort, he rushes out, and she faints against a doorway moaning "Come back!" In the last act we see them sit down to a dainty little supper in Stella's rooms at the Savoy Hotel. York, who is going out to South Africa, now wants to marry Stella before he leaves the country, so as to go into action with a clear conscience. He calls on her with a proposal to that effect, which she rejects; and then the parson emerges for a place of temporary concealment, and grows jealous of the visitor. York departs, and a quarrel takes place between Faber and Stella, which ends in her breaking off the liaison. The parson goes back to Mrs Faber and the neglected parishioners whom he has left down in the country; and Stella, having "fallen between two stools," moralises a little in a melancholy manner before the curtain falls.

In connection with a piece of this sort it is useless to criticise seriously the efforts of the artists engaged. The most strenuous acting is thrown away when an author sends in an unconsciously funny waiter to interrupt the most pretentiously sentimental eloquence by bringing in food and drink. All that can be said is that Mrs Brown Potter played Stella in the style that has won for her so many admirers, and with all those charming idiosyncrasies that have made her so popular with the British public; and that Mr W. Lawson Butt was commendably strong and fervent as the amorous cleric. Mr Jerrold Robertshaw did what could be done with the poor part of Captain Gerald York, his dumb show before his exit in the last act being quite excellent; and Miss Granville was easily equal to the demands made upon her by the rôle of Lady Violet Chester. Mr Roger Alwyn enacted the waiter at the Savoy with praiseworthy correctness; and his acting had nothing to do with the merriment his appearances created. The audience at the Savoy on Saturday afternoon refused to take For Church or Stage seriously; and endeavoured in vain to get the reverend author to face the footlights.

"LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST" AT THE COURT.

The production of such a little known play as Love's Labour's Lost at the Court on Saturday afternoon by Mr Charles Fry and his company of players was an interesting event, not only to the many young people that might have been seen in all parts of the theatre, but even to the hardened theatre goer. The play, which, Dr. Herford tells us, was produced in 1598 was revised later by Shakespeare for performance before Queen Elizabeth as a part of the Christmas festivities at Whitehall. Soon after the accession of James the First, the play, which had pleased Elizabeth, was resorted to by Shakespeare's company to entertain the new queen. In this connection Sir Walter Cape in 1604, writing to Lord Cranborne, says:—"I have been hunting all this morning for players, jugglers, and such kind of creatures," but "they are hard to find. Burbage says there is no new plays that the queen hath not seen, but they have revived an old one called Love's Labour Lost, which for wit and mirth he says will please her exceedingly." Notwithstanding the favour shown to the play in Court circles it entirely disappeared from the stage. The one person introduced into the play who will in any way compare with the production of Shakespeare's after years is Biron. Coleridge saw in him the original Benedict. This part on Saturday was played by Mr Charles Fry, who cleverly assumed the lightsome disposition and the true spirit of amusing raillery that make the character such a grateful one to play. "Now step I forth to whip hypocrisy," says Biron in one of his best speeches and Mr Fry suggested with no little cleverness the mental superiority of the French courtier and soldier, and played the part with the necessary distinction. The fantastical compound of folly and wit in the character of the eccentric Armado was cleverly realised by Mr Patrick Munro, whose command of humour was well displayed. Ferdinand, King of Navarre, was particularly well played by Mr Vincent Nello, whose voice and method gave general satisfaction. Miss Frances Sykes had all the charming waywardness that one expects in the witty and affectionate Rosaline, and her speech to Biron in the second scene of the fifth act was given with eloquent fervour. Miss Olive Kennett in the same act and scene also distinguished herself as the Princess of France. Mr Henry Morrell as Dumain made excellent use of his opportunities; and there was much to commend in Mr Hughes Jones's Longaville, in Mr Ernest Beharold's Boyet, and in Mr T. M. Cottam's Mercade. Mr W. J. R. Cane as Sir Nathaniel, Mr Percy Varley as Holofernes, and Mr Vivian Davies as Dull were all blessed with a sense of the humour of those characters; and Mr C. Frances was broadly eccentric and clownish as Costard. Miss Muriel Strawbridge also treated the rôle of the country wench Jaquenetta with a humorous breadth that was all to her credit. Miss Consie Dale as Moth, the page, was quite equal to the rendering of the pretty song "It was a lover and his lass," and Miss Helen Lynden, who represented Spring, introduced "When Daisies Pied," from As You Like It, with Dr. Arne's original setting of the verses, first heard by the public on the revival of the comedy at Drury-lane, on Dec. 20, 1740. The delightful number was very sweetly rendered. Mr Edwin Webster, as Winter, also did justice to "When icicles hang by the wall." Miss Marian Blanche and Miss Paula Vialet were also in the cast. The incidental music by Mr H. M. Higgs and other selections were well played by members of the London Academy of Music orchestra under the direction of Mr Ernest C. Lawrance. Mr William Stewart was the assistant stage-manager.

"MRS. DERING'S DIVORCE."

Light Comedy, in Three Acts, by Percy Fendall, Played for the First Time in London,
at the Camden Theatre, on Monday, Nov. 14.

Captain Dering	Mr PAUL ARTHUR
Jimmy Foster	Mr ERNEST STERN
Lord Grampier	Mr COURTENAY THORPE
Mr Gordon	Mr HAROLD CARFAX
Mr Clive	Mr HAROLD BROOKE
Footman	Mr NORMAN WRIGHTON
Parker	Mr IVAN BERLYN
Mrs Gordon	Miss DI FORBES
Duchess of Lawshire	Miss BESSIE HARRISON
Lady Grampier	Miss HELEN PALGRAVE
Mrs Dicky Fowler	Miss DAVIS
Mrs Haydon	Miss LEILA REPTON
Miss Verner	Miss LILIAN REVELL
Mrs Dering	Mrs LANGTRY

It is sometimes supposed, and stated, that an average English audience will not listen patiently for long to duologue, however witty, unless it be accompanied by plot and action; but the theory has met with disproof this week at the Camden Theatre, where Mr Percy Fendall's light comedy, Mrs Dering's Divorce, has been delighting and amusing excellent audiences. There is very little "story" in the play; indeed, at times there is an actual excess of conversation over construction; yet, as long as the "talk" is amusing, its hearers seem quite prepared to put up with this defect. Mr and Mrs Dering are a fashionable spendthrift couple, who are reduced to extremities in their pretty house in Mayfair. Mr Dering has almost worn out his wife's endurance by his many infidelities, and she has not unnaturally developed "a temper." She is, indeed, an extravagant, capricious, inconsistent, and rather foolish personage, who never knows her own mind for any great length of time. Her mother, who is rich, is willing to support her liberally if she will divorce her husband; and as the water supply and the electric light of the Mayfair abode have been cut off in defect of payments, and the rent is demanded under threat of distraint, Dering thinks it best for both parties that they should get a decree nisi.

This having been obtained with an ease which is more frequent on the stage than in real life, Mrs Dering begins to want her husband back again. She wears mourning for his loss, and rejects the proposal of marriage which is offered to her by a rich youth named Jimmy Foster. Dering is not so sentimental. He pays court to a wealthy heiress, Miss Verner, a tall and grim lady with advanced views, who comes to Mrs Dering to get her ex-husband's "character," just as if she (Miss Verner) were inquiring about a servant. Out of pique, Mrs Dering becomes "tentatively engaged" to Foster, who, in the last act, is persuaded by Dering to test the reality of her affection for him by announcing that his father, a banker, has failed in business, and that he, the son, will therefore be reduced to poverty. Mrs Dering does not attempt to "throw over" Jimmy when she learns of his alleged misfortune; but she does so immediately that he confesses to her his imposture. Miss Verner, who is a "sympathetic character" in the play, has released Dering from his engagement, because the heiress is convinced that his wife still loves him; and, in the end, the couple—chastened, let us hope, by their experiences—resume their original relations.

Mrs Langtry has surrounded herself with an excellent company, which does its work remarkably well. A better Captain Dering than that admirable artist Mr Paul Arthur could hardly be desired. His style and his method are equally good; and his appearance is no small factor of his success. Mr Ernest Stern is irreproachable as Jimmy Foster, and dresses and looks the part particularly well. Miss Bessie Harrison makes a fine, imposing Duchess; and a very crisp, judicious, and dainty performance is contributed by Miss Leila Repton as Mrs Haydon, Miss Lilian Revell being well cast as Miss Verner. Miss Revell, we are sorry to say, was taken seriously ill after the performance on Monday evening, and Miss Anne Mildmay undertook the rôle at short notice, and played it with success for the rest of the week. Mr Courtenay Thorpe plays Lord Granpier effectively; but, we fancy, on mistaken lines. His dress and make-up might be more that of a well-preserved old dandy, and the characteristics of age need not be so marked. Mr Thorpe is such an able artist that he can easily modify his conception; his execution is commendably fine and forcible. Mrs Langtry's acting improves steadily as time goes on, and has now even more tenderness and expression than of old. She plays Mrs Dering quite naturally, and with many touches of sweetness and humour. A tendency to exaggerate the business—notably in the "row," in the last act, over the bridge table—is probably due to a prolonged experience of provincial patrons in the rougher towns. The piece, which is quite well mounted and dressed, is preceded by Mr Henry Byatt's "curtain-raiser," The Brothers, in which Mr Courtenay Thorpe as the Sailor and Mr Harold Brooke as the Solicitor give good accounts of themselves, and act with force and fervour.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT-GARDEN.

A most important reappearance on Tuesday at Covent garden was that of the distinguished baritone M. Maurel, who has not been seen at the Royal Opera since 1895, when he in sang Verdi's Falstaff with such great success. He also appeared in Le Nozze di Figaro, Rigoletto, and Faust. Again on Tuesday M. Maurel represented the unhappy jester with splendid dramatic force and pathos. Unfortunately, Time has taken his customary liberties with the voice of the French baritone; but still M. Maurel can produce no little effect owing to his artistic gifts, and he wisely refrained from forcing his organ beyond legitimate bounds. Throughout the opera his fine acting made a remarkable impression, and at the close of the second act M. Maurel was called to the front amidst the warmest applause. Nor was this the only time when his great abilities were recognised. Miss Alice Nielsen made a charming Gilda, and sang the beautiful "Caro Nome" with the utmost grace and refinement. Her improvement since leaving comic opera is wonderful, and every time she is seen in a new part she takes a higher position as an artist, while her finished acting entitles her to cordial praise. As the artless daughter of the jester she fully realises the character, and the music was always safe in her interpretation. Signor Anselmi sings the music of the Duke with much animation and beauty of tone. Signor Arimondi and Madame Ferraris gave valuable assistance, and the band and chorus under Signor Campanini did ample justice to Verdi's delightful music. The time draws near for the departure of the San Carlo company. They have won universal approval. No autumn season of opera has reached so high a standard, and the attendance of Royal and aristocratic visitors has been most gratifying.

Faust this year has not kept its old place, and on Wednesday night, when it was given for the second time, a new vocalist, Madame Wayda, appeared as the heroine, but was scarcely able to hold her ground remembering the brilliant artists who have been seen in Gounod's popular opera. Madame Wayda succeeded best in the Church scene, and least in that of the Garden, where her vocal skill appeared but moderately effective. Signor Arimondi was somewhat out of his element as Mephistopheles. The fierce sardonic manner of the fiend, which makes so splendid a contrast to the simplicity of the other characters, was lacking. As Valentine Signor Ancona displayed his old power and volume of tone, and Signor Dani as Faust delivered the expressive music, including the "Salve dimora," with much grace and tenderness. Orchestra and chorus, under the direction of Signor Campanini, merited commendation. The week ended with Lohengrin, given on Friday night and at a matinée on Saturday.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

Mr H. E. Moss was able to announce the 3,000th consecutive performance at the London Hippodrome on Friday evening. No other place of entertainment in the world can boast of having opened to two houses a day for a longer period than one year. It is interesting to learn that the London Hippodrome since its inception has, from a mechanical standpoint, almost undergone a complete transformation, under the direction of Mr Frank Parker, the stage-director. Within a few days further improvements will be commenced.

We may congratulate Mr Albert Gilmer on the fact that his charming and accomplished wife, Miss Kate Tyndall, will take part in the command performance to-night at Windsor Castle of Monsieur Beaucaire. Miss Tyndall, it will be remembered, was the original Dick, in the Princess's production of Two Little Vagabonds, George R. Sims and Arthur Shirley's adaptation of Les Deux Gosses.

Mr James Welch is to take the place of the late Mr Dan Leno, in The White Cat, at Drury-lane. Besides Mr Welch, the comedy forces include Mr Harry Randall, Mr Danvers, Mr Tom Wootwell, Miss Queenie Leighton, and Miss Marie George.

Mr Arthur Collins has had hundreds of applications for Dan Leno's part. One applicant stated that he was fourteen years old, and added a postscript to his letter asking that it should not be thrown into the waste-paper basket. Mr Collins admired his enterprise, and sent for him. He was a curly headed boy in knickerbookers, and began the conversation by "hoping the job wasn't gone." "He could sing a bit" and "could dance the waltz." Mr Collins persuaded him not to begin with Dan Leno's part, and he will probably appear at Drury-lane first as a lizard.

The late Mr Dan Leno has not left a will, and his property will consequently be divided between his widow and six children. A few years ago he insured his life for £10,000, and at various periods he bought shares in the Granville Theatre of Varieties, the Camberwell Palace, and Drury-lane Theatre.

In reply to the suggestion that a home be founded in memory of Dan Leno, Mr J. Fruin, secretary of the Music Hall Home, very properly points out that such a home is, and has been for some few years past, in existence. Poor "Dan" took a very keen interest in it, and was president for a considerable time.

Though Captain Basil Hood, in Brummagem Jem, has written an interesting and a dainty little sketch for the Palace Theatre, it was thought that the situations and development of the story did not lend themselves to the exhibition of the more farcical side of Arthur Roberts's humour. With the object, therefore, of giving that comedian greater opportunity, the little piece has been revised, and another scene, in which Mrs Clutterbuck figures as an enraged wife, has been added. The sketch in its new form will be presented for the first time to-night at the Shaftesbury-avenue house. Miss Alice Aynsley Cooke has been specially engaged to play the part of Mrs Clutterbuck, and such an experienced and talented actress is sure to give the requisite breadth of conception to the character, and make the most of her scene with Mr Roberts, who will be himself once again, only more so.

Notwithstanding the statements in our daily and weekly contemporaries, we have the best authority for stating that up to the time of writing no actual appointment of assistant-manager has been made by the Palace Theatre directorate.

The twelfth anniversary of the Palace Theatre will be celebrated on Tuesday, Dec. 13, when Mr Alfred Butt will endeavour to present a record programme, to which the principal theatrical and variety stars will contribute.

A special committee meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held at the York Hotel on Wednesday next, at 2·0 o'clock, to further consider the arrangements for the benefit performance at Collins's Music Hall, fixed for Friday, Dec. 9. A number of popular artistes, including Messrs Gus Elen, George Mozart, Harry Tate, Harry Ford, Dan Thomas, and Morny Cash, have already promised to appear, and the Terriers are kindly co-operating in ensuring a successful benefit.

Whimsical Walker has arrived on old England's shores per the liner Oriva from Australia. The popular clown has established a record in theatrical history—that is, he has travelled 26,000 miles to perform for ten nights only. He received an urgent cablegram at Melbourne: "Return at once."

Mr Joe Elvin will depart for a provincial tour on Monday next with Over the Sticks, which he will present to the gallant Welshmen at the Empire, Cardiff. The only Joe will of course return to town at Christmas, and equally of course to the Oxford, where he has been a tower of strength in many a Yuletide bill. We may look out for a new production, too, at the festive season. It will be of a farcical nature, and from the versatile pen of Mr Wal Pink, the actor-author. Mr Albert Gilmer will produce, and special scenery and effects are promised.

In the notice of the Grand, Clapham, last week, we referred to Mr Harry Bawn as acting-manager. As all the world knows, that popular gentleman, who is rapidly recovering from his accident, occupies the position of manager.

No more significant commentary on the change in the tastes of the amusement-loving public can be imagined than the adoption of a music hall programme at two such historic houses as the Surrey and Lyceum. The Blackfriars house dates back to 1782, when it was called the Royal Circus and Equestrian Philharmonic Academy. Charles Dibdin, the famous song-writer, was appointed stage-manager; Charles Hughes, equestrian director; and all the stage entertainments were performed by children. Among the sixty children engaged was Miss De Camp, afterwards Mrs Charles Kemble. On Aug. 12, 1805, the circus was burned down, and a new theatre erected on the site cost £14,500. This house was taken by Elliston, who opened it as the Surrey on Easter Monday, 1809, with a melodramatic spectacle and a pantomime. Tom Dibdin succeeded Elliston, who again became lessee in 1827. Messrs Shepherd and Creswick were lessees when the house was burnt down on Jan. 30, 1865.

At a building called the Lyceum, erected on ground formerly belonging to Exeter House, entertainments were given as far back as 1768, and in 1789 Charles Dibdin rented the place for his "Sans Souci" entertainment. Here, too, in 1803, Windsor exhibited his experiments in gas-lighting. In 1809 a Mr Samuel John Arnold obtained a licence for the theatre, and it was opened on June 26 of that year. The old theatre finally closed on Sept. 16, 1815, and the new theatre, built from the plans of Mr Samuel Beazley, was opened on June 15, 1816. At the end of 1817 the experiment was tried of dividing the performance into two distinct parts, so that there might be two audiences on the same evening. The first performance began at six o'clock and lasted till nine, the second commenced at half-past nine o'clock and ended about midnight. Thus it will be seen the two-houses-a-night plan is by no means new, and if Mr Thomas Barrasford adopts it at the latest Lyceum, history will be only repeating itself.

Once more the poor children of Blackpool will find themselves provided for this Christmastide, and again they have to thank the generous-hearted members of the theatrical profession in a large measure for the store of good things that Father Christmas, personified by the Chief Constable, will have at his disposal to distribute amongst the ill-fed and the worst-clad of Blackpool within the course of the next few weeks.

Mr G. H. Harrop, the head of the Tower Palace Combination, placed the Palace at the disposal of the Theatrical and Music Hall Sports' Committee, with Mr Harry Brooks as inspirer, Mr Harrop as the chairman, Superintendent Sharrock as the treasurer, and Mr T. Brunskill as the secretary, whilst the bulk of the organisation fell on the shoulders of Mr Fred Waller, seconded by Mr G. E. Martin. It is anticipated that between £150 and £200 will be the result of the effort.

The date of the celebration of the anniversary of the Alhambra, Brighton, has been changed from Thursday, Dec. 8, to Wednesday, Dec. 7. This alteration has been decided upon in order that the Thursday matinée at the popular house should not be interfered with.

The Southport Hippodrome, which has been closed for some time, will, after being redecorated throughout and brought thoroughly up-to-date, reopen on Dec. 12, under the direction of Murray King and Clark. These gentlemen will run it as a high-class circus and variety entertainment on the two shows a-night system.

The Bohemian Twins—the Misses Rosa and Josefa Blayek—natives of Shrejchov, will make their first appearance in public at the Hippodrome, Brighton, on Monday next, and during the week. They were residing in London, but, as they cannot stand the London fogs, Mrs Barrasford has sent her beautiful motor car up to town to bring them down to Brighton privately. On Friday there was a special reception for doctors, surgeons, medical students, nurses, and the Press.

Mr Barney Armstrong, who, after six years of management, is retiring from the Tivoli and Queen's Theatres, Glasgow, takes his farewell benefit at the Tivoli on Friday next, when the programme will be the biggest ever known in Glasgow. Amongst the turns will be Eugene Stratton, Geo. Lashwood, Marie Kendall, Imro Fox, W. F. Frame, Tom Leamore, and Lily Burnand. Mr Armstrong's popularity in and out of the profession will guarantee a bumping house. During his management it may truly be said that Mr Armstrong has worked in harmony with all his brother managers in the city; and Mr Frank Allen, for Moss's Empires, and Mr Barrasford have kindly given permission for any of their turns to appear. Telegrams have been sent by the Water Rats, and a great number of Mr Armstrong's friends, wishing him the success he so richly deserves.

Mr Armstrong commenced his career, it will be remembered, as one of the Brothers Armstrong, whose knockabout business was so realistic that it speedily became the talk of the town, and from the Sebright, to which hall they were brought by the enterprising Mr George Belmont, they went to the leading halls in London, including the Alhambra. The public, however, tired of comic horseplay, and Mr Barney Armstrong, turning his opportunity to gold, became a comic singer, and a very successful one, too. In time, however, the natural business enterprise of Mr Armstrong asserted itself, and he became lessee of the Tivoli, Glasgow, and then the Queen's, and now that these establishments are run by a company, he retires upon his well-earned laurels.

On Wednesday Mr Harold Penny, the popular manager of the Hastings Hippodrome, entertained a large number of the inmates of the Hastings Poor House, by consent of the guardians, to whom the invitation was addressed. The aged and the young greatly enjoyed themselves. Other friends provided cakes and delicacies.

A cablegram from Mr Harry Rickards to Mr Richard Warner, the well-known agent, contains news that Hackenschmidt is in the private hospital of Dr. M'Cormick undergoing a serious operation.

Mr Charles B. Cochran, his agent, has cabled to Hackenschmidt concerning his condition, and has received the following reply:—"Old damaged arm necessitates immediate attention. Otherwise very well. When arm attended to shall be better than any time this last two years." Shortly before the historic match at Olympia, Hackenschmidt hurt himself at the London Music Hall, and when he wrestled Madrali he was practically a cripple, being unable to lift one arm above the shoulder. He, however, continued to wrestle two or three times nightly right up to his departure to Australia. Several letters from him written en voyage have referred to his bad arm, but have spoken of his general health as splendid. There is, therefore, little doubt that with proper attention he will, in a few weeks, be in better trim than he has been for a long time.

Mr Hyram Travers, "the pearly king," upon his last night (Oct. 21) at the Johannesburg Empire, was presented by Mr Fred Linton on behalf of the comedian's admirers on the Rand with a solid silver cigar and cigarette case and matchbox. Hyram goes on to the Tivoli, Cape Town, and returns to the old country in time to wish his many friends the "compliments of the season."

Mr Otto C. Culling, on behalf of the Northern Theatres Company, Limited, has arranged with Mr J. H. Wood to provide and conduct a clog dancing contest at the Theatre Royal, Bury, for the Championship Belt of Lancashire.

Miss Florrie Forde is producing a new song by the same authors, entitled "Don't cry, little girl," and Mr Geo. Formby has also secured three new songs from them.

Mdlle. Anna Dancrey, the Parisian music hall artiste, who obtained great success in the halls last winter, entered into a contract with the managers of the Alcazar d'Eté and the Ambassadeurs to sing at their establishments. She had to appear in the Champs Elysées last June, her salary being fixed at £140 a month. In February, however, she informed the managers of the two places that they must not count upon her, as her state of health prevented her from singing on a stage in the open air. The directors declined to accept this statement, and informed the artist that they expected her to fulfil her engagement.

Mdlle. Dancrey still refused, and she was sued for breach of contract, the directors claiming £400 damages. The judges declared that before they could say whether or not the artiste had acted from caprice, it would be necessary to have her vocal cords examined by three medical experts. The examination duly took place, and the doctors found that it would be harmful to the health of Mdlle. Dancrey to sing in the open air. The Court therefore non-suited the directors.

Quite a gathering of professionals assembled during the week at The Highlander, Dean-street, Soho, to congratulate Prof. Monti, the well-known conjuror and entertainer (whose marvellous impersonation of Father Christmas has delighted each Yuletide the little folks of many of the stately homes of England), on his marriage with the proprietress of that artists' rendezvous. The lady was herself once in the profession, and was known as Miss Nellie Whisker.

The annual matinée in aid of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund will be held at the Oxford, by the kind permission of the directors, on Monday, the 28th inst.

The Middlesex anniversary will be celebrated on Thursday next by a brilliant star programme that will last from 6·30 until midnight. The floral festival that was initiated by Mr J. L. Graydon many years ago at these annuals will be again an agreeable feature of the carnival, which invariably attracts an immense audience, and is graced by all that is best and brightest in variety land.

In reference to his application to the Licensing Committee of the London County Council for a music and dancing licence for the Lewisham Palace of Varieties, yet to be built, Mr Walter Stephens writes:—"In writing as I did to the Young Men's Christian Association I had been greatly provoked in the matter and charged with a desire to erect a hall to 'demoralise' the youths of the borough. I also received several anonymous and abusive letters, so that I think I had some justification for writing what I did. Nearly three thousand persons signed my petition in favour of the hall, i.e., residents and ratepayers, while only eight hundred and eighty-two persons signed the petition against it. It is intended to build the hall and apply for the licence at the next sessions."

Whilst "Zutka" was being driven in a box on the top of a four-wheeled cab from the Hippodrome through Fleet-street to a firm of photographers on the 11th inst., the ends of the box suddenly flew open. A pair of long, thin, yellow-covered legs shot into the air from one end, and what appeared to be the head of a pierrot fell out from the other. There was a good deal of commotion whilst "Zutka's" manager sent for a fresh box and put his charge into it. Throughout the ordeal the only sign of animation that could be detected in "Zutka" was the occasional quivering of an eye.

We would call attention to an advertisement in another column regarding the great American success, The Babes in Toyland. The proprietors, Messrs Hamlin and Mitchell, having learned that it was the intention of certain managers to incorporate one of the song hits of the piece in certain pantomimes, give notice that the piece has been duly copyrighted, and that in event of infringement their solicitors will take immediate action.

Medley Barrett, whose "Home-made motor-car" will be a feature of many "annuals," has just published with Messrs Francis, Day, and Hunter, a stirring sea song, "The Navy of the King," which Hamilton Hill will sing immediately. The same writer has also furnished Mr John E. Coyle with a comic song, named "Oh; I say."

Miss Rachel Lowe, the singer of novelty songs, finishes her short provincial tour at the Palace Blackpool to-night, and returns to town, opening at the Tivoli, Oxford, and Hammersmith prior to her engagement at the Kennington Theatre, where she plays Aladdin in the usual Christmas pantomime.

To the historic collection of Madame Tussaud's has now been added a portrait model of the late Mr Dan Leno, who we believe is the first music hall comedian to be thus honoured. The counterfeit presentment in wax of the lamented entertainer is placed between Sir Henry Irving and Ellen Terry on the one side, and Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft on the other.

Mr R. H. Douglass, the clever monologue entertainer of the halls, will lecture on Sunday to the members of the Playgoers' Club at the Hotel Cecil on "Audiences from the Artist's Point of View." Mdlle. Adeline Genée, the delightful prima donna assoluta from the Empire, will occupy the chair. The talent and wit of the lecturer and the winning charm of the chairwoman should draw a large audience.

Miss Daisy Jerome put a new song into her turn at the Palace Theatre this week. "The jolly little American girl" is going to play in Mother Goose at the Royal Theatre, Manchester, this Christmas, other important parts in the pantomime being taken by Miss Hilda Jacobson, Mr Harrison Brockbank, and Mr George Robey and his wife, Miss Ethel Haydon. Miss Jerome has met with several exciting adventures during her two engagements in English pantomimes. On one occasion she had to climb to the top of a lofty tower to witness a fight between the principal boy and the yellow dwarf. Unluckily the tower collapsed, a greater part of the scenery falling on the head of the poor little principal girl. A short time afterwards, in the same pantomime, her chiffon skirts caught on fire, and she was rescued by one of the comedians, who scaled the walls of the "magic, inaccessible tower," and promptly extinguished the flames.

The Palace Girls made their appearance in new and elaborate costumes at the Palace Theatre on Monday evening. Intended to represent the banners of France and England, the dresses are made of stiff silk—blue, rose red, and white mingled—with very full chiffon flounces edged with tiny frills of different shades of the same colours, one side of the skirts being embroidered with the Order of the Garter and the other with the word "Liberté." Big tri-coloured rosettes of narrow ribbon or chiffon are placed on the shoulders, the special points of the whole dress being punctuated with golden sequins. The head-dresses consist of gold bands with ostrich plumes, red, white, and blue, clasped with a large ornament representing the Royal arms. A Palace Girl never seems to appear without a long, early Victorian curl over the left shoulder.

Vanola, one of the best foot equilibrists on the music hall stage, reappeared at the Alhambra, after a successful provincial tour, on Monday night. He juggles a barrel and three large balls with his feet, ending his turn by balancing tricks with a big umbrella. "Dida" and her double are as great an illusion behind the scenes at the Alhambra as they are from the front. It is a mystery that really mystifies, even at close quarters. Master Tom Crowys, a boy soprano, made his first appearance at the Alhambra this week, and scored a success with his high, clear voice, and self-possessed, but unassuming manners.

Amongst other pantomimic producers who have purchased pantomime rights of Mr W. J. Churchill's successful song, "Girls wouldn't be wanted at all," written by Messrs John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn, are Mr Tom B. Davis, who has secured this tuneful and "goey" lyric for the New Theatre, Birmingham. This song is evidently in great demand this year.

Miss Lulu Carlyle, the whirlwind dancer, has quite recovered from the accident that happened to her last Monday evening at the Royal, Oldham, and will resume business again next Monday at the Grand, Hanley. She thanks numerous friends for their kind inquiries.

The gaol-breaking exploits of Houdini, the Handcuff King, have been rivalled by a real prisoner, who was locked up in a cell at Steelhouse-lane, Birmingham, on the 10th inst. All the doors and windows at the police-station are locked and barred night and day, and communication with the outside world is confined entirely to a small aperture protected by a sliding door, through which inquiries are answered. Nevertheless, the prisoner, a deserter from the South Wales Borderers, disappeared, and the only explanation, impossible as it seems, is that he escaped through the slide, though it is only a few inches wide. All trace of the man has been lost.

Mr J. W. Edgar welcomed a crowd of friends on Thursday evening at the celebration of his annual at the Metropolitan, and in his speech of thanks to the directors, artistes, band, staff, and public he expressed his regret at the absence of Mr Henry Gros, who was away in the provinces. His friends of the Beaufort Club supported him handsomely, having taken five rows of stalls and five boxes by way of compliment to their brother member. Mr Gros sent his trusted lieutenant a cheery telegram, and heaps of congratulatory speeches were showered upon him by a large contingent of managers and agents in the saloon.

The programme, a long, strong, and varied one, commenced early and finished late. Among those who entertained were Marie Lloyd, Ernest Shand, Arthur Lennard, Fred Russell, George Robey, R. H. Douglass, Bessie Featherstone, Nina Martino, Amy Clevere, Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, the Bandurrias, Elsa Joel, Sisters Alndow, Dan Crawley, the Collinson Combination, Keith and Kent, Morton and Bowman, Hal Chapter, Flo Penley, Nat Travers, Esme Gordon, Fred Hallam, Kimberley Boys, Howard and St. Clair, Jack Charman, Bros. Hayes, Frank Cass, Dolly M'Calla, Kitty Rayburn, Lina Verdi, Harry Coverdale, Marco, Dorothy Clark, Bessie Featherstone, and Maud Mortimer.

Miss Lilian Doreen, whose health has been anything but good since her sad bereavement, has sailed for South Africa, departing on Saturday last by the Kildonan Castle. It is hoped that the voyage will restore her to health, and banish the nervous prostration which has prevented her filling so many of her lucrative engagements. In about four months' time she will return. In the meantime we are confident that this accomplished vocalist will win fresh artistic triumphs in our new colonies.

An extraordinary general meeting of the members of the M.H.A.R.A., for the purpose of electing a new president in the place of the of the late Mr Dan Leno, will be held on Thursday next at one o'clock at Gatti's Music Hall, Westminster-bridge-road. Mr Douglas White will preside. Members must show their green cards to obtain admission.

Mr Harry Mountford, whose ability as a chairman is generally recognised by the profession, has been on the music hall stage for upwards of twelve years, and made his first appearance in London at the Star, Bermondsey, as one of a duo, known as the Two Darrells. Later the young comedian was secured by Mr Mark Melford to play his part in Desperation, when that sketch went on the Moss and Thornton tour. He was connected with several more sketch combinations in one way or the other—notably with Mr Joe Elvin's, Mr J. M. East's, Mr Johnson's, and Mr J. P. Dryden's—before he became responsible for his present entertainment with Miss Walsh. He has played in eleven pantomimes, of which he produced nine.

Mr H. E. Moss, at the London Hippodrome, has discovered a machine called the Chronophone, a combination of animated photography, vocal music, and mechanical ingenuity. This will be placed in the programme on Monday next, together with some excellent circus acts, all of which are calculated to rejoice the hearts of youngsters during the coming holidays.

Mr Paul Cinquevalli, the great juggler, will return to England early next month, after a most triumphant tour of our new South African colonies. He expected to sail from Cape Town on the 16th inst. per the s.s. Norman, and is due in London on Dec. 3. After a week's holiday he will commence rehearsals for Mr Frederick Mouillot, who has secured him for pantomime for Belfast and Dublin.

Miss Nellie Wallace, during her fortnight's rest, has purchased six numbers from the pen of Harry Adams (of "On Guard" fame), set to music by Orlando Powell. Mr Adams's daughter, Miss Rosa Adams, after a short successful provincial tour, opens in London at the Middlesex and Granville on Monday. Her répertoire contains some of her father's best efforts. She has fulfilled no fewer than forty-six engagements during her first twelve months in the profession.

Judge Woodfall gave judgment in the Westminster County Court on Monday for Miss Fanny Wentworth on her claim against Mr Ben Nathan, but against her on the counterclaim. He held that each contract with the agents was made afresh for each engagement, and that the office scene, which was described by the reporters as a very stormy one, was a termination to business relations. He made no order as to costs.

Leonard Barry is returning to town after a run in the provinces with his successful song scena The Soldier's Promenade, which, if enthusiastic receptions may be taken as a prophecy, has every appearance of outrivalling his former success, The Moocher's Walk.

The Palace Theatre was able on Tuesday night to show an excellent picture of the arrival of their Majesties the King and Queen of Portugal at Portsmouth, together with views of the fleet assembled for their reception.

Mr J. Fruin, secretary of the Music Hall Home, has received from the Donald Currie Company a cheque for seven guineas for that charity, as the result of an entertainment organised by Mr Billy Hobbs on board the Kildonan Castle, en route for South Africa.

The 381st meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Charles Coborn, vice-president, presiding. Mr Joe O'Gorman was elected as chairman of the committee for the year, and Mr Charles Edgar vice-chairman. Mr Arthur Reece was elected a member of the committee. Mr George Gray's card as a member was reissued, and five members of his company were elected members. Mr Frank H. Greves, of the Waggon and Horses, Hall-street, Derby, was appointed as agent in that town. The secretary reported that twenty-five new members had joined during the past week, making a total number enrolled since the commencement of 10,731.

Members of the M.H.A.R.A. are requested to note that the time for the issuing of vouchers in the provinces is not the same in all towns, and they should ascertain from the agent when placing their names on the list the time at which they should call on Saturday.

The beautiful floral anchor sent by Mr Teddy Swanborough, of the Chelsea Palace, in memory of his dear friend, Dan Leno, was omitted from the list of the floral offerings published in our last issue. Another omission was the lovely wreath sent jointly by the staffs of the Canterbury and Paragon.

Mr Clifford King has now entered upon his new duties as general manager for Mr Walter Gibbons's enterprises, and is installed at the offices, 1, Tottenham-court-road, W.C. Mr King, it will be remembered, formerly held the position of manager of the Duchess Palace, Balham.

Mr Henry Carlton, the popular young comedian, starts a four months' provincial tour on Monday at the Palace, Bradford, returning to town in March, when he opens at three halls. Mr Carlton, with few exceptions, is booked as far ahead as December, 1906.

After a most successful stay in London of fourteen weeks, Miss Daisy James visits Chatham for the week. She will then return to tour again to the Royal Standard, Hammersmith Palace, and the Duchess Balham.

Miss Florrie Forde concludes her London engagements to-day, and opens at the Hippodrome, Stoke-on-Trent, on Monday next, following on to Birmingham. She returns to town in time for pantomime rehearsals.

Mr John Lawson has sold the No. 2 rights of Mr Todd of London, and in the minor halls the sketch will be put on with the effects of the original production, only that smaller models will be used. The blue heart sensation, on which Mr Lawson sets great store, failed to show itself on Tuesday, owing to the brittle nature of the glasses, Mr Lawson himself being burnt by the electric wire he carries about with him. On Tuesday evening Mrs Lawson was an interested spectator of the performance of Mr Todd of London at the Canterbury.

Mr Frank Macnaghten has added yet another establishment to his well-known "circuit." This is the old Surrey Theatre, which will reopen, under the new title of the Surrey Vaudeville Theatre, at a special matinée, on Monday, Nov. 28. The transformation that has taken place within the old Surrey walls is very remarkable. The whole of the pit floor and stage has been relaid, and the whole scheme of decoration—a charming combination of cream, pink, and gold—is most artistic. The beauty of the interior is also much enhanced by a large number of prettily designed electroliers around each tier, and, in addition to a powerful sun burner, the large dome is brilliantly illuminated by eighty-seven depending electric lamps in the form of stalactites. The seating arrangements have been remodelled, so that a clear view of the stage can be obtained from any part of the house, and the prices range from twopence to a shilling. There will be two performances nightly, and a special matinée for ladies and children every Monday. The general management will be in the experienced hands of Mr Fred Baugh.

Carl Mysto, on Monday, in the presence of the Chief Constable (Mr Winterbottom) and the Mayor (Mr Butterwick), and several other gentlemen, gave a private exhibition at the Hartlepool Police-station. He was stripped perfectly nude, handcuffed with three pairs of handcuffs, locked inside one of the police cells, his clothes being locked in another. He succeeded in escaping out of the cell in which he was placed, and entered the one where his clothes were. He dressed himself, even in his overcoat and hat, unlocked all the other cell doors in the police station and the iron-barred gate in the corridor in less than three and a-half minutes.

Mr George Bastow has politely but firmly declined to sell pantomime rights of his remarkably successful dame song "My husband left me again." This number, which created a furore on production, is by those two versatile writers, C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton.

Mr C. W. Murphy and Mr Dan Lipton are more than pleased at the way their pantomime songs are being received on all sides. In addition to their first batch, which contained the now well-known "Go away Mr Crocodile" and "If I had a girl as nice as you," they have written several more special numbers, perhaps the prettiest being the charming "Run, run you little ones." This simple little song has, at the eleventh hour, jumped into immediate favour. Applications are pouring in from Cinderella and Babes in the Wood producers especially.

Post Mason, the American baritone, is this week at Shepherd's Bush Empire, where he is singing his new song scena, "Son of the Desert am I," with marked success. The song gives him an excellent chance to display his vocal ability.

Miss Alexandra Dagmar requests us to announce that she has secured the sole singing rights of the song, "The Coonville Coloured Band," from M. Witmark and Sons.

Mrs F. Leonard, of 202, Darwin-street, Birmingham, acknowledges, with gratitude, the receipt of cheque and postal order, value £2 13s., which we have forwarded to her.

Mr James Cook has painted for the Cinque Ports Assembly Rooms at Rye, Sussex, a fine drop-curtain, the subject being a view of the ancient town itself from the south. It is very effective, and has been greatly admired.

Miss Maud Esmond is to be congratulated on the success of her new song, "My Jersey Lily," which bids fair to become even more popular than any other of her previous successes. The words and music are by Messrs Alf J. Lawrance and Harry Gifford, and the song is in the press, having been secured the night after production at the Tivoli by Messrs Hopwood and Crew, Limited.

Mr and Mrs Charles Brecham are much interested in the National Lifeboat Institution, and are, therefore, rejoicing in the excellent result of a collection made on Saturday night last among the Paragon audience. Volunteers with boxes secured a sum of no less than £4 11s. from the hardy tollers of the East-end.

Members of the Council and Ladies' Committee of L'Entente Cordiale Society and their friends, to the number of more than 200, were present at the Alhambra on Tuesday night to witness the performance of the new ballet, The Entente Cordiale, into which was introduced an incident illustrating the signing of the Anglo-French Peace Convention.

G. W. Foster and Alf Rick, whose abilities have been recognised by some of our biggest artists, have joined forces as song-writers,—One Billy Farrell, who is doing well with some new songs at the Hippodrome, Wakefield, has written a number for his brother, Frank Cumminger, entitled "The Way to Go."

The Luken Brothers, whose sensational trapeze act is one of the latest successes at the Empire, only landed in England three days before they started their five weeks' engagement that has already been extended to ten. They are an admirably matched troupe, Mr Harry Luken and his brother Gus being of exactly the same height and almost the same weight, and their two assistants also resembling each other closely in build and weight. They are all Americans, and have worked together for the last five years. At the end of their run at the Empire they go to the Coliseum for five weeks, followed by a Continental tour.

On a trapeze 18ft. high, with a net underneath 2ft. from the stage, the Lukens go through a most startling and clever performance, having no need to add to the excitement of their turn by pretending to fall before accomplishing a trick. One of the "feather weights" of the troupe can turn three somersaults in the air before he drops into the net, and Mr Harry Luken hopes to introduce a new and difficult feat next week. Hanging head downwards from the bar, he will throw one of the boys into the air and catch him again when he has turned two somersaults. It took a year's steady practice to accomplish this neatly. One of the acrobats met with an accident when it was first attempted, broke his leg, and had to stay in hospital for six months. The Luken Brothers carry on the business of a large gymnasium in Reading, Pennsylvania. They have a firm belief in acrobatic work on the bar as the best means of physical culture, and have taught themselves all they know. Their first appearance was in a small travelling circus, with a handsome income of £3 a week, and their present salary is about the same—with £77 added.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE CANTERBURY.

A lavish hand is apparent in the entertainment which Mr G. Adney Payne provides at the Canterbury, where Mr Fred Miller, the popular manager, has ever the satisfaction of seeing the immense auditorium crammed to repletion. In the current bill at least one novelty is to be found in the "episode of fiction" called Mr Todd, of London, in which the weirdest traditions have been supplemented by the most gruesome horrors of the imagination. According to the sketch, Vanderdecken, the "Flying Dutchman," having uttered a blasphemous vow that he would weather Cape Horn in his ship The Star, becomes possessed by the evil spirit of Todd, and is condemned to fight the storm and tempest until the death of Todd shall release his soul. The vessel has been ten months at sea, and Esther Oakley, one of the passengers, is despairing of ever reaching London, where her sister Joanna dwells. She makes the acquaintance on board of Sailor Mark, her sister's sweetheart, to whom she entrusts a valuable pearl necklace. When the vessel at length reaches port, there comes on board Colonel Jeffreys, part owner, who has the girl murdered in her cabin, and Sailor Mark takes the place of the body and is conveyed on shore. He goes to be shaved at the shop of Todd in Fleet-street, where he meets with the traditional fate of Todd's customers, and is afterwards seen in the cellar below, where has been conveyed in a box the body of Colonel Jeffreys, who has been murdered by his wife to secure her own safety. Sailor Mark conceals himself in the box, and when Todd enters he plants his fist in his face and escapes by means of the rope by which the barber had descended. Then the ghosts of his murdered victims rise up before Todd, who nevertheless makes his way out and returns to his shop, where Joanna Oakley, seeking to save her lover, applies for a situation as a boy. Todd is about to compass her death when Sailor Mark appears, and after a terrific struggle smashes with a chair the ladder which the barber is mounting, and Todd comes tumbling down. Forthwith he is placed in the revolving chair, and speedily disappears through the floor. No other than Mr John Lawson could conceive such details as are presented in the playlet, and to no other is it given to impersonate a dual-rôle as that of Todd and Vanderdecken with such appreciation of grim realism, and in this respect Mr Lawson perfectly satisfied his admirers. Mr E. S. Vincent gave a robust and powerful impersonation of the crafty Colonel Jeffreys, and in Miss Lillian Herries the dual-part of Joanna and Esther Oakley found a sweet and refined exponent. Miss Mabel Wynne made a dashing and at times intense Lady Jeffreys, and Mr Bailey Cohen was the embodiment of boldness and chivalry as Sailor Mark. The story was illustrated by elaborate scenery, more or less assisted by the Cinématograph, and the sketch achieved a profound impression. Of the stars that shine in the other part of the programme one of the most popular is Mr Arthur Lennard, whose song of "Three make jolly fine company" falls upon ears that drink in the tuneful melody. The song is following in the wake of Mr Lennard's most marked successes, as is shown by the heartiness with which the refrain is chorused. In "That's what the organ played" opportunity is given for the exercise of low comedy talents, to which the verses lend themselves admirably, their humour always being sufficiently plain to get a roar of laughter. Mr Harry Ford also claims a monopoly of merriment in "That's enough," a phrase that fits into his droll impersonation of a policeman, while the affecting query "Wasn't that a silly thing to do?" brings mirth unceasing in its train. Princess Pauline has a well-written song describing the different ways of the "saloon" and the "four-ale" bar, in which a homely touch of pathos at the end arouses a sympathetic cheer. The bombardment of Datas is carried on with unceasing activity, the performer surrounding the answers to many questions with a wealth of interesting detail. He is equal to giving replies to queries such as the origin of billiards, the institution of the postage-stamp, and the careers of divers murderers to everyone's satisfaction. Mr Harry Lauder maintains a constant state of hilarity by his individual oddities in "Stop yer tickling, Jock," and by his artistic laziness in "Rising early in the morning;" and Mr G. H. Chirgwin again proves his ability to hold an audience entranced by the power of his humour, his clever quips, and his melodious singing of "My fiddle is my sweetheart." Madame Yvette's miniature hippodrome creates abundant interest. With a dog that turns somersaults, an equestrian canine, and a mite of a pony that is brought in in a portmanteau, the turn proves extremely attractive. The Lancashire Lads give an exhilarating selection of clog-dancing; Miss Gladys Mavius gains favour for her song and dance; the Harvey Boys submit their boxing sketch to a chorus of merriment; the latest pictures are shown by Ruffle's Bioscope; and in the programme are also Miss Millie Lindon, Mr Norman French, Miss Maude Mortimer, Mr R. H. Douglass, and Miss Amy Langtree.

THE PARAGON.

A programme that includes the "wizard of the plains" and "the prime minister of mirth" may be said to be far-reaching in its variety. The wizard in question is Ahrensmeyer, the cowboy hypnotist, who exercises his gift upon one of the weaker sex, with the result that the Paragonians have an opportunity of seeing a sleeping lady in the vestibule, free, between 12 30 and 4 0 o'clock each day. She is awakened each evening by the hypnotist on the stage. The feat, however, that excites more wonder among the spectators is when a large piece of stone, placed on a hypnotised lady, extended on two chairs, is broken by a sledge hammer. It is not for us to speculate on such peculiar exhibitions; sufficient to say that they create a feeling of astonishment among the Mile-enders, who have volunteered many opinions as to how it is done. Mr George Robey, who fills the position of the prime minister of mirth, makes his East-end admirers laugh consumedly at his amusing song, "Say no more about it," with its eloquent business, and another fun-maker whose efforts are rewarded with loud laughter is Mr Tom Foy, who represents a Yorkshire lad from Sowerby Bridge. The bucolic youth is not quite such a fool as he looks; and, to use an Americanism, he manages to get the bulge on his Londer employer in a very artful and amusing sort of way. The Harvey Boys have a boxing sketch which is largely charged with horseplay. One of the "boys" has a peculiar notion of the London masher, whose dialogue, with its tiresome repetitions, might be pruned or written up with advantage. There is plenty of hilarity, however, when the "fighting dummy" has a set-to with the representative of the "uppah suckles," and disappears at the finish through a window. The youngster of the trio, who plays a little "hooligan," is clever in his song and dance. Mr Rex Fox, the wire-walker, submits some very remarkable feats. While standing on the thin filament of steel on one foot, he manages to keep a walking-stick and then a lighted lamp balanced on the other, while playing as a mandoline solo the celebrated Intermezzo from Mascagni's Cavalleria Rusticana. There is plenty of appreciation for Miss Rosie Archer's series of imitations. Howe and Ardle as comedy gymnasts do not belie that description, and Miss Raffin's monkeys are intelligent creatures who do their various clever tricks with alacrity. Miss Gwennie Hasto, who also comes early in the programme, tells a pretty story in song concerning a robin and Christmas, and then breaks out into an exhibition of legmania dancing, for which she is famous. Miss Gladys Mavius, a step-dancer of remarkable agility, is loudly applauded for the rapidity and neatness of her jig; Miss Sable Fern, a very great favourite in Mile-end, has a capital chorus song in "Where is the heart that can never beat for a girl?" which rivals in popularity her celebrated number, "She is my lily of the valley." This she also sings to the loudly expressed delight of her listeners in all parts of the house. Miss Carrie Laurie's juveniles include some clever youngsters, who are heard to very great advantage in simple and effective songs; and the boy comedian gives evidences of real talent as a humourist. As a wind-up to a very lengthy programme no better choice could be made than Mr Fred Karno's company of comedians, in that mirth-provoking farce, entitled Jail Birds, in which break-neck comedy of a very original type runs riot. Other turns in the bill are Mr Harry Ford, the Hanlon troupe of gymnasts, and the New Macs, knockabouts. Mr Charles Beecham, the resident-manager, by his firmness and tact, makes himself very popular.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

One of the principal items in a well-varied bill-of-fare is the appearance of Mr Richard List and his performing bears. These intelligent animals have received a careful training, and the result is that they go through an interesting and remarkable performance. They display the docility and the ready obedience which one usually associates with the performing dog, so that the word "bearish," when applied to these well-behaved beasts, ought not to be taken in an uncomplimentary sense. The white bear is considerably larger than his companions, and he presides at a banquet which takes place, and at which the guests disdain the use of glasses and drink from the bottle. One of them refuses to leave the festive board until a second bottle has been brought him and he has imbibed its contents. Then there is the bear who rides around the enclosure in a motor car, guiding it with wonderful precision. Lastly, Mr List has a wrestling bout with the white bear, who would prove a formidable opponent were he to exert his full strength. Happily for his trainer he does not, and after the friendly contest the pair retire arm-in-arm. The lady and gentleman known as Phillips and Terry appear in a sketch called The Revolt of Man. This is a new version of a well-known farce in which Mr J. L. Toole took the leading part, that of a householder who undertakes the domestic work while his wife devotes herself to business affairs. In the sketch which is being played at Holloway we are supposed to have arrived at an era when man is under complete subjection to woman. While the lady in male attire marches off to the city her husband, poor Pertinax, is left at home to look after the baby, wash the clothes, and prepare the dinner. He bitterly complains that she has not kissed him for several days, and when left alone he seeks consolation by drinking gin from a bottle. But a revolution comes about—the men revolt against the tyranny of women, and Pertinax also throws off the yoke and asserts himself with the rest. The little piece is played in true comedy spirit by the lady and gentleman engaged, and the audience—particularly the ladies—laugh heartily at the spectacle of a man washing clothes and peeling potatoes. Miss Alice Maydue, Irish comedienne, appears in the character of a stage-struck servant, who represents both the hero and the heroine; and her mock heroic utterances are excellently delivered. She obtains a flattering reception. So also does Miss Nellie Coleman, whose impersonation of an Irish comedian is a very clever piece of work that meets with due appreciation. She also represents a comic singer of the ordinary type, and again secures the favourable verdict of the audience. The Lumars, consisting of two male and one female performer, appear in a novel acrobatic act, their business being very smartly worked. The two men support horizontically a bar upon which the lady, whose dress is brilliantly illuminated with electric lights, rapidly revolves. Mr Chas. Gardiner, as a garrulous old dame, sings a capital song, and is very desirous of giving the girls advice on the all-important question of marriage. The Sisters Devona are applauded for their graceful act, in the course of which they perform some skilful evolutions. Dome has won renown as a clay modeller, and his ability in this line of business is evidenced by his portraits of Mr Joseph Chamberlain, General Buller, Li Hung Chang, and other celebrities, including the notorious Bill Bailey. The Howards, a lady and gentleman, indulge in some amusing patter, and also give proof of their skill as instrumentalists. The American Bioscope shows graphic pictures by which one can obtain a very good idea of the damage done by the Russian warships in the North Sea. Mr Chas. W. Abrams continues to look after the front of the house with his usual assiduity, and Mr Thomas Gray and his orchestra ably perform their important duties.

THE MIDDLESEX.

The standard of excellence which has always characterised the entertainments at Mr J. L. Graydon's old-established and prosperous Drury-lane hall is well maintained, and business is such as would gladden the heart of any music hall manager. After the excellently rendered overture by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr William Skerry, the first item to claim the attention of the vast audience on Tuesday was that given by the Sisters Selwyn, a pair of prepossessing and smartly costumed young ladies, who sang with considerable charm that frequently-heard and pretty number "Under a Panama;" also appearing as a couple of stylish damsels who intend to set the fashion, and who compel admiration and applause by their neatly executed and exhausting dance. Jubal and Joyce, a pair of entertaining cross-talk comedians and dancers, were responsible for some hilarity; and Miss Mabel Toney, male impersonator, contributed "The Prodigal Son" and another item to the evident enjoyment of the audience. Some exceptionally expert sleight-of-hand and card-palming was done by the mysterious Cristo, who also managed to join together eight apparently solid brass rings with a dexterity which was amazing. The rings were handed to the audience to examine, but they failed to detect any means of connecting them. Cristo also executed a smart piece of conjuring when he extracted from an empty hat yards of bunting, a number of tin plates, and a lively little terrier, and his entire exhibition was much appreciated and loudly applauded. Muir and Bartlett presented an amusing and well-acted little duologue, A Clerical Complication, a parson and a lady sketch that is similar in idea to one that has long been popular on the halls, but which, nevertheless, proved vastly entertaining to the audience; and the Rales were accorded some of the heartiest plaudits heard during the evening for their attractive and clever dancing turn. The fine figure of Miss Daisy Morrell was seen to much advantage in a handsome principal boy's costume, and her song, "One of the King's Royal Navy," was admirably rendered and cordially received. Those amusing drolls, Walton and Lester, grotesquely made up and dressed, created abundant merriment with their duet and amusing telephone business, afterwards appearing as a Chinese conjuror and his "interrupter," and indulging in some entertaining mock magic. The "world's worst wizards" also gave their screamingly funny burlesque on the Magic Kettle act, a trifle that was well worked and productive of continuous hilarity. Miss Hettie King, a male impersonator of decided ability, first appeared in a handsome naval officer's costume to sing of the love of a Chinese maiden for a "sailor man;" her second contribution, in which she was attired in immaculate evening dress, being an entertaining and well-rendered number. Miss King makes an admirable "boy," and there is a finish and intelligence in her impersonations which are seldom encountered, and which should enable her to occupy a leading position in the business for which she is so well equipped. Evidently a favourite at the "Mo," she was loudly acclaimed at the conclusion of her turn. The clever and amusing acrobatic turn of Kelly and Gillette, "Fun on a Billiard Table," is also a prominent feature of the programme, the wonderful somersaults of the couple evoking loud expressions of admiration; and the amusing fooling of the "tramp" creating abundant hilarity. An extremely interesting exhibition is given by Grais' Baboon Prodigies, including Diavoleno, the daring and clever young baboon, who successfully cycles the loop; and other items in the entertaining programme include the Maples, exceptionally expert speciality dancers, in some original movements; Charles Sloman, comedian; Frank and Free, comedy artistes; and Frank Boyce, comedian. The sketch of the bill is the Shakespearian episode Shylock; or, the Merchant of Venice, to which complete justice is done by Albert Wynham and company; and some excellent and up-to-date pictures are shown by the New Bioscope. On Tuesday an "extra" was forthcoming in the shape of a farcical sketch largely concerning the telephone, a trifle which was smartly acted throughout, and proved really entertaining.

DR. BODIE'S NEW SENSATION.

On Monday, at Messrs Rich. Waldon and Thos. Barrasford's fine hall, the Palace, Glasgow, Dr. Walford Bodie gave for the first time a new hypnotic act. Before introducing Miss Marie Walford, Dr. Bodie made some interesting remarks about the wonders of mental telepathy and hynotic suggestion, as exemplified in many well authenticated cases, and as known to every member of the audience in such simple incidents as that of two friends at the same moment commencing to talk on the same subject, without any previous leading up to it, and similar everyday incidents, showing a distinct suggestion of mental sympathy and similarity of thought. The doctor then introduced Miss Walford, and with a few passes of his hand put her in a hypnotic trance, after which he blindfolded her and led her to the front of an easel on which were several large sheets of white paper. He then allowed members of the audience to select from a number of cards on which were written the names of well-known people and equally well-known musical compositions. These members then went on the stage as a committee of inspection, and one by one their various cards were shown to the audience. The first contained the name of Buller, and immediately without any apparent communication between Dr. Bodie and his "subject" the latter began to draw on the sheet of paper in front of her, in "lightning-cartoonist" style, but much more carefully, an easily recognisable portrait of that popular general. Next was shown to the audience the name of General Gordon, and his portrait was drawn in equally mysterious style. Miss Walford was then led to a piano, and one of the committee wrote on the easel the word "Florodora." Though the young lady was at the other side of the stage, with her back to the audience and blindfolded, she at once commenced a well-played selection from Leslie Stuart's favourite opera. More remarkable still, at a sign from Dr. Bodie, made by waving his hands towards her, she stopped, and after an interval recommenced at the exact place where she had left off. This was repeated numerous times, Dr. Bodie further taking signs from the audience, and transmitting it to the lady with the same effect. Another member of the committee then wrote the words, "Swanee River," and that old-time favourite air was treated in the same mysterious fashion. It was all very wonderful, and, however it may be explained, forms a puzzling performance as far as the audience is concerned, especially as there are no words spoken to give Mystic Marie any clue, as in the case of some former "thought-reading" séances. Dr. Bodie's regular performance continues to excite much heated controversy, and the cure, or at least partial cure, of a young soldier discharged from the Gordon Highlanders as unfit owing to paralysis has itself done much to enhance the reputation of this wonderful man on this, his sixteenth, visit to the City of Glasgow. A clever variety programme is also submitted, but fades into insignificance compared to the interest attaching to the Doctor's cures and his Trilby business.

MISS MARIE WALFORD.

CHELSEA PALACE.

The genuine attractions that are presented here week after week by Mr Henri Gros and his directorate have made the Chelsonians proud of their local palace in the King's-road, and the audiences that assemble twice nightly are among the most appreciative to be found in London. Every care is taken that the best attractions of the halls come in their turn, and refinement is the very essence of the weekly programmes, but at the same time there is no lack of fun. For instance, this week there is that wonderful hotch-potch of horse-play and frolic known as The Bricklayers—a pantomime in reality, and one about which the Theatrical Managers' Association need not trouble itself; for it would puzzle the whole of his Majesty's counsel to discover any semblance of plot. The British workmen in front of a very realistic-looking scaffolding give themselves up to the whim of the moment, which seems to be everything but work. The dinner hour brings in its train much practical joking, and the layers of bricks dance "on the light fantastic" to the strains of a piano-organ. There are alarums and excursions and daring feats, and much buffoonery, and the scheme of fun is ably aided by Frank, Willie, and Albert Boisset, who work loyally together and do not spare themselves. The auditorium resounds with laughter, and the hearty merriment is sufficient testimony of the success of the comic entertainment without any praise from our pen. Among the single turns is Mr Charles Coverdale, whose drollery is undoubted. He has a song with a long tale of humorous and well-written verses, containing many verbal quips. He sings it exceedingly well, and then gives some imitations of sawing wood, of the starting and progression of a train, and of the approach of a motor-car, with a break-down to finish up. But it is the patter so volubly given during these imitations that enables Mr Coverdale to score such a decided success, and he is already a great favourite at Chelsea. Miss Dolly Elsworthy is a sprightly and vivacious comedienne whose heart is evidently in her work. There is nothing very remarkable in the tune or words of her first song, "Ob, the motor car," but she has an excellent number in "Navahoe," a pretty coon lilt with an accompanying dance, in which she brings down the house. Miss Elsworthy has the makings of an excellent artiste, and should rapidly go ahead. Miss Alma Jones quite justifies her description as a charming ballad vocalist by her singing of "Idle Dreams," but she secures her greatest success in "The Lost Chord," during which the house is stilled to silence, broken at length by salvoes of applause, which make the triumph of the singer complete. Mdlle. Martha, who is termed "the greatest of all lady gymnasts," is lithe and graceful on the swinging trapeze, from which she hangs by her feet and toes. As a tour de force she hangs by her teeth, and spins herself round with great velocity like a teetotum, the feat evoking much cheering. As a finale to her act she does a very graceful rope descent. Mr Harry Kirk is what might be termed a facial artiste, as he distorts his features in every conceivable way. There is much cleverness, nevertheless, in his thumb-nail sketches of character, and he is a master of expression as well as a good jo leller. The Sisters Desmond present in animated fashion the aristocratic and the plebeian side of life in their impersonations of the lady motorist and her less fortunate sister. Mr W. H. Clemart introduces a most interesting ventriloquial family, which figure in novel and amusing deliberations that are exceedingly droll, and prove their author to be a clever polyphonist. Mr Marriott, "the man in red," is particularly smart in his songs "On the Sands" and "Just to satisfy her curiosity," with which he winds up the programme. Mr Teddy Swanborough, assisted by Mr Leon Zeitlin, is assiduous and courteous in front; and Mr Angelo Asher's orchestra does its work artistically under his capable direction.

EMPRESS, BRIXTON.

The fame of the "Demon Kettle" has bespoken large attendances all the week at the Empress, where Mr Nelson Francis is adapting himself admirably to the task of accommodating huge audiences, the attractiveness of an extraordinary programme being increased by the manifestations of the power of "liquid air." The spectators are lost in wondering admiration while the wonders of the magic fluid are being demonstrated by Dr. Irve Hayman, F.R.S., who turns grapes into bailstones, fries an egg and sausage on ice, makes ice-cream by fire in two seconds, and even turns the wondrous air to the purposes of a pipe or cigar. Professor Hayman has an excellent delivery, and besides performing the feats rapidly and without a hitch, makes the most of the humorous possibilities of the act, so that astonishment and laughter go hand-in-hand. The Eight Lancashire Lads put in a welcome appearance in the early part of the evening and give their clever clog dancing in many varieties. One boy has a strong voice, which he employs in a melodious rendering of Sullivan's "Lost Chord," the refrain being repeated by the troupe, who boast both bass and tenor among their number. A lively rag-time song and dance is also contributed, some of the boys making a quaint appearance in skirts. Mr Harry Pleon creates an impression on his entry as the oddest little policeman imaginable, his song of "Sergeant Ballantyne" and the mock melodramatic recitation which he interpolates being as funny as could be wished. In his latest piece of nonsense "How to make a book" Mr Pleon, who is assisted by Tom Kent, jun., impersonates a "mug" who parts with his money to a knowing "sport" for information on turf matters. The broadest fun possible is made out of the confusion of feminine names, and laughter becomes general until the little comedian is finally carted off the stage by a burly policeman. Miss Daisy James has in "Smart" a song which enables her to exercise her comedy powers with effect; while her newest effusion, "My fellow's a hero," allows her to give with many comic embellishments the life history of a man who precedes the steam-roller. His bravery in checking the mad career of the machine, his powers of drinking beer, and his conquests with the ladies are all dwelt upon merrily by Miss James, who becomes the object of an ovation. Some quiet sarcasm at the expense of the fair sex is indulged in by Starr and Leslie, who have numerous methods of diversion. While the lady sings a medley of tuneful songs, her male partner juggles with three Indian clubs, in which he is afterwards joined by the fair vocalist, who is equally expert. Their performance forms a pretty display which is enthusiastically appreciated. Mr George Antill, who rejoices in the appellation of "the Evening Shadow," makes much of his leanness in "I was the man they sent for," and supplements his song, "Carrying On," with some droll "patter," and a dance which is remarkable for the eccentric movements of his limbs. A cadaverous countenance and a tight-fitting suit give a sepulchral hue to the impersonations, which receive great applause. An attractive turn is supplied by the Seebolds, Swiss mountain instrumentalists, who utilise peculiar metal rods for the purposes of melody. Mr Seebold is a fine piccolo player, performing a tuneful solo on that difficult instrument, and the rendering of Souza's "Semper Fidelis" on the xylophone is also greatly enjoyed. Miss Maud Esmond in a dainty Court dress of brown velvet, appeals to popular sentiment in "Two little tell-tale eyes," and in "My Jersey Lily" she proves that the coon ballad still possesses the power to please. Barnard's Marionettes provide a varied and complete show, the figures being skilfully manipulated and voiced; Mr Mark Melford and company give the comic sketch Black and White; or, Between Two Stools, in which Mr Melford as the "Bounder" puts the audience into throes of mirth; and Ruffle's pictures illustrate up-to-date events, including the funeral of the late Dan Leno and the outrage on the fishing smacks by the Russian Fleet. Mr Harry Rogerson proves himself a marvel of eccentricity, and the programme is further made up of Mr Harry Cook, patterer; Miss Dot Hardy, low comedienne; and Les Sprays, Continental artistes. Mr Robert Allington, the new musical director, controls the orchestra efficiently.

ANOTHER "BOGEY MAN."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I notice in your issue of Nov. 5 a paragraph to the effect that Messrs Murphy and Lipton have supplied Messrs Francis and Day with a number of the bogey-man type, the "bogey" in this instance being the chimney-sweep. As I produced my bogey-man "sweep" song on July 20, 1896, at Collins's, Islington, and also sang it all through Miss Cissy Grahame's tour of All Abroad—in which I played Mr Beaver—singing it also as late as June 29, 1903, at the Tivoli, Strand, and last Easter week at the London Pavilion, I trust I shall not be accused of copying another's original idea when I produce my "chimney-coloured coon" song (William Hargreaves), which was suggested by my "sweep" song. Yours faithfully,

HARRY PHYDORA.

MR TOM COSTELLO has given Miss Alma Obrey permission to sing his latest hit, "Farewell, my little Yo San," by Bennett, Scott, and Mills, at the Royal Standard, this week.

A WOMAN OUT OF NOTHING.

"DIDA" AT THE ALHAMBRA. A GREAT CREATION.

Some years ago the patrons of the halls were greatly mystified by an illusion known as "the disappearing lady." A girl was seen seated in a chair, a screen was then placed in front of her for a few seconds, and when it was removed she had, to the bewilderment of the audience, vanished from sight. An illusion which in its ingenious working out is the reverse of the disappearing lady trick was introduced at the Alhambra on Monday evening, under the title of "Dida," and has since been the subject of much discussion as to "how is it done." Briefly described on the programme as "the creation of a woman out of nothing," the new illusion is evidently the work of an inventive genius, and is certainly more mysterious than most stage tricks that have been presented to the public. As far as the apparatus itself is concerned the arrangements are simplicity itself. In the middle of the stage stands a glass tank between five and six feet in length supported on a wooden stand with four legs, and the gentleman who apparently works the trick gets into the tank, and also shows that the space between the legs of the stand is vacant. Then buckets are passed along by the attendants and emptied into the glass receptacle until it is nearly full, giving a depth of over two feet. The operator next places a piece of silk drapery over the glass, completely concealing it for a few moments. When the covering is withdrawn a young lady in pink fleshings is seen lying in the water, apparently asleep. The puzzle is, of course, how did she get there? When addressed the lady awakes, rises to the surface, and descends to the stage. The operator then, addressing the audience, remarked that he was afraid only those ladies and gentlemen occupying the front seats could see how the trick was done, and he desired that all should learn how it was worked. Thereupon the illusion was repeated in precisely the same manner, but when the covering was removed, another equally charming young lady was seen reposing in the water, and she also made her way to the stage and disappeared at the wings. Subsequently the two ladies reappeared and bowed their acknowledgments of the applause. Mr George Scott, the able manager of the Alhambra, may be congratulated on having secured another powerful attraction in "Dida," the latest mystery of the stage. His brother managers will thank him for introducing to the English stage a very powerful turn for their programmes.—The Era, Oct. 29, 1904.

HERBERT CAMPBELL MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—A memorial to the late Mr Herbert Campbell in the shape of a bust, either in marble or bronze, is to be obtained, and placed, if possible, in the vestibule of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, the scene of so many of his triumphs. Mr Harry Randall has kindly consented to act as president and Mr Edward Ledger, of The Era, as treasurer to the fund.

It is the intention of the committee to engage an artist of repute to execute this work to the memory of the above-mentioned generous and genial comedian. The committee will esteem it a great favour if his old friends and admirers will assist in making this memorial a success. All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in The Era.

Yours faithfully, FRANK HEATH, (Secretary).

SKETCHES ON THE STAGE.

At West London Police-court, on Saturday, Mr John Charles Coe, the proprietor of the Hammersmith Palace of Varieties, appeared to answer a summons issued by the Theatre Managers' Association for keeping his music hall open on Oct. 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, and 15, for the public performance of a stage play, viz., The Fighting Parson.

Mr A. H. Bodkin (instructed by Stanley and Co.) supported the summons, and Mr J. P. Grain and Mr W. Payne (instructed by Mr Philip Rutland, J.P.) defended.

Mr Bodkin, after giving a lengthy recapitulation of the law on the subject of stage plays, observed that the case was really a bad one, because only last March Mr Coe was fined on a precisely similar summons, and yet he continued to defy the law for his own personal profit, while as regarded the play itself, The Fighting Parson, this was the fourth time that it had formed the subject of prosecution. It would be a lamentable thing if a body, however wealthy, could persistently break the law without being subjected to the usual consequences.

Evidence was given by Mr Williams, clerk to Stanley and Co., solicitors for the prosecuting association.

Mr Grain urged that the proceedings were persecution rather that prosecution. The Act of Parliament under which the summons was issued was not directed to the modern state of things, as was proved by the preamble to the Act, which spoke about the "vice of idleness" then prevalent, &c.

The Magistrate—I think that those flowers of rhetoric are perennial. I am not sure that the same evils so elaborately enumerated in the preamble don't exist to-day.

Mr Grain contended that it was a point of the highest significance that the London County Council, which was the licensing authority over music halls, should have been totally uninfluenced in the granting of renewals of licences to Mr Coe and other music hall proprietors by the fact that these prosecutions had been taken.

The magistrate (Mr Rose) observed that his sole duty was to administer the law, and however beneficial this particular play might be, and he believed it was, if it was being performed under illegal circumstances the person responsible must be punished. He imposed a penalty of £7 per diem, or £42 in all.

MR JAR WOOD'S song, "Chrysanthe-mum-mum-mum," has reached six editions, and a new title-page is being printed, with a very fine picture of Miss Lily Elsie on it. Orders have been executed by Mr Wood for new songs, "The Orange and the Jam Jar," "The Phonographic Doll," and "The Smart Set Girls," all published by Messrs Price and Reynolds, 41, Berners-street, W.

THE directors of the Palace and Derby Castle Limited, Douglas, Isle of Man, attribute the lessened receipts during the past season to the reduced spending power of the visitors to the island. The total receipts were £28,649, and the gross profit £9,617. The disposable balance is £4,946, enabling them to pay a preference dividend of five per cent. and two and a-half per cent. on the ordinary shares, leaving £196 to be carried forward.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(COPYRIGHT.)

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THERE was but a poor attendance at the committee meeting of the Vandwellers' Society, held at their Salford Guild room last Sunday evening, many of the members being still engaged at the late winter fairs or on rounds too far away to attend a Manchester gathering. However, important business was discussed, and resolutions arrived at of great interest.

THE Rev. T. Horne, as one of the hon. secretaries to the Parliamentary Defence Fund, submitted the sessional report of its work. The report dealt with matters we have already touched upon in these columns. The separate costs of each petition lodged with the Private Bills Committee office at the House of Commons were laid before the committee, and a most useful and informing discussion took place. Great satisfaction was expressed at the excellent work of Messrs F. Millar, Parliamentary agent, and T. Watson Wright, Parliamentary solicitor. A generous meed of praise was accorded to the Rev. T. Horne for work done in connection with Parliamentary Bills, and also to the Hon. E. Charteris, the Parliamentary counsel.

THE ad interim financial report showed a serious deficit, of course entirely owing to the expensive work of Parliamentary defence of the showman's business. The outstanding subscriptions now in the hands of members of the committee, if paid in to the secretary at once (with subscriptions promised but not paid) would relieve to a certain extent the financial distress, over a hundred pounds being required to meet immediate liabilities. Now is the time for new subscribers to show their appreciation of the work of the Guild, a work that defends all open-air amusement caterers whether travelling or stationary.

THE committee wished the hon. chaplain Godspeed and all success on his settlement in London, and much satisfaction was felt in the coincidence Mr Horne's new parish is within easy distance of the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, the site of the World's Fair every Christmas. In replying to the many kind and appreciative remarks of his friends, the rev. gentleman said that his interest in shows and showmen grew with the passage of time—grew with his own growth. He knew that his work amongst them was valued, and that his work had been of general interest—as ministering to the need of the nation in a great department of human life. The provision of amusement and recreation for the toiling masses of the empire. The man of God ought to aim at touching the whole of human life—the common life of the people at all times—in its joys as well as its sorrows, its worktime and its playtime.

HE had striven, he ventured to say, to carry into the life and work of the Church this high ideal of service—For God and for good, in the work-a-day world, and the needful hours of rest and relaxation from brain and body toil. He testified gladly to the rapidly increasing acceptance amongst his ministerial brethren of these views, views which less than ten years ago made him a marked man, a sort of "freak in clericals." But things were moving so rapidly that bishop after bishop, as they grasped the significance and the importance of the movement in which they were so vitally interested, had written to him wishing him God-speed in his work. That work he still regarded as one of the best efforts of his life, and he was greatly comforted in the thought that his sphere of work in London would give him more time than ever to develop at all points his labour of love in the showman world.

ROTHERHAM Statutes Hirings Fair is a striking illustration of the rapidly charging order of town life. The county borough, as it is now, from being a small town (of some historic note it is true), has become the centre of the allied industries of coal, steel, and iron for South Yorkshire, and is rapidly growing in population and importance. The growth of the town necessitated the absorption of the fair ground for municipal works—gas and electricity mainly. During the past ten years, but for the enterprise of individual showmen like Messrs J. and P. Collins and Mr Tuby, of Doncaster (the local caterer), the shows would have been squeezed out for lack of room at the Statutes Fair. First the large field known as 'Aizlewood's on the Greasborough-road, and in closest proximity to the rapidly dwindling Corporation fairground. Then the best of all possible sites, the railway ground in the heart of the borough, the Station-road ground, leased by Mr John Collins. These private fair grounds provided what the Corporation neglected to provide—that is, ample room for all comers. So that, instead of going down, the fair has manifestly increased in interest and in its hold upon public favour and patronage.

A CURIOUS incident may be profitably recorded here. We refer to the desire of the Corporation to obtain control of private fair ground business within the borough—a monopoly, in fact.

FOR this purpose a clause was inserted in a Corporation Private Bill as follows:—

The Corporation may make and enforce bye-laws for prescribing places within the borough and the hours within which during any fair, or at any other time, any show, booth, caravan, circus, or exhibition may be held and kept open, and for preserving order therein; but no such bye-laws shall come into operation unless and until they shall have been confirmed by one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State."

Against this the Guild, through two of its members, petitioned—namely, Messrs F. T. Salva and George Cornwell, two well-known showmen frequenting the fair:—

Your petitioners are proprietors of travelling shows, &c., and for the purposes of their calling have resorted, and still do resort, to the Borough of Rotherham. Your petitioners, their property, rights, and interests are injuriously affected by the Bill, and they object thereto for the reasons hereinafter stated.

Your petitioners humbly submit that the power to make bye-laws prescribing the places at which any shows, &c., may be held and kept open is in excess of the powers of the general law, and a serious infringement of the rights of your petitioners, and that it is contrary to the public interests that any restriction should be placed upon the letting or hiring of land for the purposes of your petitioners' businesses, whether during fair time or otherwise.

Your petitioners further submit that the power to prescribe the hours within which shows, &c., may be kept open would enable the Corporation to seriously curtail, and possibly to destroy, the businesses of your petitioners; and the exercise of such power would at the same time constitute an infringement of the rights of persons desirous of resorting to your petitioners' shows, &c.

To the great credit of the Rotherham Corporation we chronicle the fact that when Messrs F. Millar and T. Watson Wright, acting for the petitioners, opened up negotiations for an amicable settlement, they came to the conclusion to withdraw the proposed clause entirely. This was because it was clearly brought home to them that in other cases—notably, Halifax—the same powers had been sought for, but had been refused by Parliament as being not only in excess of the general law, but also an infringement of the liberty of the subject and the rights of property.

ROTHERHAM was for several years the scene of Mr Horne's ministerial labours. Fourteen years ago, when curate of Whiston, near Rotherham, he first came forth as the showmen's friend and champion. For many years one of the best of all showmen's meetings took place in the Statutes fair. Everybody in the town knew of the Showmen's Guild and its hon. chaplain. To this good feeling of Rotherham people for shows and showmen may be largely attributed the spirit of kindly goodwill and appreciation with which the pourparlers of the negotiations were conducted, and the straightforward way in which the objectionable clause was withdrawn, a conclusion of the utmost value and satisfaction to all concerned.

AT Rotherham for the Statute week were Chipperfield's menagerie, Mrs Baker's circus, Randall Williams's Kinemato Theatre of life and picture (Monte Brothers), G. H. Kemp's Anglo-American Combine, Enoch Farran's and Holdsworth's fine art exhibitions, Dartnell's giant show, Frank Gess, with boxers and athletes; Prince Samonda, the Temple of Mystery, and Farran's laughing mirrow show; John Collins, with three machines; the gallopers, the bike motor track, and the ships in the air; P. Collins, Limited, with two machines, the gondolas and the flying ostriches; Arthur Twigdon's gondolas; Mrs Waddington's gondolas; Walter Shaw's steam swings; and J. Gavin's manual swings. The shooting concerns were by Messrs Cornwell Radcliffe, Fossett, Marsden, Lever, Hughes, Bentley, Richards, Lieske, and Tom Smith. Cokers, throwing games of all kinds, variety and pannum stalls of all sorts were supplied by Messrs Mercer, Ingham, Steward, Holdsworth, Cooper, Middlebrook, Whatmore, Lever, Sutherland, Pullen, Farrar, Fawcett, Cornwell, Smith, and Wilson.

OUR word of warning last week with reference to the threatened Wigan fair was followed by immediate action by Lancashire showmen. The matter came before the Guild committee at its last meeting, and Mr Hurst, hon. secretary, with Messrs Wm. Mitchell, John Green, R. Dixon, and the Rev. T. Horne, were appointed a sub-committee to deal with the Wigan authorities, and report back to the society. We reiterate here for the satisfaction of our showmen readers what we have briefly referred to on previous occasions, and that is that fairs cannot be abolished on the mere wish or pleasure of corporations or local governing bodies. There is Statute law for this very purpose—an Act passed in the year 1871, and called "an Act to further amend the Law relating to Fairs in England and Wales" (34 Vict., cap. 12).

THIS act may be cited as "The Fairs' Act, 1871," and is the last Statute dealing with fairs, feasts, and wakes. The procedure is as here given. Clause 3 provides that—

In case it shall appear to the Secretary of State for the Home Department, upon representation duly made to him by the magistrates of any petty sessional district within which any fair is held, or by the owner of any fair in England or Wales, that it would be for the convenience and advantage of the public that any such fair shall be abolished, it shall be lawful for the said Secretary of State for the Home Department, with the previous consent in writing of the owner for the time being of such fair or of the tolls or dues payable in respect thereof, to order that such fair be abolished accordingly: Provided always that notice of such representation, and of the time when it shall please the secretary of State for the Home Department to take the same into consideration, shall be published once in the London Gazette, and in three successive weeks in some one and the same newspaper published in the county, city, or borough in which such fair is held, or if there be no newspaper published therein, then in the newspaper of some county adjoining or near thereto, before such representation is so considered.

In the preamble of the Act is set the very definite reasons that must govern the operation of the law, and reads as follows:—

Whereas certain of the fairs held in England and Wales are unnecessary, are the cause of grievous immorality, and are very injurious to the inhabitants of the towns in which such fairs are held; it is therefore expedient to make provision to facilitate the abolition of such fairs.

THE conditions precedent to using the Statute are unmistakable. In the case of Poole, and again with reference to Leicester, the charges of immorality had to be withdrawn before the Home Secretary would consider the remaining reasons. There was not a tittle of evidence beyond surmise or hearsay. So the graver charges against the fairs had to be withdrawn. There is no instance on record of a fair being abolished for immorality.

OUR point is this, that in recent years—certainly since the showmen, through their trade defence organisation, have challenged the proposals to abolish them—few fairs have been abolished, and not one for the graver reasons of danger either to public morals or health. The fair may, as with Leicester, have outgrown its ancient site in the heart of the town, or it may have, by the migration of the people to other centres of work, ceased to be a necessity. There are no reasons whatever why the fair at Wigan should be interfered with. The area of market ground is ample—the interference with the ordinary market days of the slightest kind. The revenue or easement of public burden from tollage at the pleasure fairs is over £500 per annum. The people love the fair. It is a holiday time deeply rooted in the life of the town and district. To interfere with it would be an invasion of public rights of the uncalled-for character.

AMBROSE TILLER'S Theatre of Varieties finished a most successful season of three weeks at Aberfan, Merthyr Vale on Thursday, and opens in Troedyrhiw to-day. Wadbrook's living pictures were at Troedyrhiw on Monday and Tuesday. Haggar's original picture show is at Aberdare.

MESSRS BOSTOCK AND WOMBWELL'S MENAGERIE (Business Manager, Mr Frank Bostock) opened on the Cattle Market, Norwich, on Wednesday. This is always a favourite show here, and, as usual, is well patronised.

AT the Market Yard, West Hartlepool, were Capt. Beaumont's world's fair, Kitson's cokers and gold fisheries, Smith's football hoops, Blakey's exhibition of jugglery and Bunce freak shows.

THERE is no doubt the Japanese are great show people, yet one would hardly expect to see in a place like Tokio a gigantic panorama built on the same principle and size as the one of the Siege of Paris, so long one of the attractions at the Crystal Palace; but such is the case, and it depicts the scene of the Boxer trouble, and is beautifully painted and built out, and evidently the work of an artist of great merit. Then at Asakusa one will always find "the fun of the fair" at its height, archery, fishing for gold fish—the cruellest of sport, because the hooks are continually catching in the fish, who ninety-nine times out of a hundred release themselves after being severely maltreated, and which "sport" is carried on all day. The side shows consist of balancing, cheap theatres, one very fine museum containing freaks, and also an aquarium containing fish that one has possibly never heard of in Europe. The aquarium is built after the style of a small cavern and lighted from the top by thin blue glass, and then on each tank is thrown a white light, giving the whole a most weird appearance.

OF roundabouts there is only one, and that, in all probability, a pattern taken from an English one fifty years old. There are some very fine bazaars, which by the way, are greatly the fashion all over Japan, of gigantic size. Nothing is charged for admission, but they are very tedious, owing to the continual round of passages. Should a fire occur Heaven help those inside! Outside of all these fairs there are the usual cake-sellers, beggars, and balancers all mixed up. Again at Asakusa they have a very fine Zoo, admission to which is only about two sen, the other shows being about the same. Inside the Zoo contains, besides animals, a waxwork show and a large marionette show. So the Japs are not slow at amusing themselves.

PENRITH is near enough to the Scottish Border for the showmen north of the Tweed to cross over and make the fair glad and joyous with Scotch "humour and weet." Here were the Wilmots, with gondolas "fra Glasca;" the Macintoshs with varieties and throwing games; Geo. Green, also of Glasgow fame, with his Cinématograph theatre; and Messrs Palmer, Patrickson, Hiscox, Day, Biddall, Hughes, and Broughton with steam horses, swings, tubs, cokers, and the usual addenda of a well-planned fair.

WE have news to hand of Alford Fair, which was well maintained. The roundabout concerns of Messrs Smith and Warren, and Thurston; the assault-at-arms and athletic tourney by Professor Wheatley and his school of boxers, the shooters of Messrs Western, Neal, and Boulton; Emmas, cokers, and varieties by Messrs Boulton and Warren.

MR HURST, acting for the Showmen's Guild and the British Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union, has rallied the friends of the fair at Wigan. The various organisations of local tradesmen have most important interests at stake. Mr Hurst was more than gratified at his success in the preliminary interviews with the local agencies, the known friends and defenders of the fair. Up to the present time (this news is official), the Clerk has received no notice of motion from the enemies of the fair. They said that they would move, but no notice has been left at the Town Clerk office. As that is the very first in the attack, the defence is as yet a day too soon. Perhaps these valiant warriors against the people's fairs may yet think discretion the better part and not proceed to follow words with deeds.

THE holding of a wool fair at Landore at the same time as the historic fair at Llangyfelach has given rise to threats of legal proceedings. The fair at Llangyfelach has been sparsely attended, while that at Landore has reaped the advantage, and so a solicitor's letter has been served on the weavers patronising Landore threatening an injunction against the landlord and subsequent proceedings against his patrons for setting up, promoting, or establishing a fair or fairs at or near Landor, "so as to be an invasion or disturbance of the prescriptive fairs belonging to the owner and tenant of the Plough and Harrow, Llangyfelach, and their rights therein."

AT Stockton-on-Tees, on Monday night, a charity gala night was held by the showmen who attended the hirings. In the market-place were erected Mr Wm. Murphy's Golden Venice, and the result of the night's takings from this machine were £48, from Mr H. Caris's galloping horses £20, and from Mr Robinson's fairground games £15, making a total of £83. There is some collecting money to come in yet, which will help to augment the above total.

A LARGE staff of willing workers gave their services and the management was successfully carried out by Mr Sanderson, sec., Stockton and Thornaby Hospital, and Mr Geo. Campbell, agent-general for Murphy Brothers.

THE Second Hirings at Stockton-on-Tees took place on Wednesday last. William Murphy's Golden Venice was well patronished, also H. Caris's jumping generals, Ralph and Pedley's Bioscope wonders of the world, Moore's Athletes, and the fair ground concerns of Messrs Hancock, Sheeran, Crow, and A. Newsome.

THE great fair of the hirings round on the Border is Cockermouth, held this year on Nov. 14. Here were the Cinématograph exhibitions of Geo. Biddall and Mrs S. Johnson, the fine art shows of Messrs F. Walton, H. Kelly, and J. Watson; Prof. Wood's fistiana saloon, and H. Chapman's performing birds; John Caris, with switchback gondolas; Wm. Caris, with steam horses and manual swings; J. Wingate, with bike motors; C. Baker and Sons' steam yachts, and H. Newey's range of park swings; D. M'Gregor's Winchester rifle range; and Messrs Slater, Shields, and Irvenson, with cokers throwing games, and varieties.

AT Hexham Hirings on the 11th inst. we noticed Mr Walter Murphy's looping the loop gondolas, Newsome's highflier, Toogood's bazaars, Chapman's shooting range, Walker's cokernuts, the fine art exhibition of H. O'Brian, and the fancy stalls of Messrs Cottam, Nace, Bloomfield, and Goleski.

AT South Shields Fair last Wednesday W. and B. Murphy's No. 2 gondola set was to the fore, flanked by Hamilton's flying and galloping roosters, the miniature horses of Messrs Kay and Newsome, Cooper's North Country exhibition of living pictures, Durland's South African native village entertainment, Marwood's stereoscopic show, and Mons. Paul Lundi's weight lifting booth.

AT Holloway's New Empire Theatre, Astwood Bank, this week, Mr W. Redmond sings some capital songs in good style, and Mr W. Holloway does a clever spade dance. Smart bone solos are also performed by Mr W. Redmond.

AT the New Empire Theatre a benefit has been given in aid of the Astwood Bank and District Hospital Society, the sum of £10 being taken. Mr W. Holloway has also generously offered to give a performance in aid of a children's treat and entertainment at Christmas.

CARMARTHEN November Pleasure Fair was held on the Corporation fair ground on Monday. Messrs Henry Studt and Son's fine electric switchback was the chief attraction, and Messrs J. North's and Boswell's Aunt Sallies and cocoanut shies were well patronised.

AT the Aberdare Fair on the 13th inst. the shows were Wadbrook's and Hagger's Cinématographs, Sedgmoor's fine arts, freaks, &c., Collie's and Scaveat's boxing, Mr John Studt's gondolas, jumpers, and Alpine slide; Butlin's and Audley's horses, Neal's swings, Freeman's, Robert's, and Clark's Winchester ranges, Butlin's, Jones's, and Audley's Emmas, Freeman's and Jones's cokers, and E. Clark's roll-up boards.

INFORMATION relating to Shows and Fairs, suitable for this column, should be addressed to THE EDITOR, "The Showman World."

THE FRANK LEONARD FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

ONE of the biggest hauls of pirated music ever made took place on Wednesday last in Banner-street, St. Luke's, when the ubiquitous Mr John Abbott, the secretary of the Musical Copyright Association, with the assistance of other members of that body, captured no fewer than 168,247 copies of illicit music. Some sixty minutes elapsed before they could effect an entry into the premises, during which time the pirates themselves destroyed some 150,000 copies, a total "bag" of nearly 318,000 pieces.

MUSIC AND DANCING LICENCES.

The Theatres Committee of the London County Council met at the Newington Sessions House on the 11th inst., to hear applications for music and dancing and stage plays licences for premises south of the Thames. Mr W. B. Yates, chairman of the committee, presided, and the other members present were Sir Algernon West, Colonel Rotton, Messrs S. Waterlow, Howell Williams, Timothy Davies, B. S. Straus, Joselyn Brandon, and W. J. Greenwood.

Ninety-five of the applications were for renewals, ten for transfers, three for removal of certain existing restrictions, and eight for new licences. The total number of applications was 114, as compared with 232 north of the Thames.

CANTERBURY MUSIC HALL.

Mr George Adney Payne applied for a music and dancing licence for the Canterbury Music Hall. The committee complained of the exits from the balcony and gallery, and that nothing had been done to improve matters, though the first request was made two years ago.

Mr Payne, counsel for the applicant, stated that £4,000 had already been spent in alterations, and his client was perfectly willing to meet the wishes of the County Council.

It was arranged that the applicant's architect should meet the council's architect in conference with a view of settling the details in dispute.

Mr Payne intimated that the further requirements of the Council would involve an expenditure of £500 or £600 and mean the loss of fifty or sixty seats, which was a serious matter.

The chairman advised the applicant to come to an arrangement before the Council met to confirm the licences.

The application was provisionally granted.

BALHAM EMPIRE.

Mr Alfred William Deer asked for a music and dancing licence, and one for stage plays for the Balham Empire, 75 High-road, Balham.

The application was supported by Mr G. Elliott, and opposed on behalf of the Duchess Theatre by Mr Payne.

Mr Payne said there was no objection to the music licence, but the applicant had agreed not to carry on music hall business. If he got this licence he would have no power under the agreement to use it. It was a solemn farce to make this formal application every year.

Mr Elliott contended that the opposition was clearly and purely a personal matter and not one of public interest. It was in no sense on behalf of the neighbourhood or anybody usually heard on these occasions, but due entirely to private interests. If he had to select between the two licences he would prefer to have that for music and dancing.

In reply to Mr Waterlow,

Mr Elliott admitted that the hall had been absolutely closed for the past twelve months.

The chairman, after the committee had retired to consider the case, announced that the committee would recommend the council to grant the music and dancing licence only.

IMPERIAL HALL, DULWICH.

Mr Edward Alfred Wakefield applied for a transfer of the Imperial Hall, Dulwich, and the music and dancing licence attached, to Mr William George Newman. Mr Blaiklock, counsel, asked for the removal of restrictions which prevented occasional variety entertainments and the taking of money at the doors for dances. He had no desire to supply intoxicating liquors or to give regular music hall entertainments, but the restrictions seriously hampered the use of the hall and militated against its commercial success.

The chairman observed that no plans had been submitted for a music hall, and the place was not structurally suitable for such entertainments.

Mr Blaiklock replied that the hall was built in 1900 on the latest principles and in accordance with every requirement of the County Council at a cost of £10,000, but owing to the restrictions on the licence the place did not pay. The population of Dulwich was 97,000, and there was no hall in the district where regular music hall entertainments were given. Under these circumstances the proprietor felt that he should have the power of giving occasional variety turns and comic songs in character. This hall had been built by local men with local capital, and there were ten exits, so the safety of the public was thoroughly secured. The building was absolutely fire-proof.

The town clerk of Camberwell (Mr Tagg) opposed the application in the interests of the locality, and pointed out that it would reverse the terms upon which the licence was originally granted.

The committee intimated that they would recommend the County Council to make no alteration in the terms of the licence, which would be transferred on the same conditions.

CARLTON THEATRE, GREENWICH.

The proprietor of the Carlton Theatre, Greenwich, Mr Arthur Carlton, appealed to the committee to grant him a full licence for stage plays, including the right to supply intoxicating liquors. He explained that when he purchased the property he understood that Mr Morton had a drink licence, but did not use it because he was a teetotaller, otherwise he would not have paid the money he did for it. His house was a black sheep among London theatres, inasmuch as it was the only one where drink was not allowed to be sold. The licence would carry with it the privilege of smoking. At present his only privilege was to open the doors. There had been no complaint whatever against his house, and he asked for the privileges enjoyed by similar places of entertainment.

In reply to the chairman,

Mr Carlton said that Mr Gates was his acting-manager, and Mr Tharpe was the new lessee.

Mr Kershaw, barrister, opposed the application on behalf of the Portland Hotel, next door. He said there was nothing new since the full licence was last refused, and he hoped the committee would decline to remove the present restrictions.

Mr Blaiklock also opposed as representing a number of local gentlemen.

The chairman said the committee would recommend the Council to remove the restrictions on the licence, but Mr Carlton must be prepared for possible opposition when the licence came up for confirmation.

LEWISHAM PALACE OF VARIETIES.

Mr Walter Stephens (represented by Mr Bodkin) applied for a music and dancing licence for a new palace of varieties he proposed to erect at the junction of Limesgrove and Lewisham High-road, Lewisham. Mr Bodkin explained that the cost of the hall would be £25,000, and the performances would be of a very high-class character. The nearest house at present was at New-cross. He did not ask for a liquor licence. There would be two performances nightly, with early doors. He was opposed by Mr Bournes, the president of the Young Men's Christian Association, who held views that were happily not in accordance with the vast majority of Londoners. The application was supported by a petition signed by 3,000 persons. One of the objections raised was that the hall would be at the corner of a cul de sac, but it had been arranged to carry the road through.

Mr Elliott (counsel for objectors)—You cannot do it.

Proceeding, Mr Elliott read what he described as a disgraceful letter which the applicant had sent to Mr Bournes. It showed the temper of the man, and the tone in which he assailed opponents. The letter described the Young Men's Christian Association petition (which had been sent to him) as "a tissue of falsehoods," and as "full of malicious statements." Another of its passages was as follows:—

"I find you and your association tried to procure my site, but, failing to do so, seek now to revenge your spite and ill-feeling on me and my scheme because I have outdone you. Such are the methods clearly of a so-called Christian Association; but to me they are the methods of a Devil's Association, and I loathe and abhor nothing more than such self-constituted bodies as yours, who sit in critical and un-Christian judgment on their fellows, and who turn out prigs into the world, and also hypocrites like yourselves."

The reading of the letter caused much amusement in court. Mr Elliott having called evidence in support of the opposition,

The chairman said the committee would recommend the Council not to grant the application.

METROPOLE, DENMARK-HILL.

On behalf of Mr John De Freece, Mr G. Elliott applied for a licence for music and dancing for the new Metropole, Denmark-hill, intimating that he intended to give up the Lord Chamberlain's licence and that for selling intoxicating liquors. The hall held 2,200 persons, and during the time it had been open it had been patronised by 120,000 people.

Mr Payne, who opposed on behalf of rival houses of entertainment, said that these halls had sprung up all over London with mushroomlike rapidity, and a time for checking their further growth seemed to have arrived in order to secure that existing institutions might be carried on successfully.

The committee decided to recommend the grant of the licence, subject to the restriction that no intoxicating liquors should be sold.

SURREY EMPIRE.

This was the last application for new licences, and was for music and dancing for the Surrey Empire and Palace of Varieties in Blackfriars-road, Southwark. Mr Bodkin, who supported it, said it was exactly similar to the last case.

The chairman said the committee would recommend the granting of a licence, subject to the provision that no intoxicating liquors were sold and that the licence for stage plays should be abandoned.

Mr Bodkin informed the committee that the latter licence had only another month to run.

SADLER'S WELLS THEATRE.

Mr H. A. Freeman applied for the renewal of the licence of the Sadler's Wells Theatre. The application was adjourned from the Clerkenwell sitting of the committee. Mr Freeman stated that the requirements of the Council had been complied with, and the committee will recommend that the licence be renewed.

UNOPPOSED APPLICATIONS.

Among the applications for renewal which were unopposed were the Broadway Theatre, New-cross, the New-cross Empire of Varieties, Camberwell Palace of Varieties, Gatti's Palace of Varieties, Westminster-bridge-road, South London Music Hall, Grand Theatre, Woolwich, and Theatre Royal, Woolwich. The Empress Theatre of Varieties' licence was transferred from E. V. Page to N. Francis, and the Duchess Palace, Wandsworth from W. G. R. Sprague to Walter Gibbons.

CHALLENGING A HYPNOTIST.

At the Ipswich Borough Police-court on Monday, before the Mayor and other magistrates, Stanley Jeffery, commission agent, Cemetery-road, was charged with disturbing the public peace by behaving in a disorderly manner. The evidence showed that the case was the outcome of a visit to the Woodbridge-road Hippodrome on Monday night last, and the giving of a hypnotic performance by Mr Hockinge, "The Man of Mystery."

Police-constable Blomfield deposed that about 11·0 o'clock he saw a crowd outside the Hippodrome entrance. Upon going up he heard the defendant, who was in a very excited state, offering to bet £25 that Hockinge could not hypnotise him. It was a long time before he could persuade the defendant to go away. In cross-examination, witness said there was no one connected with the Hippodrome who wanted to fight with a certain gentleman who was not the defendant. Frederick Bennett and Henry Paxman, attendants at the Lyceum, saw something of the disturbance as they were going home, but the principal witness was Charles Lawrence, an attendant at the Hippodrome. He said that when defendant came out of the house he used abusive language about Mr Hockinge, the gentleman who was "supposed to be a mesmerist and hypnotist." Presently Mr Hockinge came out, and defendant told him to his face that his "mesmeric power" was all a fraud.

Defendant (cross-examining)—Did you want to fight a gentleman who was there?

Witness—I accepted a challenge from one of your friends.

Did you take off your coat?—Yes.

Who put it on for you?—I have not the faintest idea.

You haven't! Were you drunk?—No, I was not.

Did anyone put it on for you?—Yes, it was helped on.

The defendant said that he went to the Hippodrome, and this Professor Hockinge challenged anyone in the audience to come up and be hypnotised. He went up to be hypnotised, and when he got on the stage the operator said quietly to him, "Are you going to assist me?" "What do you mean?" he asked. The professor replied with another question—"Are you going to let me overcome you?" The witness said that if Hockinge could overcome him by will-power he was welcome to try. As a matter of fact, the professor could not hypnotise him. As to the row outside, it was begun by the attendant at the Hippodrome wanting to fight a friend who was with him, and taking off his coat for that purpose. Witness prevented the fight, acting as peacemaker, and helped the attendant on with his coat. Later in the week, by invitation, witness went to the Hippodrome to be hypnotised, but the professor could not do it, and they turned him out.

After a short consultation with his colleagues, the Mayor said that the Bench by a majority found defendant guilty of an act of disorderly conduct. He must be bound over in the sum of 40s. to keep the peace for six months, and pay the costs (19s.)

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following abridged description is specially drawn for The Era by Messrs Hughes and Young, patent agents, 55 and 56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters.

15,748. Roundabouts. Sir H. S. Maxim, Thurlow Lodge, Norwood-road, West Norwood, Surrey. Relates to roundabouts fitted with suspended passenger cars resembling flying machines, each car being fitted with a propeller, which may be driven by an electric or other motor, and with an aeroplane to cause the cars to swing outwards and upwards in addition to the centrifugal action. The structures may be used for public recreation or for experimental purposes in connection with aerial navigation. The central shaft is built up of steel tubular sections, bolted or otherwise secured together. The shaft rotates in a step bearing and in a bearing-block adjusted by screws in the supporting plate, carried by a frame consisting of upright angle irons braced by cross-bars. The cars are of a boat, bird, or fish shape, and are suspended from the arms by four rods, which form a quadrilateral figure with crossed diagonals, thereby preventing any forward or backward swinging movement. The rods connect in pairs to a bar, to which the car is connected by other rods, fitted with clamping-pieces. The suspension arms are attached to a rotary or fixed hub, and are supported by tension rods. The aeroplanes, which are of a rectangular, bird's wing, or other shape, are curved, and are attached to the bars at an inclination. The passengers enter and leave the cars by means of a raised circular platform TILL quite recently lovers of "animal acts" had to go in search of them to the various fair which go on the entire year, but since Bostock's advent, with his enormously popular show, most of the variety theatres and circuses have started presenting similar turns, and now Mr Barrasford has sent us the latest novelty. "If you want to see one of the finest animal acts in the world, go to the Alhambra," Frank Bostock said to the writer the other day. This was a generous meed of praise of a rival show; but there is nothing small about Bostock, and as he had waxed so enthusiastic over Sawade, his advice was promptly followed, and we went down to Mr Thomas Barrasford's theatre.

RICHARD SAWADE gives a magnificent show. He presents six tigers, four lions, four bears, and four dogs. The animals are in excellent condition. They are some of Hagenback's best specimens, and have been admirably trained. They answer to the crack of the whip instantly. Sawade is a young German, modest and unassuming in his manner. His methods are just the opposite of Capt. Bonavita's, who is the idol of the Hippodrome patrons. The former uses the whip incessantly; Bonavita, on the contrary, has taught his twenty-seven lions to obey the simple gesture or low word of command. Though his lions seemed to feel the atmosphere of Paris, which rendered them somewhat dull and drowsy, much to his vexation, Bonavita had no cause to complain when they once more sniffed the breezes of Coney Island. They became unmanageable, and Baltimore, a huge beast, who was always savage and treacherous, nearly took Bonavita's life. He succeeded in maiming him, and the gallant, gentle trainer, after many months in hospital, is now walking about with a terribly mangled right arm, of which he impatiently awaits the cure, to permit him once more to enter the arena. Till the coming of Bonavita Jean Carrère, the Frenchman, held first place in the hearts of the Parisians.

THE French people have never before shown any interest in the training of wild animals; they cared only for the taming. The two classes of entertainment differ absolutely. They were not content to see wild animals simply go through a series of tricks or poses. They wanted to be thrilled and excited. They could not appreciate the danger, difficulty, and patience needed for the training of these savage beasts. "Travail de férocité" is what they loved and yelled for. Danger to the dompteur or tamer was what they had paid their sous to see and what they clamoured for, and this quite suited Carrère, who has no patience to train animals, but who enjoys the danger, the excitement of their performances with him in spite of the terrible risks he runs. He has a unique method. To please a Parisian audience it used to be necessary to tease and irritate the animals to a pitch of uncontrollable fury. When Carrère had lashed them up to a sufficiently high pitch of exasperation he snarled back at them, speaking curious incomprehensible words to them, then flung himself right up to their murderous jaws. He then stood looking scornfully at the raging, howling, infuriated beasts after he had teased them sufficiently, and then contemptuously turned his back on them.

THERE is an excellent programme at the Alhambra apart from this star attraction. The Magic Kettle still boils merrily on blocks of ice, and Anna Thibaud and Bergeret both contribute pleasant vocal items to the programme. Abdullah and La Superbe are hampered in their wonderful performance owing to the police restrictions regarding fire-proof material. But Parisians will shortly see their electrical show with its 2,500 lights. La Superbe dances gracefully. The Manhattan Quartet prove themselves as good comedians as they are vocalists; the Brothers Ward are entertaining, as are the Pickard Troupe in their old-fashioned pantomime knockabout act. The Olracs are very popular, and Simms and Simms, the burnt cork minstrels, discourse sweet music. Maud Caswell opens the evening's entertainment. She is a clever performer in the contortionist, eccentric style of acrobatic dancing, but the number suffers from the absence of her former partner, Arnold, the clever barrel jumper and acrobat. Pauline Zaro dances prettily, as does Alma Mary, a former première danseuse from the London Alhambra.

AT the Hippodrome Bostock has introduced several excellent variety turns, the best being the Aerial Potters, who arrived in the morning from the States and worked at night. They introduce several novelties in their work, some of the flights being extraodinarily dangerous and daring. The Stein-Eretto Family are capital performers, leaping obstacles and mounting and descending heights on their hands. It is unique and clever work, and is rapturously applauded. The Three Rickards are too well known and have been too often favourably criticised to necessitate us saying more than that they are as good as ever in their acrobatic number. Macpherson gives an excellent act with some African lionesses and a lion. They pose very cleverly, and are well under control. Grace Selica's number, with her lionesses, to whom she dances so gracefully, is a most attractive feature of the entertainment. Madame Morelli is enthusiastically welcomed on her rentrée from her visit to America. Francisco Ursus wrestles with a fine bull, and finally overthrows it, and the Cablacs, Mason and Forbes, and the Bros. O'Brien all help to make up a very agreeprogramme.

FRANCIS, DAY & HUNTER,

142, CHARING CROSS ROAD, LONDON.

"THE PRODIGAL SON."

By HALL CAINE. London: William Heinemann.

"The Prodigal Son" is the ninth novel written by Mr Hall Caine, but we believe it is correct to assert that no previous work of his has been received with such a general chorus of praise, and there can be no doubt that it has already become one of the most widely read stories of the day. And the reasons for Mr Caine's success are not far to seek. The construction shows the hand of the skilled and experienced craftsman, and there is no pause in the telling of an intensely dramatic story from the first page to the last. The author has already turned his latest novel into a play, and unquestionably there is abundance of rich material for a powerful drama, full of thrilling incidents, brought about quite naturally by the play of human passions and the weakness of human nature. One may reasonably assume that Mr Caine had the theatre in view when he constructed this simple yet clever and impressive tale of two brothers and the woman whose fate for weal or woe is closely bound up with their own. The story opens in Iceland. Stephen Magnusson, the Governor General, has two sons, Magnus and Oscar, whilst his friend, Oscar Neilson, commonly called Factor Neilsen, is blessed with a couple of daughters, Thora and Helga. The younger, "Helga, was at all points the opposite of her sister. She had black hair, a broad brow, large hazel eyes that were often half closed, a nose that was very slightly turned up at the tip, and a large mouth with thin red lips which were generally a little awry. A witch may be found under a fair complexion, and an angel under a dark skin, but Helga did not belie her looks. She was as bright as a pebble of the brook, and just as hard and self-centred.

"The sons of the Governor were not less unlike each other. Magnus was a big, heavy, black-haired boy, silent and slow, and thought to be rather stupid. He found it hard to learn, and his face had often a puzzled expression, sometimes a gloomy and morose one. On the other hand, his moral character was as sensitive as his intellect was sluggish.

"Oscar was so totally unlike Magnus in every quality of mind and heart that it was difficult to believe they could be brothers. He could learn anything without an effort, and he had an extraordinary ear for music. Before he could speak properly he imitated the notes of any instrument from the organ to the guitar, and before he knew his alphabet he wrote mysterious musical hieroglyphics on scraps of paper, which the Governor carried off to his bureau and hoarded up like treasures more precious than gold. But in giving him something like genius Nature had taken away character—without which genius is a curse. The merry little soul did not seem to know right from wrong, or truth from a lie.'

As the children grow up Oscar is sent to Oxford, and his elder brother is taken by the Factor as an apprentice. Magnus falls in love with Thora, and their marriage, with the ready consent of the parents, is arranged, when Oscar returns from England, having failed to take a degree at Oxford. But he is more successful with the fair sex, and he, in his gay, thoughtless way captures the heart of little Thora, who finds that she has only loved Magnus as a brother. When Magnus makes this discovery he sacrifices his own feelings for the sake of Thora, and by his refusal to agree to the marriage contract causes the match to be broken off. This leaves the way open for Oscar to take his place as the affianced husband of Thora. Helga, who had been away for some years, returns to Iceland, and the volatile Oscar quickly succumbs to her charms; but, nevertheless, he conceals from Thora the fact that his feelings have changed, and in due course they are married. The foolishly innocent young wife insists that her sister shall accompany them on their honeymoon, and this leads to dire disaster. Helga increases her influence over Oscar, and when she loses money at the gaming tables at Monte Carlo he is induced to forge his father's and his father-in-law's names to a bill to pay her gambling debts. The story of the death of poor little Thora and what leads up to it is pathetic in the extreme. She dies, leaving a baby girl, and the remorse of her husband, whose conduct has indirectly been the cause of her early death, is very keen. When the Governor discovers that Oscar has forged his name he meets the claim, but turns his guilty son out of the house. Oscar goes to London, and Helga follows him after a few months, and finds him on the verge of starvation. However, through the influence of an old friend and fellow countryman, he obtains a position as conductor of an orchestra at Covent-garden. Once again the scene changes to Monte Carlo, with Oscar gambling heavily, and the sinister influence of Helga once more paramount. Oscar is rightly accused of cheating at the tables, and in the tumult which ensues he is hustled into the "manager's" private room. The report of a pistol shot quells the infuriated crowd. The "manager" then bundles Oscar off the premises. "I have told them you have shot yourself," he says, "you must get away at once. From this time Oscar is known as Christian Christiansson, and as the years roll on he becomes famous all over Europe as a musical composer. Comparatively rich, he returns to his native land to see his child Elin, now a girl of sixteen, and to make some amends for the past. The farm where his mother and brother live (his father has been dead some years) is to be sold by the sheriff, and he arrives only just in time. He is so greatly changed in appearance that even his own mother fails to recognise him. There is a touching scene between father and daughter, who has been taken charge of by her grandmother and Uncle Magnus. Oscar offers to pay all his brothers's debts on condition that he is allowed to adopt Elin and take her away with him, but the girl refuses. Then Oscar sees her alone.

"His voice faltered when he came to what he had to say next, but he rallied and went on—

"'It was very sweet of you, too, to remain with your uncle and your grandmother, instead of coming to a stranger, for being of your own flesh and blood they have naturally the first claim upon you. But if—if, instead of Christian Christiansson, I had been your own father, would you—would you have come to me then?'

"Elin did not answer him immediately, and he looked steadfastly into her face, feeling that all hope of happiness for the remainder of his life hung on her reply.

"'Would you?'

"The sweet young face looked troubled for a moment, and then slowly—very slowly and sadly—Elin shook her head.

"He felt like a man who had been sentenced to death, but while his face clouded and fell, the girl's rose and became beautifully calm.

"'But if I were to say to you, "My child, my dear, dear child, I may have done nothing for you, but still I am your father, and you are the only one who is left to me now, and I want you to come to me and be my daughter, and we shall never be parted again"—if I were to say that to you, would you still hold to your uncle?'

"The tremulous fervour with which he spoke these imploring words brought tears to the girl's eyes, but her heart stood firm and strong.

"'Yes,' she said, 'I couldn't help it, because Uncle Magnus has been my real father after all.'

"It was all over. His last hold of the girl was lost. Again he felt as if the world had gone away from him, as if the dark column of hope which had shown its bright face for a moment had turned again, and now all was hopeless darkness."

For the finish of the story we must refer our readers to the book itself, in which all those qualities which have made the author one of the most popular novelists of the day are, perhaps, more conspicuous than in any previous work from the same clever pen.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"NAPOLEON,"
National Epopée, in Three Parts, Six Acts, and Forty Tableaux, by M. Leopold Martin-Laya, Produced at the Porte-St.-Martin, Nov. 10.

Napoleon	M. DUQUESNE
Fouché, Bertrand	M. MAXENCE
Lucien Bonaparte, Las Cases, Gourgaud	M. LIABEL
Duroc, Cambronne	M. VOLNEY-CHARLET
Hudson Low	M. LE BRUN
Josephine	M. BARBIER
Laetitia	Mdlle MALVAN
Marie-Louise	Mdlle. FLORA MIGNOT
Caroline	Mdlle. DEPENTIER

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, NOV. 17. — Two premières and one revival in one evening are a large order; but the ways of our Paris theatrical managers are always dark and mysterious. What induced the Porte-St.-Martin management to exhume Napoleon and trot him out in a piece of forty tableaux? It was whispered that this performance was a "political move" in view of a Bonapartist propoganda. If so it was but a poor excuse. The present generation is not more interested in the late Emperor than in any other historical figure, and the forty tableaux—each of which lasts but about four minutes—failed to rouse the enthusiasm of the house. Curiously enough the battle scenes—like the Beresina with the soldiers dying in the snow—fell rather flat, whilst the Emperor's "home life" appeared to interest the spectators. Napoleon's divorce, his conversations with his wife, and, above all, his hysterical dispute with Queen Caroline, found much favour. The work appeared like an old picture-book. M. Duquesne, of course, was excellent as Napoleon. I say "of course" because he created that rôle in Madame Sans-Gêne, and has made a speciality of impersonating the "Corsican Ogre." MM. Maxence, Liabel, and Volney worked with a will; Mdlle. Barbier was very touching as the luckless Josephine; Mdlle. Malvan gave us a delightful Laetitia; and Mdlle. Depentier's outbursts of temper when she upbraids her Imperial brother imparted a little life to a rather tame performance.

"TIRE AU FLANC,"
Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts, by MM. A. Sylvane and Mouëzy-Eon, Produced at the Theatre Déjazet, Nov. 10.

Colonel Brochard	M. CHARLIER
Dubois d'Ombelles	M. PHILIPPON
Turlot	M. MORINS
Bourrache	M. HASTI
Daumel	M. MAX ANDRE
Mufflot	M. BENEDICT
Mouillard	M. VILDOR
Georgette	Mdlle. LUCE COLAS
Solange	Mdlle. SORIS
Madame d'Ombelles	Mdlle. BERTY
Madame Fléchois	Madame HOREL

No plot whatsoever, but a long chain of more or less funny incidents. The comic element in the piece is supplied by two recruits, one a "society poet" and the other a valet. The latter's sweetheart, a cook, Mdlle. Georgette, is so upset at the idea of seeing her "bon ami" leave for the regiment that she follows him and gets engaged at the regimental canteen. The valet becomes in time a good soldier, whilst the poet abhors barrack life and uses every possible trick to be exempted from drill and other duties. Of course, he gets into constant trouble, and so does his brother-in-arms, which does not prevent one from marrying his rich cousin and the other from becoming the husband of his beloved cook, Georgette. A good all-round company did full justice to this unpretentious trifle.

"LA CIGALE ET LA FOURMI,"
Operette, in Three Acts and Ten Tableaux, by M.M. Duru and Chivot; Music by E. Audran; Revived at the Gaité, Nov. 10.

Guillaume	M. LARBAUDIER
Frantz	M. DALCOURT
Mathias	M. REYNARD
Le Duc	M. MUFFAT
Thérèse	Madame SIMON GIRARD
Charlotte	Mdlle. JEANNE LECLERC
Leonora	Mdlle. DE ROSKILDE
La Frivolini	Mdlle. HEGRE
Vincent	M. SOUMS

The Gaité management made a similar mistake as their neighbours of the Porte-Saint-Martin. Why did they unearth this operette, the libretto of which is neither witty nor original? Thérèse, the heroine, leaves her village to sell flowers in the town. There she learns singing, and is engaged at the Opéra. Her voice brings her in untold gold, which slips through her fingers, after which, broken-hearted and ruined, she returns to her native village. In the end, however, she marries the rich young nobleman who never ceased to love her. The music is in keeping with the story. But what made the work famous when it was first produced, and caused it to have a long run, was that Madame Jeanne Granier sang the rôle of Thérèse. At that time nobody thought of the silly plot, nor of the rather colourless music. People went to hear Madame Granier, who gave us a Thérèse such as the authors and the composer never dreamt of. This time it was Madame Simon-Girard who interpreted that rôle, and she could not deal with it in the same way as her talented predecessor. On the other hand, we had Mdlle. Jeanne Leclerc, a delightful Charlotte. M. Soums sang with much taste, and M. Dalcourt had a good opportunity for displaying his fine voice and excellent style. The work was fairly well mounted.

"NOTRE JEUNESSE."
Comedy, in Four Acts, by Alfred Capus, Produced at the Théâtre Français, Nov. 16.

Chartier	M. COQUELIN cadet
Lucien Briant	M. DE FERAUDY
Briant père	M. LELOIR
Sepquy	M. G. BERR
De Clénord	M. R. DUFLOS
Liverdon	M. DELAUNAY
Davenan	M. GARRY
A Manservant	M. LATY
Hélène Briant	Madame BARTET
Laure De Roice	Madame PIERSON
Aline De Bernac	Madame SOREL
Lucienne	Madame PIERAT
A Maidservant	Madame FAYLIS

The plot of Notre Jeunesse can be told in a few words. Lucien Briant, a rich manufacturer in Besançon, has accepted an invitation with his young wife Hélène, and his father, to spend a month at Trouville with his old friend Chartier, a bachelor, and Madame De Roine Chartier's widowed sister. During their visit Lucienne, a young girl, comes to ask Chartier's assistance. Her mother, recently dead, always spoke of this friend of the girl's father as a good fellow, and Lucienne has come for advice. She tells him her story, and Chartier learns that she is the illegitimate daughter of Lucien Briant. Briant left the Quartier Latin and the pretty stationer many years ago; he gave her all the money he could spare at the time for her and her child, and went back to the provinces and married. He has never seen the child, and has no wish to, even when Chartier tells him she is in the neighbourhood. He consults his father, who rules his household, and together they arrange that a suitable allowance shall be made the young person if she will return to her native village. Lucienne is a charming girl, seventeen and sensitive. She refuses assistance so ungraciously offered and decides to accept a berth in South America. Hélène Briant, Lucien's wife, pleads for the girl, and eventually in a pathetic scene Briant acknowledges his daughter, and she finds a home with him and Hélène. The dialogue, brilliantly epigrammatic, plays round the old and new ways of accepting what are called irregular situations, showing the world more charitable, more habitable in its new acceptations. M. Leloir made a capital study of old Briant, the hard-headed tyrant, prejudiced against innovations of any kind. His make-up was perfect, with the touch of the plebeian necessary as the father of Féraudy-Briant, jun. Madame Bartet was sympathetic and charming as ever as Hélène; MM. Coquelin cadet and Duflos, and Mesdames Pierson and Sorel all that could be desired in their respective parts. But the acting of M. De Féraudy and Mdlle. Piérat, in the scene between father and daughter, brought down the house. A touch of the hand on the girl's hair, a change of expression in the girl's face—a scene that lasted a moment, yet so admirably played that it shook the most hardened, and all the women cried. Artists, great artists, both M. De Féraudy and Madame Piérat.

DANCE ON DEPRESSION.

Mr George Dance, the well-known and successful organiser of touring companies, has explained the alleged "theatrical depression" in the provinces.

"The cause," says Mr Dance, "is that resident managers have economised their resources, instead of attempting to put forward better attractions than those given at the local music halls. There are numbers of towns which my companies do not visit because the managers of the theatres will not pay a percentage sufficient even to clear my expenses. This means that the residents in those towns have no opportunity of seeing good modern pieces; they have to be satisfied with old dramas and played-out musical comedies, presented by inadequate and inexperienced companies, who are satisfied with the small percentage offered them.

"In a first-class town in the country, the manager of a good travelling company asks for 65 to 70 per cent. of the takings, the balance going to the resident manager. The travelling manager brings with him the entire company, dresses, scenery, and generally the band, and he pays the fees to the author and composer of the piece he is touring. In addition, he pays for the advertisements on the hoardings, and also provides them. What does the resident manager do for the balance? For the thirty or thirty-five per cent. of the takings he finds the theatre and provides the staff. He benefits by the sale of programmes and refreshments, and improves his property, if he is enterprising, at little or no risk to himself.

"The public might say that it would pay the resident manager to accept the fourth or fifth-rate company at a forty to forty-five per centage. But this company would attract only from £100 to £150 to the house if it were phenomenally successful, whereas the first-class manager would bring to the house from £500 to £1,000 with his first-class attraction."

AT Greenwich police-court on Wednesday, Chas. Howitt, an actor, of Brockley-road, Brockley, was summoned by the London County Council for failing to send his daughter Gladys, aged eleven, regularly to school. Mr Harper, school attendance officer, said the child had attended thirty-eight times out of sixty-three. The child said she formerly went to school at Clapham. For about three weeks she attended at His Majesty's Theatre on most days, and was not attending school then. She had been taking part in the play at His Majesty's since its production, and reached home about a quarter to twelve every night. She did not go home alone. Mr Purner (superintendent of visitors)—And when you go to school in the morning you are tired? I am tired on some days, but not very. And you are not able to do your work?—Sometimes. Mr Purner—It is shameful that this girl should be kept up late at night and have to go to school in the morning. I do not think Mrs Howitt is to blame. I wish her husband was here. Mrs Howitt said she had no idea, when the child went to the theatre, that she would have to go to school. She was going to a boarding-school as soon as the engagement was over at Mr Tree's theatre. It was stated that the child had made a full attendance at school since the issue of the summons, and Mr Baggallay fined the defendant 5s. and 4s. cost.

AT the Theatre Royal, Worcester, the popular musical comedy San Toy has been this week efficiently played by Mr George Edwardes's company. Miss Don Harradine in the title-rôle and Mr Edmund Sherras as Captain Bobby Preston have been most successful, their songs and duets being rendered in a manner which won the highest encomiums. The humorous parts of Li (Mr Alfred Beers) and Yen How (Mr Altred W. Clarke) were cleverly impersonated. Poppy Preston and Lieutenant Harvey Tucker had two good representatives in Miss Mabel Labelle and Mr Walter P. Wright. Miss Florence Arnold sang well as Missee Tootley, and Mr G. J. Williams was amusing as Sir Bingo Preston. Fo Hop (Mr Clinton Reynold) was very comical, and the dancing of Miss Beatrice Gradella was exceedingly graceful.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy on Wednesday before Mr Walter Boyle, assistant official receiver, was held the first meeting of creditors under the failure of Henry Slocombe, who was described as of an address in Osborne-road, Forest-gate. The debtor up to September last acted as a director of the Colchester Theatre Company (Limited). He attributes his present position to his unwise speculation in that company, in which he was a considerable shareholder, and which proved unsuccessful, and to other causes. His statement of affairs showed liabilities £947, of which £235 were unsecured, and no assets. The matter remains in the hands of the official receiver.

THE many Birmingham friends of Mrs Stockham, the well-known harpist and leader of the Ladies' Grecian Band of Harps, recently arranged a benefit concert to recoup her in a measure for the loss she sustained by the fire which occurred at South Parade Pier, Southsea, in July last, by which she lost some valuable harps, costumes, and music, worth in the aggregate £370. The concert took place in the Birmingham Town Hall last Tuesday night, in the presence of a crowded audience. The artistes, all of whom volunteered their services, were Miss Louie Collier, Miss May Heath, Miss Evelyn Ball, Mr Herbert Bates, Mr Sidney Stoddard, the Birmingham Male Voice Choir, the Ladies' Grecian Band of Harps, and Mr C. Robins Pierce, society entertainer.

THE natal anniversary of King Edward VII. occurring last week during the presentation at the Theatre Royal, Windsor, of The New Commander, Miss Grace Warner dispatched a message of congratulation to His Majesty on Nov. 9. In due course the King's Secretary sent a telegraphic acknowledgment, which Miss Warner displayed in the Theatre Royal and in the town.

A VERY interesting little book of 114 pages is that entitled "Thumb-nail Plots." It is a collection of synopses of operas, operettas, cantatas, sketches, plays, and musical plays. In connection with the various musical plays, whose plots it describes, useful help to stage-managers is given in the form of a bar of music, showing the compass required in the voices for the various songs, and the highest and the lowest note of the range of each voice. This helpful little book can be had for the asking; and we think Joseph Williams, Limited, of 32, Great Portland-street, W., will have enough to do next week to supply the demand.

PRINCESS HENRY OF BATTENBERG and suite were present at the performance of La Tosca at the Royal Opera, Covent-garden, last Monday night.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In the Theatrical Gossip of your last issue, you mentioned Mr Wilfred Fraser as playing in The Monkey's Paw for Mrs Phelps's benefit, to be given at His Majesty's Theatre on Nov. 25. It should have been yours faithfully, WILFRED FORSTER. Green Room Club, Nov. 14.

IN the new and very modern comedy at the Criterion Theatre, The Freedom of Suzanne, we are introduced to some really handsome scenes. The opening set—Mrs Trevor's drawing-room in Curzon-street—and the final one—Charles Trevor's flat in Jermyn-street—are both very luxurious. Antique French furniture in rich gilt frames and soft tapestry upholstering figure largely in the first, while in the last not only do we see some lovely old French "pieces," but also some in "Empire" style in excellent preservation, and of historical interest as having been in former days the property of the Emperor Napoleon III. The mounting of the play is, indeed, bright and sumptuous throughout, and much credit is due to Messrs Oetzmann and Co., 62-79, Hampstead-road, W., whose long experience in the art of stage furnishing makes it possible for them to supply precisely the things that are wanted.

"A DAY IN PADDY'S MARKET; or, Life in Liverpool," a piece in three acts, by Max Fax, was produced for copyright purposes on Monday, at the Queen's Theatre, Fleetwood.

A VARIED and interesting programme was presented at the Grand Theatre, Islington, on the afternoon of Thursday, Nov. 17, for the benefit of the North Sea outrage cause. Several well-known artists kindly gave their services upon this occasion, the result being in every way satisfactory. Among the performers were George Mozart, Harry Pleon, Russell Wallett, Tom Craven, Godfrey and Duncan, Daisy James, Lottie Lennox, Mr Joynsen Powell, in a well-delivered recitation, "Parrhasius;" and Mr Ernest Leicester, Miss Helen Bancroft, and Miss Kate Brand, in an interesting scene from "Bleak House." The entertainment concluded with an address written by Mr Geoffrey Thorn, entitled "Fro' the Northern Sea," and powerfully delivered by Mr Ernest Leicester. The stage was under the able management of Mr Charles Browning.

ST. JAMES'S HALL AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, King's Lynn, were completely destroyed by fire on Saturday morning last. The first floor of one portion of the building contained a carpenter's shop and rooms, in which a large quantity of bazaar scenery was stored. The fire broke out in the carpenter's shop, and spread very rapidly. The hall and rooms were occupied for the purposes of a ball until late on Saturday afternoon, when flames were noticed, and within an hour the whole building was in ruins. The damage done is estimated at several thousand pounds.

AT the 139th Open Night Recital of Mr and Mrs S. Hasluck's students, held at the Polytechnic, Regent-street, on the evening of the 11th inst., an enthusiastic audience gave the twelve aspirants for dramatic honours well merited encouragement for their really excellent performances. Those who won premier honours were Miss Rita Gallally and Mr W. Bloye Higgs for their admirable little comedietta, A Happy Pair. Miss Imogen Surrey, for her scene from Adam Bede; Miss Lillian Church, Fauntleroy; Mr Arthur Foxon, The Verdict; Miss Bessie Wenmoth, The Little Girl of Campania; Mr A. F. Bangert, Retrospection; Miss Maud Drew, My Old Piano; and Miss Ethel Chandler for Jerome's Jack and Jill. Highly creditable were Miss Hilda Flanagan's The Idyll of Battle Hollow, Mr H. Waterman's The Bashful Man, and Mr A. C. Kickatson's Speech of Brutus.

PRESENTATION.—Mr F. Edgar Manaton, the acting-manager of the Tunbridge Wells Opera House, has been the recipient this week of a presentation from the Mayor and Mayoress of the borough, in remembrance of their official visits to the theatre. The gift consists of a solid silver cigarette-case, inscribed:—"Mr F. E. Manaton, from the Mayor and Mayoress of Tunbridge Wells, 1904."

PRESENTATION.—At the conclusion of the performance on Saturday evening last, Mr J. Danson, proprietor of the Driven from Home company, late manager of the Theatre Royal, Wednesbury, was the recipient of a handsome gold ring from the staff of the theatre, in recognition of the many valuable services rendered by him whilst manager of the above theatre. Mr Dawson, who was received with every enthusiasm, said it was a happy day for him to be able to be with them once more on such an occasion, and thanked them heartily for the beautiful memento they had so kindly presented him with.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr W. Marlow; Manager, Mr W. Marlow, jun.—This week's attraction is one of Mr Walter Melville's plays entitled The Female Swindler, which is successfully presented by Mr Tom H. Taylor's company. The play is prettily mounted, and from start to finish gains well-merited appreciation. Mr Jerrold Heather plays the rôle of Jack Coulson in a clever manner, his criminal investigations making him the favourite actor; Abraham Mikestein is well impersonated by Mr Rule Pyott; Mr Luke Forster is remarkable for his vivacity as an ambitious young man; Miss Evelyn Marrable makes a good servant as Mary Ann Mee; May Andrews is represented in admirable style by Miss Florrie Kelsey; Geoffrey, alias Captain Stanton, is capitally portrayed by Mr Weldon Atherstone; Mr A. Kenyon Grey gives good effect to the character of James Oliver; Mr George Unwin is well suited as Harold Travers; and Miss Violet Ellicott deserves every praise for her effective impersonation of Lu Valroy, the female swindler.

SOUTHPORT.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Opera House and Winter Gardens Company (Limited); General Manager, Mr Alfred Hemming.—The latest of W. S. Gilbert's plays, A Fairy's Dilemma, has greatly amused large audiences here. The cast is a strong one, and the various members lend admirable support. Of the Mortals Mr Frank Collins is praiseworthy as the Judge, and Mr Assheton Tonge as the Colonel and Mr Frank Stanmore as the clergyman are well placed. Miss Elise Cooke is charming as the Fairy, and Mr Herbert Hewetson clever as the Demon Alcohol. The Conversion of Nat Sturge is an interesting curtain-raiser.

SPENNYMOOR.

CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Harding Thomas; Resident Manager, Mr Herbert Vere.—The late Mr F. A. Scudamore's drama First-class is being played here this week by Messrs Imbert and Wright's company. As Lewis Montford, alias First-class, Mr G. M. Newall has a congenial task; Mr Fred C. Imbert submits a clever impersonation of Dan, the miser; sweetly pathetic and appropriately sustained is the Peggy of Miss Ellen Armor; Mr Leonard Clarke gives a manly tone to his interpretation of Jack Stroud; as Nosey Mr Sam Roberts is very droll; Mr Francis Trevor makes the most of Philip Roscoe; and Miss Lizzie Ingles does justice to the rôle of Florence Franklin. Miss Emily Handley as Mrs Stroud, Miss Isabel Innes as Mildred, and Mr Gerald Nolan adequately perform the tasks allotted to them.

STALYBRIDGE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr H. Leighton Rooke.—We have here this week the drama A Modern Adventuress, by Mr Lingford Carson. The piece is beautifully staged and capably acted by Messrs Carson and Granville's company. The title-rôle is played by Miss Beatrice M. Anderson with much power, and Mr Leonard Aardale in his original part, Pietro Donelli, leaves nothing to be desired. Mr Evan Roland is a bluff and hearty Yorkshireman; Miss Alice Defoe a charming Vivette; and Miss Mimi Fisher a most capable comedienne. Messrs Charles Stirling and W. R. Winning as the hero and villain give good renderings of important rôles.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the St. Helens Theatre, Limited; General Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—The Midnight Mail is being enacted here this week in a very creditable manner by Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company. Harry Steyne finds a capital exponent in Mr George Harvard, who plays with much skill and force. Mr Fred Evison leaves little to be desired as Billy Brewer; Mr Arthur Gilroy represents Hassan Padisha in an effective style; Leonard Royle and Donald Craig find competent representatives in Messrs Alec Alves and Chas. M'Cann; Miss Ada Oakley wins golden opinions by her charming portrayal of Mary Steyne; and Miss Mildred Carr and Miss Milly Stevenson are seen to advantage as Nancy and Lady Phyllis respectively.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs T. Barrasford, Will Sley, and F. Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr A. V. Carnell.—The star turn here this week is De Biere, who mystifies all with his clever sleight-of-hand and conjuring tricks; the O'Malleys are an amusing Hibernian pair; Tom Heyes scores well as a juvenile comedian; the Jackson Family are good musicians, and are held in high favour; Omar and Calderon give a smart acrobatic comedy act; Haydee's mannikins are well received; as are Harry Gold, vocal comedian, and the Nick Nacks, vocalists and dancers.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—Mr C. Watson Mill and company in the sensational drama A Wrecker of Men is the attraction for the week. Mr Mill, author of the play, takes the part of Jim Murley, and does capitally; Mr Sidney Flennes's Railton is capitally done; and Mr Chas. Yorke's Pharosaphus is very acceptable. Mr Alfred Maurice as Guise Strange is full of vigour, and Mr Gilson Brooke's two rôles, Karnaphus and Ezekiel Isaacs, are both successfully undertaken. The comic slavey's part, Vavasole Slopper, as played by Miss Kitty Melville causes much fun; Miss Victoria May's Doris Melville is acted with refinement; and Miss Rosalind Tate's Risca Mallison is a powerful personation.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—The Francois Troupe of clever acrobats top the bill here. We also have Rose Tilley, serio and dancer; Blarney and Kennard, a couple of smart patterers and vocalists; Wal Croft, in funny songs with a Scotch flavour; Maude Clifton, a refined vocalist; and Aga, with a wonderfully clever illusion, "The Suspended Maiden," one of the best seen here. Mdlle. Luba De Sarema, with her trained bull, ponies, and dogs, gives a good show; and Payne's Bio winds up with the North Sea Outrage and other films.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons; Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Boyce; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Bellian.—Mr Norman V. Norman and his répertoire company opened a revisit here on Monday, with Under the Red Robe. Mr Norman himself in the rôle of Gil De Berault gave an excellent impersonation. Miss Beatrice Wilson was a charming Renée, Mr Robert Hilton a good Cardinal, Miss Kathleen Rind played exceedingly well as Madame De Cochefôret, and Miss F. Glossop Harris was a capital Suzette. Nell Gwyn was down for Tuesday and Friday, and David Garrick for Wednesday.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—The attraction at this house during the week has been provided by Mr Fred Bulmer's company with Mr Frank Bateman's stirring drama, Sentenced for Life.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—The programme at this house for the week includes Lil Hawthorne, the popular American comedienne, who was loudly applauded for her capital songs; Harry Anderson, the popular vocal comedian; Sydney James's Strolling Players, in a capital turn; Kay Wallace, an excellent mimic; Sisters Geretti, a pair of wonderfully smart trapezists; the Bros. Edgar, clever comedians; Paul Mill, a capital character comedian; Winnie Derson, a charming comedienne; and Alexandre and Hughes, popular comedians and musicians.

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—The Lights o' London has been presented here this week by Mr Herbert Hollister's company with marked success. Mr Cecil G. Calvert acts ably as Horold Armytage, and Mr Albert Brasque makes a capital Clifford Armytage. As Seth Preene Mr Herbert Hollister is exceedingly good, Mr Ernest R. Nelson as Philosopher Jack is very amusing, and Mr Percy Compton as Jarvis, Miss Emilie Dawson as Mrs Jarvis, and Miss Gladys Murray as Shakespeare Jarvis fill their respective parts excellently. Miss Jeannie Burgoyne acts with ability as Bess.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—General Manager, Signor Pepi.—This establishment reopened on Monday with a variety entertainment, headed by the New York Nippers in their clever speciality Bedtime. Fields and Lewis, in their comedy act, were pleasingly greeted; whilst Barney Vox was highly successful in his ventriloquial entertainment. Onda and Leon gave a marvellous performance on the triple bars; and Lily Currie was applauded for her vocalism, other capital items being the performance of the Two Neros, contortionists; Nellie Martell, comedienne and dancer; and Vernon's Bioscope.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr P. Collins; Manager, Mr Frank Egerton.—Mr Egerton this week heads the bill with Brino, in his marvellous exhibition of strength and balancing; the Brothers Artois, on the horizontal bars, are really marvellous performers; Lydia and Albino provide a pretty and artistic turn, the lady executing some clever feats upon a horizontal bar; the Five Bon-Bons, in their pantomimic turn, are funny; Harry Albery is a smart comedian and dancer; Madge Roberts is a singer who pleases everybody; Roxborough and Wright are a smart and funny pair; and the Bioscope shows the trawlers which were fired on by the Russians.

SUNDERLAND.

AVENUE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; General Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Mr E. Lockwood's company, in La Poupée, is paying a farewell visit here this week. Mr T. A. Shale's representation of the part of Lancelot is particularly good. The part of Hilarius is in the hands of Mr Arthur Reynolds, and the whole of the time he is on the stage he keeps the house in roars of laughter. Mr Eliot Skinner as Father Maxime submits a capital portrayal. Miss Midge Clark gives a delightful and vivacious rendering of Alesia, and Miss Florence Shaw as Henri and Miss Lillie Leigh as Madame Hilarius are good.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Messrs Charles Draycott and H. B. Peppin's company presented the drama entitled The Best Must Win on Monday. Mr C. Draycott as the Marquis De Marcel, Mr Robert Watson as Paul Dumaresq, Miss Lillian Watson Lloyd as Denise, Mr Harry Harrop as Jacques Courcel, and Miss Dorothy Elliston as Suzette, aro all good in their respective parts.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr George V. Wybrow; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alfred Browne.—Jack Morris's blind collier lad has proved a very popular turn. Horace White is extremely clever in a refined ventriloquial and musical act. Charles Vincent, comedian, sings two songs with much success. Vincent Walker, Negro comedian, is well received. The Vivians in a musical travesty contribute a pretty and clever item, and the Laure Brothers are smart acrobats. The principal attraction is Looping the Loop, by Miss Madeline, which was successfully performed on Monday night. Tuesday night's performance was brought to an abrupt conclusion, Miss Madeline meeting with a shocking accident, particulars of which will be found in another column.

SWINDON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr Alfred Manners.—After an absence of nearly eleven months, Mr Arthur Hart's company with My Lady Molly is here again. This bright and tuneful comedy-opera is under the direction of Mr David M. Miller. An important feature is the excellence of the chorus and augmented orchestra, under the bâton of Mr Carlton Mason. In the title-rôle Miss Mabel Lait acts winsomely, and the songs allotted to the part are charmingly rendered. Miss Maude Thorne's delightful impersonation of Alice Coverdale is full of charm and vivacity, and her cultured vocalism wins the heartiest applause. Miss Sybil Thorne is a pleasing exponent of Hester, and Miss Lottie Sargent as Mdlle. Mirabeau proves herself an artiste of no mean ability. Mr George Grundy is the possessor of a full rich voice, which he uses with telling effect in the part of Captain Harry Romney, while his acting leaves nothing to be desired. The part of Lionel Bland is successfully entrusted to Mr Frank Stather, and Mr Frederick Hobbs must be highly commended for the distinction he gives to the rôle of Sir Miles Coverdale. Mr Arthur Powell again appears as Micky O'Dowd, and his performance is still remarkably rich in humour.

TORQUAY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director and Lessee, Mr R. Smerdon; Secretary, Mr A. Pearce.—Mr William Greet's The Lady Slavey company is here this week. In the name part Miss Addie Lennard was active and acceptable, Miss Millicent Marsden, with her commanding presence, being a capital foil. Mr Allan Morris did well as the American Millionaire; Mr Frank Sherlock was very funny as the Sheriff's Officer; and Mr Walter T. Hybert specially good as Lord Lavender. Mr Harry Walsh was typically Irish as the Major, and the Misses Van Dalle and Ashton danced to an appreciative house.

WALTHAMSTOW.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—One of the principal attractions here this week is Mr Fred Karno's troupe of "speechless comedians," in the laughter-provoking pantomime burlesque, Early Birds. This amusing sketch has been seen on these boards before, but its boisterous fun is as gladly received as if it were played for the first time. Another amusing contribution to the evening's entertainment is found in Mr John Alexander and company in their sketch Troubles of a Tourist, in which Mr Alexander is very humorous in his delineation of Johnny Brown, an English tourist staying at the Grand Hotel, Paris. The chief is admirably supported by Mr Rob Ralston, Mr Woodville, Mdlle. Clarette, and Miss Greasley. The Sisters Darrell are pleasing duettists and dancers. The Neevillacs make a decided hit. Miss Cora Caselli is as dramatic as ever in her fine impersonation of a Spanish woman, while her dancing might be described as the poetry of motion. One of the prettiest turns of the evening is the Imperial Quartet, whose vocal and saltatory achievements are highly appreciated. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope shows some interesting and beautiful pictures.

KING'S THEATRE.—An acceptable performance of the stirring military drama In the Ranks occupies the boards at this house for the week, and receives ample justice from the clever company engaged. Miss Sara Mignon presents, as Ruth Herrick, one of those graceful impersonations in which she excels and is admired. There is much beautiful pathos in Miss Mignon's acting, relieved every now and again with outbursts of genuine passion when the scene demands its display. Mr Edward Charles is a soldierly looking Ned Drayton, and acts with convincing power. Mr Lillford Delph is good as the rascally Gideon Blake. Mr James Chippendale makes the most of his comic opportunities as Joe Buzzard. All the other parts in the long cast are adequately filled, while the scenery and general mounting of the play are irreproachable.

WAKEFIELD.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—During this week the stage here has been occupied by the musical comedy, The Lady's Maid, played by Mr Gore Ouseley's company. "The Maid" is impersonated by Miss Isa Bowman, who invests the rôle with spirit and brightness and contributes some smart dances. Mr Harry Fischer is amusing as Josiah Biffin; Mr Chal. T. Chaloner displays high talents as a comedian, his Samuel Spriggs being highly diverting; Mr Dennis Drew sings in excellent style as Lieutenant Marchmont; Mr Harold Eden is admirably suited as the Hon. August Puphpayst; Mr Joseph Wilson acts well as Pietro Conti; Miss Pauline Hague is a delightful Allson Grey; and Miss Noel Neville ably sustains the part of Zaza Marmosette.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wakefield Hippodrome, Limited; Manager, Mr D. G. Mooney.—The Villions head the programme this week, and their clever entertainment wins unstinted applause; Bennett and Martell, comedians, cause roars of laughter; M. Stewart, tramp pianist, contribute a smart turn; the Mezzettis give a good turn on the three bars; Billy Farrell, black comedian, scores a success; Miss Flo Neville, ballad vocalist, sings well; Keir and Allen, comedians, are amusing; Walter Adams, comedian, is favourably received; and Mdlle. Florence, globe-trotter, wins hearty appreciation with her clever feats.

WALSALL.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—This week Miss Olga Nethersole's company is here in Sapho. Miss Cecil Cromwell scores in the title-rôle; Mr Arthur Royston as Jean, the lover, plays with dramatic force; Uncle Césaire is in the capable hands of Mr Harry Dodd; while Mr Frank Melrose as Caoudal and Mr George Norman Burt as Déchélette are effective. Miss Florrie Rutter's Joseph and the other characters are well represented.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Messrs Marston and Buckstone's company, in The Silver Cross, is here this week. The rôle of Ben Adams is characteristically portrayed by Mr Frederick A. Marston; Mr Cliff Allen and Mr Harry Glenney do remarkably well as Arthur Merton and Philip Frewin; Ida Adams is ably delineated by Miss Maud Western; Mdlle. Pardoe contributes some excellent dances; and Mr Wilfred Hargreaves is a capital male soprano vocalist.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Mr Charles Frohman's company, under the direction of Mr C. E. Hamilton, in Sherlock Holmes is the attraction here this week. Mr Kenneth Rivington is entrusted with the character of the detective, and he fills it excellently. As Professor Moriarty Mr Ernest Gray scores a big success, entering into the spirit of the "emperor of crime" with praiseworthy faithfulness. Mr Fred Inwood enacts Dr. Watson with much commendation; Mr Charles E. Scutt as John Forman and Mr Charles Chaplin as Billy both do remarkably well. Mr Ernest Gray as James Larrabee, Mr Harry Stafford as Sydney Prince, and Mr Harry Mann as Alfred Bassic are all that can be desired. Miss Florence Radcliffe is admirable in the part of Alice Faulkner, and Miss Carry Lacey is well suited to the part of Madge Larrabee, and their acting is in every way excellent. Miss Marjorie Murray as Thérèse. Miss Ethel Gordon as Mrs Faulkner, and Mr J. F. Ansen as Parsons deserve mention.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr F. Willmot.—Tom and Marie Motramo are here again, and in their musical act prove as great favourites as ever. Flo Deighton, ballad vocalist, is an acceptable turn; and Jack Hilton is an accomplished comedian. Moretta and Alice, gymnasts; Lue Lord, comedienne; Beaty and Blanchi, duettists; Dwight and Son, mimics and clog dancers, are all well received, and the pictures shown on the Royal Bioscope by Mr Wiesker delight crowded audiences.

WEDNESBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr W. J. Cranston.—Mr Fred L. Connyhame's No. 1 company is here in the powerful domestic drama A Mother's Love. Mr Arthur Rose as Paul Wingate and Mr Shenton as Mr Fred Geoffrey Mannering evoke loud applause. Matt Ruddock is efficiently embodied by Mr Fred Connyngham; Mr Willie Barrett as Joe Jackson and Mr E. Vicars Rees as Martin Yeast do excellent work; Miss Laurie A. Pardy portrays the part of Eilaine Mervin in excellent style; Miss Violet Macaree submits a fine study as Winnie Wingate; Miss Bertha Hanbury scores in the role of Marjorie Wingate; and Miss Lallah Davis is very good as Mary Smart.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

GRAND.—General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident Manager, Mr Fred Conneaux.—Mr Edmund Tearle, who is at all times a welcome visitor here, is once more appearing with his company. In Virginius, which was played on Monday, Mr Tearle is seen to advantage in the title-rôle, and Miss Esther Tearle plays with touching pathos the rôle of Virginia. Mr Edmund Grogan as Icilius handles the part with naturalness. Mr Wm. J. Miller is a satisfactory Appius Claudius. The répertoire for the week includes Julius Cæsar, Merry Wives of Windsor, Jeanie Deans, and Under the Red Robe.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—At the head of the company here are the Sisters Merkell, four smart young ladies, who go through some astounding acrobatic feats. The sketch, A Little Piece of String, is well played by the Harris L. Bell and Lilly Pearl company. The Leslie Brothers are responsible for considerable merriment in their funny musical potpourri; Daisy Davidson, soprano, charms all by her rendering of favourite selections; Onda and Artell are gymnastic artistes of considerable ability, and the turns by Ida Ross, Tyrolean vocalist; Star and Jerome, coon vocalists; and Lily Flexmore, legmania danseuse, are all successful.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

KNIGHTSTONE PAAILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Payne.—Messrs W. T. Elworthy and J. Buckley's company is appearing here this week in Liberty Hall and A Pair of Spectacles. In the former play Mr Leonard Pagden gave a thoroughly artistic interpretation of Mr Owen; the William Todman of Mr W. T. Elworthy was a character-study meriting the highest praise; Mr Brember Wills acted admirably as Mr Hickson; Mr Harold Standing as Mr Gerald Harringay and Mr Escott Robson as J. Briginshaw were commendable impersonations; Mr C. Welden was excellent as Mr Pedrick; and Mr J. Wilkinson, jun., as Robert Binks and Mr J. Squires as Luscombe were both laudable performances. It is impossible to speak too highly of Miss Beth Elliott's Blanche Chilworth, and Miss Kathleen Maitland made a charming Amy. As Miss Hickson Miss P. Davies exhibited much talent, and Miss Enid Ross was good as Crafer.

WEXFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr E. P. Ronan.—A first-class variety company occupies the boards this week, and the innovation is much appreciated by local playgoers. Chivers and De Monti gave a clever exhibition of trick and fancy skating; Ivy Graham songs are thoroughly enjoyed; Arthur Beecham is funny, his dancing also proving acceptable; and Akbar's gymnastic turn is one of the best. Bella Leaburn is heard to advantage in her latest successes; Le Hurst gives a fine exhibition as a ventriloquist; and Charles Ousley, the coloured artiste, in his eccentric songs and dances, creates much enthusiasm.

WHITEHAVEN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Clark.—Mr Charles R. Stone's company is appearing here in the musical comedy What Became of Mrs Rackett? Mr C. R. Stone appears as Obadiah Dawson, and is very droll. Mr Gerald Wyatt is responsible for a lot of the fun as Timothy Tolman, and Mr E. Rawlinson is good as Robert Rackett, singing and acting in a clever manner. Miss E. Madelle is a charming Mrs Rackett, and Miss Daisy Stone a lively and pleasing Katey, whilst excellent support is given by Mr S. Junior (Hobson), Mr E. Clarke (Mr Dalroy), and the Misses Vida Hill, Emmie Hill, and Letitia Flop.

ROYAL STANDARD OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Tom Dyson; Manager, Mr Walter Lang.—The company engaged here includes the Peel Family, instrumentalists, vocalists, and dancers; H. Shepard, musical expert; Miss May Blowden, serio; Jessie Lloyd, ballad vocalist; Fred Myers, comedian; Walter Lang, vocalist; and the Saxons, duettists and dancers.

WIDNES.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr James Kiddie; Secretary and Manager, Mr T. Swinton.—Hardie and Von Leer's company, in the popular play Two Little Vagabonds, is once again occupying the boards here. Miss Phyllis French and Miss Violet Carr as the two chums, Dick and Wally, arouse sympathy; Miss Elena Lonsdale as Marion Thornton acts with womanly charm; and Miss Daisy Royale is very successful in the part of Barbara Scarth. Mr Talbot Homewood is well suited to the rôle of George Thornton; Mr Douglas Cecil impersonates Captain Darville in a manly spirit; the humorous element is ably carried out by Mr H. Hesselgrave and Miss Eleanor Papéry as Bill and Biddy Mullins; and they are ably supported by Mr Charles T. Doe and Mr Chas. H. Hughes as Dido and the Coughdrop respectively.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr E. H. Bull and Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Percival.—This week's engagement consists of Mr Louis Calvert and Mr Herbert Ross's company in Sunday. Miss Marie Polini appeared in the title-rôle, and her delineation was characterised by much skill, the lively and pathetic parts being alike artistic and clever. Mr W. Edwyn Holloway was seen to advantage as Colonel Brinthorpe; Mr John Holloway was good as Arthur Brinthorpe; and Mr Arthur Willoughby did well as Tom Oxley. In the part of Towzer Mr Henry Stephenson did admirably; Mr David Curtis was an efficient Davy; Mr Alfred Phillips scored as Lively; and Mr Arthur Somers was capital as Jacky. The remaining characters were well filled by Mr Hugh Breton, Miss Maude Henderson, and Miss Dorothy Gordon.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessees, Mr Fred Benton and Mr Fred J. Little; Manager, Mr Henry L. Compton.—The attraction here this week consists of The Queen of the Night, which is being performed by Mr James Stillwell's company, including Miss V. St. Lawrence and Mr Bert Atherton.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Barnard; General Manager, Mr W. H. Lennon.—A number of popular turns at this house include Sandford and Lyons, comedians; Tom Woottwell, comedian; and Belle Davis and her piccaninnies, vocalists and dancers. The Brothers Levett, acrobats; Nellie Young, vocalist and dancer; Private John Clark, the soldier vocalist; the Seltina Troupe of acrobats; Irene Rose, vocalist; the Eight Olympian Stars; and the Bioscope are also in the bill.

WIGAN.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr John Worswick.—Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, in the drama, The Village Blacksmith, is at the Court Theatre this week. Mr Sam Livesey gives a powerful portrayal of the part of John Strong, in the title-rôle, and Miss Ethel Kay admirably impersonates the character of the blacksmith's wife. The other parts are also well represented.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—The Six Brothers Luck give a number of very amusing sketches. Keen and Walad are recalled in their comedy acrobatic act, and Mabel Thorne is an admirable comedienne. H. O. Wills, comedian, is popular, and Heywood and Lidden give an acceptable musical mélange. Mrs Luck, comedienne; the Three Gregsons and Charles Beanland, comedian, are also very entertaining.

EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr W. Birchall.—The Jetneys are fulfilling a return engagement as the "dusky dandies," and John Marks, tenor vocalist, and Miss Maud Dellar, comedienne, are loudly applauded. York, Mack, and York cause much merriment in a comedy act. Stern and Stern, vocalists and speciality artistes; Teddy May and Harry Slade, comedians, and the Delamere Trio, comedy equilibrists, are well received.

WORKINGTON.

QUEEN'S OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Stanley Rogers.—Mr John Leopold's company opened on Monday with the New Frivolity, which kept the audience in roars of laughter. The acrobatic performance of the Leopolds secured hearty applause. Mr H. Lewis as Buckwheat was excellent; Mr W. Vaughan as Jules was effective; Mr B. Zupino as Samuel was attractive; as the French detective Mr John Kelly was amusing; Miss R. Wyndham was good as Madame Cobweb; and she was well supported by Miss Amy Hall, Miss Vera Violate, Miss Mona Hall, and Miss Queenie Bronte.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Helsby Wright.—On Monday night there was a large audience to welcome Miss Daisy De Roy, an old favourite, and her variety company. She was artistically attired, and her singing and dancing were frequently encored. She was supported by Mdlle. Dora, who was successful on the oboe; the Musical Japs, who were well received; F. C. Brooks, Rae and Rae, Miss L. Weldon, Mr F. Royle, Bendo, Miss Hilda De Gray, Wallace, and Giacomo.

WREXHAM.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr Herbert Nicholls.—This week the Five Rhynes, a clever quintet, head the bill, while among those appearing are Doolan and Daly, Luke Sharpe, Albert Ventor, and Lil Gorman.

YORK.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—After a long absence The Still Alarm is with us again, meeting as usual with great success. All the members of the company are artistes of sterling merit, Mr Matthew H. Glenville as the hero being particularly conspicuous, giving a breezy and natural rendition. As Elinore Fordham, Miss May Lovett looks charming and acts in a delightfully fresh style. Hetty Zillwood is lively and amusing as Carrie Wilber, and Mr Tom Beasley as Willie Manley has a part in which he is a distinct success. There is some clever glee singing, and the performance throughout is both bright and interesting.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sydney Brooke.—Neil Kenyon is anything but an unspeakable Scott, and during the week has been delighting large audiences by his quaint, and what is more to the point, original sayings. Mr Charles Morritt is an illusionist of the first rank, his show astonishing all. Angeline, lady juggler, does some remarkable feats with a cannon ball; Prince Fee Lung's conjuring tricks are enjoyed; Miss Dora Lyric quickly sang herself into popularity; and Mr R. W. Bently is vociferously applauded for his really amusing singing. Tom Owen, Flemine, and a blind calculator complete the bill.

Receipts Last Week,
£305 in Three Nights.
Derry was once noted for citizens whose tastes inclined very much to the drama. In fact, they were a theatre-going public. But theatrical life in Derry for a good many years past has been dull in the extreme. With the advent of an enterprising theatrical manager to our city, such as Mr Payne Seddon—to whom Irish provincial towns owe a deep debt of gratitude for the efficient manner in which he catered for them in his tours—let us hope that a new era has dawned on the local theatrical sphere, and that we may see nightly at the Derry Opera an audience such as was witnessed last evening.—Belfast Evening Telegraph, Nov. 8.
Next Week, "A Chinese Honeymoon."

Plays the funniest characterisation of a stage dude it has been our good fortune to witness in the funniest possible manner.—Eastbourne Society.

THE CHORUS.

Lent valuable and material help to the principals. They will compare favourably with any of the highly lauded American choruses imported to our shores in recent years. They work with astonishing verve and go, have magnificent and, what is just as important, really well trained voices. To us who are not in the secret as to how these things are managed it is an inexplicable puzzle how a number of ladies of such surpassing loveliness can be gathered together in a single company.—Eastbourne Society.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1904. The veteran J. L. Toole has a good story in "The Era" Annual (49, Wellington-street, Strand) a publication which is highly valued by all who have anything to do with the stage. He says:—I was once playing in "Dearer than Life" with Irving and Billington at Leeds. After the performance several gentlemen were in the general room of the hotel where we were staying, and among them a certain Mr Jones, who professed to have a large acquaintance in the profession, and who appeared to have a local reputation as a judge of ages.

"Well, how old," said someone, "would you take Mr Toole to be?'

"Well," said he, "sixty-five, if he's a day."

"Do you know him?" I asked.

"Oh, yes; I know him very well indeed."

"Ah! and how old should you take me to be?"

"Well, I should take you to be forty, if you're a day."

Irving asked Mr Jones if he didn't think Mr Toole was nearer seventy-five than sixty-five. "No," he said; "sixty-five, if he's a day," and the company present seemed to put it down that that would be my age. They had most of them been to the theatre and seen me—for the first time probably—playing an old man; and as it was my first visit to the town, and we were going on by the mail train that night, I had a fancy not to go away and leave them under the impression that I was this very old gentleman. I found that Jones was a decent sort of fellow, and I said to Irving that before I went I should just give him my card and let him know what a mistake he had made. By and bye, when our cab arrived, we said good-night to our casual acquaintances, and, taking Mr Jones aside, I handed him my card, whereupon he said "Oh, indeed!" in a very offensive manner, turned upon his heel, and walked away.

"Well," I said to my friends as we drove away, "that's the most impertinent fellow I think I ever met." Whereupon Billington and Irving went into fits of laughter, and confessed that they had warned Mr Jones that I was continually passing myself off as Toole, and he was to be quite prepared for my handing him a card and trying the imposition upon him.—Leeds and Yorkshire Mercury, Friday, Jan. 22d, 1904.

1904 MODEL. IMPROVED TRAVERSE.

OPTICAL ARC LAMPS.

PAUL'S PATENT.

FOR DIRECT OR ALTERNATING CURRENT, ADJUSTABLE IN ALL DIRECTIONS.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

Substantial Design.
All Parts Adjustable for Wear.
No Lost Motion in Adjustments.
All Working Parts Insulated.
No Clamped Connections to Corrode.
No Loose Parts.
Special Unbreakable Carbon Holders Securing Accurate Alignment.
Large China Nobs, Clean and Cool.
All Adjustments made from Outside the Lanterr.
Racks of Double Width. Steel Screws and Pinions.

SPECIFICATION.

The design is the result of a long experience of the weak points of many of the lamps now offered, and has secured the approval of the most skilled users of Arc Lamps for projection purposes A defect in most lamps is the many points of connection through which current has to pass before reaching the carbons. This is entirely overcome by the special construction of the Carbon Holders, which, together with the Terminals, are formed in one single casting, strongly ribbed. The Carbon Clamp is actuated from the back, so that the alignment of the carbons is always maintained, insuring a steady and correctly formed arc. The steel Clamp Screw is provided with a three-armed Boss, which gives a firm grip, and is placed well back from the heat of the arc. The to-and-fro Adjustment of the top carbon holder is extremely firm, and works without shake, its steel Guides, sliding in V Grooves, being directly actuated by a Screw centrally placed. The Racks are of double the usual width, accurately cut, and fitted in sockets provided with means for taking up any wear A substantial Rack-work is provided for raising and lowering the arc, and also for tilting the lamp for use with direct or alternating currents. The sideway movement of the lamps effected by an extremely simple and neat method, the base being pivoted on the bottom slide, its position being accurately controlled by a Circular Rack and Pinion. The actuating Knobs are made of china, of different colours to avoid confusion, and always remain clean and cool, giving a firm and comfortable grip. They are strongly squared on to their stems, and cannot work loose or flake off, as generally happens with the vulcanised fibre usually employed. The workmanship throughout is accurate and solid, and the finish good, the Castings being bronzed and relieved, the remainder polished and lacquered.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"DIE SIEBZEHNJAHRIGEN."
Play, in Four Acts, by Max Dreyer,
Produced at the Lessing, Nov. 19.

Von Schlettow	Herr BASSERMANN
Annemarie	Fräulein LEHMANN
Frieder	Herr STIELER
Oberst Von Schlettow	Herr PATRY
Erika	Fräulein SCHIFF
Vorbrodt	Herr FUCHS

Blau	Herr MULLER
Timpel	Herr BOROWSKY
Minna	Fräulein STOLLE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, NOV. 24.—Herr Dreyer is one of our most realistic dramatists. Himself a young man, he loves to depict the passions and follies of youth; his characters are—or appear to be—mostly drawn from life; his plots are always interesting, and the language is robust and sentient. The first three acts met with genuine appreciation, the final one falling off somewhat. This time also Herr Dreyer has selected young people for his hero and heroine—as the title says, "seventeen-year-old ones." We will hope there are not many such over-ripe, unhealthy-minded girls of seventeen as Erika Von Gellenhofen, who repays the kindness she has received from her cousin and adopted sister so basely. Werner Von Schlettow, a retired major, lives a happy family life with Annemarie, his wife, Frieder, his son—a cadet of seventeen—and Erika, his wife's cousin—an orphan. For a time only the happiness lasts; then the tragedy begins. It is the tragedy of a boy of seventeen, but none the less a tragedy for that. Frieder has grown up under the wise and loving care of a good mother, and he respects and admires his father above all men. That he is boyishly in love with Erika is natural enough, but it is an innocent, ideal love, very different to the sensuous passion of the girl. Major Von Schlettow is a cavalier, and he is an artist; Erika's beauty attracts him more and more, and the girl does all she can to draw him on. He does not intend to be unfaithful to his wife, of whom he is fond enough, but he cannot resist Erika's fascination. Frieder witnesses a love scene between the two, and at one blow the boy's faith in his father is destroyed. He could overcome his own disappointment in losing Erika's love, but he is filled with grief at the thought of his mother. His ideals have vanished, life seems too horrible to be lived, and Frieder shoots himself before the door of a summer-house where his father and Erika have a rendezvous. These are the contents of the first three acts. The last is devoted to the wife, to Annemarie, and in the opinion of some of the critics this is the best act. When Annemarie learns—as she does by degrees—why her beloved son took his life, she is prepared, after the first burst of grief, to sacrifice herself for her husband's happiness and leave him to Erika. But Schlettow, who had always suffered with his eyes, is now, in consequence of the excitement attendant upon Frieder's death, threatened with blindness, and his wife remains to nurse and comfort him. Fräulein Lehmann as Annemarie gave one of the magnificent renderings for which we know her, and Herr Stieler acted faultlessly the rôle of the cadet. The remaining characters were sustained as they always are at the Lessing—in a manner above all praise. Herr Dreyer was "called" repeatedly.

THE Neues Theatre produced a novelty last week in the shape of a partly historical, partly romantic comedy, by Josef Ruederer, entitled Die Morgenröte. It is five acts in length, the five acts are very long, and the easy-going humour scattered through them does not render them less wearisome. The action—of which there is little enough—passes in Munich in the revolutionary year of 1848. The King's favourite, Lola Montez, and a frequently plucked student named Xaver Singlspieler are the principal characters, and round them are grouped all kinds of loosely woven episodes. There are plenty of beer-drinking scenes, as a matter of course, and some playful satire about the good-for-nothing among the undergraduates. The end of the whole matter is that Xaver—who has fallen in love with naughty little Lola, and fancies himself one better than the King, after having supped with her and been allowed to kiss her—is purged by holy water and incense to avoid contamination. The conclusion was regarded as a huge joke by many, but was evidently distasteful to others of the audience. Had it not been for the capital acting the piece would certainly not have taken as well as it did. It was also staged in a highly effective manner. The author was called and warmly applauded.

AT the Lustspiel-Haus Misch's Biederleute is holding the boards for the present. In a few days a play will be produced by Fräulein Gabriele Reuter, one of the foremost German women authors. The piece is entitled Das Böse Prinzesschen. A military comedy, Kamerad Von Zick, by Arthur Zapp, was recently produced at this theatre, meeting with a cordial reception. Herr Zapp is a writer of entertaining novels, and his first attempt at playwriting is decidedly successful.

SIGNORA FRANCESKA PREVOSTI is the star of the moment at the National Theatre, the acoustics of which building, by-the-way, are far more suited to operatic performances than dramatic ones. The opening attraction was Traviata, in which Signora Prevosti has often appeared here, and always with equal success. The rôle of Violetta is one of the best in her repertory, and the audience—an unusually large one—applauded rapturously. Der Barbier and Figaro's Hochzeit are in the bill this week. Signora Prevosti is admirably supported by the National company, particular commendation being due to Herr Melms, possessor of a powerful and effective baritone.

AT the Belle Alliance the gruesome one-act drama Wer? by MM. De Lorde and Montignac, is still being given at intervals, attracting those persons who delight in cold shivers and nerve-rousing spectacles. The climax is reached when the criminal is confronted with the supposed corpse of his victim, and thrills of horror go audibly through the audience. The piece is well acted and adequately staged. The majority of the spectators breathe a sigh of relief when the curtain falls, and contemplate with pleasure the prospect of Die Sugendglocke, the second play of the evening. This week Max Kretzer's volks-piece Die Millionenbauer is filling the bill almost exclusively.

ANOTHER Italian guest within our walls is Signor D'Andrade, who is giving a lengthier season than usual and attracting large houses at the Theater des Westens. D'Andrade is one of those artistes who seem specially favoured and always remain young. I remember hearing him in his most famous rôle of Don Giovanni at Krolls nearly twenty years ago. The effect he made then—it was his début in this city—was tremendous; the audience knew no bounds in their enthusiasm after the star's rendering of the Champagne song. It is quite the same to-day, and Signor D'Andrade, who comes to us regularly every year at the beginning of the season, has lost none of his popularity. The opening performance last week was, of course, Don Juan—critics and public alike declaring with one voice that there is but one Don, and D'Andrade is his name.

"RIENZI" is now frequently to be heard at the Royal Opera, whereas some years ago it was hardly ever done. A fine performance of this interesting work took place on Thursday, Herr Grüning singing the title-rôle. Frau Goetze, Fräulein Reine, Herren Berger, Bachmann, and other important members of the company did excellent service. In the pantomime, in the second act, Fräuleins Urbanska and Kierschner, with several gentlemen of the Imperial corps de ballet, gave a good account of the parts entrusted to them.

ABERDEEN.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Eade Montefiore; Acting-Manager, Mr H. C. Cavanah.—Sir Henry Irving opened what is first, and also unfortunately, his last visit to Aberdeen on Monday, with The Merchant of Venice. It is superfluous at this time of day to criticise the great actors' portraiture of Shylock, sufficient is it to say that it made an ineffaceable impression on the audience. Miss Edith Wynne Mathison's Portia was a fine piece of acting; Mr James Hearn made a sound and dignified Antonio; and the parts of Bassanio and Gratiano were admirably filled by Mr Gerald Lawrence and Mr H. B. Stanford; while Jessica and Nerissa were presented with much charm by Mrs Cecil Raleigh and Miss Grace Hampton. The other members of the company gave most efficient support.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Ernest Sheldon.—The greatest attraction this week is "The Magic Kettle," which is introduced by Mr F. Carlton. Mr W. L. Murray contributes some remarkable feats of strength, and Payne's Little Vagabonds repeat their success of last week. Among others who make a hit are Mr Tom E. Hughes, Negro comedian; Miss Rosie Elliott, a sprightly comedienne; the Sisters Terry, charming vocalists and mimics; Dale and O'Mally, clever knockabout comedians; the Lyons Trio of pantomimists and dancers; and "Royal" Best, the facial artist. The Palace Bioscope maintains its freshness.

ABERTILLERY.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident Manager, Mr W. Ventom.—This week Mr James Stillwell's No. 1 company is here in Queen of the Night. Mr Charles V. Sandford is easy and natural as Frank Cavendish; Mr James Stillwell is effective as Philip Stoneleigh; Mr F. Thorpe-Tracey is quite at home in the part of Old Briskett; Mr Herbert Colley is especially funny as Adolphus Briskett, his songs being quite excellent; Miss Polly Denville as Kitty White is appreciated; Mr Paul E. Teulon as David Pentreath is excellent; and Miss Irene Tracy makes an ideal Dick. Miss Katherine Barnett as Maude Sylvester is delightful; and Miss V. St. Lawrence in the rôle of Paulina employs excellent delivery and ready resource.

ACCRINGTON.

PRINCE'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr J. E. Barnes.—Mr Henry Eglington's company is presenting When the Lights are Low. Miss Adelina Mercandalli gives a smart performance as Nancy Christie; Miss Kate Froude is responsible for a capital embodiment of Violet; Miss Maude Leonard most successfully depicts Kathleen; Miss Josie Love pleasingly plays Stella; Guy Goldsworthy is vigorously represented by Mr Geo. Daiper; and Roland is well played by Mr Edward Avinal. Mr Tom R. Seymour is successful as Ikey Isaacson. The rôle of Donald Macpherson is ably depicted by Mr J. P. Marsden, and the parts of Willie and Tim Wilkins are carefully sustained by Mr Dick Seddon and Mr Fred Carlton.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Mill; Assistant Manager, Mr T. Moyse.—The bill this week is headed by De Gracia's clever trio of elephants. Other successful turns are Professor Hockinge, hypnotist and electrical specialist; M'Cann's clever terriers; Chas. Coverdale, comedian and patterer; the Woellhafs; Sardou, illusionist; Dan Maxford; Comical Walker; and Martin Conway, a local athlete.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Fairbairn.—Mr George R. Sims's drama, The Lights o' London, is the attraction here this week. Mr Cecil G. Calvert and Miss Jeanne Burgoyne represent the hero and heroine, Harold Armytage and Bess, with marked success. Miss Burgoyne as Bess is sweetly pathetic from first to last. Mr Percy Compton as Jarvis, the kind-hearted showman, and Miss Emilie Dawson as his better-half win golden opinions from the audience. Mr Herbert Hollister as Seth Preene gives breadth and effect to the character he represents; and Mr Albert Brasque as Clifford is admirable as the cool and gentlemanly villain.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr Chas. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr F. Willmott; Acting-Manager, Mr L. Campkin.—Mr Neil Kenyon, the popular Scotch comedian, is one of the features of the week's programme. The "canny Scot" exhibits in song and patter all that is best in Scotia's quaint humour, and he elicits much laughter. The Jackson Family, too, is another "big draw." Expert instrumentalists and vocalists, they give a refined and artistic entertainment well worth seeing. There is also capital succession of turns given by a number of other clever artistes. La Belle Tosca astonishes her audience with her agility and daring on the silver wire; the Knick-Knacks are refined comedy speciality dancers; Tom Heyr, clever, precocious boy comedian; the wonderful performances of Vanda in her up-to-date juggling act on the rolling globe, are applauded; Burke and M'Voy give a good comic acrobatic act; Hess and Lisbon are funny grotesque skaters; and the Sisters Ashton charming duettists and dancers. The Bioscope is also attractive.

BACUP.

NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr Richard Nightingale.—Mr Bert Coote's company is here this week with The Fatal Wedding. Miss Doris Gilham made an excellent Cora Williams, an adventuress. Robert Curtis was safe in the hands of Mr Oliver Rogers; Mabel Wilson was well played by Miss Helen Russell; and Mr Ernest Owttrim did well as Howard Wilson; the Jessie of Miss Marjorie Lawrence was deserving of great praise; Miss Maud Locker as Bridget was very amusing, and she was well supported by Mr W. R. Chewd as Toto. Mr Jack Waring was a capital O'Reilly; and Mr J. Graham played the Rev. D. Lanceford in good style. Some pleasing songs and dances, including a cake walk by the children, are introduced in the third act.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr George Stone.—Mr John F. Preston's répertoire company is here with Jane Shore. Miss Grace Lester in the title-part acted with much ability; Miss Nina Westerleigh was a good Elizabeth Woodville; and Mr James Duncan's Matthew Shore was a convincing and dignified effort. Mr Lewis Leslie was a capable Anthony Yeaste; Mr Ernest Hamilton a characteristic Boniface; Mr Alf Wade an admirable King Edward IV.; and Mr Ed. Beecher a capital Duke of Gloucester. On Wednesday and Thursday the esteemed and popular resident-manager, Mr George Stone, took his annual benefit. The company performed Still Waters Run Deep and Nell Gwynne, preceded each evening by the comedietta Hushed Up. Messrs Len Worral, W. Y. Oakes; the Mdlles. Annie Stone and Lily Oakes taking part. Specialities were also contributed by W. H. Downes and Miss Beatrice Wiley.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr Tom Whiting.—Terry and Lambert, with a comedy sketch, top the bill here this week. Kioto, the marvellous Japanese, scores greatly in his novel equilibristic act; Keen and Walad are one of the successes of the evening in an eccentric acrobatic act; W. H. Downes, the coloured vocalist, sings some good songs; and Miss Beatrice Willey shows excellent taste in her ballad singing. Carlo Bianchi, a Risley performer, is heartily applauded.

BARNSLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. C. Mitchell.—A return visit is being paid here by Messrs Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little's company in The Executioner's Daughter. Mr Edward M. Hamilton, successfully enacts Monsieur Roche; Mr George Beverley is clever as the villainous Felix Marius; Paul Rovel is admirably played by Mr Wilson Howard; Mr W. H. Sharpe scores heavily as Kretch; Mr E. W. Avery is a typical Tom Holmes; and Vivian Ormonde is made the most of by Mr Sinclair Holden. Miss Dorothy Riddell is a pleasing Annette; Miss Carlotta Anson, a natural Felice; Sally Kingt evokes praise as depicted by Miss May Rosine; and Miss Beattie Moore is a sympathetic Christina.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr Jasper Redfern.—The top of the bill here is "Kardoo" the wonderful manipulation of locks, bolts, and bars. Mdlle. Bartinelli, supplies a novel and clever gymnastic act; the Pereys are smart in their performance; the Two Daniels, take well as comedians and dancers; Ryder Davies is a facile actor-vocalist; the Boultons are successful as Limelight Coons; Eva Ward is an excellent burlesque artiste, and the well-known animated photos are much appreciated.

BATH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr Lewis A. Long.—The Toreador has been presented here by Mr George Edwardes's company. Mr Lionel Victor (Sammy Gigg), Mr T. W. Volt (Archibald Slackett), and Mr W. H. Powell (Pettifer) all work hard, and their efforts are received with acclammation and applause. Mr Fred Allandale is a capital Augustus Trail, his rendering of the newly introduced "River" song gaining an unmistakable encore. As Rinaldo and Moreno Mr E. Nainby and Mr A. W. Ashdowne deserve praise. Miss Nellie Bouverie's clever impersonation of Mrs Malton Hoppings is successful. Miss Nancy Langtyre and Miss Daisy Wallace are charming as Nancy Staunton and Dora Selby, and sing and dance with the happiest results. Miss Alice Oppitz's Donna Teresa remains quite a feature of the performance; Miss Daisy Stratton is ever fascinating as Susan; and Mr John Donald is a commanding Carajola and Mr Fred Fowler a nimble Governor of Villaya. Mr Edward Thornton has full control of the large chorus and augmented orchestra, and the staging is lavish and effective.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Trussell.—The Dandies' refined and artistic interlude of song and dance is loudly applauded here. The Bandurrias' skilful playing upon mandolines and guitars is also greatly appreciated; the Bros. Durant do some smart acrobatic feats with success; the Sisters Caselli shine in high kicking and eccentric dancing; Capt. Slingsby returns with his well-known ventriloquial act; Roze and Calvert, in their comedy sketch Captain Cuttle, are amusing; Urk, illusionist, is clever; and Mr O'Leary, baritone vocalist, deputises with acceptance.

BEDFORD.

ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr Walton R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Miss Lena Stanton's company, in the musical play The Belle of Bangalore. The music thoughout is popular, the orchestra being under the able direction of Mr Raymund M. Lancaster. Miss Lena Stanton's voice is well suited to the title rôle, to which she does full justice; Small Sing finds a vivacious interpreter in Miss Marie Gerrard; Little Keno, a juvenile wonder, causes much amusement with his comicalities; Mr Harry Jay makes an excellent Pat Murphy; and Mr Bruce Green submits a majestic impersonation of the Rajah. Rum Omyo is well portrayed by Mr George James; the Sisters Vell are quite a success in their musical dancing performance; and the Cecil Troupe of dancers also do well.

BELFAST.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr James M'Cann.—Mr Mouillot's company opened here on Monday with the favourite opera, The Geisha. The company is a powerful one, and includes the delightful actress, Miss Aimee De Leska, who submitted a piquant, graceful, and charming interpretation of O Mimosa San. In the rôle of Wun-Hi Mr Edward Carlton assisted materially in the success of the piece, his unexaggerated humour being responsible for the heartiest laughter. Miss Florrie Saunders sustains the rôle of Molly Seymour admirably; and the part of the French interpreter, Juliette Diamante, was prettily and cleverly sustained by Miss Violet Kenyon. Miss Aubrey Ashton was delightful as Lady Constance Wynne, and Mr Lionel Braham sustained the rôle of Marquis Imari most humorously and effectively. As Reginald Fairfax Mr Arthur Cartwright was highly successful, his fine voice being heard to great advantage; and Miss Blanche Browne was a capital Tom Stanley. The officers of H.M.S. Turtle, Dick Cunningham, Arthur Cuddy, and George Grimston, were excellently portrayed by Messrs Edward Granby, F. P. Wilfred, and Bay Russell; and other parts were satisfactorily sustained by Misses K. Birkbeck, Lucy Egerton, Marie Gilbert, E. Rimington, and Messrs H. Reynolds and J. Hornby. The orchestra and chorus, under the direction of Mr Frank Barrett, were in every sense efficient. The Greek Slave was performed on Thursday and Friday.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr J. P. Beardmore.—The chief attraction here is furnished by Malcolm Scott, comedian, whose humorous songs and up-to-date patter have been hugely enjoyed. The Burnells provide their exceedingly funny sketch Over the Garden Wall, which has been received with enthusiasm. Mr Cecil Lidden and Miss Elsie Hayward appear to advantage in their musical absurdity A Quiet Rehearsal, by Mr Cecil Lidden. Messrs Goggin and Davis have been very successful with their smart comedy acrobatic act; and a most attractive and exhilarating sketch entitled The Doctor has been supplied by the Courtney Combination. Messrs Craig, Roze, and Craig's gymnastic feats are quite a feature of the programme, and others appearing are Ray and Miles, comic jugglers; Rosemond and Clare's Vaudeville Company in their cake-walk competition; and the Three Woodbee Wonders in their herculean speciality.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Brook.—The Tally Ho Trio head the bill here, and there attractive vocal items have been accorded an enthusiastic reception, fully deserved. The Wedburns are paying a return visit, and at once command success with their mirth-provoking patter. Much interest has been evinced in the unique performance of the Wartenberg Brothers, aptly described as double foot experts. The Miles-Stavordale Quintet delight all with their entertainment, and those humorous comedians, Messrs Tennyson and Wallis, are exceedingly droll duettists and dancers. Mr Harry Dent is a capital comedian with a good style, and also appearing are Fred Cowan, comedian, and Beatrice Renee, comedienne, whose dancing has been much admired.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr Henry T. Downs.—A capital bill has been provided here by Mr Downes, the popular manager, the top position being occupied by that droll comedian Mr Harry Conlin, whose funny songs have been very successful. A trapeze act of a startling nature has been supplied by the Sisters Urma, their remarkable feats being enthusiastically received. Mr Fred Weston and Miss Julie May stage with much success their musical comedy act Married Life. A capital entertainment is provided by Les Belles Americaines, vocalists and exceptionally smart dancers; and Mr

Henry Bekker is a wonderfully clever illusionist. Davis and Davis, the refined comedians, are well received; and also appearing are La Belle Idalia, in her graceful feats of equipose; Mr Fred Bronte, actor-vocalist; and Miss Lil Esplin, character comedienne.

IMPERIAL HIPPODROME AND CIRCUS.—Proprietors, Messrs Carter and Bosco; General Manager, Mr Irving Bosco; Assistant-Manager, Mr George Dobler.—The special attractions this week include Auto Atlas, who has been engaged by Messrs Carter and Bosco at an enormous salary. His feats of strength include the lifting in his teeth of a heavy motor-car in which are three men as extra weight. Hardy, "The American Blondin," is one of the most marvellous and daring tight-rope walkers in existence. Some wonderful feats of horsemanship have been exhibited by the Sloan Family, and the Trampolin act by Les Granados is certainly capital. Cuban's ponies furnish a remarkably smart performance; and Princess Annie, who is now a great favourite here, is a graceful equestrienne. The new Hippodrome Pictures are an attraction; also appearing are Mr Jean Steckles in his jockey act; Silent Steck, a very funny clown; and Ping Pong, whose appearance nightly is the signal for much applause.

BILSTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—The Grip of Iron is here played by a company under the direction of Messrs E. H. Knight and G. Denham. Mr Denham portrays Paul Blanchard admirably, and Miss Nellie Grant supports him effectively as Sophie. Jagon and Loustalot are capitally depicted by Mr Fred Powell and Mr Andrew Liston. Coucou and Dodot are in the safe hands of Mr Harry Agar-Lyons and Mr John Brittain. Miss Hilda Baynton makes a very good Marie Guerin; and the Cora Simmonet of Miss Georgie De Lara makes a favourable impression Mr J. Wilton-Richards carefully enacts Lorentz De Ribas.

BIRKENHEAD.

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—A spirited representation of The Lady's Maid by Mr Gore Ouseley's company, under the direction of Mr Joseph Watson, is decidedly successful. Miss Isa Bowman captivates all by a vivacious and telling rendering of the title-rôle, Jane Taylor. Josiah Higgin is in the capable hands of Mr Harry Fischer, and Mr Drew displays vocal abilities of a high order as Lieut. Marchmont.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Pell.—Messrs Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, in The Village Blacksmith, are doing excellent business. Mr Sam Livesey is admirably suited as John Strong, a part to which he does full justice. Mr Joseph Carter as Captain Leo invests the part with the necessary force and effect, and Mr Thos. E. Marshall is an excellent Parkins. Mrs Parkins is finely played by Mrs J. C. Livesey, and Mesdames Maggie Edwards and Ethel Kaye, Messrs. Geo. Wilton, Geo. V. Campbell, and Fred Wills lend good assistance.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr D. J. Clarke.—Barton and Ashley, in their amusing sketch Canal Boat Sal, are prominent in the programme here, as also are Park's Eton Boys, clever vocalists and an attractive turn. The Hartley Wonders, in their jumping feats, contribute an interesting show; Miss Maggie Walsh, the singing mill girl, is on a welcome return visit; and Mr Charles Lilburn, character comedian; Tally O'Smith, character vocalist; Regan and Ryan, good knockabouts; Miss Ida Gladstone, descriptive vocalist; Grant and Grant, Negro acrobatic dancers; and Mr Chris Richards, comedian and eccentric dancer, appear to advantage.

BIRMINGHAM.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnston.—Letty, presented by Mr Charles Frohman with all the advantages that come of a full London cast, has attracted much interest and the most substantial support. Mr H. B. Irving has been applauded to the echo for his clever creation of Nevill Letchmere; Miss Irene Vanbrugh has been also highly acclaimed for her charm as Letty; Miss Eleanor Sourey carried off the effronteries and vulgarities of the fussy Hilda Gunning in the most humorous manner; Mr Scott Craven realised the coarse instincts of Bernard Mandeville to the full; Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson acted as Marion with fine feeling and capital expression; Mr Leslie Victor was successful as Richard Perry; and Mr Charles Troode as Neale and Mr Tom Heslewood as Ordish appeared to good avantage.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr Victor Turner.—The Earl and the Girl, presented by Mr William Greet, received a splendid ovation here on Monday, when it was produced for the first time in Birmingham. Miss Aimee Grey as Elphin Haye won loud and and frequent encores for her graceful acting and singing. Mr Percy Carr as Dick Wargrave presented a polished picture of the "real heir," and proved himself a musician to boot; and Mr Bertie White as the supposed heir showed similar attributes. Mr William Stephens as Jim Cheese proved a constant provocation to mirth with his smart and resourceful farcical play; Mr William Walshe as the irate uncle added to the humours of the situation immeasurably; and Mr Will Hindson acted capably as Downham, the American solicitor. Miss Dot Carey gave a humorous study of Liza Shoddam; and the production teems with clever dancers, graceful figures, and rich melody.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Lester Collingwood.—The Silver Cross, despite a heavy fall of snow which since Tuesday has enveloped the city, meets with the appreciation of crowded houses. Miss Maud Western presents all the tender and trustful impulses of Little Sunshine, the owner of "the silver cross," and the adopted daughter of Old Ben, a part which is played by Mr F. A. Marston with much rugged force, as well as with humour and pathos. Mr Harry Glenny places the villainous character of Philip Frewin beyond doubt; Mr Cliff Allen is popular as the hero, Arthur Merton; Mr W. A. Buckstone is successful in the clerical rôle; Mr Syd Bazley as Tomkyns diverts the audience, and is well aided by Miss Poppy Denby as Sally. Miss C. Glenney acts gracefully as Laura Beechcroft, and the drama is plentifully interspersed with songs.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Hindle Taylor.—A Girl's Cross Roads is one of the best of Mr Walter Melville's many creations. Miss Beatrice Homer depicts the unfortunate dipsomaniac, Barbara Wade, with stirring power and intensity; and the patient and suffering husband is admirable realised by Mr Wingold Lawrence. Miss Kate Hallam gains much compassion in her well-acted rôle of Constance Cornell; Miss Helen Haye takes up the rôle of Nellie Meadows in a most apt way; Mr Edwin J. Wilde compels respect for the part of the old farmer. Messrs Lionel Gadsden and Jno. Brookes shine as the villains, Cuthbert Lumley and Luke Ramsden; and Mr John Hitchins and Miss Emily Custance play comic rôles.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr Ben Sydney.—Woman to Woman faces the footlights this week, under Miss Mary Dalby's direction. The play deals with the Russo-Jap War, and Miss Dalby is seen to advantage as the Queen of the Koreans. Miss Georgina V. France creates a favourable impression as Lillian Lorne. Miss Madge Douglas proves herself equal to the rôles of Monica Stokes and Elba, a Koreun convert. Mr Chas. Whitlock bears himself with dignity as the Rev. Lesley Lorne. Mr Ernest Vaughan as Lieut. Padroski plays a villain's rôle well, and Mr E. D. Allen lends humorous relief as Denny O'Hagan. Mr Dan Agar as a comic correspondent causes excellent diversion.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr Dan Barnard.—A Great Sensation is the title and motif of this week's fare, which is supplied by Miss Beatrice Isaacson and company. Miss Isaacson conveys a pleasant impression as the florist, Eva Dale; Miss Edith Wallis is indefatigable as the villainess, Sidonie; and Miss Marion Mayne as Ria diffuses much humour around, together with Mr Frank G. Kent as Wiley Jones and Mr Harry Ugar as the comic postman. Mr Sydney N. Hallows displays all the ability requisite for the hero's part; Mr Tom Robertson is similarly equipped for the part of Henry Encombe; and Mr H. Clayton as Stephen Damer, Mr Frank V. Fenn as Robin Dale, Mr Alexander L. Isaacson as Bumko Bates, and Mr Geo. Collinson as Bruce win favourable comment. The "great sensation" is well sustained in the end.

BLACKBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr Harry Yorke; Business-Manager, Mr Reginald Yorke.—The Marriage of Kitty is being played here this week by Mr Frank Wilson's company. Mr Wilson appears as Sir Reginald Belsize, and the other characters in the piece are sustained by Mr Sidney Orton as John Travers, Miss Kate Horwood as Madame De Semiano, and Miss Vera Fordyce as Kitty Silverton.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr E. H. Page.—A drama entitled Bigamy is the attraction here this week. The author, Mr Fred Moule, plays the part of Rufus Cherrybull. Miss Alywinne Ermon appears as Diana De Courcelle, and is well supported by Miss Elsie Capell as Sylvia Dresden. Miss Lydia Mannington as Lilian Lambkin, Mr Colin Hazlewood as Sir Charles Dresden, Mr Francis Serle as Polyphemus Voltaire, and others.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr Will Murray; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Drury.—The star turn this week is the Nannie Goldman and William Holles's company, in their musical comedy sketch The Little Charwoman. The Three Laurels give a good performance in their speciality on the ping-pong table. The other turns are D. J. Pedley, comedian and dancer; Edith Courtney, ballad vocalist; Arthur Gill, in some clever imitations; Bailee and Smith; Jack Lorimer, comedian; the Three Sisters Chester, vocalists and dancers; Marie Joyce; and T. B. Fayne, Yorkshire comedian.

BLACKPOOL.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr Frank M. Thorne's company is here this week with Napoleon the Great, in which Mr Hugh Montgomery gives a good account of himself in the title-rôle, and Miss Chrissie Dunbar presents a strong characterisation as Marie Waleska. The heroic Colonel Jules Meuron is creditably portrayed by Mr Charles Halling, whilst Mr J. G. Maine contributes a clever study of Paul Laczinska. Mr C. W. Spencer supplies genuine comedy as Sergeant Choupin, and Mr Frank M. Thorne, the author of the play, is successful as Pierre Pomponnet.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Signor Pepi and Co.—Another big programme is provided here this week. Herr Fritz is a clever illusionist, and performs novel tricks with lightning rapidity; Barrett and Knowles give pleasure with their racy patter; and Ida Ross is an excellent Tyrolean vocalist. The Two Neros supply a contortionist turn; Edgar Granville is very popular as a society entertainer; Kathleen Gray is a charming burlesque artist; Star and Jerome shine as coon vocalists; and the Lorrisons are very funny comedians.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Waller.—The world-renowned athlete Brinn tops the bill here this week, and presents his amazing act, Pastimes on a Battleship, with great success. Orito sings taking songs; Lotto, Lilo and Otto perform some wonderfully clever cycle tricks; Minnie Duncan and Arthur Godfrey appear in a coster sketch; Marie Terry and J. S. Bentley contribute a comedy act, entitled The Hunt; Charles J. Johnson sings nigger songs; Kahn and Kahn supply a conjuring turn; Professor Dunning ventriloquises; The Two Countees sing duets; J. P. Dane dances well; Ernest Ball is successful as an actor-vocalist; and Ada Cerito scores as a low comedienne.

BOLTON.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Hermann.—The annual visit of the Moody-Manners opera company to Bolton is being made this week. On Monday Wagner's Tannhäuser was given under the direction of Herr Richard Eckhold. Miss Toni Selter gave a fine rendering of Venus; Mr Joseph O'Mara was at his best as Tannhäuser; Mr William Dever essayed the part of Wolfram; Miss Carter sang prettily as the young shepherd; Madame De Vere was in excellent voice as Elizabeth; and Mr Charles M'Grath was an imposing Landgrave. Admirable assistance was given by F. H. Erle, T. C. Fairbairn, J. Alexander, and V. Brodo. On Tuesday Mdlle. Zelie De Lussan appeared as Carmen; and on Wednesday The Jewess was given with Madame De Vere as Rachael. The other operas during the week were Mignon, La Traviata, and Maritana.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry Kenyon.—An attractive programme here includes Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, in their amusing pantomimic comedy, After the Covent-Garden Ball; Ernie Mayne, comedian; Miss Bessie Willow, serio; Arthur Gilbert, comedian; Reilly and Taylor, dialect comedians, in "Nonsense;" Frank Sylvo, quaint comedy juggler; Hector and Paulus, comedy acrobats and equilibrists; Joe Mac, patter comedian and eccentric dancer; Conway and Leland, "The Merry Monopedes;" and the Imperial Bioscope.

OHMY'S CIRCUS AND VARIETY HIPPODROME.—There is a capital all-round company appearing here, including Aerian and Ostara, who perform some daring feats in mid-air; the Zolas, a clever troupe of acrobats; Mons. Lupero, contortionist; Claude Ohmy, in leaping and jockey acts; Miss Lilly, with her performing ponies; and the Sisters Zaney. There has also been introduced the Magic Kettle, by Dr. Savant.

BOSCOMBE.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr Rowland Stewart.—Mr William Greet's company is staging The Lady Slavey here this week, Mr Harry Walsh proves a capital exponent of Major O'Neill, and Mr Allan Morris's impersonation of the American millionaire is distinctly good. Roberts, the sheriff's officer, as represented by Mr Frank Sherlock is most entertaining, and is greeted with many a roar of laughter. The rendering of Lord Lavender submitted by Mr Walter J. Hybert is also eminently diverting. The dancing of Miss Jean Van Dalle and Miss Ethel Ashton as the Major's two daughters, Maude and Beatrice, is much appreciated, and Miss Millicent Marsden is excellent as Flo Honeydew. Miss Addie Lennard's clever and vivacious rendering of the title-rôle is received with marked favour.

BOURNEMOUTH.

BRADFORD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Richardson.—The Darling of the Gods was presented here on Monday by Mr Tree's company to a deeply interested audience, to whom the strangeness of the production, with all its magnificent stage effects and tableaux, lent a peculiar fascination. The applause was very enthusiastic, and the principals of the clever company were frequently recalled. The part of the grim, licentious, and relentless Minister, Zakkuri, is very powerfully represented by Mr G. W. Anson; and Mr Gerald Kay Souper creates an excellent impression by his convincing acting as the outlaw, Prince Kara. In a very efficient manner Mr A. P. Kaye plays Prince Saigon. Mr Cecil Tresilian is powerful in his impersonation of the dumb Inu; and very impressive is the acting of Mr Ernest Stallard as Kato. Miss Lilian Stafford's Yo San is full of real earnestness and grace; Miss Sybil Glynn is a charming Geisha, and dances well; and very efficient are the Setsu of Miss Irma Foldi, the Rosy Sky of Miss Augusta Havilland, the Kaede of Miss May Seaton, the Nu of Miss Lorraine Stevens, and the Niji-Onna of Miss Rhoda Strauss.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Francis Laidler.—Those inimitable pantomimists Messrs C. and F. Renad, are here again with The Swiss Express, and laughter reigns supreme. The diverting piece is, as usual, capitally staged, and the Renads have a clever company to support them. Mr Wilford Bailey is capital as the much tormented Dr. Gull; Virginia is well played by Miss Marie Millward; whilst her persistent admirer, Bob Rolingstone, is well taken by Mr G. Martin. Mr Alec Wylie is good as Dudley Green.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Crawford Swann.—A well-acted sketch, viz., A Bachelor's Dream, by May Edouin and Fred Edwards, is an interesting feature of the good programme presented here this week. G. W. Hunter, the comedian, dry, quaint, and funny as ever, makes a welcome reappearance. Mabel Hind is dainty, Callie and Walker are a pair of good comedy artists, and the Three Sisters Sprightly win applause for good variety turns. The Brothers Obo dispense good comedy; an equestrian novelty by Joko and Koko is a fine example of animal training; a clever acrobatic performance is given by the Brothers Damm; Phil Herman sings smartly some good character songs; the Brothers Webb are diverting clowns and very accomplished musicians; and Alexander does some smart and clever things as a trick cyclist.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr W. E Berry.—In their equestrian sketch, Rejected Remounts, Claude Ginnett's company presents a distinct novelty which is highly diverting. Ruby Bijou dances very daintily, and Steeley and Dowton present clever acrobatic dancing in their comedy turn. Clemart's ventriloquism is of an entertaining order. Henry Carlton, supported by a comic trio, presents an amusing turn, Obliging a Lady. Sandy and Carl's knockabout business and burlesque boxing are both funny. Friscari does some smart juggling and hat manipulating. Kit Keen's coon songs and bone solos are acceptable items, and the Australian Twin Andersons contribute some smart dancing.

BRIGHTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr John Hare and company are here this week with Little Mary. Mr John Hare gives a finished portrayal of the Earl of Carlton; Miss Hilda Trevelyan achieves conspicuous success with her delightful impersonation of Moira Loney; Mr Carter Pickford is an excellent Lord Rolfe; and Mr Rudge Harding is well suited as Sir Jenninga Pyke. Mr Fred Grove's Terence Reilly and Mr Clifford Brooke's Dr. Topping are able representations, and admirable support is given by Mr Eric Maturin, Miss Helen Rous, Miss Kathleen Gordon-Lee, and Miss Beatrice Kelston. Little Mary is preceded by 'Op o' me Thumb, in which Miss Hilda Trevelyan and Mr Rudge Harding are especially prominent.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr W. F. Crowe.—Under the direction of Mr George R. Montford, the racing play Rogues of the Turf occupies the boards here this week. Mr John F. Preston is highly successful as Joe Flaxman; Mr George R. Montford gives a very forcible representation of Captain Dudley Clinton; Mr H. H. Rignold is entertaining as Moses Solomons; Miss Hilda Shirley makes a pleasing Nellie Flaxman; Miss Mabelle F. Barlow is a bright Phillis Warzell; Mr Ernest R. Allen gives a praiseworthy portrayal of Arthur Somerton; Miss Gertrude Godart is powerfully effective as Marion Lady Heathcote; and Mr Harry Benson affords amusement as Sam Flaxman. The play is admirably staged.

AQUARIUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Bernhardt.—Very attractive programmes are sustained here this week by Ye Merrie Peasants (Miss Lilian Sanders, Miss Marie Longmore, Mr Trefelyn David, and Mr Charles Hinchcliff); Little Miss Decima Brooke, vocalist and dancer; and Miss Jennie Franklin, "la femme Grossmith."

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr J. L. Graydon; General Manager, Mr Ernest Lepard.—The following are here this week:—? Kweery ?—which comprises a cleverly worked illusion; Lanny and Dode, comedy artistes; Alec Kennedy, in his chorus song, "Arthur and Martha;" Cissie Heath, comedienne and dancer; Silent Tait, "the eccentric wizard;" the Three American Idols, song and dance artistes; Sam Mayo, the immobile comedian; the Two Maningos, gymnasts and equilibrists; Stella Stanley, comedienne; Frank Lynne, comedian; Queenie Leighton, the London Gaiety actress; and the Alhambra pictures.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The following are here this week:—The Bohemian Twins, Rose and Josefa Blazek, who are making their first appearance in England; Harry Meier, "the man with the hat;" Will M'Iver, tenor vocalist; Fred Russell, ventriloquist, with his famous automaton, "Coster Joe;" J. W. Hall, comedian; Charles Diamond, harpist, and Miss Beatrice, soprano saxophone soloist; Miss Ella Shields, "the Southern nightingale;" F. V. St. Clair, vocal comedian; and animated pictures.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Under the personal direction of Mr Drew Mackintosh.—Mr W. H. Powell's company is here this week with There and Back. Mr Edwin Ramsdale acquits himself admirably as Henry Lawson; Mr Victor Hill is well placed as William Waring; Mr W. H. Powell makes a capital Jack M'Rae; Miss G. Burney's Mrs Lewson and Miss Marie Scharning's Mrs Waring merit warm praise; Miss Ada Brenan is a pleasing Marie Antoinette Smith; and Mr William Osborne is effective as Guy Grindling.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr A. D. Norman.—Mr F. H. De Quincey, Miss Sime Seruya, and company opened here on Monday with Richelieu. Mr F. H. De Quincey gave an excellent portrayal of the Cardinal; Miss Sime Seruya made a charming Julie De Mortemar; Mr Baliol Holloway was an admirable Chevalier De Mauprat; Mr Kendal Chalmer's Joseph and Miss E. Stuart Innes's François were well played; and satisfactory support was given by Mr Francis C. Coates, Mr W. Henry Hargreaves, Mr Charles Langton, Mr Montague Lane, Mr Philip Gordon, and Miss Evelyn F. Hall. The programmes for the week also included The Twin Sister and Othello.

COLISEUM.—Licensee and Director of Entertainments, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr C. Smith-Wilkes.—The following are here this week:—C. Emlyn Jones and his Emerald Ladies' Quartet; the Five Delevines, comedy artistes, in Flirtation; the Four Figaros, international character vocalists, in Ten Minutes on the Continent; Madame Collard, with her highly trained dogs, which impersonate lions and tigers; Alice Yorke and Royston Keith, in A Yacht for Sale; Lima Hicks, male impersonator; Cyril Demane, with his "enchanted" kettle and conjuring feats; Hughes and Elliott, ragtime vocalists and trick and sand dancers; and the Coliseum pictures.

BRIGHTON GREEN ROOM CLUB.—On Wednesday the members of this club gave a matinée performance of Mice and Men at the Brighton Alhambra.

BRISTOL.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr James Macready Chute.—There was a large attendance here on Monday evening in all parts of the house, the audience evidently being much interested in the first performance here of The Duchess of Dantzic. Mr George Edwardes's original London company played well all round, the light opera is staged with much taste and liberality, both in the way of scenery and dresses, the chorus is strong and effective, and the augmented orchestra did efficient work under the direction of Mr P. W. Halton. Miss Evie Greene scored a very pronounced success as Catherine, her acting was exceptionally clever throughout the play, and the vocal numbers allotted to the part were all rendered in highly artistic style. Mr Herbert Clayton both acted and sang well as Lefebvre; Mr Holbrook Blinn presented a good study of Napoleon; Mr Courtice Pounds was decidedly clever as Papillon. Mr Leonard Mackay was impressive in the first act as the Vicomte De Béthune. He has a fine baritone voice, and sang his solo with much taste and expression, and in the remaining acts as Adhémar, son of the Vicomte, he both acted and sang in effective style. Miss Mabel Lorrell displayed considerable dignity as the Empress Josephine; the Misses Elizabeth Firth and Doris La Tour were well placed as the Sisters of Napoleon; Miss Moir Sackville was a sprightly and vivacious Lisette; and Messrs Morgan Williams, A. J. Evelyn, and Frank Greene were well placed as Captain Reigner, Sergeant Flageot, and Corporal Glidon.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Ernest Carpenter.—Mr W. H. Hallatt's company is here with the interesting drama, Two Little Sailor Boys, which is staged in good style. Mr W. H. Hallatt gives a fine performance of Noel Tregarthen, Miss Blanche Steele acts with considerable power as Lola Grey, Miss May Day and Miss Ethel Frances are both highly pleasing as Cyril Grey and Tom Yorke. Mr Tom E. Sinclair and Miss Hilda Taylor are capital in the amusing parts of Ben Baxter and Lucy Wilson, and Mr Leonard Booker, Mr Edward Warden, Mr Ambrose Horton, Mr G. C. Murray, and Miss Marie Daventry all do well in their respective parts of Lieut. Redstone, Capt. Yorke, Jim Royston, Admiral Grey, and Mildred Grey.

PALACE.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Resident Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr Welchman.—Fred Karno and company are here for a second week, appearing with much success in Early Birds and Mumming Birds, two very amusing pantomime sketches. Zertho's dogs give a smart performance, evincing perfection of training; the Wilsons are amusing "cross-talk" comedians; Charles Faning, patter comedian, obtains applause; Slade Murray, actor-vocalist, is appreciated; Vincent Walker, Negro comedian, has some good songs; the Warlocks have a smart vaudeville act, Provoking; the Two Graces are clever duettists, their Spanish dance being especially captivating; and Miss Daisy Morrell is a pleasing vocalist and burlesque artiste. Vernon's animated pictures conclude a good entertainment with some new and interesting subjects.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—The leading attraction here this week is Miss Minni Letta and her sporting girls, in "Tracking the Track." The large audience is much interested in a series of walking and running races on a moving track driven by a motor, the distances covered being registered automatically. In addition to the feats accomplished by Miss Letta and her sporting girls, local amateurs try their skill on the track for prizes, more or less successfully, and cause considerable amusement. Ergotti and King Luis Troupe of Risley acrobats do an expert turn; Tom Costello, comedian, amuses; F. Cumminger is exceptionally skilful as a sand dancer; Wills and August amuse as comedy jugglers; Miss Ethel Yorke is a pleasing comedienne; Charles Vandyke and company have a good pantomime absurdity Nicodemus; and Miss Florence Hill is a smart comedienne and an expert step dancer. The performance concludes with some interesting animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.

VICTORIA.—Proprietors, the Broughton Theatres Syndicate, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr James W. Haworth; Manager and Secretary, Mr James M. Hardie, jun.—Mr Henry Hare's company in The Girl from Chicago is here this week. Mr Buckstone Clair is an amusing Judge Ananias Hussel; Miss Nelly Vicott is responsible for much laughter as Lucretia Flatfoot; and Mr Clarence Ibbotson is a quaint Brother Obadiah Caccles. Miss Lily Beverley cleverly sustains the character of Flora Boomer; Mr Harry Dobbs as Billy M'Guffin, Mr Henry Hare as General Boomer, Mr Douglas Vigors as Percy Montgomery, Mr James Quinn as Sam Slappit, and Miss Lily Beaumont as Mrs Sweetlove also do well. The Misses Nellie James, Lena Adams, and Madge Shaw give exhibitions of expert acrobatic dancing. The comedy is preceded by some excellent turns by Lee and Kingston, artistic comedy duo; Katie Cohen, vocalist; Albert Christian, an amusing baritone; and Eva Kelland, vocal actress.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr John Waller.—Mr Chas. Macdona's company is here for the week with The Gay Parisienne. In the title-rôle Miss Jennie Richards sings and dances in a telling manner; Mr Ebenezer Honeycombe finds a clever exponent in Mr Tom May, a really good comedian; Major Fossdyke is played to the life by Mr Arthur Watts; and his daughters are represented in a charming way by Miss Florence Brewster, Miss Dora Macmahon, Miss Minnie Percy, and Miss Ethel Lisle. Miss Madge Soutter is most amusing as Ruth, and gives her song in good style. Miss Gwen Clifford as Mrs Honeycomb and Miss Ethel Wade as Norah both do well, and Mr Chas. A. Maynard shines as M. Pompier, infusing plenty of go into his part and dancing with agility.

BURY (LANCS).

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—An Actor's Romance is being played here this week, Mr Guy Hastings gave a capital interpretation of the part of Harold Davenport. Florence Hastings was represented with ability by Miss Constance Elgin. Jack Woodford had a capable exponent in Mr Percy Marmont. Little Marie Ada Downing was clever as Phyllis Davenport. Humour is displayed by Mr E. H. Dobell as Charlie Cummings, Mr Ernest Ruston was a capital villain, and others well cast were Miss Bertha Northam as Louise Davenport, Mrs L. L'Estrange as Sal Wiggins, and Mr John Detliv as Isadore De Valois.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—May Lilian Levey, the "ideal English swell," is well received. Others on the bill are George Formby, comedian; the Ettemas, globe speciality artistes; Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian; Shamrock Trio, dancers; Les Bollingers, rag painters, a new and exceedingly clever turn; Charles Bowker, singing cobbler; and the Brothers Artois, funny and clever bar experts.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead.—The chief items are Dinah Morris and Troupe of coons; Bounding Lintons, rope performers; Calvo, double-voiced mimic; Fred Nelton, comedian; Tony Iveson, musical tramp; Budd and Budd, a smart couple; and the Blind Collier Boy, a clever musician.

CAMBRIDGE.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr W. B. Redford, J.P., D.L.—Mr Frederick Mouillot's company, with My Lady Molly, gave a welcome return visit here on Monday. Miss Edna De Dreux acted the title-rôle charmingly. Miss Zoe Gilfillan was equally successful as Alice Coverdale. Mr Stephen Fitzgerald's presentation of Mickey O'Dowd was highly humorous, his singing and dancing being hugely appreciated. Mr Leicester Tunks made a manly Captain Harry Romney. Lionel Bland was well played by Mr Stuart Alexander. Mr H. Godwin Hunt's portrayal of Sir Miles Coverdale was all that could be wished. Miss Mabel Carr was a winsome Hester, while Mdlle. Mirabeau was pleasingly represented by Mdlle. Ebbs Darcie.

CARDIFF.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Redford.—The Orchid was presented here by Mr George Dance's principal company on Monday. Mr Bertie Wright is undoubtedly the life and soul of the piece, and in his exceedingly amusing impersonation of Meakin keeps the audience convulsed. Mr G. Davy Burnaby as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour is particularly droll and quaint, and scores with his well rendered song. Mr Edmund Page gives a clever and humorous portrayal of the fire-eating Comte De Cassignat; Mr Ernest Darrell submits a capital delineation of Mr Chesterton; Dr Fausset has a reliable exponent in Mr Edmund Hullick; and Mr Arthur Hemsley's performance of Zaccary is decidedly good, his clever dancing being a prominent feature. Two charming impersonations of Lady Violet and Josephine Zaccary are given by Miss Ethel Bryant and Miss Mabel Searby, the former lady's rendering of "Little Mary" gaining great applause. Miss Madge Lucas as Caroline Vokins is good; while Miss Sylvia De Lacy's Zelie Rumbert is archly presented.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Frank Bateman; General Manager, Mr Robert Sawin.—The popular lessee of the King's does not fail to keep his patrons well supplied with excellent drama. The attraction this week is the sensational drama Mysteries of the Thames, elaborately represented by Mr F. Brooke Warren's company. An exceptionally fine piece of acting is given by Miss Gwynne Warren, who, as Flash Nell, displays undoubted skill. Mr Roy Fortescue as the hero, Richard Brandon, wins the applause of the house, while no less successful in gaining hisses is Mr Brooke Warren as the villain, Captain Denbigh.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Lea.—The excellent programme provided includes the successful sporting sketch Over the Sticks, acted by the popular comedian Joe Elvin and company; Jennie Belmore soubrette; Victor Travers, a quaint comedian; Miss Winona Winter, assisted by the singing comedian Mr William H. Banks; the two Tyrolean stars, Werner and Reider; the Trapnell Family, graceful Continental acrobats; the American baritone Post Mason, in the song scena "Son of the Desert am I;" Les Burnellys, in their gymnastic novelty act; Harry Lawson, eccentric comedian; and the Noiset Troupe, performing cyclists on a revolving table.

CARLISLE.

ALGIE'S HIPPODROME.—Proprietress, Mrs P. E. Veitch; General Manager, Mr C. Algie.—This week the Four Andys top the bill, and give an excellent acrobatic performance. The most popular member of the troupe is Miss Lena, whose wonderful somersaults bring down the house. The Weimars provide an entirely novel and amusing turn, and are big favourites. Mystery Ganze, Indian female impersonator, is also a turn quite out of the common, and meets with unqualified approval. An interesting item is the return visit of Professor M'Cann, who exhibits all his old skill, and as a concertina player still holds a high place in the esteem of the audience. Mr C. Gray, in a table and pedestal act; Eltenos, comedy triple bar act; Mdlle. Dora, oboe soloist and dancer; Miss Lil Gorman, a taking vocalist; Logo, a smart juggler; and the Hippodrome pictures add to the attractiveness of the programme.

CASTLEFORD.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Castleford Hippodrome Syndicate; Entertainment Directors, Messrs Herbert Cole and Harry Bancroft.—Life for Life is played with briskness throughout by Messrs T. C. Glenville, Bert Morley, Herbert Cole, and Misses Dora Alex and Gladys Hawthorne. Another capital turn is given by the Two Wills as comedy acrobats and equilibrists; Dave Hallie presents an amusing entertainment; the Two Pedleys as quaint duettists appear with success; George Mack is diverting in a comedy act; Miss Laura Etherdo comes out strongly as a vocalist and dancer; and Quiet Lodgings, a comedy sketch, is full of laughs.

CHATHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr Geo. G. Ridley.—Once again we have a visit from The Belle of New York, presented by a company toured by Mr Ben Greet, under the direction of Mr J. Bannister Howard. The Misses Mora and Florence Hersee are scoring as Violet Gray and Mamie Clancy respectively; Mr Arthur Ricketts, with fresh songs, is again the Ichabod Bronson; and Mr Walter Uridge reappears with success as Kenneth Mugg.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr L. B. Barnard.—Daisy James tops the bill here, and of course attracts greatly; Spry and Monti are proving as lively as ever; Walker and Lake patter to the accompaniment of roars of laughter; and Will CARMARTHEN.

Assembly Rooms.—Public Rooms Company; Secretary, Mr Edward Baldwin.—This week Carmarthen has received a welcome visit from Mr C. W. Poole with his colossal Myriorama and excellent combination of variety artists, and the entertainment has been well patronised. Graphic scenes are portrayed of the great war between Russia and Japan, and the audience is likewise taken for a tour around the principal cities and towns of interest in the world. A fine show of animated pictures is also given. The variety programme includes the Six Clevelands, lady and gentleman acrobats, in a clever and interesting show; the Sisters Zetina, graceful and entertaining acrobatic dancers; Mons. Henri with a good strong-man and equilibristic exhibition; the Four Burgatiles in their pantomimic and musical mélange; and the Almo Trio in their bar performance, Miss Myria Lo-La being exceptionally good as a lady performer. Mr Alan Hanbury and Mr Cecil F. Cowper contribute nightly a number of comic and descriptive songs, which create roars of laughter. The orchestra, which is under the direction of Mr A. S. Morrell, supplies excellent music, while the entire arrangements are in the capable hands of Mr J. Roberts-Jones.

CHELTENHAM.

Opera House. — General Manager Mr H. Oswald Redford.—This week Mr George Dance's principal company presents A Country Girl. Miss Veronica Brady as Madame Sophie is a shining light and Barry, in the person of Mr Johnny Osborne, is irrepressible. Miss May Glen as Nan is seen to great advantage; Mr Cyril Thompson as Geoffrey Challoner does well both in acting and singing; and Sir Joseph Verity finds a capital exponent in Mr Geo. Mudie, jun.

CHESTERFIELD.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr Holbery Hardy.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company occupies these boards with The King of Crime. Mr William Clayton's portrayal of Ronjarre is a powerful one. Mr W. H. Porter is a success as Simon Gandelu. Messrs Herbert Evelyn and Val W. Gully as Louis Mascorot and Tota render able assistance. Mr Walter Dale amuses as Mick Maloney, Mr Edwin Maydew scores as Perpignan, and Mr Will R. Percival renders the part of Tabard with care. Miss Marion Turner gives a sympathetic rendering of Henrietta Lemaire, Miss Elizabeth Turner-Elliott is a pleasing Matilda, Miss Kitty Russell is a vivacious Clarisse, and Miss Ada King is worthy of mention as Mere Crouchard.

Corporation Theatre.—Mr Charles Macdona's company forms the attraction here in Three Little Maids. Miss Vera Vallis is a delightful Ada, Miss Nellie Groves as Hilda and Miss Doris Trevor as Edna win high favour. Miss Iris Coley, Miss Margaret Douglas, and Miss Eva Swinburne excel as Lady St. Mallory's protegees, the lady herself being well placed with Madame Ilma Norina. Miss May Wright makes a capital Dutch girl; Mr Frank Henderson is a huge success as Lord Cheyne, especially in his "Algie" song; Mr H. A. Welchman as Brian and Mr Jules Chumettes as De L'Orme are respectively well cast, the latter's 'cello playing being greatly admired; Mr R. Barrie causes great laughter as the Caddie, Cupid; Mr W. P. Morgan is good as the Vicar. Mr Louis Lavel is the conductor of a very effective chorus and band.

CLYDEBANK.

New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Wilson.—The attraction here this week is From Scotland Yard, presented by Mr C. Finch-Hatton's company, on a return visit. Mr Finch Hatton again assumes the character of Jack Dale, the detective, in which he displays wonderful histrionic ability. As the prince of swindlers, Dean Fordyce, Mr T. Arthur Ellis makes a creditable appearance; Mr Jack Armitage is passable as Richard Drake, Mr Harry Rose is good as the insurance agent; Mr Harry Rutland is worthy of high praise for his capital impersonation of Jim Mullins, his death scene being particularly fine. Another strong piece of acting is the Mad Marie of Miss Josephine H. Lee. The comic element is very strong, and in the persons of Mr James F. Firth as Weary Marsden and Mr Mike Johnson as Joe Staggers, we have a pair of clever comedians, who work hard and with much success. Miss Helen Lowther is good as Sybil, and Mrs Ruggles is safe in the hands of Miss V. Gould Bourne.

COLNE.

Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Gerald Harding.—No Cross, No Crown, is being presented here this week by Miss Rose Faith and company. Mr J. P. M'Bride is highly successful as Sir Francis Luttrell, whose wife, Clare, is cleverly impersonated by Miss Rose Faith. Mr Logan Darra is well suited as Austin Blake; while Mr Harrison Chapman as Professor Nebb and Mr Frank Hudspeth as Dr. Ashby are good. Miss Gwen Stewart vividly portrays the part of Lady Margaret Luttrell, Miss Maud Elliott makes an excellent Priscilla Barclay. As Plato Miss Dolly Turner and Miss May Warden as Dorris Luttrell are pleasing.

CONSETT.

New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr Lloyd Clarance.—The legitimate drama occupies the boards here this week, and the visit of the Osmond Tearle répertoire company is proving a big success. Julius Cæsar was produced on Monday night with Mr Alex. Marsh in the rôle of Brutus, an exceptionally good performance, and Miss Carrie Baillie scored as Lucius. Hamlet was played on Tuesday, and Romeo and Juliet, The Merchant of Venice, David Garrick, and Richard III. are in the week's programme.

CORK.

Opera House.—Manager, Mr John Horgan.—Mr Eugene Stafford's company opened a week's engagement here on Monday, in The Private Secretary. Mr Geoffrey Guise as Rev. Robert Spalding was most amusing; Mr M. Hargreaves as Mr Cattermole supplied a capital study; Edith was charmingly portrayed by Miss Dora Grey; Mr A. A. Leigh as Douglas Cattermole was all that could be desired; Mr Vivian Gilbert as Harry Marsland, Mr Wilfred Compton as Sidney Gibson; Miss Cecily Wade as Mrs Stead, Miss Mary E. Deverell as Eva Webster, and Mrs Alfred Davis as Miss Ashford filled their respective rôles ably.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr Henry Kemble.—The Du-Cros Trio, in their eccentric aerial act, supply a marvellous turn here; the Radium Girls are effective in their speciality dances; they are also good vocalists. Mr Bob Stephenson, Irish comedian, is well received in his songs; Jordison's Empire Quartet as vocalists and dancers evoke loud applause; Kavados is a juggler who performs some really clever business; he is also an expert equilibrist and cannon ball performer. Flo Melville, burlesque artiste, is applauded in her songs; Harry Walker is much appreciated as a parody singer, and his dialogues are good; and Souplessi, a contortionist, does a very clever turn.

COVENTRY.

Opera House —Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—A visit of Mr Fred Karno's company in the successful musical farce entitled His Majesty's Guests is proving an attraction here this week. Mr Wm. Rokeby is a source of merriment in the part of Sergeant Lightning, especially in act two as a shop assistant. Mr Chas. F. Howard is a good Lord Easem; Mr E. C. Lilly makes the most of the character of Mr Minks; Mr Charles Cardon is a good Doorkeeper Fritz; Mr James Ross makes up very well as Selina; Miss Jessamine Newcombe shows capability as Lady Maude Easem; Miss Florence Moore is clever as the new woman, Miss Manley

CREWE.

Lyceum Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry Taylor.—The manager is to be congratulated on his special bill-of-fare here by engaging the two excellent productions entitled Sunday and Three Little Maids. Miss Nita Faydon in the title-rôle of the former play proved an immense success. Mr J. E. Pearce played the part of Colonel Brinthorpe in a manly earnest fashion; Miss E. Watson has a good conception of the character of Mrs Naresby. The part of Lively was well sustained by Mr T. N. Walter and Mr W. Kane was praiseworthy as Jacky. Three Little Maids was staged on Thursday.

CROYDON.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr Reginald Lawrence.—Miss Emma Hutchison's company is visiting here with Saturday to Monday. Mr Stuart Champion is a host in himself as Lord Culvert of Alcester; Mr Thomas A. Braidon works hard as Probyn Dyke; Mr Thomas Sidney is first class as the Rev. Lemuel Toop; and Mr Dallas Welford's rendering of Stanley Pidding tickles the fancy of the audience. Miss Moyra Creegan puts in genuine work as Mrs Wendover; Miss Madeline L'Estrange is diverting as Lady Diana Porchester; Miss Nancy Beresford is a bright Angela; Miss Josephine Raye is amusing as Miss Ursula Toop; Miss Ida Laurie makes a hit as Miss Street; and Miss Olive Loftus Leyton and Mr Augustus Davenport are adequate as Thompson and Jarvis. The comedy is preceded by Judged by Appearances.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry E. Reckitt.—The drama, Two Little Vagabonds, is here. Mr J. W. Henson gives a telling performance as George Thornton; Mr Wolston Foster is invaluable as Captain Darville; Mr Basil Hillier acts with force as John Scarth; Mr Alfred Russell submits a bold portrayal of Bill Mullens; and Messrs Frank Gordon and Fred Archer are accurate as Dido Bunce and the Cough Drop. Miss Laura Hansen acts with tenderness in the rôle of Marion Thornton; Miss Nell Oliver plays with finish as Barbara Scarth; Miss Lenna Vernon is painstaking as Sister Randall; Miss Marie Pritchard gives a neat sketch of Biddy Mullens; Miss May Hart is intelligent as Dick; and Miss Dorothy Marsden is praiseworthy as Wally. The remaining parts are in good hands, and the scenery is worthy of mention.

Palace Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—Resident General Manager, Mr Eustace H. Jay.—A remarkably good show at this popular resort. Alma Curzon, comedienne and burlesque artiste, is always welcome here; the Arthur Lloyd Trio make a hit in sketch, Little Charlie; Fred Spencer is a sterling comedian who should be seen at the West-end; the Mezzettis are very funny in a unique triple bar act; Professor Vox is a ventriloquist of no mean ability; Zanfretta and Naplo, Continental grotesques and musical knife-grinders, are well applauded; Charles Austin, comedian, is quaint and curious; the Gladenbecks are smart in a silver ring speciality act; the Gotham Quartet sing and act brilliantly in an operatic sketch, Miss Green; Charles Dillon, comedian, is liked; and warm encomiums are due to Mr C. S. Kitts and Miss Rhoda Windrum in an exhilarating sketch, The Entr'acte.

DARLINGTON.

Theatre Royal.—Manageress, Mrs Jennings.—On Monday night Mr Frank Curzon's company opened here with Glittering Gloria. As Jack James Mr John Campbell plays well. Mr Stanley Arthur is amusing as Archie, and Mr Haughton Macauley excellent as Zebedee Posket. Mr Wordley Hulse as Colonel Gallegher, Mr Gerald Clark as Algernon, and Mr Charles Williams as Mr Griddletop do some good work. Miss Stanley Ronalds in the title-rôle is very successful. Miss Lillian Williams (Mrs Jack James) and Miss Dorothy Kenworthy (Archie's fiancée) are good. As a curtain-raiser, Perfection, a smart comedietta, is played. On Thursday and Friday the same company appeared in Tom, Dick, and Harry.

DARWEN.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr E. L. Ormsby.—The attraction here this week is Mr Hall Caine's play, The Manxman, which is being presented by Mr Alfred B. Cross's company. The company is an exceedingly capable one, and the part of Pete is cleverly portrayed by Mr Cross. Miss Minnie Watersford as Kate Cregeen, Miss Rosie Kearns as Nancy, and Miss Kitty Livesey as Bella Kelly give excellent support. Other characters in the cast are played by Mr Hilton Frances, Mr Richard Vane, Mr Edward M'Lean, and others.

DERBY.

New Grand Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr Chas. Denley.—Miss Olga Nethersole's company is paying a return visit here with Sapho. In the name-part Miss Cecil Cromwell scores an artistic success, her representation securing her the heartiest appreciation all through. The Jean of Mr Arthur Royston is another highly successful impersonation, and the Uncle Cesaire of Mr Harry Dodd deserves warm commendation. Mr A. T. Hendon and Miss Jessie Melville are amusing as M. and Madame Hettema, and Mr John Barnum merits special mention as Dr. Potter. A praiseworthy Dechelette is found in Mr George N. Burt, and Flamant is satisfactorily played by Mr Hodson Taylor. As Divonne Miss Isabel Derrie does well, and Irene has a charming exponent in Miss Gertrude Wynter. The remaining characters are all capably depicted.

Palace. — Lessee and Manager, Mr T. A. Edwards.—The bill is headed this week by the Mackweys, whose merry turn on the wire is one of the most amusing the patrons of the Palace have enjoyed for some time. The return visit of Emma Don and company in a vocal scena, introducing a black and white quartet, is also an exceedingly popular feature. The Athlones are athletes of exceptional merit, and give a show that of its kind literally leaves nothing to be desired. Nelson and Thomas, in an absurdity ycleept Ketchup, are diverting; and among other contributors to a capital programme are Ernest Heathcote, a comedian; Walter Blake, another comedian, who also shines as a dancer; Mabelle May, a charming vocalist and artistic dancer; and Vandineff, a clever lightning painter in oil colours.

DONCASTER.

New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr J. W. Chapman.—The popular taste is still for variety entertainments here. Hanco, the handcuff king, has given several private as well as public exhibitions. Mildred Vaughan is a pretty dancer; Foto, the lightning cartoonist, is clever; Black Apollo, an instrumentalist, is deserving of praise; Miss Ada Whitton, burlesque actress, is acceptable; the Maros, bar performers, elicit surprise; The Crazed Curate, a character sketch, is well acted by Mr Martin Byan and Miss Vaughan; Daisy Belfry is a delightful comedienne; and Marcus Boyle has funny songs.

DUDLEY.

Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr J. W. Tilley.—Mr Horace Stanley's company is here this week with The 10·30 Down Express. Mr Stanley shines conspicuously in the part of Sam Wagstaffe; Mr Harry Wood ably represents the hero, Jack O'Malley; Miss Adelaide Clarke is pathetic and winning as Bessie Leigh; and Miss Kate Killpack shows plenty of vivacity as Peggy Potts.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr Tom Prichard.—Bert Byrne heads the bill here this week and again proves popular; Baron and Kemp are exceedingly clever change artistes; Rose Tilley is versatile and winning; the Danbys are clever eccentric comedians; Allis and Cassati are funny and clever comedians. Other good turns make up a good programme.

DEWSBURY.

Theatre Royal. — Resident-Manager, Mr J. Herbert Asquith.—The return visit here, after five years' absence, of Mr J. W. Turner's renowned opera company has been eagerly awaited. The engagement on Monday opened with Il Trovatore, witnessed by an enthusiastic audience. As Manrico Mr E. J. Hargreaves entered fully into the spirit of the rôle; Mr Tom Griffiths as Count Di Luna did well; Miss Alice Boaden as Leonora won golden opinions for her decidedly finished rendering; and Mr Sidney Clifford sang well as Ferrando. On Tuesday The Lily of Killarney was staged.

Hippodrome and Varieties.—General Manager, Mr George Weldon.—In a capital programme the Cee Mee Troupe lead. Stern and Stern have good patter; and James Dubois, in his monkey antics, gives an acceptable turn. Massona's juggling act meets with much approval, and the Bowery Boys acquit themselves with credit. Dan Noble is an excellent comedian, and Miss Marie Yorke proves an attractive turn.

DOVER.

Theatre Royal.—Messrs Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls' carefully selected company holds the boards this week with the stirring drama, The Life that Kills. No more competent actor than Mr Herbert Sidney could have been found to interpret the revolting character of the "laughing murderer," Kendal Croat, and his success was most marked. The part of Valentine Telford, a villain in a lesser degree, was played with conspicuous ability by Mr Morris Maud, a versatile and painstaking actor; and Mr Hugh Metcalf gained the plaudits of the house for his thorough and earnest acting as Hector Rodney. A fine character study of the democratic Lord Kelmarch was given by Mr E. D. Nicholls, who must be warmly congratulated on a most pleasing performance. Mr George Clark lent admirable support as Dr. Brackley, and Mr Pat Kemble was convincing as the warder, Tobias Langdon. Most of the laughter heard during the evening was the outcome of the many humorous antics and funny lines of Jack Jolliffe and Samuel Flatfoote, played with much success by Messrs Harry Howe and Wilton Drury. An exceedingly finished and sympathetic rendering of the part of Laurie Linden was given by Miss Alice Rocheforte, and this talented lady must also be commended for her excellent elocution. A big attraction has been found in Miss Mabel Kessler, who, besides playing with praiseworthy zeal the vivacious part of Johanna Dicks, is also responsible for several well-rendered solos on the cornet, post horn, and bugle. Miss Cathleen Cavanagh deserves a full measure of praise for her admirable rendering of the difficult rôle of Brenda Croat, while a charmingly natural study of the crippled child, May Linden, was given by Little Mabel.

DUBLIN.

Gaiety Theatre. — Lessees, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr Charles Hyland — A large and appreciative audience was present here on Monday night to witness the production by Mr Edward Terry and his excellent company of The House of Burnside, which was heartily enjoyed throughout. Mr Edward Terry's portrayal of Richard Burnside was a most powerful performance, his acting evoking the warm encomiums of the audience, and Miss Daisy Murch displayed undoubted ability in the rôle of Marion Burnside. A meed of praise is due to Mr Arthur Cornell for his conception of the part of Robert Parminter, and Mr Fred Knight was most successful in the rôle of John. Mr A. Hylton Allen was satisfactory as Jack Morrow, and Miss Beatrice Selwyn was commendable as Betty. As Margaret and Richard (Burnside's grandchildren) Miss Beatrice Terry and Master Roy Lorraine were satisfactory. Mr Allan Pollock made a capital Mr Williams, and Miss Olga Kay a pleasing Jenny. The drama was followed by the Trial scene from Pickwick. Mr Edward Terry, in the rôle of Sergeant Buzfuz, caused hearty laughter, and the other members of the cast were also successful.

Queen's Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr Kennedy Miller.—The boards are occupied here this week by Hardie and Von Leer's Two Little Vagabonds company, which has been well patronised. Mr Talbot Homewood gives an admirable delineation of George Thornton, and Miss Elena Lonsdale enacts Marion Thornton effectively. The Captain Darville of Mr Douglas Cecil is excellently depicted, and as John Scarth Mr Harry Major plays well. The rôle of Bill Muggins is in the capable hands of Mr H. Hesselgrave, and the parts of Dido Bunce and the Cough Drop are ably sustained by Messrs Charles Doe and Dick Winslow. Mr C. W. Crowe acquits himself well as Lesson, and Mr Dudley Harcourt is capital as Hargitt. Miss Frances Ferina is creditable as Dick, and the same may be said of Miss Phyllis French as Wally. As Barbara Scarth Miss Daisy Royale is satisfactory, and as Sister Randall and Mrs Mullins Miss Kate Hesselgrave and Miss Evelyn Shaw are both good in their respective parts.

Empire.—General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr A. S. Figgis.—Fred Maxwell's company in Lord Harkaway is the attraction here this week. Ford and Hanson, the musical millionaires, score a success; as does also Margaret Radcliffe, burlesque artiste. The Tribune Trio, in A Cheerful Idiot, evoke hearty applause; and Nello displays much ability as a contortionist. Juan and M'Que are a smart pair of comedians; and Charles Stevens is an exceedingly good character vocalist. George Newburn, who remains from last week, is still to the fore; and the Empire pictures are admired.

Tivoli.—General Manager, Mr Chas. M. Jones; Secretary, Mr H. A. Murphy.—This week the Max Trevally Troupe of trampolin acrobats top the bill and are nightly applauded; Fred Lloyd and company, in their sketch The Blind Spinster, are amusing; and Pete and Juno, coloured comedians, take well. An acceptable turn is provided by the American Comedy Four; and Testo is a capital musical acrobat; Harry Barker is a good character humourist; and Sid Bandon is an excellent actor-vocalist. Frank Hope, cyclist, Eileen Conroy, and the Bioscope pictures complete the entertainment.

DUNDEE.

Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; General Manager, Mr Landon Perkins.—In the Ranks is staged here this week, and is interpreted by Messrs Arthur Carlton and H. Armitage. Mr Edward Lloyd was seen to much advantage in the character of Ned Drayton. Mr Herbert Cecil as Gideon Blake brought out the villainous traits of the character with much force. Mr Cecil Clayton was very fair as Mr Buzzard; Mr Walter H. Wilson made a good appearance in the character of Richard Belton. Miss Annie Beaumont made a humorous Mrs Buzzard, and Miss Maud Staples as Barbara Herrick was in every way satisfactory. Miss Edith Blair Staples was very sympathetic as Ruth Herrick.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr Will Parker; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr Alf Ross.—Zarmo, comedy juggler, once more scores a success here. P. P. Bell, a local comedian, is well received; the Four Jumels are clever banjo players; and an entertaining musical turn is given by Queen and Le Brun. Fred Clements and J. C. Morris excel as comedians, and Frances Haskoll is heard to advantage in her illustrated songs. The Gartells, in a vocal comedy act, complete the bill.

Empire Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Will Percival. — Mr and Mrs Clifford's company presented On Circumstantial Evidence here on Monday. Mr Charles Clifford gave a vigorous rendering as Captain Hamilton; Mr A. M. Jones made an excellent Colonel. Mr Monson Thorpe acted with much spirit as Jack Ogilvy; Mr Henry Cooke was very much in demand, and kept the house in the best of humour with his ditties. Miss Maud Camfield as Violet Ogilvy and Miss M. Trevelyan in the double rôle of the Sisters Brandoni, gave excellent impersonations.

Gaiety, Limited.—Manager, Mr S. King Alexander.—The Hand of Iron is occupying the boards this week, and is played by Mr Roy Jackson's company. Mr Jackson undertakes the title-rôle with great success, and proves his skill as an actor. Mr George Lambton as Lucky Ned is capital. Mr Victor Vernon is very funny in the part of Hiram Duck. Mr Edward Ouston enacts the Jew ably. Miss Kitty Douglas as Marie Durogue, and Miss Inez Haram as May Sutherland both do well.

DUMFRIES.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. E. Potts.—The Ben Greet company was here for two nights (Monday and Tuesday last) with Florodora and The Belle of New York. Mr Gus Danby was a great success as Anthony Tweedlepunch, keeping the house in fits of laughter; Mr Edward Chester was well placed as Cyrus W. Gilfain; Mr Edward Crossland was very good as Frank Abercoed; Captain Arthur Donegal was in the capable hands of Mr Morrice Holmes; Miss Daisy Lake as Dolores showed great ability; and Miss Crissie Ralland as Lady Holyrood was very charming.

EASTBOURNE.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr George Hayes.—The first half of the variety programme is contributed by the Yokels; Miss Maggie Bowman is bright and animated in all her singing and dancing; Mr Tom J. Morton is most amusing; Miss Irene Marriott is very dainty; and Mr Leslie Gaze has a fine appearance and sings well in a rich tuneful voice. Miss Gertrella again charms as a graceful and daring gymnast "In Cupid's Garden;" Mr Bert Woodward is again a favourite in his neat cycle act; Mr Henry Kaiser is very smart as a juggler; the Ongars are clever quick-change artists and work hard as dancers; Musical Silvo excels with his novel musical instruments; and the Katos, with new songs and business, introduce their living marionettes.

EBBW VALE.

King's.—Lessees, Messrs Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Manager, Mr Arthur Knight.—A return visit of Mr Leslie Vyner's company in The Lightning's Flash was the attraction the first three nights of the week. Mr Leonard Robson as Stephen Merrick won frequent applause for a spirited impersonation. Gordon Garville was in the capable hands of Mr Sydney Kearns, and Mr Courtney Robinson as Jim Bargler was quite a success. Miss F. Russell-Spiers was seen to considerable advantage as Kate Merrick. On Thursday and Friday Mr James Stillwell and company appeared in the drama, Queen of the Night.

EDINBURGH.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Hollister.—The Belle of New York is paying a farewell visit to this theatre, and presented by Mr George Musgrove's company, drew a large and appreciative audience on Monday. Mr Harry A. Meymott played Ichabod Bronson in a clever and capable manner, singing and acting with untiring zest and humour. Harry Bronson was happily acted by Mr Philip Leslie, whose singing was much admired. Mr William Pringle made a great hit as Blinky Bill, his whistling solos being loudly encored, and Messrs Alfred Selby and Albert Sealy caused great amusement by their comical antics as the Portuguese Twins. Mr Max Copland was a first-rate Karl, and Mr Paddy Duprez played Kenneth Mugg with humour and effect, Mr Cecil Burt making a praiseworthy Sniffkins. Miss Beatrice Lamotte was a charming Violet Grey, singing and acting with sweetness and grace. Fifi Fricot had a dainty representative in Miss Lillian Digges, and Miss Ida Lawrence danced delightfully as Kissie Fitzgarter. Miss May Young was a lively Mamie Clancy, and Miss Alice Rene did well as Cora Angelique.

Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General Manager, Mr G. T. Minshull.—Sunday, presented at this theatre on Monday by Miss Julia Neilson and Mr Fred Terry, has proved very successful. The play was effectively staged and admirably acted by all concerned. The four rough miners of Silver Creek were cleverly and amusingly portrayed, Towzer being represented with conspicuous power by Mr Rothbury Evans, while Mr Alfred Kendrick, the exponent of Jacky, endowed the part with a dramatic intensity that was very telling. Mr J. Carter-Edwards also deserves special praise for his graphic rendering of Davy, and Mr Horace Hodges secured instant recognition for the happy vein of drollery in his masterly sketch of Lively. Mr Fred Terry played Colonel Brinthorpe with marked ability, his easy, natural manner suiting the character well. Mr J. D. Beveridge was excellent as the plainspoken Tom Oxley, and Mr Malcolm Cherry intensely effective as the scapegrace, Arthur Brinthorpe. Sunday, in the hands of Miss Julia Neilson, was an impersonation of exceptional brilliance, her bright spirits, emotional tenderness, and exquisitely finished acting forming an absolute attraction to the large audience, who received the performance with enthusiasm. Miss Bella Pateman was clever and charming as Mrs Naresby, and Miss Kathleen Doyle made a satisfactory appearance as a nun.

Empire Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss.—Some very beautiful effects were produced here on Monday, when Hagedorn's fairy grotto was exhibited. The scenic and kaleidoscopic surroundings were exceedingly pretty, and when the limelight was thrown in myriad hues upon the five fountains that played on the stage the spectacle was quite enchanting. Miss Selma Braatz introduced a number of difficult juggling feats, and was warmly applauded for her smartness. Lieut. Travis gave a capital ventriloquial entertainment, and among other first-class items the comic bull fight of the Cavallinis, the expert triple bar act of M'Phee and Hill, and Stewart and Morgan's Irish selections may be mentioned. Mr Albert Le Fre secured his usual success as a comedian and dancer, and the eccentric comedy of Mr Johnny Dwyer also pleased well. Miss Minnie Cunningham sung her ballads with artistic effect and an indefinite charm all her own, and Miss Flo Burris and Mr Charles Russell also appeared.

Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr Tom Ellis.—When a Man Hates was put on the stage here in an effective manner on Monday evening by a company under the triple management of Miss Olga Audre and Messrs Travis Green and Arthur Hinton. Pietro Danelli was cleverly represented by Mr Arthur Hinton; Mr Travis Green made an excellent Paul; and Mr Maurice Wynton was seen to advantage as Detective Smart. Mr W. Horsham also rendered good service to the cast as Lawrence Hastings. Miss Lelia Zillwood sustained the rôle of Olga Gwynne successfully, and commendation is due to Miss Marie E. Robertson for her clever appearance as Dolly Dimple.

Cooke's Royal Circus.—Proprietor, Mr John Henry Cooke.—Excellence and variety are the order of the evening here, and the week's programme fully maintains the high level of enterprise the proprietor has accustomed us to. Texas Hattie, an Indian girl, gives a clever exhibition on the tightrope, some of her feats being truly surprising. Madame Estella presents the trained stallion, Cigarette, in an elegant liberty act, and Clown Barker and Miss Roziska provide another enjoyable turn; while Miss Powell and Mons. Henry repeat their marvellous acrobatic triumph on horseback amid renewed acclamations of favour. Kentucky Beau, the Yankee cake-walk horse, also remains a notable feature of the bill. In the comic department Talberto and Douglas scintillate in one of their most hilarious scenes, and appearances by the Yoricks, the Brothers Leotard, and Horton and Linder are cordially received. Prairie Life Out West, with its dramatic incidents, picturesque mounting, and admirable acting, runs better than ever, and keeps the audience interested and amused till the last tableau has been shown.

EXETER.

Theatre Royal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy M. Dunsford.—Monsieur Beaucaire came here on Monday, and the repute which Mr Norman Macowan's company has acquired and the merits of this interesting costume drama were sufficient to make it a special attraction. Miss Violet Sterne as Lady Mary was both refined and graceful; Mr Norman Macowan deserves especial mention for his powerful and artistic rendering of the title-rôle; Mr F. Stuart Wilson did exceedingly well as the Duke of Winterset, and Mr Hubert Cornish's Major Molyneux was meritorious. Mr Conybeare Gough was both humorous and smart as Mr Rakell; and Mr Hans Schlesinger's Marquis De Mirepaux deserves special mention.

FALKIRK.

Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing Director, Mr R. C Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Horace W. Ebbutt.—The New Barmaid has been here. The whimsicality of Mr Joseph B. Montague as Bertie White proves highly amusing; Mr Alex. Loftus, under whose direction the comedy is produced, is very entertaining as William White; the singing of Mr Leslie Austin as Captain Lovebury is much enjoyed; as Dora Heather Miss Violet Osmund is pleasing; and Mr Frank Melroyd, in the character of Mons. Bonsor, does well. Others in the company worthy of note are Miss Hilda Blanche (the Old Barmaid), Mr Norman Bowyer (Gussie), and Mr Herbert Cottesmore as Colonel Claymore.

FOLKESTONE.

Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland.—Mr Arthur Eldred and company, in The Night of the Party, are here. Miss Maude Thompson makes a good Lady Hampshire; Miss Gladys Bartle-Frere is capable as Mrs Younge; Miss Blanka Stewart is a smart Gipsy Vandelier; Miss Beryl Graham and Miss Mabel Morley are excellent in their respective rôles of Nannie Portland and Baby Hastings; Miss Edith Stewart shows talent as Paulina; Mr Charles Lupton is in every way efficient as Sir Charles Hampshire; Mr Frank G. Bayley acts with judgment as Frank Frayne; Mr Hawley Francks as Mr Crosbie plays with credit; Mr Arthur Eldred sustains admirably his original rôle of Mr Roundle; Mr Coningsby Brierly is commendable as Mr Bogle; and Mr Alec Crichton is well suited as Alderman Hargen.

GAINSBOROUGH.

Royal Hall —Manager, Mr R. Kirk.—Mr St. Alban's company appeared here for three nights last week in the ever-tuneful Les Cloches de Corneville. Mr St. Alban gave an effective rendering of Gaspard; Mr Geo. A. Fox sang well as the Marquis; Mr Geo. Delaforce and Mr Fowler Thatcher were amusing as the Baillie and Gobo respectively; and Miss Lucie Fitzroy was a vivacious Serpolette. The chorus was excellent.

GATESHEAD.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, the Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Limited; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr J. Straughan.—J. W. Rowley, the well-known comedian, who heads the strong variety bill submitted here during the week, is responsible for an exceptionally good turn, as is Otto Schumann with his performing horses and dog. Chas. Pastor, laughing comedian, provides a capable turn, as also do Conan and Doyle, comedians. James Grant, comedian, causes much amusement, and the Revell Troupe are responsible for a very laughable sketch. Other good turns are provided by the Floradora Girls and Cordite.

GILLINGHAM (KENT).

Transfield's Hippodrome has the following attractive bill-of-fare:—Barney Stuart in his act entitled "Impersonalia;" the Three Sisters Gilbert, comediennes and top-boot dancers; Houpla and Hecla, equilibrists and acrobats; Blanche Newman, comedience and dancer; Alvantee on the sloping wire; Miss Unity Vezzey with her two performing dogs; John Yelding in an equestrian act; the sketch, His Lordship from Abroad; comicalities by Valdo, the clown; animated pictures, and a beauty show.

GLOUCESTER.

Theatre Royal.—Owners, Messrs C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr W. H. Weller.—Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company is appearing here in the charming comedy Cousin Kate. Mr Yorke Stephens, who was on the programme to play Heath Desmond, was unfortunately unable to sustain the character owing to sudden indisposition, and the part was undertaken by Mr Walter Ringham, who deseves high praise for his clever and effective interpretation. Mr Ringham's usual part, the Rev. James Bartlett, was enacted by Mr Donald Maclean with conspicuous ability. Miss Lilias Earle acts with irresistible charm as Kate Curtis; Miss Hilda Honiss gives great satisfaction as Amy Spencer; and Master Vyvian Thomas is excellent as Bobby Spencer. Mrs Spencer is ably embodied by Miss Helen Leyton, and Miss Betty Castle scores a laugh at every appearance as Jane. A Cure for Eviction precedes.

GOOLE.

Theatre Royal —Lessee, Mr John E. Tomlinson.—The dramatic musical comedy The Naval Detective was presented here on Monday night. The villain, Dr. Schreiner, is cleverly presented by Mr Allen Charles; Mr Arthur Beaufort gives a breezy and natural rendering of the part of Captain Hustle; the characters of Pat M'Guinness, Rev. Frequent Nipper, and Lieut. Jack Beresford are capably treated by Mr Fred J. Kirk; Mr Walter Langford's impersonation of the Hon, Bertie Fairlox evokes roars of laughter; Mr Albert Evremond does exceedingly well as Hans Winklepump; Miss Louie Fountain sings and acts charmingly in the dual-rôle of Phyllis Leslie and Bill Mainstay; Miss Edith Claris is full of humour in the part of Susan Scrubbs; Miss Olga Rosina as Lulu Kaufmann and Miss Lily Seymour as Rebecca Gentle are also highly successful. A special feature is the graceful dancing introduced in the Saloon scene by the Gaiety Girls, Miss Mamie Walsh and Miss Elsie Paul. On Thursday and Friday nights Mr Charles Macdona's company presented A Country Girl.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. W. Nightingale.—An excellent programme is again provided here, the favourite turn being the Okito Family, who in a Chinese magical act perform most astonishing feats. Little Uno proves himself a clever boy comedian. The Cranks provide a smart show as expert cyclists. The Brooks Brothers, comedians and patterers; the Sisters Brand, duettists and dancers; Arthur Royce, comedian; Sadie Seymour, comedienne and dancer; and Tell and Tell, equilibrists, help greatly in the success.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr Geo. Gilbert.—Crowded houses are the rule this week, and tremendous applause greets the band of the Scots Greys, which plays selections each evening. In addition, Martino gives a wonderful show as a contortionist; Florizell provides a pretty mirror act; Mrs Gilbert introduces her clever pony, Spot Beauty; the Zalvas give an amusing and smart comedy wire performance; James Stuart does wonders as the tramp at the piano; Alicia Mayne sings delightfully; Tudor's performing animals go through a clever turn; and fresh pictures are shown by the Bioscope. Little Doodles and Bishop succeed in keeping the audiences in roars of laughter.

GLASGOW.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Humphrys.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company is here with Alone in London, Mr Henry George playing the young miller, John Biddlecombe, in a pleasing manner; while the villainous Richard Radcliffe is ably performed by Mr Stephen Ewart. Mr Hugh Brady as Spriggins, the would-be dude, and Mr J. W. Wilkinson as the philosophic Jenkinson act amusing parts with much versatility. The part of the heroine, Annie Meadows, is satisfactorily rendered by Miss Madge Devereux; and Miss Ada Tilley is charming as the wandering waif, Tom Chickweed. Mr Lonnen Meadows as the travelling showman, and Miss Ada Elliston as his partner, Liza, add their full quota of fun to the drama. Mr Stafford Smith as a banker acts the staid man of business; and Mr Percy Davidson his erring son admirably.

ROYALTY, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. M. Downie.—That popular combination, the D'Oyly Carte Répertoire Company, opened here on Monday in The Mikado. Most of the old favourities are in their familiar places, notably, that clever artist, Mr C. H. Workman as Ko-Ko, Mr Fred Billington as the all-pervading Pooh-Bah, Mr Albert Kavanagh as the Mikado, Miss Theresa Rassam as Katisha, and Misses Norah Maguire and Jessie Rose as Yum-Yum and Pitti-Sing. A newcomer, Mr Pacie Ripple, as Nanki-Poo, proved himself a tenor of excellent vocal abilities, and a first-rate actor as well. Miss Mabel Burnege made a charming Peep-Bo, and gave her dialogue and songs with piquant effect. Mr Fred Drawater as Pish-Tush was of much value in the madrigal and other concerted pieces, his fine voice being much admired. The Yeomen of the Guard, Gondoliers, Iolanthe, Pinafore, and Trial by Jury formed the programme on the later evenings of the week.

KING'S, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr H. Macfarlane.—This week Mr George Edwardes's company in The Orchid is paying a return visit to this city. Miss Coralie Blythe and Miss Gertrude Gilliam again take their respective parts of Lady Violet and Josephine, and receive a hearty welcome. The humour of Mr Lawrence Grossmith's Guy Scrymgeour appeals strongly to the audience, and Mr Donald Hall is still popular in the part of Dr. Fausset, the Cassignat of Mr Sam Walsh being another excellent bit of comedy. The part of Meakin is taken this visit by Mr George Gregory, who proves himself a comedian of considerable resource, while Mr Sidney Vincent, an expert dancer, fills the part of Zaccary in good style. Miss Irene Verona reappears as Caroline Vokins with capital results, and Miss Luna Love shows versatile talent in the part of Thisbe, other clever assumptions being the Countess Anstruther of Miss Kate Leechman and the Zelie Rumbert of Miss Ethel Griffies. In manner and make-up the Chesterton of Mr Ellis Ogilvie is admirable, and as the eccentric Frenchmen Messrs E. Rutland and E. G. Woodhouse are funny, the Registrar of Mr Frank Hector being also amusing. The chorus and orchestra are outstanding features in this production, and are under the direction of Mr Ernee Woodville.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr Hugh Murdoch.—Mr John Leopold's company is here in their musical absurdity, New Frivolity. Mr Herbert Lewis as Oliver Buckwheat is funny in his various disguises. Mr Barry Lupino as Samuel Vermiglio is good, acting the mischievous schoolboy admirably. Mr Tony Leopold takes the part of Professor Fumble very well. Miss R. Wyndham as Madame Cobweb, the school mistress, is amusing. Miss Amy Hall as Lucy Buckwheat is excellent. Mr John Leopold, jun., as Daniel Teething, is a good singer and dancer. Mr Wilfred Vaughan as Jules Vermiglio, plays the part of a Frenchman very well, and causes much laughter. Mr Willie Leopold as Tickle, the page, is extremely funny, and his antics cause much amusement. Mr Levesque as Tocassar, an eccentric waiter, is also very good.

METROPOLE.—Managing Director, Mr Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr John Dunbar.—Messrs Haddon and Loader's company, in The King of Thieves, has been well received here. Mr Jack Haddon appears in the title part, and scores in his several disguises. Mr Ernest Munro is effective as Sir Gilbert Redville, and Mr John Cecil convincing as the young fireman, Harry Travers. Mr Walter Domoney as Arthur Redville makes much of the part of the young spendrift, while Mr Harry Liddel as a lawyer's clerk is seen to advantage in a rôle that gives scope for some comedy, in which he is ably assisted by Miss Marguerite Thorne as Mrs O'Brien and Miss Lottie Pearce as Polly Puff. Maud Desmond finds a good exponent in Miss Marie Rayner. She and Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam as Mary Manners have several opportunities for the display of their ability. Mr Jack Lennol is particularly good as the French Cook, Jean Vitelli, and Mr Geo. Herbert is a sufficiently repulsive bully.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr J. H. Oakden. — Dr. Walford Bodle's entertainment is drawing crowded houses. Profound wonder is caused by his demonstrations in bloodless surgery. This, however, is soon followed by general amusement at the antics of people under his hypnotic influence. The Schallers, comedy gymnasts, give a very lively contribution to the programme; and the Marionette palace is a distinct success. Dolly Robson sings very sweetly; several songs are very capably rendered by Gerald Lopez and La Petite Bella; and the Sisters Lyle are smart duettists and dancers. The Garden Troupe of international dancers and pipers do a very smart turn, and are thoroughly appreciated.

WHITEVALE.—Proprietor, Mr George Green.—Under the Russian Flag is this week being ably presented by Messrs Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company. Mr F. W. Freeman gives a clever reading of Ivan Romanoff; Miss Ada Champion sustains the part of Vera Vassiloff with ability; Mr Walter Howard cleverly presents Captain Demetrius; and Mr George Arthur as Michael Romanoff is a capital villain. Miss Ellen Snow submits a good character sketch of Luka Marischla; Wolf Marischla finds a capable exponent in Mr Charles Liddon; and Mr Charles Reyne, who doubles the rôles of General Romanoff and Colonel Souvaroff, gives good interpretations. The comic element as depicted by Mr Hal Forde as Petor Poluskie, Miss Agnes Howard as Ogarita, and Mr Alfred Bennett as Alexis Skopolopki contributes largely to the enjoyment.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss's Limited.—Eugene Stratton is going stronger than ever, his "Lily of Laguna," "I may be crazy," and a new song, "That gal of Johnson's," all proving big favourites. Tom Leamore's eccentricities are most amusing, and his dude song is particularly happy. Lily Burnand has some catchy songs, and gives them with good effect. Leona Dare's wonderful feat of holding from a trapeze a lady vocalist and an organ, while the lady sings and plays, is a sensational turn. Sybil St. Elmo gives "Il Bacio" with much taste, and good musical items are contributed by the Schutzenlieserl'n Quartet and the St. James's Quintet. Tom Maxwell and Virginia Frances are making a big hit here in their comedy duets and dances. De Kock Brothers, head balancers; Gilbert Rogers, vocalist; Abel and Welsh, knock-about contortionists; and the Bioscope complete a good show.

TIVOLI AND QUEEN'S.—Proprietors, Messrs Colquhoun and Armstrong, Limited; Managing-Director, Barney Armstrong; Acting-Managers, Messrs T. M. Colquhoun and Fred C. Ewing. — Very large audiences testify to the appreciation of the bill-of-fare provided here. Mr W. F. Frame—"the man you know"—heads the list, and neither time nor age seems to impair his originality or popularity. Miss Marie Kendall is the next "star" in a good constellation, and she adds to her present reputation as a first-class comedienne nightly. The Daunton-Shaw Troupe are in the front rank of marvellous cycle riders, and it must be admitted there are now many clever devotees of "the whirling wheel." Variety is imparted by that funny couple Tate and Tate, acrobatic comedians; Mr Arthur Slater, comedian; Mr Geo. Prince, and Dandy George and his clever dog. The Orpheus instrumental speciality is a most entertaining one; Mr Steve Cooke and the Sisters M'Carthy entertain in quite charming style, and are heartily applauded. Valoni introduces a clever and pleasing turn with a troupe of well-trained pigeons; and the Sisters Neilson attract considerably. Bendon's pictures are varied and enjoyable.

PALACE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Rich. Waldon and Thomas Barrasford; Assistant-Manager, Mr H. M'Kelvie.—The programme arranged here for the week is full of interest. The outstanding item is Staig's motor sensation—racing on an aerial circle—which was breathlessly watched by the large audience. Another good turn is that of Duncan's Royal Scotch Collies. The other items include Clive Watts, comedian and dancer; the Wallonells, gymnasts; Dale and Vale, comedians and dancers; Kitty Clover's comedy company, in a laughable sketch; Brothers Ashley, in a clever boxing act; Imro Fox, illusionist; the Picquays, acrobats; and a series of up-to-date animated picturer.

BRITANNIA. — Lessee, Mr James Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr George Saphrini. — A first-class company is billed here this week, the programme submitted being varied and interesting. The Henderson and Stanley Quartette top the bill and had a great reception, their musical selections and clever jokes being all that could be desired. The singing and dancing of Malcombe and Sullivan are much appreciated, and Miss M. Bennie, soprano, and Mr A. Murray, baritone contribute excellent songs. The other members of the company include Katie Holloway, serio; D. Wright, comedian; Alec Kendal, comedian; M'Askell, talking conjuror; J. G. Aitken, comedian; Charlie Cower, eccentric comedian, and the farcical sketch, Sweethearts and Wives, produced by Messrs Gregory and Pollard's company.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical Secretary, Mr Wm. Biggam.—Polly Heath, in her smart songs and clever sand dancing, is a draw here. G. W. Fyvie's Irish ditties go well, and he is a dancer of much ability. The Downes Family give some clever musical and vocal items; Bonetti and Carrie introduce a smart juggling act; Wm. C. M'Phie and Miss Isa Hamilton each contribute good songs. and Bishop and Vale, Tom Berrick, Tony Black, and Fred Collins ably sustain the humorous element.

GRAVESEND.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr David Hart.—The company here this week includes Menotti, the Stockholm wonder and high telephone wire cyclist, who carries a man across the wire. Minnie Dare, bright comedienne and dancer; Harry Martell, a favourite comedian and dancer; Ovieto and Bray, interesting comedy and speciality artistes; Daisy Ray, sweet coon singer and novel sand dancer; Mark Leslie an extremely original and amusing comedian, and the clown Learto, in his diverting performance with his clever dog Babs, are all well received.

GREENOCK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Executors of the late Mr Alex. Wright; Managers, Messrs A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Mr Frank Bateman's company is playing At War with Women here. Mr Gordon Godfrey distinguishes himself as Dr. Mandle, Mr Clinton Baddeley does well as Antolski, and Mr A. G. Polson-Turner fills the rôle of Count Clovitch with success. The part of General Malakoff is excellently played by Mr Fred Vaughan, Mr Arthur Balmoral is very good as Captain Volsky, and Mr Edward E. Louis embodies Lieutenant Alexis with care. Mr Fisher Smith is a first-rate exponent of Fedora Pannovlski, and the part of Jerry Blake is creditably performed by Mr W. C. Bland. Mr Fred Parkes deserves praise for his Hans Phocas, Mr Herbert J. Walton is effective as Lazinski, and Mr Frank Davies is commendable as Francesca Corblanque. Mr Bert Hammond as Antonio and Mr John Wood as Stephano are both clever. Miss Lizzie Montague gives a realistic portrayal of Auriel Romanoff, Miss Marion Warren as Frida Malakoff is applauded, and Miss Mabel Leigh is well received as Katinka. Miss Louise Cavanagh is a powerful Louise Tolska, and the parts of Mirette, Evangeline, and Dame Miska are capably enacted by Miss Eva Laner, Miss Cissie Isaacson, and Miss Edith Matt respectively.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. L. Skivington. — Prince Fee Lung heads the bill here and does a number of amazing conjuring feats. Marion Edwards, soprano vocalist is good. Stanley and Tichbourne are clever comedians and patterers. Selbo is an expert club juggler and plate thrower. Madame Loule, thought reader, supplies an interesting turn. The Jeteys, coloured comedians, are exceptionally able. Mdlle. Du Roche operatic vocalist, sings sweetly. Fred Curren, comedian, is amusing, and the Mezondos are smart barrel jumpers.

GRIMSBY.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Mr Fred Karno's comedians have presented their latest laughab'e production Saturday to Monday here this week. Mr Fred Kitchen is the central figure, his drolleries and quaint mannerisms as John Willie Jaggs causing much merriment. Miss Aggie Morris acts with pleasing vivacity as Clorinda Blake. The parts of Jaggs' eccentric juveniles are amusingly represented by Mr Dick Harcourt as John Willie, jun., Mr Lepo as Bartlett, and Master W. Bentley as Jane Eller. Excellent singing is accomplished by Mr Frank Haylett as Tom Freeman, whilst Miss Gladys Whyte charmingly portrays Violet. Miss Ada Maskell is responsible for some laughable burlesque as Aunt Skinner, whilst mention must be made of Mr Charles Baldwin as Mr Potts and Mr Walter Purvis as Mr Blake. Besides the numerous comedy incidents a number of smart musical specialities are introduced in the course of the three acts.

THE HIPPODROME.—The Dayton Family have proved as popular as ever at the Hippodrome this week, and their exhibition of difficult feats of tumbling, which are exceptionally neatly performed, has nightly been accorded long rounds of applause. The Porter and the Parcel is the title of a particularly amusing sketch, presented by Howard and Collinson, the antics of the porter and a supposed mechanical doll which is introduced causing roars of laughter. Besides accomplishing smart dancing, the Sisters Bartholomew have sung some very pretty songs. Onda and Artell have displayed remarkable skill on the trapeze, whilst the juggling of Primavesi has also created much interest. Other good turns have been given by Happy Attwood, comedian and juvenile impersonator, and Gracie Logar, vocalist and dancer, whilst the Sheffield Photo Co. have exhibited a series of new animated pictures.

HORWICH.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Arthur Sandiford.—This week variety reigns supreme. Mdlle. Dorvigny, the celebrated Parisian cantatrice, tops the bill, her rendering of several old ballads being a great musical treat. Avon and Crest are capable duettists and speciality artistes; Will Letters is funny in his good songs; Nancy Renshaw, Negro comedian and bone soloist, is responsible for an interesting performance; Lily Le Breton's daring feats on the high trapeze are loudly applauded; Nellie Graham, speciality dancer, is decidedly good; and Little Renie, child impersonator. Alice Jumell, banjo and mandoline soloist; and Mr John Montgomery, humorous sketch artist, are very successful.

HALIFAX.

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—La Poupée (Mr E. Lockwood's company) is here this week. The principals are all worthy of praise, and include Miss Midge Clarke, a charming and clever Alesia; Mr T. A. Shale, an ideal Lancelot; Mr Eliot Skinner, who sings well as Father Maxime; Mr W. H. Page, good as Balthazar; Mr Arthur Reynolds, a humorous and effective Hilarius; and Messrs Chas. M'Lagan and Fred Walsh as Loremois and Chanterelle.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Steuart Cecil.—This week's bill includes Dutch Daly, solo concertinist; Maud Rose, comedienne and dancer; Will Mitcham, who plays on various instruments; Zenary Brothers, acrobats; Clayton Twins, comedians; the Haywards, a couple of versatile young ladies who are particularly good dancers; Ian Colquhoun, baritone vocalist; Leslie Brothers, musicians and comedians; Dolly Harmer, vivacious comedienne; and Drew and Alders, comedians.

HANLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr C. Elphinstone.—Mr Chas. Elphinstone is to be congratulated upon his excellent bookings. Following Miss Ellen Terry, we have this week Mr George Dance's company in that successful light comedy The Duchess of Dantzic. Mr Albert Chapman as Sergeant Lefebvre is exceedingly well placed; Mr Frederick Moyes as Napoleon contributes a really clever impersonation; Sans-Gêne has a most praiseworthy exponent in Miss Rita Presano, who sings nicely; and Miss Alice Coverick as Renee does exceptionally well in the part. Mr Maxwell is also seen to advantage.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr C. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr James Wynes.—Mr Joe O'Gorman heads the bill this week and meets with much success, his tale-telling causing roars of laughter. Spry and Austin are a really humorous pair; the Missouris are once more seen in their funny acrobatic turn, which is really clever; the O'Learys are also acrobats of the first water; Thornbury as an artist is most entertaining; Miss Florence is a capital mimic; Miss Marie Weston dances in good style; and the Carlyles are smart Continental dancers.

HARROGATE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager Mr Smith.—Mr John Denton, supported by his clever company, opened a three nights' engagement here on Monday with the drama, A Modern Judas, in which Mr Denton gave a vigorous interpretation of the part of Eikanah Pearce. Mr Frank Beresford's Jack Vavasour was also a fine performance. The villainies of Captain Melbourne were portrayed in striking style by Mr Percy Rhodes, and Mr Willie Scott gave a fine piece of comedy acting as Tom Hopkins. Miss Ada Palmer as Agatha Pearce and Miss Violet King as Clara Rivers were extremely successful, and as Elsie Miss Walbran gave a capital study. The Polly Hopkins of Miss Dolly Harcourt was also a lively and energetic performance. Mr Henry Eglington's company, in the farcical comedy, One of the Family, were announced for Thursday evening.

HARTLEPOOL.

EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; General Manager, Mr Harry Burns.—A musical treat of exceptional quality is afforded this week by the New York Comedy Four, who in duets and concerted pieces are being well received. Another musical turn that calls for especial praise is that by Signor and Madame Borelli in their humorous and musical tit-bits. Dainty Daisy Dormer has many admirers, and deservedly so; her talents in singing and dancing are exceedingly good. Marie Gibson prettily renders some popular ballads. Caram's ventriloquial entertainment is marvellously clever and exceptionally funny. J. W. Ellison, vocal comedian, and Louis Kerno are old favourites. The eccentric comedy dancing by Vasey and Ramsey is a brilliant success. Harry Grey, "the comedy merchant," is well received, and Burns's Bioscope continues to attract.

HASTINGS.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Geo. H. Gaze.—On Monday Mr Walter Melville's company opened here with A Disgrace to Her Sex. Miss Grace Heywood as Hilda Valley gave a fine impersonation of the complex character. Mr Eugene Santley acted commendably as David Carrington; Mr Harry Marlow as Jack Dawes successfully enacted the lover of Mildred; Miss Nellie Lucas was sweet and amiable as Mildred Carrington; and Miss Winnie Tempest easily won admiration for her natural delineation of Mabel Valley. Mr David G. Noble played in a manly fashion as Arnold Travers. Some amusing comedy was supplied by Mr Arthur Byron as Barnaby Mugg and Miss Madge Yates as Bella, and Jules Delaret was very ably embodied by Mr Phil Harper. Mr Arthur Chisholm as Dexter and Miss Cecile Rene as Lucy acted with distinction.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr J. D. Hunter.—A Fight for Millions is being performed by Mr Robert Perris's company. Richard Dudley is well represented by Mr H. Booth, and Mr F. Acton is good as Solomon Moses. Mr Perris gives a good character sketch of Tom Manley. An excellent representative of Dudley's deserted wife is Miss Eckhart. The Tramp is well acted by Mr L. Clements. As little Madge Miss W. Acton is attractive, and Miss E. Purcell gives a charming rendering of Pearl Rivers.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master Mr Elvey Thomas; Entertainment Manager, Mr Drew Mackintosh.—The inaugural performances of a winter orchestra took place here on Tuesday. The opening ceremony was performed by the Hon. Mrs Freeman-Thomas, who was supported by Mr Freeman-Thomas, M.P., Lord Brassey, the Mayor of Hastings, &c. A large band will be conducted by Mr Val Marriot; and Miss Maude Thornton will be the principal solo vocalist.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Harold Penny.—Miss Nina Elmo, an attractive comedienne, is here; Miss Lillie Lassah, coon singer and dancer, is warmly welcomed; Mr Henry Troy has a cultivated tenor voice; Tostis, mandolinist, is appreciated; Olivetta is a very smart and original juggler; Ross and Grayson score successfully in their versatile comedy; Miss Lilian Lea submits delightful renderings of popular ballads; and Messrs Burns and Evans keep the audience in good humour with an amusing sketch.

HULL.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr W. Morton; Resident Manager, Mr W. F. Morton.—Thanks to the enterprise of Mr Morton, the Beerbohm Tree Shakespearian répertoire company paid its first visit to this city on Monday, with The Merry Wives of Windsor. The Falstaff of Mr Eardley Turner was very humorous, and Mr Arthur Bruce was capital as Caius. As Master Ford Mr Wm. Haviland made the very best of the rôle. Mr E. A. Warburton was a capital Host. Mr Reg. Ian Penny was commendable as Master Slender. Mr Chas. Bibby's Hugh Evans was a delightful study. The sweetness of Miss Margaret Halstan's Anne Page was earnestly recognised, and Mistress Ford and Mistress Page were embodied with skill by Miss Constance Collier and Miss Cicely Richards. On Tuesday Mr Wm. Haviland had his opportunity in Julius Cæsar, his elocutionary skill and histrionic ability being strongly in evidence.

GRAND THEATRE, OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; Local Manager, Mr Wynn Miller.—The Money Makers is here this week. Miss Frances Davis, to whom the rôle of Bella is allotted, makes the most of her chances. The confiding Dot and Mabel find satisfactory representatives in Miss Lilian Locke and Miss Lorna Lawrence. Mr Allen Thomas as the Scotchman keeps the house in a roar.

HEBBURN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr W. A. Jackson; Acting-Manager, Mr Thos. Robson.—A much-appreciated turn is provided here by W. Permane and his educated bears, which evoke much amusement and interest in their wonderful performance. The Two Eltons meet with a cordial reception in a comedy bar act. Percy Hannan, the American boy baritone, is heard to advantage; Ady Burns contributes successfully as character comedian and dancer; some clever statuary posing is submitted by the Marblesques; Clarice Mignon is a clever banjo soloist; Ben Nevis is a quaint comedian and dancer; and Dora Denmark completes the bill.

HUDDERSFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy G. Arthur. — Mr Edward Morris and company are presenting that inconsequent medley The Dandy Doctor. Miss Florence Smithers as Jane simply bubbles over with humour. Mr Edward Morris, a brisk comedian, is well fitted in the part of Brown, the tinned-meat millionaire. Mr James Danvers has a crisp, telling style as Colonel Pendred, being ably assisted in his burlesque of the pianoforte virtuoso by the Pierette. Miss Lizzie Primmer sings with go as Ivy Pendred; Mr Walter Nugent is capable as Arthur Vandyke; and Mr W. N. Gilmore has a congenial part as Bertie Bolingbroke. There is some clever acrobatic dancing by Miss Florence Allen and Miss Cissy Evelyn. Mr Ben Rowe and Miss Holden—a real coloured pair—contribute a strikingly graceful variation of the time-worn cake-walk. The chorus is bright and well costumed, and some pretty scenery adds to the attractivess of the production.

HYDE.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr Joseph W. Maloney.—Messrs H. J. Callan and Wentworth Croke's company is here this week, representing Florodora. Mr C. Young Fixott as Cyrus W. Gilfain is happily suited to the part. Messrs William Everard and J. Graham Huntley as Frank Abercoed and Captain Arthur Donegal respectively act admirably and sing with musicianly feeling, and Mr A. E. Colbey makes an efficient Leandro. Mr Arthur Lenville is excruciatingly funny as Anthony Tweedlepunch. Miss Violet Bronson is a charming Dolores, and renders her numbers with sweetness and expression. A bright and vivacious Lady Holyrood is Miss Dorothy Sephton, and Angela Gilfain has a dainty representative in Miss May Gates, whose songs and dances are well received. The chorus is well balanced and the staging is excellent.

IPSWICH.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. G. Fisk.—Under Two Flags has been played here during the week. Mr Alfred Goddard as Bertie Royellieu gave a manly and earnest impersonation; Mr Charle D. Pitt was a villain of the orthodox type; and Mr Will Hook was a humorous valet. Miss Celia Gordon and Miss Laura Walker did well in the chief female characters. Aunt Rebecca is the opening farce.

IPSWICH HIPPODROME.—Among the fresh attractions this week at the Woodbridge-road place of entertainment were the Imperial Boys' Orchestra, a troupe of clever instrumentalists and vocalists; Bert Atherton, comedian and patter singer; Tom Collins, a clever dancer; Master Wallace, boy comedian; the Marlingtons, variety artists; and Matt Wilkinson and company, in an amusing sketch entitled The Registry Office.

JARROW.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Hugh Robertson.—This week Miss Nettie Ware's company is paying a visit with a drama entitled When Woman Hates. Mr W. Yates gives a good account of Sir Henry Rokeby; Mr J. Petley is capable as Lieut. Fred Rokeby; Mr Oscar Adye gives a powerful rendering of Godfrey Lawton; Mr Bensley Evans is quite at home as Hiram R. Vaneuton; Mr Will Percy is droll as Police-constable O'Brien from Cork; Miss Olive Lanty gives a first-class portrayal of the part of Cora Daintry; Miss Jennie Hughes is good in the part of Marie Rokeby; Nellie Rokeby is presented with ability by Little Ivy Henigan; and Miss V. Carlyle submits a good rendering of Mrs Sally Potts.

KETTERING.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. Fowkes.—Mr St. Alban and company are here with Les Cloches De Corneville. Mr St. Alban presents a fine performance of Gaspard, and Mr Geo. A. Fox is a capable Marquis De Corneville. Mr George Delaforce as The Baillie and Mr Fowler Thatcher as Gobo keep the audience highly amused by their efforts; Mr Walter Cranbourne is a satisfactory Grenichaux; and Miss Lucie Fitzroy as Serpolette leaves nothing to be desired.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Payne.—The attraction this week is Mr Henry Bedford and company in Mafeking and Gipsy Jack.

KIDDERMINSTER.

NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr R. C. Gudgeon, jun.—The Ben Greet company is here the first three nights this week with The Eternal City. Mr D. Lewin Mannering is seen to great advantage in the rôle of Baron Bonelli. Miss Edith Anton Laing deserves congratulation on her acting of the part of Donna Roma. For Thursday A Bunch of Violets was the play produced.

KING'S LYNN.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Bannister Howard; Business Manager, Mr Herbert Leonard.—On Monday A Trip to Chinatown was presented by Mr Leslie Norman's company, which is exceptionally strong. A special feature was the smart dancing by the Three Canadian Belles in the third act. Mr Charles Seguin as Welland Strong, the dying man, is excellent; Mr Jerrold Manville as Ben Gay is highly successful; Mr Leslie Norman does well as Rashleigh Gay; Mr Will Smith makes a good Noah Heap; Miss Harriet Fawn as Mrs Guyer, the widow, sings well; Miss Dorothy Vicott as Flirt is good; and Miss Florrie M'Innes is charming as Tiny Gay. Mr M'Innes is the musical director. On Thursday Ben Greet's company appeared in East Lynne.

KEIGHLEY.

QUEEN'S THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Barnes.—The Moody-Manners opera company provide a musical treat here this week. Faust was performed on Monday evening to an enthusiastic audience. Mr Edward Arthur possesses a good voice, and his Faust was very successful. Mr Charles Tilbury scored heavily as Mephistopheles; Valentine was in the capable hands of Mr David Fuller; Marguerite had charming interpretation from Miss Crichton; Miss Teify Davies delighted all as Siebel; and Mr Frank Rowe and Miss Moore completed an excellent cast. Carmen was performed on Tuesday, with Miss Teify Davies in the title-rôle.

LEAMINGTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr Harry Eaden.—A welcome return visit is being paid by If I Were King, which is most adequately played by Mr Frank Fenton and company. Mr Fenton enacts the rôle of Villon in a thoroughly artistic manner, and Miss Marion Gray's Katherine is a wonderfully clever study. The part of the King is ably taken by Mr Clive Currie; Miss Louise Vansitter is a successful Abbess; and all the other characters are in capable hands.

LEEDS.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; General Manager, Mr Fredk. Vincent.—The Duke of Killicrankie is at the Grand this week, and proves a thoroughly enjoyable tit-bit. Mr Langhorne Burton presents the name-part very creditably, his acting throughout being pleasing and effective. Mr Arthur Grenville is exceedingly amusing in his humorous caricature of Mr Pitt-Welby, M.P., Miss Doris Templeton submits the part of Lady Henriette with exceeding charm and grace; and Miss Aida Jenoure proves a most effective foil in the rôle of Mrs Mulholland, the glue-maker's widow. Barbara, the curtain-raiser, is well played by Miss Margaret Damer, Miss Gillian Scaife, and Mr Guy Newall.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General Manager, Mr C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Bush. — Mr Walter Melville's powerful new drama, The Female Swindler, is having a week of success here in the hands of Mr Tom H. Taylor's strong company. Miss Violet Ellicott leaves nothing to be desired in her accomplished presentation of the adventurous Lu Valroy, an exceedingly fine performance. The part of the detective, Jack Coulson, is cleverly presented by Mr Jerrold Heather. Mr Luke Foster has a many-sided rôle, and is effective in every phase of it; Mr Weldon Atherstone makes a powerful stage villain; and Mr Rule Pyott, Miss Florrie Kelsey, and Miss Evelyn Marrable are also seen to advantage.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr R. Ernest Liston.—The visit of Fred Karno's company with that most attractive farce His Majesty's Guests is an exceedingly popular engagement. Mr Harry Roxbury as Sergeant Lightning is immensely successful; Mr Charles Usher is Miffin; Mr Fred Whittaker displays great acrobatic proclivities as the ubiquitous flunkey; and a clever portrayal of Lord Easem goes to the credit of Mr Frank Morton. Maud, the shoplifter, is well represented by Miss Lenora Castelle; Miss Edith Ager is a charming Dolly Miffin; and Mr Harry Stuart and Miss Blanche La Rose sustain leading comedy parts with success.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr T. Gerald Morton.—The famous lion-tamer Herr Julius Seeth is here giving his wonderful exhibition with twenty-three of his pets. Rosie Archer is a popular contributor with clever mimicry; Griff again submits an amusing turn; Hal Forde is a smart comedian; Fanny Robina, comedienne, is on a welcome return visit; the Eight of Hearts sing and dance in pleasing style; as also do the Sisters Iris; a comedy sketch by Fiske and M'Donough goes extremely well; Vesper contributes an original turn; and Fred Lincoln and Pat Rafferty are also appearing.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr Thos Barrasford; General Managers, Messrs Chas. Weldon and Edgar O. Waller.—One of Mr John Tiller's entertaining companies is here with the diverting farce, High Jinks. A popular turn is that of Amy Augarde, the accomplished burlesque actress. Dion Wade, an eccentric comedian, again scores a success; as also do Harris and Worth, patter comedians, and the Kyaskas, in a clever athletic speciality. Madeleine May is an enjoyable comedienne; J. H. Scotland renders baritone solos very acceptably, and the programme is completed by Mons. Hurman, expert juggler, and T. W. Royal, comedian and speciality dancer.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr F. W. Wood; General Manager, Mr J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Jones.—The leading turn here is Jordan and Harvey, a pair of exceedingly clever Hebrew comedians, who score a big success with original business. Cassie Walmer, the well-known comedienne, is as popular as ever; Billy Williams again sings his clever little ditties to general satisfaction; the Sivronis are entertaining in their clever burlesque sketch; Bob and Jennie Leonard submit their original show with great success; and the Sisters Pine have a clever act, which is greatly appreciated. A pantomimic sketch by the Five Bon-Bons is a popular line; the Langdons submit the usual illustrated song turn; and Harry Zetter, comedian and dancer, is also in the bill.

LEIGH.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Dewhurst.—Messrs John A. Atkin and Walter Howe's company is appearing here this week in A Victim of Villainy. Mr Walter Howe is excellent as Frank Manton, the part of the villain, Stephen Cavanagh, is in the capable hands of Mr Sydney Arnold; Mr Arthur Staples makes the most of the comedy part of Tom Leckie; and as Walter Lennox Mr Leonard Howe does exceedingly well. Miss Marietta Hyde makes a sympathetic Mary Manton; as Alice Cavanagh Miss Helena Walbran acts with much force; Miss E. H. Russell is well suited as Mrs Leckie; and as Vera Diamond Miss Connie Meadows is pleasing, Miss Cissy Bertrant deserving praise as Eric.

LIVERPOOL.

ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Arthur Lawrence.—The welcome accorded on Monday to Mrs Langtry in Mrs Dering's Divorce was an enthusiastic one. In Mr Paul Arthur as Captain Dering, Mrs Langtry had an able supporter, his grasp of a somewhat difficult character being meritorious. Miss Lilian Revell was a capital Miss Verner; Miss Lellia Repton gave pleasure with her Mrs Haydon; as Lord Granpier Mr Courtenay Thorpe was masterful; and Miss Helen Palgrave and Mr Ernest Stern acted with finish and effect. A curtain-raiser was The Brothers.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr J. M. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr J Gaffney.—The melodious Florodora has attracted large audiences here this week, Mr Tom B. Davis having sent a talented company of artists. An old Liverpool favourite, Mr Edward Lewis, was responsible for continuous laughter that greeted his Tweedlepunch, receiving valuable assistance from Mr Fred Wind, an able artist. Miss Lena Maitland presented a delightful Dolores, being loudly applauded for her singing. Miss Hilda Dugdale was a sweet Angela Glifain, Miss Isabella Dillon an imposing Lady Holyrood, Mr Fred Wise a good Cyrus Glifain, and Mr Leonard Russell a satisfactory Frank Abercoed.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. French; Acting-Manager, Mr S. Beltram.—A Pair of Spectacles has commanded much attention at the "little house in the square." Mr Brember Wills was an admirable Benjamin Goldfinch; Mr W. T. Elworthy played the brother with distinction; a neat piece of work was the Mrs Goldfinch of Miss Beth Elliott; and other artists of merit were Mr Harold Standing, Mr A. Leonard, Mr C. Weldon, Mr Sam Wilkinson, jun., Miss Kathleen Maitland, and Miss Escott Robson.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Licensee, Mr J. G. Howard; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Montgomery, jun.—Mr Walter Melville's play with the striking title Her Second Time on Earth has during the week occupied the boards of the north-end theatre. The company responsible belongs to the author, and includes Miss Hilda Beverley, who with credit enacts Dora Grey, the principal character. The play is one that suits the taste of a Rotunda audience, which is evidenced by the marked appreciation that has been shown to it.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Coles.—Mr J L. Shine, supported by Messrs Chas. Stuart, E. Story Gofton, and Miss Nora Levenston, in the prettily written sketch, Hogmanay, tops the bill here, and unstinted applause is evoked by the delightfully acted piece. Woolford's circus is very well received; Johnny Holland and company, in the sketch My Friend, Boots, are the cause of much amusement; the Pardoes' mixture of sketch and gymnastics is original, laughable, and interesting; Drum and Major are very good at patter; Bros. Esdale are answerable for much amusement; Mollie Doon is always a favourite; The Dude's Dilemma, by the Cullane Trio, is well applauded; and George Foyle is a good character vocalist.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr M. Simmons.—A treat has during the week been provided here. Mr Arnold Bell, an accomplished actor, and his first-class company have for five nights given Benmy-Chree, and on Friday played The Shaughraun. As Dan Mylrea Mr Bell was admirable; Miss Frances Campbell proved a charming Mona Mylrea; Mr Cuthbert Imrie acted well the rôle of Ewan Mylrea; Mr Frank C. Robson was a stern Deemster; and Mr H. M. Clifford presented a well-finished character of the Bishop.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr Fred Granville.—Messrs Dottridge and Longden's company have been playing here to large audiences The Midnight Mail. Mr George Harvard made a capital engine-driver, Harry Steyne, and his wife Mary was presented with success by Miss Ada Oakley. Mr Fred G. Evison submitted a humorous sketch of Billy Brewer, a drunken stoker. Other rôles were in the hands of Mr Charles M'Cann, Mr Alec Alves, Miss Mildred Carr, and Miss Millie Stevenson.

EMPIRE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr H. E. Moss; Acting-Manager, Mr T. A. Cook.—A bill of a varied character was presented here this week. At the top is Mr R. A. Roberts, the protean actor, who gives with much success his sketch Dick Turpin. Messrs A. C. Lilly and company remain another week with Drummed Out, and the Lukushima Troupe of Japanese equilibrists submit a brilliant performance; Mark Sheridan creates great laughter with his songs and business; a pretty turn is that given by Baker and Balfe on their xylophones; and others are the Four Milons, equilibrists; George Reeves, the M'Kays, Ambrose Thorne, Espinosa and Neilson, dancers; Margaret Ashton, Austin and Cowan, and the Three Georgis.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Vesta Victoria is in big type here this week, and has charmed large audiences with her excellent songs and dances. Edward Ransley's electric aerial orbit has created some sensation, and surprise has been expressed at the daring feats of cyclists on an elevated and revolving track. Carl Reinsch, with his highly-trained dogs and horses, puts in another week; the Saxon Trio give a good exhibition as strong men; Lew Wells renders an appreciated musical comedy act; Lowell and Lowell are a pair of laughable comedians; and others in the list are Mr and Mrs Blake Adams, with their dramatic trifle The Last Pitch; Dora Martine, a graceful and daring gymnast; and Cissy Cutler, comedienne.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr F. O'Toole.—Gerald Mount is principal here this week, and has been cordially received for his songs and mimicry at the piano. Joe Humphreys, an able comedian, comes with several new items; Pulo, for a boy, performs some exceptionally clever juggling feats; Carl Osmond, lightning cartoonist, is an expert at producing portraits of well-known people; Lilly Martell provides a neat turn with her singing and acrobatic dancing; and others are Vardon, with his wonderful caddy, and Lil Hartley, serio-comedienne.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr Edwin W. Smith.—Included in a good all-round programme here this week is Gertie Gitana, of "Dolly Varden" fame, whose scena, "A School-Girl's Holiday," is very neat. Oliver Conroy creates a deal of amusement; Joe Huda is an able comedian and dancer, as is also Fred Roden; Enie Les Carres is a burlesque actress with tasteful songs; and Joe Humphrey a comedian with a number of humorous ditties. The Royal Bioscope shows new pictures each week.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr James Kiernan.—Tom Hall's Nippers, at the top of the bill here this week, give a capital performance as juvenile acrobats. The Three Novells, society acrobats and tumblers, go through a neat act; the Sisters Marion are a couple of juvenile duettists and vocalists; George Martinengo shows ability as a vocalist and solo 'cellist; Merton and Rydon have some capital songs and duets; and the programme also includes Violet Rivers, eccentric male impersonator; Alf Brooks, quaint comedian; and Mona M'Donald, comedienne.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr M. Montgomery.—Among a good list of artistes engaged here this week is Gerald Mount with his clever mimicry at the piano; Vernando, ventriloquist, who causes great laughter with his act, "The Deaf Guest;" the Two St. Johns, in a refined musical act and smart dancing; Harry Wright, a vocal comedian of ability; Miss Nellie Gannon, who gives some nea; English and Irish songs in character; and Edith Sylvesto. The Bioscope and the cake-walk competitions continue to attract much attention.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr James Kiernan.—The greater part of the bill here this week is occupied by Preston and Doherty's extensive company, with their sketch, The Rich and Poor of London, which contains a number of interesting and dramatic episodes. There are also many variety turns, principal among them being Sidney C. Cranston, comedian, with his "Oh, Gussie;" Sidney Dench, entertainer; and Belle Tilbury, elocutionist. Good business has been done.

LEICESTER.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr C. D Leigh.—Mr Laurence Irving and company met with an enthusiastic reception here on Monday, when Richard Lovelace was presented for the first time before a Leicester audience. The name-part allows Mr Laurence Irving every opportunity for the display of his histrionic abilities, and he is to be highly complimented on the success he achieves. Miss Mabel Hackney as Lucy Sacheverell gives a charming embodiment. Mr William E Ashcroft, who directs the tour, is exceedingly well placed as Colonel Richard Hawley, his portrayal being especially praiseworthy. Mr Henry Crocker is good as Alderman Sacheverell, and the other parts are in capable hands. The play is preceded (by Sir Henry Irving's permission) by Daisy's Escape.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr John H. Clarke.—The Face at the Window is again proving a big attraction this week, the company responsible for its presentation being Messrs Armadale and Warren's. The play is especially well mounted. Both Mr Augustine Knight as Lucio Delgado and Mr T. W. Dunscombe as Paul Gouffet have strong parts, in which they are eminently successful. Mr Alfred Richards makes an excellent Lucien Cortier, and as Marie De Brisson Miss Marie Florence is also to be highly complimented. Miss Lizzie Chambers and Mr Bob Anderson are very amusing as Babette and Peter Pottlebury, and keep the audience in continual laughter.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED — Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Leonard Vidal.—The audience here have at length been afforded the opportunity of seeing the interesting experiments with the "Kettle of Wonders," which are witnessed with the greatest amazement and delight. As Risley performers no finer, cleaner, or smarter troupe have been seen in Leicester than the Kremo Family. Fred Earle, comedian, is scoring a big success with his song "Seaweed." Walter Groves and company, in Artful Jim, create the greatest merriment. Horace Wheatley, who is an exceptionally clever dancer, scores with his songs, and repeats his usual success. Burt Shepard, a smart American comedian, sings an amusing parody on "Bill Bailey." Other artists who are also finding favour with the audience are Amy Russell, vocalist; Alice Ormonde, comedienne; Walter King, in new songs; and the Rayfords, comedy artistes.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr Walter Lapworth.—Lady Mansel and her juveniles in their speciality A Concert Rehearsal are the star turn here, and are cordially received. Clark and Argyle, pipers and dancers, are well applauded for their smart turn. Wilfrid, the Canadian flexible marvel, is a contortionist of great ability; the Sisters Redfern, instrumentalists, give a popular show; Rudd and Hart, eccentric comedians and dancers, are good; Billy Hubbard is a capital comedian; Kloof and Ramsey are very amusing in their musical eccentricities; Blanche Marion, burlesque actress and dancer, also entertains.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—The periodical visits of Messrs Maskelyne and Cook's mysteries always arouse great interest here. Their show, which is thoroughly up to date, includes some remarkable performances by Mr David Devant, whose skill is so well known. The audience accord the various items submitted unstinted applause, and the selections, both vocal and instrumental, by the Chamounix Alpine Singers and Swiss Orchestra are an entertaining and enjoyable feature. The Mystic Kettle is also presented by Mr David Devant.

LANCASTER.

ATHENÆUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Hy. Wilkinson.—This week we have Mr Douglas Bruce's company in A Girl's Cross Roads, which has proved a big attraction. Miss Lily Hammersley gives an exceedingly clever portrayal of Barbara Wade; Miss Kate Walfred is successful as Nellie Meadows; and Mr W. E. Griffiths as John Meadows, Mr George Gaisford as Jack Livingstone, and Mr Wm. Fraser-Brunner as Cuthbert Lumley all contribute to the success.

PALACE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs W. J. Fergusson and John Porter.—Capital business is again being done here, and Bennett and Martell come in for rounds of applause; Atlas and Miss Vulcana are paying a return visit; as also are Curtis and Miss Vanity, cake walk dancers. Bros. Wynford are clever jumpers; and others who make up a capital programme are Miss Kitty Phelps, comedienne, and Miss Dot Stanley, burlesque artiste. Walter Payne's Biophotoscope is still an attractive item.

NEW THEATRE AT LOUGHBOROUGH.

The new Theatre Royal at Loughborough, which is being built for Messrs Payne Seddon and George Robertson, is now rapidly nearing completion. After much delay and difficulty a site was obtained in close proximity to the Market-place, in the centre of the town, and although the contract was not signed until the end of September of this year, the work has progressed so rapidly that the theatre will be opened in January. The new building will seat about 850 and accommodate about 1,100. The proscenium opening is 26ft. wide and 20ft. high, and special attention has been given to the stage, which is 57ft. by 32ft. 6in. The flies are exceptionally wide, and there is a space of 32ft. from rail to rail. Above these is the grid, extending from back to front of the stage, at a height of 40ft., thus allowing the scenery to be raised without rolling. The interior of the auditorium will be elaborately upholstered, the dominant colours being red and cream. Electric light will be installed all over the building, with emergency gas footlights. The building will be connected with the National Telephone Company's system, and a private service will provide inter-communication between each part of the theatre. There are eight exits, and the dressing-room accommodation is very ample. The holding capacity, with prices ranging from 6d. to 3s., is about £80. A full dramatic and excise licence has been obtained, and there will be two bars; the dress-circle bar being in connection with a wide corridor lounge. A thorough system of ventilation and heating will be provided, and every possible care taken to ensure the safety of the audience in case of panic. The contractor for the work is Mr A. Faulks, of Loughborough and Reading. Mr F. Gadsby is carrying out the electric lighting; Mr G. H. Cox, of Leicester, the decorative plaster work; the heating arrangements are by Messrs Messenger and Co., Ltd., of Loughborough; and the upholstering and seating by Messrs W. Armstrong and Son. The architect is Mr Albert E. King, of Loughborough and Leicester. The proprietors have for some years been lessees of the Town Hall, Loughborough.

THE NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LOUGHBOROUGH.

PROPRIETORS, MESSRS. W. PAYNE SEDDON AND GEORGE ROBERTSON. ARCHITECT, MR. ALBERT E. KING.

LOWESTOFT.

MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Ernest A. Smith.—Mr and Mrs Fred Benton's company are appearing this week in the drama A Marriage of Convenience. Miss A. Harrison Tate appears to advantage in her rôle of Stella Burgon.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Geo. Gilbert.—Some capital turns are provided this week. The bill includes Stirling and Love, in their pleasing and refined musical act; Jean Seul; Mdlle. Lumiere's electrical fairy grotto; the Rushforths, illustrated song artistes; Three Bolanos, comedy artistes; King Leo, "vento" sketch; Four Rosaires, acrobats, &c. On Wednesday evening the Mayor and Mayoress (Mr and Mrs E. E. Tuttle), together with members of the Lowestoft Corporation, attended the performance. The stage duties are effectively carried out by Mr Stanley Steeds.

LIMERICK.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Robert Fogerty.—The Ben Greet company is here with The Fatal Wedding. Mr G. E. Olive sustains the part of Howard Wilson with great ability, and the rôle of Robert Curtis is capitally interpreted by Mr Cecil A. Collins. Toto has a most efficient impersonator in Mr W. Rushton Evan, and Mr E. Shirley is a clever Peter Schwartz. Mr T. Crossby makes an excellent Policeman O'Reilly, and Master Freddy Clark is a very pleasing Little Frank. Miss Maisie Richardson is a clever and pretty Jessie, and Miss Eva Moss is a delightful Mabel Wilson. Miss Beatrice Whitney acts well as Cora Williams, and as Bridget Miss Carrie Fenton is good. Pat, Molly, and Tim are impersonated by Misses Lottie Chamberlain, Cissie Clarke, and May Mannett.

LINCOLN.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr Frank King.—Mr Charles March this week presents the spectacular play of the Roman period The Priest of the Temple, of which he is the author and in which he finely plays Valerius. Miss Marie North is a sweet Praestantia, Miss Evelyn Hope is excellent as the Tiberian Polita; Mr Ronald Bayne works hard as Decus Fronto; Mr Henry Moxon rises to great heights in his assumption of the rôle of the fiery chief, Appius Herdonius; and Mr Stanley Mav is effective as Hermanus.

PALACE. — Sole Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr Sydney Arthur.—A very attractive bill is meeting with the due reward of excellent patronage. The four Sisters Merkel present a unique acrobatic performance characterised by remarkable finish and aplomb. Will Musgrave pays a welcome return visit; Baker Belphor sings "Bluebell" to storms of applause; Little Dando repeats his previous success; and the Brothers Ethairien with their mechanical horse cause boundless amusement. Daisy Davidson, the New Zealand soprano, sings three songs with much charm, and is especially successful with "Whisper and I shall hear." J. A. Wilson presents a nigger turn of the good old-fashioned kind, and the evening is concluded with Pallister's films, including the latest cinématograph marvel "A Drama in the Air."

LLANELLY.

ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr John Tully.—Messrs J. K. Murray and J. M. Dawson's company is here this week, and has played with success Driven From Home. Miss Lydia Donovan as Laura Raybrook proves herself to be a sympathetic and clever actress. Mr J. K. Murray is good as Anthony Raybrook, Mr J. Dawson as Walter Hatherleigh, Mr Cyril Harrison as Geoffrey Waring, Miss Alice Metcalf as Barbara Ashdown, and Miss May M'Kenzie as Margaret Bailey are all capable.

LONG EATON.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—The return visit of Mr Henry Johnston's Bank of England company has pleased the patrons of this now popular theatre. Mr Hubert S Chambers has a big share in the play as Sherlock Holmes; Stephen Hartley is ably played by Mr Juan De Alberti; Mr Charles Ninian is an ideal Isaacs, a money-lender; Mr Frank A. Hilliard is Eric Dane; Miss Hilda Clyde gives a good representation of Sylvia; and Miss Marie Loreth is sprightly as the American widow.

LONGTON.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. S. Howard.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company with A Traitor Prince is here this week. Mr Henry Lonsdale presents the chief character with marked success; Mr Carter Livesey as Billy Bright keeps the house merry; Miss Lilian Rignold ably assisting. As Frank Derrick Mr Alex. Temple gives a hearty rendering; Mr Austin Mortimer makes a good dude; the choleric Colonel Vane is played with the requisite force by Mr Austen H. Longford; Miss Beatrice Western does well as Vashti; and Miss Lilian Roseberry cleverly depicts the character of Lola Vane.

MACCLESFIELD.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr W. K. Gatley.—One Woman's Wickedness is having a capital representation at the hands of Mr Chas. H. Phelps and company. Mr L. Brien acts the part of Phillip Beaufort in a pleasant, breezy manner; Mr H. Humphreys well accentuates the character of Paul Royal; Mr C. H. Phelps gives a powerful impersonation of Jem Craggs; Mr A. Ferris as Lord Fitzdoodle shows ability; Mr H. Ward as Limpy Larry is most successful and is well supported by Miss Ethel Ashbury, who shines as Jenny Jiggles; Miss Louie Davis as Lillian Craggs capably realises her part; Miss Florence Lloyd as Janet Raymond is capital; and Mr C. Horget as John Fossett does well.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Lessees, Messrs Bendon and Larder.—At the top of the bill here we have V. J. De Henau, the armless wonder, who, with his feet, paints landscapes and is a clever instrumentalist and crack shot. Another good turn is Mdlle. Bena Adalina with her wonderful troupe of trained cockatoos; Great Gillin, ventriloquist, is amusing; Edie Endon, coon vocalist, is a remarkably clever dancer; Alec Thomas, Negro comedian, is interesting; Arthur Stratton, character comedian, is very funny; Chris Masters, character vocalist, is a good turn; and Eunice Titiens is a charming balladist. The Edison Bioscope completes an enjoyable programme.

MAIDENHEAD.

PAVILION.—Sole Proprietor, Mr George Gude.—Schack Seebold, with his many musical accomplishments, is a great attraction here, as is also Edwin Fay, female impersonator. Blanche Cunningham sings and dances well; Charles Penn is well received in a similar line; and the Sheppards, legmania-acrobatic dancers, do a clever turn. Fred Riley uses a fine voice in descriptive songs; Tom E. Carr sings acceptably; and Evered and Vaughan are applauded for their sketch, Romance and Reality. Praise is due to little Nora Doone for her dancing.

MANCHESTER.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr Edmondstone Shirra.—The second visit to Manchester of Mr Tree's company in The Darling of the Gods proved an attraction here on Monday. The strangeness and quaintness of this old-time tragedy of Japan forms not only a novelty to audiences used to European drama, but the story is one which can be followed with the deepest interest. Miss Frances Dillon is impressive as Yo-San, Mr Douglas Gerrard arouses sympathy as Kara, and Mr Robert Pateman is formidable and sinister as Zakkuri. These are the prominent parts, but those played by Mr Ivan F. Simpson (Saigon) and Miss Rhoda Ray (Asani) are worthy of mention at the head of a long and capable subsidiary cast. The scenery and dresses are highly effective, and the representation as a whole is nothing less than powerful.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr George Lee.—A capital company, under the direction of Mr George Dance, occupy the stage here this week in that popular musical comedy The Girl from Kay's. The possibilities of the humorous rôle of Hoggenheimer are exploited to the utmost by H. C. Barry; and Miss Simeta Marsden, a favourite with Manchester playgoers, is quite at her best as Winnie Harborough, "the girl from Kay's." Mr Charles Hanbury as Harry Gordon and Miss Alice Russon as Nora Chalmers also do well in their parts. Miss Maisie North dances well as Ellen, the maid, while Mr Fred Rolph as Joseph and Mr Leslie Roy Cathie as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle contribute to the amusement. The lyrics by Adrian Ross and others, and the music of Ivan Caryll are bright and pleasing throughout. The production is strengthened by a full chorus and an augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr Victor Champion.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs Wilson Barrett and G. R. Sims's play The Woman Ladder, presented by a company under the direction of Miss Mary Austen and Mr E. Vivian Edmonds, is the attraction here this week. Mr Harry Cullenford and Miss Mary Austin have the heroic parts in hand, and Mr Vivian Edmonds makes a powerful villain. The action is relieved by considerable humour, the bulk of which is contributed by Miss Nellie Graham, Miss Frances J. Foley, and Mr John Owen. A good word should be added for Miss Ethel Patrick as the Peckabys' daughter. The play is very well staged, and was well received by a good house.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr H. M. Thorburn. — A capital performance of Kitty Grey was given here on Monday by a company under the control of Mr C. St. John Denton. This piece has the advantage of possessing somewhat more solid interest than the majority of musical comedies, and it lacks nothing in the way of appropriate lyrics, music, and dancing. Miss Hilda Guiver is seen to considerable advantage in the title-rôle, and she is admirably supported by Mr Leslie Harris, Mr Innes-Smith, Mr Robert Whyte, jun., Miss Elly Helene, Miss Emily Stevens, and Miss Constance Hamilton, all in prominent parts. Mr Albert Vernon conducts the orchestra and chorus.

METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr W. P. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Quality is again the keynote of the entertainment provided here this week. Prominent turns are given by the Marvellous Winons, whose shooting business is much applauded; the Henriques, in a comic acrobatic mélange; Mr E. Hughes, an effective comedian; the Babusians, acrobats; Harry Weldon, a smart entertainer; and Agnes Krembser, lady juggler. Other good turns are those of Smith and Johnson, coloured couple; Three Sisters Kinner, vocalists and dancers; Flo Deighton, soprano vocalist; and George Rapley, comedian.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—A drama of more than average merit, A Woman's Pluck, by James Willard, is presented here this week by a company under the direction of Messrs Dottridge and Longden. Strong parts are in the hands of Mr James Willard and Miss East-Robertson, the latter being especially successful in her boxing scenes. Mr Edward Ashby is satisfactory as the heroic Winston Dale; and Mr Harry Emerson and Miss Agnese D'Aragon supply much acceptable humour. The efforts of the entire cast, indeed, combined with elaborate and effective scenery, make up a really capital show.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Richard Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Berry.—The success of Peggy Machree, a new Irish musical play, was beyond doubt here on Monday, the audience repeatedly signifying its approval of the many choice gems of song which it contains. The piece is in the hands of a company under Mr Charles E. Hamilton, the principals being Miss Marie Dainton, a very charming actress, and Mr Denis O'Sullivan, who is the possessor of a fine bass voice. The play was fully noticed in last week's issue.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broadhead.—Will Onda and capable company head the bill here this week, and cause much merriment with the well-known absurdity A Quiet Night. Charles Chard, comedian, is successful in songs and some quaint dancing; and very entertaining is David Poole, a really smart ventriloquist. Percy Farrimond, the Lancashire collier, has an excellent voice, and renders his songs in good style; Charles Sherra, equilibrist, performs some clever feats on the "white columns;" and other interesting items are the Brewster Troupe of vocalists, acrobats, and dancers; Madame De Rose, lady baritone vocalist; Rivington and Gordyn, in a short, amusing duologue; J. H. Hawtrey, actor vocalist; Annie Casey, comedienne; and a series of up-to-date animated pictures. An effective new act-drop, depicting an Eastern scene, has been painted for the proprietor of this popular hall by Mr Joseph G. Symes, of the Scenic Artists' Association, and was shown for the first time on the 17th inst. It is an ambitious piece of work, and reflects great credit on the artist.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr P. B. Broad-

head.—Boswell's circus, with its educated ponies, donkeys, and dogs, after a successful week at the Hippodrome, are here this week. The Bros. Terras with their acrobatic novelties are also good; whilst the comedy bar acts of the Rozalis are extremely smart and amusing. Tom Bassett caricatures Shakespearian characters very cleverly; Clark's Nippers punch the ball, and give a laughable display of burlesque boxing; the Sisters Volbeque are pleasing comedy duettists; Meir and Mora, American specialty artistes, sing acceptably and play on a novel instrument; and Harry Taft arouses interest and amusement by his whistling and his patter. Other enjoyable items are Lily Jackson, male impersonator; Mark Lane, comedian; and the animated pictures.

TIVOLI.—Managing Director, Mr Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr Arthur B. Wilkes.—The star turns here this week are Alf Gibson, whose songs and style are exceedingly popular, and Austin Rudd, whose eccentricities are much enjoyed. Bessie Travis is a smart young lady ventriloquist; Bessie Featherstone, comedienne, looks and sings well; the Haldyne Duo are seen in an amusing sketch; Leona and Maude are clever aerial gymnasts; Mabel Osborne is a pleasing comedienne; and H. S Prosper is an amusing comedian. An unnamed deputy took the place of Ray Maskell on Monday.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr W. Collins.—An extraordinary attraction is here this week in Albert Chevalier, who is delighting large audiences with his clever and refined sketches of coster character. Radford and Valentine give a most amusing juggling act, and another excellent turn is that of Binns and Binns in their musical burlesque speciality. A fine gymnastic performance is given by Alcide Capitaine; Marie Collins, comedienne, sings a couple of effective songs; Tina Clementa's trained horse and troupe of performing dogs are a pleasing item; and Lee and Bentley are seen to great advantage in a clever comedy sketch. Other good turns are Walter Stanley, comedian; Harry Drew, the Welsh basso; and Harry Coates, the original singing navvy.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr H. C. Arnold, jun.—Those delightful society entertainers, Bella and Bijou, head the bill here this week, this performance being, as usual, much appreciated. Another good turn is that of the Akimotos Troupe of Japanese jugglers and balancers. The Dixon Bros. as Algie and Reggie are highly amusing comedians and eccentric musicians; and clever turns are supplied by Alfonso Sylvano, equilibrist, and the Silvester Brothers, head and hand balancers. Other good turns are Charles Whalen, a capital eccentric dancer; Mr and Mrs Paul Knox, refined entertainer; and the pleasing dancing of Cissie Reece, comedienne, and of Mattie Crawford, serio comic vocalist. A series of animated pictures complete.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr J. H. Stringer.—Chung Ling Soo, the well-known Chinese conjuror, continues the attraction here, and nightly mystifies the audience with his remarkable tricks. Remaining also from last week is Tom Edwards, a really good ventriloquist, and the Lannons, duettists and dancers. The new comers include the Ernestine Trio, introducing that capital comedian, Tom Foy, in his inimitable impersonation of the "Yorkshire Lad in London." Harry Freeman, the popular comedian, makes a hit with his songs, "That's him!" and 'Dodging along;" Les Voces are exceptionally good operatic vocalists; the Five Fossappear in an amusing speciality The Excursion Depot; Hettie Leo, comedienne, has a pleasing style; and the Anartos are delightful musical sketch artistes. Other enjoyable items are the Palace pictures, introducing the latest and most fantastic series ever conceived, "Whirling the Worlds;" Tom Parker, comedian; and a well-rendered overture, "Siege of Rochelle."

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr Will Smithson.—The New Mephisto, presented by Mr W. H. Kirby's No. 1 company, is paying a first visit here this week. Mr Kirby fills the rôles of Mr Mephistopheles, Mr Stubbs, Silas Wagg, Jeames, Count Vesuvius, and William in first-class style; Mr W. H. Vernon is decidedly funny as Dick Pilgrim; and Miss Marion Armitage is quaint and amusing as Becky Pilgrim. Capt. Meredith has a capital exponent in Mr H. Carr; Lord Hummingtop is well represented by Mr Herbert St. John, and Mr Arthur Randall is an able Major Bantam. Miss Lily Gullick is bright and lively as Dolly, and the three widows have creditable representatives in Misses Dorothy Cecil, Leah Howard, and Marion Keeley. The Italian Glee Singers render some effective part songs.

MEXBOROUGH.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr W. H. Meltor.—Mr B. Kennedy's variety company occupies the boards here this week. A prominent feature is a number of up-to-date cinematograph films, the lantern being capably manipulated by Mr W. H. Greenwood. Smart turns are given by Clown Ohmy and dog, Snowdon, a graceful dancer and coon singer; Corlettie, instrumentalist; Cecil Terre, a quaint comedian; Le Brun and Irene, distinctly clever jugglers; Loder Lyons, ventriloquist; Will Ivor, high stilt performer; Mons. Edgar, a clever trapeze artist; Jessie Harper, the singing mill girl; and the Three Funniosities in an amusing sketch.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Directors, Messrs George and Charles Imeson.—The Worst Woman in London, as presented by Mr Walter Melville's company, draws interested audiences to the popular parts of the house. Miss Constance Medwyn gives a powerful impersonation of the title-rôle; Mr Paul Lewers acts well as her accomplice; Mr Bernard Medwyn portrays the character of Philip Armstrong well; and fun is provided by Mr Edward Collins, Mr Geo. Asquin, Miss Lillian Ross, and Miss Helena Rigby.

OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—Licensee and Manager, Mr T. Hopcutt.—Lovers of high-class plays are this week given an opportunity of seeing Lucky Durham, the late Wilson Barrett's last production Mr Wm. Greet's company, which is composed entirely of those who played with the late actor-author, present the piece in a manner which commands high commendation. Mr Wm. F. Grant is responsible for the rôle of John Durham, and he is a pronounced success in the character. As Lord Mountfallen Mr Henry De Solla is deserving of much praise; Mr Paul Belmore is a capital Hon. Reginald Steighton; and the Richard Vallerton of Mr Daniel M'Carthy is distinctly good. Helen Vallerton is very ably portrayed by Miss Phyllis Relph; Mrs Durham is touchingly played by Miss Nellie Bonsor; as the Hon. Margaret Steighton Miss Jessie Winter is very pleasing; and Lady Mountfallen is well played by Miss Mary Relph. The play is admirably staged.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr John Brill; Manager, Mr J. W. Thornborrow.—Capital houses this week greet Captain Woodward and his admirably trained seals and sea lions; Donaldson Brothers and Ardel, in the pantomime sketch, A Zoological Comedy, as funny as ever; Athas and Collins, highly valued favourites on Teesside; Burg, Haud, and Wise, comedians; Horace White, in a refined ventriloquial turn; Miss Ivy Dawn, who sings classic songs with fine taste; Miss Annie Laurie, a pretty dancer; Harry Leader, comedian; and the Bio pictures.

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr Wm. Peacock; Manager, Mr Wm. Ainsworth.—Miss Billie Barlow, comedienne, is the principal turn here. She sings some capital songs, which are favourably received. Mdlle. Martha, gymnast, gives an interesting display on the trapeze; and Brady and Johnson present a sketch Turning the Tables, which produces roars of laughter. Fleming, the one-legged acrobat, goes through several difficult feats; Miss Nora Emerald's songs are popularly received; W. F. Wilson, tenor, is heard to advantage; Miss Florrie Bray, comedienne, is good; and W. Ellerslie, entertainer, and the Bio pictures complete the programme.

MOTHERWELL.

NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr W. Gillespy.—This week we have Mr Milton Bode's company in Gentleman Joe here. In the title-part Mr Kennedy Allan is very clever. Mr Robert Vincent as Lord Donnybrook is amusing. Mr W. H. Moore is smart as Mr Ralli Carr, and as Mr Jacqueson Mr G. Wyley pleases the audience greatly. Mr Sydney Benson as Dawson, Mr Jack Harper as James, and Mr J. Hoopes as Pilkington Jones all do well. The Emma of Miss Maud Marriott is much admired, and her singing and dancing evoke well-merited applause. The Ellingale Trio of dancers earn encores, and the Margate Minstrels are very clever.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr Fred C Sutcliffe.—One of the more important engagements of the season is being fulfilled here this week by Mr Forbes Robertson, Miss Gertrude Elliott, and company. Both the plays they have elected to stage, namely Mice and Men and The Light that Failed, have previously been seen in Newcastle, but an additional lustre is given to their performance on this occasion by the appearance of the gifted actor and actress in the leading rôles. In Mice and Men, which was presented on Monday, we have an apt and cleverly worked out illustration of the ever-recurring truism on which the play is based. A fine feeling pervades Mr Forbes Robertson's dignified and effective impersonation of the elderly scholar Mark Embury, and his performance afforded unfeigned enjoyment to his many admirers. Equally noteworthy is Miss Gertrude Elliott's embodiment of Peggy, a character she invests with every charming and graceful attribute. Mr Frank Gilmore endows with all the requisite manly, lover-like qualities the part of Captain Lovell. Roger Goodlake has a capital representative in Mr George Sumner. Miss Auriol Lee depicts with much cleverness the part of Joanna Goodlake. The Light that Failed was played on Friday.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr F. Teale Lingham.—A Country Girl, probably one of the most literally endowed with tuneful melodies of all the musical comedies, is being attractively presented here by Mr George Dance's company. Miss Daisy Le Hay cleverly assumes the broad countrified manner of Nan, and also sings in good style. Vocalism of a high order is always forthcoming from Miss Maud Boyd, who again distinguishes herself as Marjory Joy. Miss Ethel Negretti does well as the Princess, the favourite number, "Under the Deodar," being tastefully rendered. Miss Maud Prenton meets with full approval for her bright and lively performance as Madame Sophie. The mercurial Barry is acted with an irrepressible buoyancy and humour by Mr Chas. R. Walenn. An enjoyable impersonation is given by Mr St. John Hamund as the Eastern potentate, the Rajah of Bhong. Geoffrey Challoner has a spirited representative in Mr Robert Michaelis. Mr Joe Nightingale as Sir Joseph Verity, Mr J. Jack Daly as Douglas Verity, and Mr P. L. Corray as Lord Anchester also appear to advantage.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr T. W. Rowe.—That famous Drury-lane drama The World is being successfully performed here by a company under the direction of Mr John F. Asche. Praise must be bestowed on the manner in which the piece is staged, the various scenic effects being capitally presented. Mr Stuart Lomath is commendably forceful and spirited as Sir Clement Huntingford, his brother Harry having an excellent exponent in Mr Francis Hawley. Mr Bernard J. Lieli as the Jew, Moss Jewell, acts the part cleverly and with humour. Martin Bashford has a vigorous representative in Mr Jackson Hayes. Miss Georgette Thierry supplies some good acting as Mabel Huntingford, and Mary Blythe has a pleasing exponent in Miss Beatrice Fay.

ELSWICK THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr Chas. M. Daly.—Here we have Miss Winifred Preece and company, who are engaged in making known to frequenters of this place of entertainment some of the reasons Why Woman Sins, as exemplified in the drama of that name.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr E. Leslie Conroy.—T. E. Dunville, with his laughable eccentricities in the way of gesture and facial expression is keeping audiences here highly amused, and the popular comedian is scoring his usual success. A very entertaining and lively turn is given by Doody and Wright, the male partner especially distinguishing himself as a dancer. Vasco, the mad musician, is a clever performer on all manner of musical instruments, and of course his eccentric behaviour is good for mirth. Chas. Baron presents his novel and interesting animal show with success; and Arthur Melrose, the word-whistling comedian, submits an acceptable exposition of his talents. Pia Carrozi is a brilliant executant on the harp, pleasing particularly in her rendering of the intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana. Gallagher and Hild meet with approval in their comedy business, and an admirable aerial act is contributed by Alexander and Bertie. Mr and Mrs Clifford Bronte remain for another week, and there are also acceptably appearing G. W. Foster, eccentric comedian; the Two Romers, operatic soloists; and Johnny Gilmore, the quaint comedian.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Ernest W. Bacon.—The Francois Troupe is the leading turn here, and their clever exhibitions prove them to be acrobats of much excellence. Hoop manipulating is the speciality of Stylo, who is very skilful. Banjoists of merit in the Clarkes are well applauded, and there are also successfully appearing Bros. Hampson, patter comedians and dancers; Flo Wood, comedienne; Daisy Cody, dancer; Florence Hilton, the pocket of Vesta Tilley; and Ella Dean, a charming vocalist.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Thornton and Bacon; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr Nelson Barry.—Mr W. W. Kelly's company is appearing here in The New East Lynne. The rôle of Lady Isabel is safely entrusted to Miss Agnes Imlay, who makes full use of her many opportunities. Some fine acting is supplied by Mr Wm. Heilbronn as Archibald Carlyle; and Mr Walter T. Clifford as Francis Levison portrays the character with good effect. Miss Helen Stewart appears with credit as Barbara Hare. An enjoyable performance is given by Mr W. Faulkner Cox as Murty O'Flynn. Miss B. French Stewart is seen to advantage as Cornelia Carlyle.

PAVILION THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Will H. Boardman.—Houdini, the jail-breaker and handcuff expert, is reappearing in this city, and his clever entertainment has attracted large audiences. He introduces several new tricks which prove a source of wonderment to his auditors. Edward and Nettie Masse, comedy ugglers, introduce a sketch entitled Frolics in a Dining Room. The male performer possesses a fund of humour, and his juggling act is both original and refined. The Phillipi Brothers are prominent in an amusing act entitled Shunting. In this they introduce some novel mechanical effects and an acrobatic display of more than ordinary ability. The Patty Brothers, acrobats and head walkers, have been seen here before, but their contributions to the programme still prove very popular. George D'Albert is a vocalist who both sings and acts his songs in finished style. He receives hearty recalls. Chas. B. Whittle, comedian, provides several pleasing songs; and Stanley and Vandyke appear in a sketch in which much humour of a robust nature is introduced. Warden, Reed and Glenny also appear in a production entitled Married or Photographed, and the Legay Quartette of Dancers are included in the company. A series of Animated Pictures are also exhibited at each performance.

NORTHAMPTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident Manager, Mr W. J. Andrews.—Mr Brandon Thomas's company is here this week with his well-known farcical comedy, Charley's Aunt. The cast is entirely new, with the exception of Mr Stanley Cooke, who is still in the part of Lord Fancourt Babberley, and a better exponent of the ci-devant Charley's aunt could not be wished for. Mr Walter Beaumont is an amusing Stephen Spettigue, Mr Lumsden Hare is capital in the part of Col Sir Francis Chesney, Bart.; Mr C. B. Keaton as Jack Chesney and Mr Richard B. Mason as Charley Wykeham are excellent; Miss Lena MacNaughton is a dignified representative of Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez; Miss Iris Banfield as Kitty Verdun and Miss Geraldine Greville as Amy Spettigue are charming; Miss Dorrie Roberts is sweetly sympathetic as Ela Delahay, and Mr Sydney Compton gives a finished rendering of the part of Brassett, the college scout.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr Robert Barton.—The programme is a very attractive one this week. The card manipulation of Carlton is clever, and, aided by comic patter, is vastly amusing; Roddin is a smart eccentric comedian and cyclist; Francis is an apt juggler with cannon balls, &c.; Fred Cary is a true comedian; the Donator, the well-known one-legged acrobats, give their excellent turn with great success; E. W. Selman gives a couple of comic songs in good style; Mdlle. Magna introduces a series of classical poses which are highly appreciated; and the Four Herberts, jolly Californian farmers, get a good reception for their clever comedy act, On the Farm.

NORTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson; General Manager, Mr Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr Gordon Jefferson.—The boards here this week are occupied by Go-Won-Go-Mohawk and her American company with Wep-ton-no-Mah, which has proved attractive. In the title-rôle Go-Won-Go-Mohawk gives an interesting performance; Mr Richard Thorne as Spanish Joe is very acceptable; Colonel Stockton is played by Mr C. W. Charles with satisfactory results; Mr George Courtney presents a good impersonation of Captain Franklin; and Mr Theo Alker is a capital Chief Gar-Ne-Gua. Miss Minnie Goepel is clever as Nellie Stockton; Miss Jessie Hart makes the most of Matilda Sniffles; and the remaining parts are in good hands.

BORO' VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Arthur Jefferson.—The principal attraction here is the Boris Fridkin Troupe, operatic singers and acrobatic dancers, who are loudly applauded. Luba De Sarema, with performing bull, ponies, and dogs, gives a wonderfully smart show, and the Moxons, speciality artists, are clever. Lauri Wylie, with his mimicking mannikins, have made a hit. Miss Lydia Dudley, comedienne; Miss Bertha Duckett, child vocalist; Miss Evelyn Taylor, male impersonator; and Mr George Edney, comedian, also appear.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Wm. Mould.—The Four Onatas, Algerian jugglers, top the bill here, and are held in high favour. Messrs Denby and Dent are amusing comedians, and Mr George Daunton, vocal comedian, is popular. Omega, on the silver wire, is clever, and Mr Fred Durran, comedian and mimic; Messrs Stanert and Yondi, in their musical comedy act; Messrs Alvens and Cleo, gymnasts; and Payne's Bio-Photoscope contribute with success to a good bill-of-fare.

NOTTINGHAM

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—The visit of Mr James Welch with The New Clown is responsible for good business here. As Lord Cyril he finds innumerable opportunities for his resourceful humour, and keeps his audience in a continual state of uproarious merriment. Miss Audrey Ford plays Rosie Platt with delightful sauciness and natural vivacity; Mr Cyril Harcourt looks to the life the easy-going good-natured Captain Trent; and Mr Henry Belding effectively interprets the strong man Billy. Mr G. H. Snazelle is capital as the circus proprietor, and Mr Harry J. Crane adds to the fun by his assumption of the real clown, Baker. Misses Alexandra Carlisle and Estelle Winwood as Winnie and Maud Chesterton are worthy of praise for their bright performances; and excellent assistance is also given by Messrs Leopold Profeit, C. C. Headley and Lloyd Earle, The Man in the Street and The Lady Burglar are the curtain-raisers.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Charles P. Cooke.—The company touring under the direction of Mr C. M. Polini and Mr Austin Melford in the ever-popular drama The Silver King occupies this theatre this week. Nothing but praise can be accorded to Mr Lauderdale Maitland for his finished and powerful rendering of the part of Wilfred Denver, and he is most ably assisted by Miss Lilian Bethell as Nellie Denver, whose acting is perfect. Mr Edward J. George makes a very good Daniel Jakes, and the work of Mr. W. V. Garrod as Captain Skinner is easy and convincing. Miss Lorna Treherne is successful as Olive Skinner, and Miss Violet St. Clair and Master Jack Evan are a charming pair of children as Cissy and Ned. Mr Arthur Wright as Coombe and Mr Alfred Northway as Cripps are both admirably suited to their parts, and Mr Eric Store as Mr Parkyn has an admirable conception of a comedy parish clerk.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr A W. Bull.—When Darkness Falls is another capitally written play by Mr Wm. Bourne, and his company is giving an interesting rendering here this week. Mr Charles Boult essays Captain Harold Montrevor with conspicuous success. Mr Frank Liston presents an acceptable portraiture of the Rev. Arthur Graham; Mr Ellis J. Preston makes a thoroughly convincing villain as James Woodruffe; and Mr Tom Roydon is adequate as Berlin. Miss Maud Buchanan plays Helen Montrevor with tenderness and expression; and Miss Amy Vennimore fills the rôle of the vengeful Mrs Woodruffe with commendable emphasis. The lighter vein is supplied by Mr Will Clement (Mike) and Miss Emmeline Glover (Jenny), whose drolleries cause plenty of laughter.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Hatton Wharton.—The quaint, jerky method of R. G. Knowles never fails to excite merriment, and his comical sayings and entertaining "patter" keep the house in a roar of laughter. Verno and Voyce aptly describe themselves as singing comedians, and their "turn" is received with genuine pleasure. The Levinos present the sketch The Rival Arts, which enables them to display their many accomplishments as vocalists, harpists, and cartoonists. Another sketch, Naughty Nin, by the Florador Quartet, is given with amusingly volatile suggestion. The mercurial drollery of Rezene and Robini is rewarded with peals of responsive hilarity. The Young American Quintet sing and dance with unflagging animation, and Marie Reeve submits an attractive item as a step-dancer. Lizzie Daniels renders a song spiritedly, and the Ashers win favour by their selection. A droll song, "His day's work was done," is given with inimitable gusto by Geo. Brooks.

NORWICH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Fred Morgan.—Mr Harry Foxwell and his powerful company occupy the boards this week in Shadows of a Great City. Mr Howell Travis is most successful as Tom Cooper, Mr Newton Pearce creates amusement as Jim Farren, Mr Harry Foxwell is excellent as Abe Nathans, and Mr Chas. Vivian ably represents George Benson, as does Mr Arthur A. Tomlin as Arkwright, and Mr J. Robert as Simon Abler. Miss Sheila Walsh excites much sympathy as Annie Standish, and is much appreciated later as Nellie Standish. Miss Nellie Gray appears as Mrs Higgins, and Miss Dorothy Neville is well received as Biddy Roonan.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr F. W. Fitt.—Among the items this week Barnard's famous marionettes are to the fore, and have a good reception. The Attilla Brothers exhibit some clever feats of strength, and challenge any competitor to equal them. The Albano Troupe are clever musicians and an excellent turn. Capt. Devereux introduces his highly trained dogs, who go through some remarkably clever tricks, concluding with a sketch, The Streets of London. F. T. Nelson's Newsboys are well received, and deserve the applause given. Amy Anderson and company create much laughter. Carr and Rose render a pleasing vocal comedy entitled Their First Quarrel. Andy Fagan is successful as a comedian and dancer, whilst Charles Woodward, character comedian and actor-vocalist, has had an excellent reception.

BOSTOCK AND WOMBWELL'S MENAGERIE.—Proprietor, Mr E. H. Bostock; Manager, Mr Frank Bostock.—This menagerie concluded its stay in Norwich on Monday evening, having been excellently well patronised. Capt. Cardona gave some remarkable and exciting performances in the lions' den, and equal interest was taken in Capt. Forster. Capt. Cardona's thirty years' connection with the show as a lion-trainer is a feat in itself.

OLDHAM.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr Hulme.—Miss Ellen Terry's répertoire company is here this week. Much Ado About Nothing was selected for Monday. Miss Ellen Terry portrayed the part of Beatrice with her accustomed ability and vivacity, and greatly delighted a large and appreciative audience. Mr John Willes as Dogberry was a decided success, as was Mr Tom Poulton as Verges. Mr Matheson Lang's Benedick was all that could be desired; Miss Hutin Britton as Hero was excellent; Mr E. H. Williams as Claudio was clever; Mr George Fitzgerald as Leonato acted with dignity. The rendering of Don Pedro by Mr Charles Thursby and Mr T. A. Shannon's presentment of Don John were very satisfactory. Mr Penderel Price's treatment of the song "Sigh no more, ladies," was capital. The scenery and mounting were excellent.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr George Knowles.—Morritt presents here a remarkable illusionary entertainment which is heartily appreciated; Grell and Gray cause great amusement by their sketch, Bertie's First Lesson in Tennis; Elias B. Seenor's Imperial Russian Troupe of singers and dancers are greatly appreciated; Hill and Whittaker are very successful in a musical entertainment; the Bros. Redmond do some smart acrobatic work; R. W. Bently, comedian; Marion Scott, Jessie Albani, comediennes; and Dora Lyric, refined comedienne, ably contributed to the programme.

GAIETY.—Manager, Mr E. J. Dexter.—Gintaro, Japanese juggler, gives an excellent and novel performance; Harris L. Bell and Lily Pearl and company are successful in their sketch A Bit of String; Parr does some smart modelling and caricature sketching; G. W. Hastings is notable for his singing; T. W. Johnson is admired for his comic vocalism and clever sand dancing; W. A. Kay submits some adroit miniature figure manipulation; Miss Kitty Gower, danseuse, gives a clever presentation of national characters; and Raymond's Bioscope is enjoyed.

OSWESTRY.

VICTORIA ROOMS.—Manager, Mr Wallace Ollerhead.—Mr Charles Macdona's No. 1 company visited the town on the 17th inst., and presented in these rooms the well-known musical comedy A Country Girl to a crowded and appreciative audience. Mr Herbert Standing, jun., as Geoffrey Challoner acted and sang well; Mr W. O. Billington was excellent as Sir Joseph Verity; Mr Bernard Vaughan played the Rajah of Bhong with refreshing ease; Mr M. Raven made an aristocratic Lord Alchester; Mr A. Carr was suitably placed as Lord Grasmere; the rôle of Barry was in safe hands, Mr Richard Telford's acting eliciting roars of laughter. He was ably supported by Miss Sadie Neville as Madame Sophie. Miss Lucie Nevill elicited warm approval in the part of the Princess; Miss Florence Hallam as Marjory Joy gave a finished impersonation; while the part of Nan, played by Miss Florence Burdett, could not have been in safer hands.

OXFORD.

NEW THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr C. C. Dorrill.—This week Mr George Dance's company is here with The School Girl. Miss Ethel Beech makes a charming Lilian Leigh and sings delightfully; Miss Gracie Sinclaire is quite successful in her fascinating performance of Cicely Marchmont; Miss Grace Wixon makes an imposing and stately Lady Marchmont; and Miss Nell Hope a handsome model. Mr Leslie Holland is immensely funny as Sir Ormesby St Leger and dances well; the same can be said of Mr Alfred Leslie's Tuby Bedford and Mr Charles Adeson's General Marchmont, a trio of comedians that will take a deal of beating. Mr Lister Morrah sings in pleasing fashion as Edgar Verney, and Mr Cameron Carr gives a capital sketch of Peter Overend, of the Stock Exchange.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr H. G. P. Wells.—Miss Gladys Silvester and Mr Fletcher Sansome's company is continuing another week's engagement here with the musical comedy Cissy. Mr H. C. Lovell makes a convincing lover as Victor Carleton; the villain, Gilbert Temple, is in good hands with Mr Murray Yorke; Mr Dan Clifford infuses a large amount of life and humour into the play as Titus Thomas, B.A.; and Mr Fletcher Sansome portrays Dossy Bowers in effective style. Miss N. V. Warden, as usual, is quite a favourite as Mary Mopps; Miss A. Rochefort is adequate as Olive Temple; and the Misses Western and Swires as Gertie Easem and Flossie Sparkles dance effectively.

PAISLEY.

PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile.—For the first three nights of the week Mr Ian Maclaren and his company were in possession here with The Prince of Rogues. The leading characters were meritoriously embodied, notably the Geoffrey Flint of Mr Ian Maclaren, the Frank Farrell of Mr George Davis, the Winifred Harwood of Miss Elsie Roberts, and the Rita Congrieve of Miss Dorothy Mackenzie. Mr Johnny Fisher was highly amusing as Josh Buggins. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison's company in A Country Mouse was announced for the remaining nights of the week.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr Delno Fritz.—Of undoubted ability is the company engaged here this week. The artistes include George Bernard, actor-vocalist; Bishop and Vale, eccentric comedians and dancers; James Hennessey, descriptive vocalist; Harry Glynn and his company of comedians in a round of funny sketches; and Gilbert's troupe of dogs and cats. The Empire Cinématograph is a decided attraction.

PERTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Aldridge.—Miss Emma and Mr Percy Hutchison's company (by arrangement with Mr Frank Curzon) was here on Monday in the comedy A Country Mouse. Mr Charles Hewitt, who assumed the rôle of the Hon. Archibald Vyse, was thoroughly amusing; Mr Charles Harley was an excellent exponent of the dignified John Bowlby, M.P.; Mr Arnold Lucy drew an ideal impersonation of the fastidious Duke of St. Kitts; Mr Wilson Lumley's merits were readily perceived in the part of Lord Robert Wykeham; no better impersonation of a faithful butler could be desired than Mr John E. Watson's Jephcot; Mr Thomas Hope's footman was a capable piece of acting; Miss Edith Walker played powerfully as Lady Sylvia Bowlby; Miss Eve Erskine was likewise successful in the part of Violet Aynsley; Miss Emily Levetter' Mrs Cropper was thoroughly amusing; and Miss Violet M Harley successfully enacted the rôle of Angela. His Landlady preceded.

PETERBOROUGH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr A. Darville Vernon.—Mr Charles Macdona's company is here this week with Are You a Mason? The Amos Bloodgood of Mr Edward Thirlby is remarkably good; Mr George De Lara is an excellent George Fisher; Mr Arthur Claremont is capitally suited as Frank Perry; Mr Stanley Bell achieves success as Morrison; and Mr David Denard gains applause by his funny impersonation of John Halton. Miss Nell Douglas is well placed as Lottie; Miss Lelia Russell makes a charming Eva; Miss Constance Groves is successful as Mrs Caroline Bloodgood; and Miss Janie Levens and Miss Pearl Keats score as Annie and Lulu.

PLYMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—Three Little Maids is being presented here this week by Mr Charles Macdona's No. 1 company. Since its last appearance in the West the piece has been improved by the addition of several tuneful numbers. Bright and bewitching are Miss Gladys Ward, Miss Gertrude Melville, and Miss Nora Guy as the Three Maids; whilst the trio of ladies are impersonated in graceful fashion by Miss Jennie Edgar, Miss Ethel May, and Miss Ella Daincourt. Miss Laura Wright is a sprightly and amusing Gretcher, and, together with Mr Gus Oxley, the caddie, evokes roars of laughter. As Lady St. Mallory Miss Kate Forster is a success. Mr Arthur Longley's study of Lord Cheyne is very clever; Mr Haddon Cave sings and acts well as Brian Molyneaux; and Mr Alec Chentren's vocalism is pleasing and refined. Mr Charles Leverton is a dignified cleric.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr C. F. Williams; Assistant-Manager, Mr Percy Williams.—That evergreen favourite San Toy is the attraction here this week, Messrs Hart and Malone's company doing full justice to the dainty and charming piece. As the merry maiden Miss Fanny Dango is delightful in all that she sings, says, and does. Miss Maud Darling imparts plenty of dash to the rôle of the English girl, and, in conjunction with Mr E. Statham (the heathen Chinee), is seen to advantage, both providing lots of fun. A meed of praise is due to Mr Reginald Kenneth, who as Captain Bobby Preston elicits warm approval. Others worthy of commendation are Miss Louie Collier, Mr Charles Medwin, and Mr Stratton Mills. The piece is very effectively staged, and the chorus work is first-class.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros; Manager, Mr J. Field.—Miss Peggy Pryde's songs here this week are much enjoyed, the gifted artist singing clever compositions in inimitable style. A military monologue The Boys of the Chelsea School, by Mr George Leyton, is also a strong turn. A remarkable trapeze performance is forthcoming from the Skandias, and there are realistic impersonations from Dickens's novels by Mr Russell Hatton. A variety act of a very attractive description is submitted by Hume, Ross, and Lewis; a popular verdict is secured nightly by the illustrated songs given by the Lynches; as duettists and dancers the Weirs excel; and a clever comedian is Mr Bert Lyttor, who sings good songs well. Miss Lily Foy is to the fore as a character comedienne, and a well-balanced orchestra acquits itself with credit.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr Arthur Carlton.—A Russian drama, The Assassin, holds the boards here this week, Mr E. Hill-Mitchelson's company appearing in it with much success. The chief rôle is essayed by Mr Hill-Mitchelson, who acts with dramatic force, Mr J. C. Carlyle as Ivanoff, the hero, is manly and convincing, and both actors earn unstinted approbation. Miss Ruth Shepherd, Miss Grace Aimers, and Miss Alice Barber undertake serious parts with ability, and Mr Arthur M'Culloch well sustains the part of a Chief of the Police. Humour of a high order is supplied by Messrs E. Swinton, F. Wilberforce, F. Yarnold, and Miss Armstrong.

WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, Messrs W. C. and S. Hancock.—The attractions this week comprise a display of living pictures; a comedy spectacle entitled Crossing the Line; amusing songs by Jake Nolan; an entertaining turn by Cissy Lomax, comedienne; Josey and his mule; and a riding act by Mr John Fossett, jun.

PONTYPRIDD.

ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr Rex Dooley.—Messrs Fred Darcy and Fred J. Little's company, in the comedy-drama On the Stroke of Twelve, is proving a huge success here. Mr Fred Rivers makes a manly Jack Rutledge, being ably seconded by Mr Fred Guinness as George Bainbridge. Mr H. Creagh Hunt portrays James Horton in realistic fashion; Henry Rutledge is in the able hands of Mr Henry C. Robinson; Mr Karl H. Edwards is worthy of praise as Moses Levi; Mr Fred J. Little contributes a masterly assumption of Jasper; Pat Cahill is well portrayed by Mr Will Bass; and Miss Elma C. Turner has a most attractive appearance as Marie Bergerre. Miss Nellie Moore is to be congratulated on her interpretation of Nell Bainbridge; and Miss Bertha St. Ruth wins encomiums as Doris Rutledge.

PORTH.

POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—The attraction here this week is Mr Frank E. Burdett's company in a new version of the military play entitled The Indian Mutiny. Miss Maud Digby is decidedly successful, and displays much ability as Ghuz-nah; Captain Manley is exceedingly well rendered by Mr H. C. Brandon; Mr W. S. Tindall scores as Major Ingleby; Terry O'Brien has a most amusing representative in Mr George Scully; Mr Ernest Keand does remarkably well as Ra Goonga, so does Mr J. S. Shedden as Abul Khan. Mr H. Ryeland-Leigh is successful as Lieutenant Manley; Miss Kate Bruce as Mrs Major Ingleby and Miss Agnes Kingston as Kate Ingleby deserve mention in their respective parts.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietress, Miss Ada Alexandra; Managing-Director, Mr D. Taylor; General Manager, Mr E. Pryce.—This new building was opened on the 17th inst. It has accommodation for about 800 persons, and is conveniently situated. The management has spared no effort in making it as comfortable and attractive as possible. The building is lit both by electricity and gas. Some excellent turns were provided for the opening, including Pleitt, the handcuff king; the Cranks, comedy cyclists; the Three Dagmars, acrobats and tumblers; Mdlle. Rosa, the charming gymnast, &c. The musical portion of the entertainment was supplied by Miss Zette Handel's ladies' orchestra. This week the programme includes the Brothers Lloyd, in their marvellous tight-rope performance; the Three Escaladers, lightning acrobats, give an excellent turn; Ulrick, the Tranka king and barrel wonder, is decidedly clever and meets with much approval; Robert Francis, grotesque acrobats, create some genuine fun; Rabbit and Hairpin, the two clowns, are to the fore with their comicalities; and some excellent pictures are shown each evening by the Biomyrograph.

PORTSMOUTH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr Armstrong Bell.—Presented at this theatre for the first time, Mr C. P. Levilly's clever company, with the comic opera Amorelle, has been received by large and appreciative audiences during the week. Mr Eric Thorne makes the best use of his opportunities as Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crow, and keeps the house in one continual ripple of laughter. In the title-rôle Miss Stella Gastell is conspicuously successful, her vivacity eliciting hearty approval. Miss Kitty Cavendish plays with delicacy and refinement the part of Lesbia; Marina is very effectively taken by Miss Madge Avery; Mr John Doran makes a manly and capital Jules, his singing being much admired; and as François Mr Newton Ide does very well.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr T. E. Agate.—The Beautiful Avenger has been received here this week as presented by a powerful company. The very exacting dual-part of Vashti Volta, "the beautiful avenger," and Victor Stanhope, "a scientific explorer," in the able hands of Miss Nannie Meade, was a highly meritorious performance. Miss Mabel Seudamore gave a clever impersonation of Edna Volta. Mr Algernon Syms enacted the part of Cyrus Telford, "an artist under a cloud," and did sterling work. Mr Lionel Gillett as Zadok Foxbane and Mr William Diamond as Herman Foxbane acted well a villainous father and son. Mr William Ames as Peregrine Patch and Miss Lilian Hawkins as Arabella Binks were responsible for the lighter side, and provoked much merriment.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr W. Pratt.—A capital programme is submitted here this week. W. J. Churchill, eccentric comedian, has some very popular and highly amusing songs. Harry Edson and "Doc" give a pleasing and diverting turn. Hettie Lee, comedienne and danseuse, is very taking. G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, gets a flattering reception; Great Scott, the ladder king, submits a clever balancing turn; Barton and Franklin, expert instrumentalists, vocalists, and dancers, are very good; the Daintons, in an up to-date comedy act, find favour; and the bill is completed by the Great Northern Troupe of International dancing experts and the Sisters Leroy, duettists and dancers.

PRESTON.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr Stephen Pritt.—Mr William Greet's No. 1 company is here this week on a return visit with The Sign of the Cross. Mr F. R. Woulfe gives a powerful delineation of Marcus; Mr A. Bernhardt Turner effectively impersonates Nero; Mr Charles Aldred acquits himself well as Tigellinus; and Glabrio has an excellent representative in Mr Frank Wood. Miss Alma Bolton is seen to advantage as Berenice; much praise is due to Miss May Fairclough for her presentment of Ancaria; Stephanus is cleverly portrayed by Miss Ivy Millais; and Miss Evelyn D'Alroy is an impressive and convincing Mercia.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Sawyer and Woodruff.—A grand vaudeville company is here this week. J. K. Reynolds and company cause a great sensation in the sketch entitled Conscience; Mr Orlando Martin creates much amusement with his comic songs; Mr T. E. Gilby is clever on the unsupported ladder; Keith and Imerson are exceedingly good acrobatic comedians; Rose Harvey is a charming vocalist; Lue Lord contributes some good songs. Harry Clifford, actor vocalist, is a good turn; Young Igo is an expert clog dancer and comedian. The Royal Bioscope shows a series of interesting up to-date pictures.

RADCLIFFE.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—Messrs Henry Charles Mayhew and Herrick's company is the attraction here with The Triumph of Truth. Mr C. W. Stanley is good as Captain Jack Eversleigh, and Mr T. Renaud Lockwood is well placed as Count Raoul D'Orville. The part of Pierre Choppard is well filled by Mr Frank Radcliffe, and Mr Johnny Clegg is amusing as Tommy Woodhead. Miss Rosabel Dodd displays talent as Blanche De Croix, and Miss Lilian Ramsdale is a lively Coralie; Miss Lily Rogers doing good work as Katie Bright.
